How many footsteps mark a mother's way.
Hers is a path to follow trampled o'er,
A bed to make, a peddler at the door.
Small wonder that her hair grows quickly gray

And yet, how fair the dream she's working for!
The man shall rest when he comes home tonight,
Shall toss once more his hat upon a chair.
The children in wild rapture or delight
Shall fling their shoes and stockings here and there,
And her tired hands shall pick them up again
And never tell that love has caused her pain.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

March 22rd., 1936

Twenty-four transients were given shelter at the police station last night.

Mr. W. J. Morrison, superintendent of the Ontario School for the Deaf, was the guest speaker at the meeting of the Campbellford Rotary Club on Monday.

Dr. and Mrs. J. F. Farnsworth of Whitby, formerly of this city, spent the weekend with relatives.

Mr. J. L. Hughes of London, Ontario, spent the weekend here with his mother, Mrs. William Hughes, Queen Street.

Mr. J. P. St. Louis, Ottawa, is the guest of Mrs. Geo. A. Bonisteel and Mr. Bonisteel, Highland Avenue.

Stove Pipes Disappear—During the cold snap of recent days banks could not heat with furnaces and coal burning heaters and stoves were resorted to. Few of these places had outlets to the chimney, so stoves were made in windows and it was no wonder to see a stove pipe sticking from the window of a prominent place of business. The Bank of Montreal had to resort to stoves and being without a chimney, Bridge and Front streets, the pipe protruding from a window was overlooked. Siphons have been found to work faster than the pumps which were used for some time, and they have drained the water from numerous cellars in quick order and cellars are sufficiently dry to make possible the use of premises. Today most of the pipes from windows have disappeared.

March 22rd, 1926

Thomas H. Bowen, chairman of the Belleville Parks Board, has been re-elected to that office for the third year. Harry Greenlaw, who has been secretary of the board for some time, is taking the work on again and in addition he will act as treasurer, for the latter office was formerly occupied by Charles Parker for several years.

Two hundred persons attended the dance and card party in the Great War Veterans' Hall last night. During the evening Mrs. Hilton presented a bouquet of beautiful roses to Mrs. A. E. Baldwin on behalf of the G.W.V.A., as a token of appreciation of the work she did in selling one hundred and forty-three tickets for the dance. Much of the success of the affair is due to the committee of St. Julien Chapter I.O.D.E. who rendered valued assistance.

Mr. G. B. Smith is spending a few days in London, Ontario. Mrs. G. A. Curtis, Bleecker Street, has returned home from Norwood where she visited friends.

40 YEARS AGO

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

BOOK COLLECTORS

Book collectors are among the forgotten benefactors of the world. Their love and enthusiasm, as well as their knowledge and appreciation for great writing, they have passed down to all humanity and posterity a wealth of treasures that otherwise might have been lost forever. They have preserved the story of civilization, and the aims of the thinkers of this world.

Take our early American literature, for example. The earliest book in America was the "Bay Psalm Book." So rare is this first edition that $150,000 was paid for it a year or so ago, and it now rests in the rare book room of Yale University. There are but about a half dozen copies of the Bostonian, which is the frail little book of poems by Edgar Allan Poe. One collector paid $20,000 for a copy. The collectors kept these treasures alive!

Only a handful of the great "Gutenberg Bible" exist all first built new some collectors. It was the first book compiled through the use of movable type. Only 21 copies of the once paid but $2,500 a copy for it, but the price since has gone as high as nearly $200,000! In 1848 the Boston Athenaeum purchased, for $3,800, 433 books and some 750 pamphlets from George Washington's library. Try to imagine what a collector would pay for such a set today!

Not only has the collecting of books been a joy to those engaged in the occasional hunt for their own lives have been enriched and, in most cases, the libraries of the world have gained by it. And so the story of civilization has been preserved and kept intact. In the famous Clements Library at Ann Arbor, University is one of the greatest collections of Americana probably in the world—all a gift of the collector, William L. Clements.

You, who love all good books, talk to a collector and you will learn something of the beauty and soul of that one! Each one, in his way, a benefactor to us all.

The Empty Pews

(Deloraine (Man.) Times)

Wonder why folks always sit in the back rows at church? The front pews are usually empty while the congregation huddles together at the rear. Undoubtedly a fortune awaits the architect who can draw up plans for a church without any front pews.

Khrushchev and Stalin

(New York Times)

A fateful step has been taken in Moscow. The tangled web of myths and lies employed to build Joseph Stalin into the figure of the living god until his death has now been torpedoed beyond repair. It was Nikita S. Khrushchev who played the role of a modern Galileo, risking the fame of his political father in a speech whose fantastic nature could not be hid. Where Khrushchev and his colleagues once praised Stalin as the "father" and teacher, the "genius" and the unpublished speech pictured the tyrant as a blundering, paranoid murderer whose stupidity and despotism almost destroyed the Soviet Union.

Khrushchev made these revelations to the party elite at last month's Communist Congress, but already word has circulated among the Soviet people. The impact of these revelations can be judged from the fact that the Moscow correspondent of the newspaper's Moscow correspondent, William Hanson, he could find no trace of discrimination of public opinion has been caused" of "wavering doubts and discussion are going on in thousands of homes and enterprises."

The free world has long known of Stalin's many crimes. That he murdered thousands of Soviet officers before World War II despite warnings of Hitler's attack, these are the events of the Khrushchev indictment were well known to us. But to the Soviet people—systematically deified by a regime of slave press — such revelations must have been shocking indeed. What the full consequences will be no man can yet foretell, though there is little question that Khrushchev may not have fully realized all the results of his action. And among Communists outside the Soviet Union, there is already ferment and shock as they begin to realize that free world reports about Stalin, which were denounced as "slander," were in the simple, unvarnished truth.

At hope, the Khrushchev admission will be a powerful weapon to meet the revulsion against Stalinism among the Soviet people and the West Stalin's first and unhappiest victims. The leading role may have been played by Khrushchev but the glory of victory in World War II and aiming to rehabilitate Tukhachevsky and other executed military leaders.

But the hatred of Stalin went far deeper than any one group. The Kremlin.

Just How Did Bridge Start?

"The Bridge Player" Bedside Companion"

If you want to start a controversy among card historians, ask them: "Who invented the game of bridge come into being?" You are likely to get almost as many explanations as there are historians.

According to one story, bridge was originally played in Constantinople Turkey, by the Russian Colony. It was introduced into England around 1884 and there acquired a new name. Two couples in Leicestershire, England, are accepted as alternate nights to play the game. One night they would play the game last across a rickety old bridge which wasn't too safe at night. They would name the game "bridge," and thus the game got to be known as bridge whist, the "whist" meaning bridge, with the "bridge" being dropped.

Another explanation of the origin of the name is a more prosaic one. In bridge, the dummy is the player who selects the trump suit or passing—"bridging"—the decision to bid higher.

Bridge in the form we know it today began in the United States, however, when a dummy hand was laid face up on the table and this development soon led to how to play a stiff attached to it.

One Dr. Lightner, authority and historian R. F. Foster tells it, three British civil service officers were stationed at Jubbul pur, India, with no fourth bridge player within a hundred miles. One of them suggested bidding for the fourth hand, which would then be played at a game of whist. The others liked the idea . . . and called the game bridge. It was described in the London Daily mail as a good game for three players . . . "four players" asked if four might play."

Upsets Jury System

(St. Thomas Times-Journal)

The absurdity of the jury system in the United States was illustrated in a case in the Criminal Court at Chicago last week when 103 people had refused, or been rejected, for service, and the judge got a gangster to plead guilty to a charge of murder, a member of another gang, and sentenced him to 16 years. The judge castigated the jurors for their "fear" and fear of gang revenge might have had more to do with it.

farmers, whose land was stolen at gunpoint in the Nineteen Thirties, the betrayed workers made serfs in their factories, the millions of families which lost loved ones to the slave labor camps, the intellectuals who had to prostitute their talents at the whim of a primitive despot—all these had ample reason to hate Stalin even before Khrushchev's bombshell.

Abroad, Khrushchev apparently has decided that throwing the heavy weight of Stalin's heritage on today's Soviet policy would be folly. When the world's Scientists for example, point to the Socialists' promise that the Communists these last decades as reason for refusing to co-operate with Moscow today, Khrushchev can now say bluntly that that was Stalin's doing. Similarly, when Western statesmen bark back to Stalin's treachery as reason for distrusting Soviet words, Khrushchev can assure them self-righteously that era is past. The Communists have in a new aura of respectability as new gains can testify.

But at least two hard, stubborn conclusions can be drawn even about the full effectiveness of this latest, most dramatic Kremlin devastation. First, the fear and hatred Stalin raised even by the managing of the Communist Empire and Worker here: "Where were the present leadrs" of the Soviet Union when Stalin was at the height of slavish sycophancy? How else did they rise to their present power?

For us it is even more important that Khrushchev has admitted Stalin's foreign policy, which was the improvised Communist aggression in Korea, the enslavement of Eastern Europe, the war against tiny Finland, the conquest of Tibet, the threats of war in Western Poland, all these were crimes, too, but as regards them there is no sign of repentance or desire to make restitution.

Here, it seems to us, we judge Stalin's successors too harshly when we conclude that they will advance the same objectives as he but in more subtle fashion. But when we consider the new leaders' actions we see

Stories from Life of Jesus

TROUBLE IN THE TEMPLE

XXXIV

So popular was Jesus, so believed by the people, that His enemies were afraid to make a move against Him.

The rulers of the Temple, the chief priests and the Pharisees, clenched their fists and hissed into their beards, and muttered darkly. But day after day, that week before Passover, Jesus came into the Temple to teach and the crowds listened to Him with such devotion that no one dared interfere.

On Tuesday morning of that week, Jesus strode as usual into the Temple, flanked by His twelve apostles.

On one side stood the tables of the money-changers. At those counters men must stop and exchange their everyday Roman coins into the coins of Israel, for only those coins could be used in the Temple. And it was not a fair exchange. The money-changers kept a fat sum for themselves, swelling their own pockets with the hard-earned cash of the poor.

Jesus looked at the clutter of pennies and nickles, and gold and silver, and at the hard eyes and brass smiles of the greedy money-changers in the Temple, and who shared in their thievery? The high priests and the Pharisees Jesus knew.

POOR WERE ROBBED

On the other side of the court stood the booths and stalls of the men who sold animals for sacrifice at the altar, the chairs of the dove-sellers and the sheep-merchants. The good souls who came to the Temple believed that God appreciated the sacrifice of animals to Him, and according to their means they bought lambs or pigeons to offer Him, even as Joseph had done so long ago when Jesus was a baby. But animals in the Temple cost twice as much as they did elsewhere and the poor were robbed when they tried to buy them.

Slowly Jesus moved through the throng of buyers and sellers, watching the money pass hands. He heard the cooing of the doves and the bleating of the young lambs, and the shrill voices of men bargaining.

Out of the corner of His eye Jesus watched the people going up to change their money at the bankers' tables. And in His hands, the apostles noticed, He carried a loop of ropes, picked up somewhere idly on His morning walk to the Temple.

Suddenly, swiftly, Jesus' hands moved. From those cords He made a whip, a scourge, and before anyone could see what He was going to do, He let fly with that whip.

He flailed the backs of the money-changers, and turned over their tables so that the money spilled and ran tinkling over the marble floor.

OVERTURNED BOOTHS

He whirled on the sellers of doves and lambs and knocked over their chairs and overturned their booths. The birds fluttered free, soaring and flapping and wheeling overhead, and the curly-haired lambs scampered and scattered and ran out of the yard of the Temple.

Startled and screaming the crowd backed away.

Alone Jesus stood. His breath came heavily, His face was dark as His lifted His hands and said in a voice deep with scorn and anger:

"Is it not written: 'My house shall be called the house of prayer to all nations.'? But you have made it a den of thieves.

"Take these things hence, and make not the house of My Father a house of traffic!"

The money-changers and the dove-sellers scrambled to their feet and backed slowly out of the temple, stumbling and pushing and falling as they went. And the doves soared overhead, clinging to the blood-red cedar beams of the ceiling.

Then one of the Pharisees, standing in the crowd, called out: "By what right do You do these things? What sign do You show us, seeing that You do these things?

CLEAR ANSWER

Jesus turned His face to the Pharisee, but He answered in a voice that all could hear:

"Destroy this temple, and in three days I will raise it up."

The people looked at each other and smiled. How could anyone even the Master do that!

"It took forty-six years to build the Temple!" they said. "And will You raise it up in three days!"

The Pharisees began to laugh, and jeer, and mock at Jesus. But the disciples, in the crowd, who loved Him and believed Him, watched Him leave in silence.

They did not understand those words, either, but they remembered them. For they knew that Jesus had a way of clothing great secrets in strange words.

And those who saw Him go pondered His words, and turned back into the Temple, the house of prayer, the house of God the Father.

Autherine Lucy Plans to Wed

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Autherine Lucy, the Negro coed expelled from the University of Alabama after a series of campus race riots, plans to be married, then try to enter the university.

If she can't go to school there, she will try elsewhere, she said Thursday night.

"I plan to be married April 22, she told a press conference called by the Dallas pastor who will officiate at the wedding.

She squeezed the hand of her fiance, Rev. H. C. Foster, 37, a student minister at Tyler, Texas. When they met five years ago he was a sophomore at Miles College, Birmingham, Ala., and she a senior.

"I'm thoroughly in agreement with her," Pastor Foster said of her plans to press for re-entry to the University of Alabama.

Miss Lucy told reporters that if she is not successful in re-entering Alabama as a graduate student in library science she will try other universities.

Brewers' Retail Store Moves To New Location

Effective Tuesday, March 27th, the Brewers' Retail Store business operated at 335 Pinnacle Street, moves to a new location at 111 Station Street, opposite Canniffton Road, as reported recently in this paper.

According to Brewers' Warehousing Company's District Manager Ted Jones, the change was made because of expropriation of the Pinnacle Street outlet by the Crown, the site being required for the new Federal building. The location of the Brewers' Retail in the old Clapp Foundry building on Station Street is a temporary one, until completion of new store premises to be erected at the rear of the foundry property, recently acquired by Brewers' Warehousing.

Brewers' Warehousing Company Limited is the pool distributing organization of the brewers whose products are now sold in 140 Ontario communities.

County Council Approves Debentures for New Hospital

PICTON.—A new Memorial Hospital at Picton to serve Prince Edward County was assured yesterday when County Council, in session here, voted in favor of financing a debenture issue of the sum of $147,367.35. This is the balance required to finance a new 50-bed hospital to replace the present 35-bed institution which is growing inadequate.

In a campaign for funds, $139,-866.65 was raised. There are considerable bequests of $103,784.37. It is expected the present hospital building can be sold for $16,000 and a nurses' residence for $8,-073.35. There are cash reserves for equipment of $23,677.81. Government grants of $143,000 will be available, making a total of $456,402.70. With the debenture issue, the complete building fund of $618,790,000 will be available. The site, on Main Street East was donated.

Of the 13 members of County Council, four opposed the debenture issue. They were Reeve Melvin Pulver and Deputy Reeve Smith of Ameliasburg; Reeve Murney Parks of Hillier and Reeve C. Platt of Wellington. These municipalities being more distant from Picton.

It is not expected that any definite action will be taken until September as government permission must be secured and other matters solved. Plans have been drawn up by Dresver and Smith of Kingston.

PICTON

Tax Rate of 23 Mills Set For P.E. County by Council

PICTON — A county tax rate of 23 mills has been set for 1956, approved in county council's budget yesterday. The total will raise $880,800. Last year's rate was 25 mills, resulting in a tax levy of $900,000. The tax payer will be called upon to pay $10,200 less than last year. The fact that the 23 mills of county rate this year raises nearly as much money as did 25 mills last year arises through a difference in the figures used for equalization of rates between municipalities. Last year one mill raised $36,000, this year one mill brings $12,600.

In this year's equalization some municipalities will pay a lower proportion and others a greater proportion of the county levy. Picton will feel the increase. Last year the town paid 20.6 percent of $900,000. This year, the town will pay 24 percent of $880,800. This means $7,250 more for town tax payers on the county rate, an increase of a little under 2½ mills in terms of the town's tax rate.

Budget figures show an increased net capital cost for county roads of $17,000, salaries are up about $3,500, weed control about $500, child welfare $1,300. Decreased expenditures are indicated for maintenance of Shire Hall $1,300; hospitalization $2,200; registry office, $1,100; fair grounds, $1,100.

Largest item resulting in a favorable comparison of this year's levy with last year is to be seen in the fact that in 1955 the county levied for a deficit of $18,432.25 carried over from 1954 and the county contributed this year with a surplus of $4,624.66.

Many grants were made by county council. Included were $10,000 to Pr. Ed. County hospital; $12,600 to County Health Unit; $1,-200 to Federation of Agriculture; $300 to 4-H Club; $500 to Salvation Army local work; $400 to S. A. Receiving Home; $300 to S. & Red Shield; $400 to Canadian National Institute for the Blind; $300 to Huff's Island bridge; $100 each to Milford Fair, Demorestville Fair, Women's Institutes, $150 each to Crop Improvement Association, St. John Ambulance; $280 each to Wellington library, Milford library, Bloomfield library, Picton library, $500 statutory grant to Department of Agriculture. These grants totalled $38,-306.

Council decided to request free vaccination for cats and dogs in connection with the rabies outbreak.

A committee of Warden C. Wilson, Reeves Calvin Hughes and Howard Gyde was named to join a Chamber of Commerce committee of N. Hlakely and Randolph Clapp to visit the Minister of Highways. They will ask a preliminary survey be made for a possible bridge at the Glenora — Adolphustown crossing.

The standard bearer was asked to escort Mesdames Culleden, Potter, Spence, Hooster, Davis, Hrasman, Hardwick, Campbell and Benn to the front of the hall, where they were initiated into the auxiliary.

Mrs. Slater gave her report on the coming rally and asked all the ladies to bring one article to the next meeting night to make up a basket of groceries for a draw.

Mrs. Hodge gave her report on the St. Patrick's party which was a decided success and Mrs. Newton her report on the rummage sale which will be held this week in the club rooms.

Mrs. Meeks is still in the hospital.

It was decided that plants be sent to Comrades Taylor, Meeks and Legacy and that eight ladies' names will be drawn each month who will be responsible for refreshments at the next meeting.

A blanket and a silver cup were presented to Mrs. Fraser for her new baby.

A draw took place on a silver tea service which was won by Mrs. B. Atkinson of Desoronto.

Rival Interests Across Pacific Graphically Detailed to Club

"Communists want the white man out of Asia—and for good," stated William Courtenay, C.B.E., M.M., last evening as he, by word, maps and colored films brought to the Women's Canadian Club, a most interesting lecture on "Rival Interests Across the Pacific."

Mr. Courtenay, a distinguished soldier, airman, correspondent, and author, who has had a wide experience in the far east during World War II, and the Korean fighting, as well as in the cold war periods in between, was introduced to his audience by Mrs. R. H. Tanner, 3rd vice-president of the club, during the absence of the president, Mrs. D. I. MacKinnon.

THE LONG FRONT

Using the map of the world, which extended across the stage, Mr. Courtenay pointed out the 'long front' of southeast Asia, and those islands adjacent to it, on which the Communists are most desirous because of their rich metal and oil deposits, which British have developed, and they want them for nothing, and in order to gain these ends, the Communists began all campaigns at the same time, and by so doing weakened the United Nations along the whole front.

This was brought about through several mistakes made by the United Nations, primarily by their demobilization which was too quickly done, while the Communists still maintained their entire strength. In one year the Americans, who had a force of three and one-half millions, decreased their strength by ten per cent; the British with their one and one-half millions decreased to one million; and the Canadians, who had a force of 300,000 at the end of the year had none left.

"But in spite of all this, Russia, through Stalin's clever tricks, did not do too well, and the United Nations not too badly, as most of the strategic ports and harbors are still in their hands, and with two more years, the initiative should revert to the United Nations," stated Mr. Courtenay.

In mentioning the fighting planes, the speaker pointed out that one bomber is built every 16 hours, and that England has the fastest jet fighter yet made, the Delta Fighter.

The policy of the United States in the 'long front' was a little different to that of the British, in that the Americans were not favorable to colonialism while England was. This difference of opinion stemmed from their upbringing, but the aims of both were identical. British wanted to save the colonial territories, and then raise the people. However, in 1956 the United States has begun to see that the colonial idea is right.

"England," said Mr. Courtenay, "was once a colony of Rome," and for hundreds of years she has upheld the world."

GREAT RUBBER INDUSTRY

In Malaya, the British have a great industry, that of rubber, and if this colony be lost, the industry would go, which is exactly what the Russians would like to see. The British played straight in India, she gave them independence at the beginning, and by doing the same in Malaya, she will have the friendship of the people, which is comprised of Chinese, Hindus, and Malayans, these last being of an easy going disposition, while the Hindus and the Chinese are astute businessmen. These must learn to work together. The English have never declared war with anyone in Malaya, but treated the whole disturbance as a mere street riot under civil action. This method kept the country easier, with no untoward hard feelings. The same tactics were used in Hong Kong, just a quiet 'mopping up' operation. Malayans say they want independence but within the British Commonwealth. The same means could have been carried out in the Dutch Colonies, and the French East Africa.

NO AIR FORCE

Another mistake was the picking a plane to fight instead of treating the eastern coast as one long front. In French Indo China the Communists brought in large military pieces, and as it was a mountainous strip, when the French came they were unable to assist because of these ground armaments, and as she had no air force to knock out these, the supplies fell into the enemy's hands.

In SEATO Canada took a fine step in the forming of the 18 nations pact with the treaty to hold back the Communists from taking any more territory. American change of policy is to build up the native armies so that they can defend themselves; to give economical aid, which Russia cannot do because she cannot do it for her own satellites.

There is already a strategic reserve to safeguard Australia, and New Zealand. America is concerned with Formosa because of its strategic importance, and to guard this she has a fleet patrolling these waters, and has pledged help to Formosa if attacked.

"Trade is the healing balm between nations, it softens hard feelings", and on this premise England has accepted Communistic China," was the concluding thought of the speaker's first portion of his talk, which was followed by a series of colored moving pictures depicting the wonderful role the helicopter played and is playing in the eastern situation. These pictures included the convoying of prisoners; change of military personnel; rescuing troops from dense jungle; conveying the wounded to nearby hospital units saving much time and many lives; dropping down into narrow byways bringing supplies and many other needful operations which no other plane could accomplish.

The speaker was thanked by Mrs. Tanner, who later entertained the executive and the speaker at her home.

BEAUTY

HOW TO LOOK TALLER

If you want to look taller, go "high hat." Don't even consider flat shoes.

If you are "divinely tall" count yourself lucky this year. You'll be the envy of your shorter sisters because all the current designing was had you in mind when they created the styles for 1956. The new sheaths and empire dresses need height to show them off properly and even the flat pumps don't need a tall girl under them. The cute little hooded coat for evening is out of luck stylewise this year.

If you are tall, let the whole world see your height. No one attracts more envy from other women than a tall woman who carries herself proudly. She stands out in any crowd or party.

Perhaps you are a teen-ager a little frightened at growing above the heads of your lower girls. Learn how to walk so that everyone will admire your tallness. Never try to make yourself look shorter than you are. Don't slump and wear flat heels in the illusion that you look shorter. All you'll achieve will be bad posture and a dowdy appearance.

Study your clothes carefully and learn to accept your height. Remember everyone will look at you when you are tall. Make sure they approve that they will look up to you.

If you are a tiny girl or woman there are things you can do to make yourself look taller, of course, if you are the plump, cuddly type your first problem will be to get yourself streamlined.

Spike heels are just made to give the illusion of height to the little, short woman. But never wear a really short skirt—one that is just a little longer gives an illusion of added height. The low waistline is not for you, either. A slightly raised waistline also contributes to the illusion of height.

Never, never break your figure in two at the waistline with two colors. Always use a solid color for your outfit, and keep your clothes simple. If you must use buttons or trimmings, see that they run up and down, never crosswise. As for ruffles, or flounces or anything that breaks the horizontal line, avoid them as you would the plague.

You'll find that off shoulder styles in the evening help create that look of tallness and princess lines are especially good—and the longer the skirt, the better. Carefully planned diagonal trimmings on evening gowns can give an upward lift, also.

When it comes to hats or evening headdress, always choose the upward line if you want to look taller. The mushroom shape is not for you.

Such attention to details can make the "little woman" look smart in the "tall world" of 1956.

SPRING ENSEMBLE

By VERA WINSTON

The sheath dress escorted by its own jacket, usually a brief number, is showing up somewhat well in store sales. Here is a very smart version worthy its price. The dress has a yoke and short sleeves of black and white polka dot silk with a small bow at the same at the band neckline. The jacket is double breasted, is lined with the print, and has an inset band of the print on the short sleeves, so it has quite a bit of detail considering its brief dimensions.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A STORY THAT SHOULD HEARTEN MANY UNHAPPY WIVES

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I read the letter of Mrs. H.W. in your column recently and heartily agree with your answer that you can't trust the promises of a man who drinks.

I have been married twenty-five years and have raised a family of children, and for twenty of these years my husband drank to excess.

Finally, when my oldest boy was 18, I decided the children were old enough so I could leave my husband. What brought me at last to the point of leaving was this: my husband had taken me out with another couple with whom he had been drinking earlier that day. He insisted that the woman and all in the front seat with him and he would not move the car, and when she did, he made love to her.

I never said anything, but I was so hurt that when we were home I told my daughters to start packing because I wasn't and didn't have time to do it. I said that we would look for another place to live.

A couple of days later, my husband said: "You're leaving me, I aren't you?" and I said: "Yes, told you that when the kids got a little older I would leave you." So they said that he guessed I would not take any more promises and I said: "Why should I?" His answer was that if I would just give him one more chance he would never take another drink as long as he lived. He said if he ever did take another drink he would let me go and take the children with me and never bother me. He also said that if drink made him hurt me so much, then it was time he quit.

I had always prayed, and had the children pray for him, and now he went back to church. It has been five years now he drank, although he has had plenty of opportunity to do so. He is a wonderful husband, father and grandfather. The children idolize him, and I do, too. It was worth waiting for.

—Mrs. E.H.

Dear Mrs. E.H.:

Yours is a wonderful story, and I can see why you felt I was mistaken when I said that "a trail of broken promises" is characteristic of the alcoholic's career because he is unable to keep his promises.

You, apparently, are one of the rarely fortunate wives whose alcoholic husband had the unusual will power and ability finally to keep a promise and to break his drinking habit by himself—unless of course, he had outside help of which you have not told me. Many such wives, however, are not as fortunate as you were. But I must ask you this: Before your husband did, at last, stop drinking, you didn't be, like most other alcoholics, make a great many promises to stop, and fail to keep them? I think this must have been so, because that sort of thing is virtually always the case with the habitual drinker.

In any event I am sure that the story of your experience will put new heart and hope into many wives who are facing struggling with similar problems, and I thank you very much indeed for taking the time and trouble to write it for them to read.

Readers' Friday Column

As Conducted by Mary Moore

QUESTION:

I am constantly amazed at the variety of questions you are asked. I have a few things that puzzle me. Can cake flour and pastry flour the same? Could I use the latter for angel food? Where would I buy gelatine powder for table use at wholesale rates? In making cookies could do with two bars of almond paste which are hard as rocks? I grind them with the gal when brown sugar icing curdled. It happened to me until I learned to put a pinch of soda in with the sugar.—J. K.

ANSWER:

I'm amazed too, J. K. No cake and pastry flour are not the same. You could use pastry flour for angel food but cake or all-purpose are better. You would have to be buying the milk powder for a church organization or charitable institution or commercial business to get it wholesale. The five or ten pound carton you usually get, Sloan does the almond paste. Thank you for the idea of putting soda with brown sugar icing.

QUESTION:

I follow your recipes every day and use a lot of them since I won a registered chef . . . now that I have lost my son I am alone and have a lot of canned fruits as well as the bought fruit and they will turn to vinegar so I thought I would make it into wine, but don't know how. Do you have a recipe that you could send me?—Mrs. T. B. M.

ANSWER:

This puzzles me. Why do you think home-canned fruit and fruits in cans will turn to vinegar? Certainly hermetically sealed commercially-packed fruits and cans won't turn to vinegar. Neither will home canned fruit if properly sealed. Anyway, the making of wine is such a skilful process that fruit which threatens to turn to vinegar would never do as the fruit content. If any of our readers have anything to add to my feeble comments to Mrs. T. B. M., I would be glad if they would chip in.

QUESTION:

. . . my whole family has been delighted with the recipes I've clipped from your column. I'd be pleased to have a copy of your whole wheat bread recipe . . . Tomato Marmalade printed early Sept. '55. A hint on removing things like macaroons from your cookie sheets: let the cookies cool, then heat a top burner of the stove and place the cooky sheet over it just until the bottoms of the cookies get soft, then remove with a spatula. They come off slick as a whistle and don't get all out of shape. (My husband's idea.) If you are interested I will send you some of my favorite Economy recipes learned from my Polish-Canadian mother-in-law.—Mrs. Leslie G.

ANSWER:

Yes, do please send along anything that you have found especially recommended. I am always looking for them. I have mailed the recipes you requested. Thank you for forwarding your husband's cookie removing idea. He must be fun.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

GIFT FOR SECOND MARRIAGE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My cousin's husband died about twelve years ago, and soon she will be remarried. My husband and I are very fond of her and at her first marriage gave her a very fine present. Are we supposed to give her a wedding present for her second marriage?—K.S

You aren't "supposed" to give a wedding present for a second marriage if you don't wish to. But since you and your husband are so fond of your cousin you will probably be inclined to give her a present, even though a simple, inexpensive gift you think she would welcome.

BRINGING ABOUT THAT MEETING OF THE TWO FAMILIES

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

What is the world does an engaged girl do when nobody makes a move to bring about a meeting between her parents and her fiance's parents? Such an "impasse" embarrasses my family and embarrasses me. My mother insists that my fiance's family must make the first social move, any kind of move. But they haven't made any move, although they live not far away, and my fiance hasn't mentioned it. Do you agree with my mother that it would be absolutely wrong for her to make some move toward having the families meet? — Engaged girl

I think this meeting should be brought about, and as soon as possible. Since apparently your fiance's family do not realize that they should make the first social move to bring about a meeting of the families . . . many families do not know what the etiquette rule is. It is wiser for your mother not to stand on ceremony but to make the friendly and hospitable gesture rather than to let the situation remain in its uncertain status. (Incidentally, I'm wondering if you have dropped a hint to your fiance about his perhaps doing something to bring about this meeting? This might be a good idea!)

GUESTS TO GREET COUPLE IN CHURCH VESTIBULE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We are going to have a quiet large wedding in church. But because my family and I cannot afford a reception of any size, we are inviting only the members of the families and our attendants to an informal reception at our home which would obviate that we receive the guests at the wedding in the vestibule of the church, and should we wait to have a receiving line at the very small reception? A.G.

This is as you wish, of course, but I am sure the wedding guests would appreciate a plan for them to offer their best wishes to you and your bridegroom in the church vestibule after the ceremony.

VERY SPECIAL PLANS FOR THEIR MARRIAGE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My prospective bridegroom and I have a wonderful attachment to a lovely little church which we both attended for quite a few years. We want to be married in that church, and we want the minister there, whom we have known during these years, to perform the marriage ceremony. So we are planning to drive there, about 300 very often done, miles from here, for the wedding. Our parents will be present at the wedding, and each of us will have one attendant. We plan to send many announcements, and these I will have ordered beforehand, and will have addressed and stamped, all ready for mailing. My question is about this mailing: Shall we take the announcements with us and mail them there in that town after the ceremony, or should my parents mail them from my (and their) home city? —E.M.

Mail the announcements from your home city. Engraved on them will be the name of the town and state where the ceremony was performed. And in your case I suggest you also include the name of the church . . . this is proper and very often done.

SIGNS OF SPRING

Down from the tree-top drifting
Sombre and sleek and slow,
Where the March sunlight is sifting
Gold o'er the hill below,
Out from the home in the cedars,
Furtive and famished and faint,
Comes at Spring's call, the raven
Voicing his ravenous plaint.

Patches of brown on the blanket
That covers the meadow's bed,
Glorious sunshine at noonday,
Sunset of gold and red,
Faint and far-off the echoes
That come from the purple wood,
A subtle stir at the heart strings
That scarce can be understood.

List to the flow of the waters
Under the old stone bridge,
See where the snow is slipping
In rills from the rocky ridge,
And in the heart an echo
Of the song that the waters sing,
And the spirit attune with the voices
That herald the dawn of Spring.

Sunday School Lesson

When Public Is Misled

By ROY L. SMITH

The charges brought against Jesus were not the ones on which He was tried. They said He had disrupted the life of the nation and had disturbed the public peace. But no witnesses were put on the stand to prove the charge. They said He had tried to persuade the people not to pay their taxes, but that was never mentioned after the case got into court. They said He had tried to set Himself up as a usurper but no one was willing to testify against Him on that score.

THE REAL CHARGE

The real charge against Him was never brought out into the open. He had interfered with the crooked profits of the gang in charge of the Temple. They were fattening at the expense of the public. Jesus had defied them, and they did not propose to let the matter pass.

It has happened so many times in history that men have been charged with having committed one crime and then have been convicted for having committed another.

THE HONEST PUBLIC

The tumultuous public that demanded Jesus' death was honest, but it was also deluded. Having allowed itself to fall a prey to the exploiters it proceeded to play their game for them, and thus they riveted the chains a bit closer about their own ankles.

The Uniform Sunday school lesson for March 25: "The Meaning of Christ's Suffering," Luke 23:1-56.

The menace of communism is, of course, very real and the American people must be protected against its wicked designs by every legal and legitimate means. But those means do not include trial by hearsay or "kangaroo" courts. It has become extremely easy, in these tense days, to make the charge of "communistic" on the basis of nothing worse than that the one charged has somehow roused the ire of the charger. One very eminent servant of the American people was being charged, in a senatorial hearing, with communism by a witness who was obviously prejudiced. "What is a communist?" one of the very able senators asked, just a bit playfully, to which the witness replied, "He is a man I do not like." He had probably told the truth.

The public can usually be relied upon to bring in a just verdict if it can have all the facts, and if it can know all the reasons. It is the facts that are concealed, and that reasons that never come out into the open, which have formed a long list of the martyrs.

WE ARE RESPONSIBLE

We are the public. In the long run it is our decisions that determine the future. This means that an ignorant decision rendered by the public becomes an injustice and a disgrace under which all men must suffer. An ignorant or a prejudiced judge can be displaced, but there is no substitute for the public. Inside a democracy the responsibility lies heaviest on the individual citizen. In a totalitarian state the citizen can be ignorant. In a sense, the better he is a citizen, the more ignorant he is of public affairs. But in a democratic land the hope of justice and righteousness rests with the conscience and the intelligent understanding of John Q. Public.

The tragedy of the death of Jesus is rooted in the fact that an ignorant public was misled by an avaricious and brutal leadership which was utterly uninterested in right or rights, but in their own privileges.

The public always pays an exorbitant bost when it crucifies a savior at the behest of its masters.

Premier Frost Put on Spot As to Whether Daily Star Will Be Sold Under Act

TORONTO (CP) — Opposition members of the Ontario legislature tried unsuccessfully in the Tuesday night to pin down Premier Frost on whether his government will attempt to force sale of the Toronto Daily Star under the 1949 Charitable Gifts Act.

Welfare Minister Cecile praised the work of the Atkinson Charitable Foundation, which owns 90 per cent of The Star. J. J. Wintermeyer (L. — Waterloo) took the floor immediately to ask whether Mr. Cecile's remarks might be taken to mean the government approved the work of this and similar foundations.

"I hope the welfare minister was speaking for the government and foundations like the Atkinson Charitable Foundation will be able to exercise their ownership without interruptions," he said.

Premier Frost said he agreed with Mr. Cecile's remarks. But, he added, there is a great difference between the way a foundation does and how its funds are invested. He mentioned the Ford Foundation in the United States, which recently sold off millions of its stock and "didn't leave all its eggs in one basket."

The Charitable Gifts Act, given royal assent April 8, 1949, contains a requirement that no charitable foundation may hold more than 10 per cent of the capital of any company. It does not apply to the part of the foundation's Star interests he said by April 8, 1956, or within such extended period as may be determined by the Supreme Court."

The foundation receives its funds from the profits of the Star plus publications and income from investments. Trustees of the estate originally turned down six offers to buy the Star.

Mr. Frost said Thursday night charitable funds must be protected. They couldn't be invested in businesses in which there was a chance no income might be made for several years.

CCF leader Donald C. MacDonald asked:

"Does the government intend to force sale of the Star or are you going to repeal the Charitable Gifts Act?"

"I'm not going to repeal the act," said Mr. Frost.

"Then you are going to force sale of The Daily Star," Mr. MacDonald said.

"That's what you think," Mr. Frost replied.

Harry Nixon (L—Brant) said the premier was skirting the problem expertly. Later Mr. Frost told reporters the Charitable Gifts Act is on the books and he does not intend to interpret it.

Mr. Frost, as provincial secretary, was one of the main pilots of the Charitable Gifts Act.

Social Welfare Aid Will Be Solicited

TORONTO (CP)—Welfare Minister Cecile said Thursday night he has written the federal government to ask formally for increased social welfare aid.

He said the Ontario legislature during debate on his department's estimates he "simply cannot understand" the federal government's attitude in refusing until now to give more financial assistance to the provinces.

He said he favors increasing allowances to needy persons, but he cannot agree Ontario "should proceed alone on this matter." There was "complete justification" for insisting on federal participation in any increase.

He did not give details of what assistance he is seeking.

In outlining the various branches of his department, Mr. Cecile said he is asking $39,000,000 to aid 82,200 persons. The program was being expanded constantly.

Central Office For Registering All Car Deeds

TORONTO (CP) — All vehicles should have a "deed", showing whether there are any outstanding claims against them, registered in a central office, the Ontario legislature committee reported Thursday.

The committee on certificates of title of motor vehicles said that would be the best way to be sure persons buying used vehicles do not buy a pig in a poke. Time and later there are several claims against it.

Robert Macaulay (PC—Toronto-Riverdale), committee chairman, said the proposed registration would start only with 1957-model vehicles, and not take in models now on the road.

The central registration also would make it more difficult for cartheft gangs to operate, since they could not get the background of the vehicle simply by taking it into another county.

Polymer Corp. Net Income Much Higher

OTTAWA (CP) — Polymer Corporation Limited, the synthetic rubber producing crown corporation in Sarnia, Thursday reported a net income of $7,331,200 for 1955, up from $4,824,753 in 1954.

The corporation's annual report tabled in the Commons said sales of Polymer products reached a record $61,390,151, an increase of 15.7 per cent over 1954 sales totalling $53,228,414.

J. D. Barrington, Polymer president, said in his report to Trade Minister Howe that demand for natural and chemical rubber will remain strong in 1956. Last year, all types of rubber were in short supply.

He said inability of natural rubber producers to increase production beyond an average of 1,800,000 long tons a year is the chief factor suggesting expansion of synthetic rubber producers.

FROM REFINERIES

Until now most of Polymer's raw materials have come from Sarnia oil refineries, said Mr. Barrington. He added, however:

"It would appear that if our production is to keep pace with our ever-widening markets, we must broaden the scope of our feed-stock procurement. It well may be that the proper solution is a butadiene plant in western Canada."

Polymer production in 1955 amounted to 103,300 long tons, up more than 20 per cent over the previous year.

Income was $61,833,963, up from $53,467,428. Expenditures were $54,304,765, including $6,639,000 for income tax. This was a rise from $48,542,675, including $4,727,000 for income tax and $120,000 for debenture interest in 1954.

BEAUTIFIED CITY

OTTAWA (CP)—Alex Stuart, 90, former town planner, architect, engineer and horticulturist who was a major contributor to the beautification of Ottawa, died Thursday.

Railway Committee Approves Operations, Finances of CNR

OTTAWA (CP)—The CNR's operations and finances for 1955 and 1956 have the approval of the Commons railway committee.

The committee, in a series of sittings that ended Thursday, gave an okay to everything the publicly-owned company reported for last year and this year. In an unusual display of unanimity, various individual motions of approval were moved by opposition members.

Committee members at the same time accepted the annual report of Canadian National (West Indies) Steamships for 1955 and its proposed spending program for this year.

The CNR accounts included capital sprending of $233,564,000 on various types of improvements to rail property, still to be ratified by Parliament.

The committee accepted these items:

1. The CNR's operating budget for 1956 estimating a surplus of $2,000,000 against one of $10,700,000 for 1955. The indicated surplus was calculated without taking into account the possibility of contract settlements to non-operating unions seeking benefits of many millions a year.

2. The CNR operating budget for the current year, looking to a deficit of $600,000 against one of $96,000 in the last year.

3. Capital spending of $233,564,000 by the CNR this year, which will include more than 10,000 freight cars and various improvements to CNR property.

From Donald Gordon—president of both CNR and CNS—the committee heard that it might be time to set up a royal commission on freight rates. Mr. Gordon said the rail rate system of North America generally is outmoded in relation to advances by carriers competing with the railroads.

Eskimo Youth Presented to Governor-General

By JOE MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

FROBISHER BAY, Baffin Island (CP)—A 17-year-old Eskimo youth who braved Arctic blizzards to save a starving family of five was presented in Governor - General Vincent Massey Thursday.

Mr. Massey moves on today to Hall Lake, on the northernmost tip of the Canadian mainland north of Hudson Bay. He arrived at Frobisher Bay, 1,700 miles north of Arctic that will take him over the North Pole and to other points never before visited by a governor-general.

Young Illywaloo appeared in excellent spirits despite a touch of frostbite he suffered during his ordeal. He was accompanying the afflicted family on a dog-sled trek when they ran out of food and spent seven days without provisions.

SIGHTED BY HUNTER

Illywaloo, the strongest of the little party, struggled through subzero storms until he was sighted last week by an Eskimo hunter near Clyde River.

Nearing collapse, he was brought to Frobisher Bay and the United States Air Force sent a helicopter to rescue his companions at the request of the RCAF. The stranded family, cousins of Illywaloo, were sheltering in a snow-covered igloo house about 30 miles away after failing to find the caribou needed for survival.

Illywaloo and his companions, who are members of the local Hare tour, Baffin Island, had been in hospital more than a week and appeared completely recovered from their ordeal when the governor-general visited them.

The hospital visit was one of the governor-general's stops in an extremely busy day climaxed by attendance at an Eskimo dance held in a garage workshop.

VISITS SCHOOL

Earlier he visited a new school where Eskimo children ranging from seven to 15 years of age were being taught English under the tutelage of William H. Van Sickle of the education division of the Canadian department of northern affairs.

Special Tax On Magazines Is Opposed

MONTREAL (CP) — Managing director Walter W. Hitsman of the Readers' Digest Association of Canada Ltd., Thursday described as a "painful surprise" a proposed 20-per-cent levy contained in Tuesday's federal budget.

The special tax becomes effective next s.a. 1 on gross advertising revenue of Canadian editions of foreign periodicals containing some Canadian advertising.

In a statement, Mr. Hitsman said:

"Our magazine is the most widely-read magazine in Canada. It is a Canadian magazine, printed and published in Canada, paying its full share of Canadian taxes and providing a livelihood for hundreds of Canadian men and women.

"Therefore, this action against us, taken without notice and without our having been given a hearing, comes as a shock."

Mr. Hitsman said "precedents such as this tax on advertising can be extremely dangerous and can have far-reaching implications on the freedom of the press itself."

'Terrible Tendency' to Scrap Men in Forties Seen Making Welfare Measures Necessary

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Premier Smallwood told the Newfoundland legislature Thursday Canada's statesmen must face the alternative; adequate social welfare or communism.

Speaking during second reading of a bill giving the federal government a 50-per-cent share in costs of provincial unemployment relief he said:

"Industry insists on taking men only at the peak of their ability. They think they're being big if they take them on at 40.

"This terrible tendency to throw on the social service heap men in their late 40s and early 50s leaves communism the only alternative to social legislation."

Family allowances, old-age pensions, old-age assistance, unemployment insurance and now federal responsibility in unemployment relief would combat the danger of communism.

CHARGES CORRUPTION

A Liberal member of the Saskatchewan legislature charged the CCF government with "corruption and dishonesty" in not prosecuting the ex-manager of a government-backed asbestos plant who allegedly took "kickbacks."

Saskatchewan Minerals, a crown corporation, took action against the manager in 1953 for alleged secret commissions worth $3,654. Before trial was due in court the manager agreed to make full restitution and the case was not pursued.

A member of Manitoba's governing Liberal - Progressive party, T. P. Hillhouse, suggested setting up a land-tilles-office-type of registry to protect purchasers of second-hand cars.

No-Hunting Rule on Sunday Will Remain

TORONTO (CP) —An Ontario non-hunting rule will remain in force, the legislature's game and fish committee decided Thursday.

It rejected a proposal by James A. Maloney (PC—Renfrew South) that restrictions on Sunday hunting be lifted. He said the law is not being enforced in many parts of the province, especially in the North.

Lands Minister Mapledoram said it is "pretty well an unwritten rule" that the law does not apply in northern Ontario.

Ray Connell (PC — Hamilton Wentworth) opposed the plan, saying that wildlife should be given one day's rest "even if the hunters don't want one."

The committee recommended the lands and forests department try to hire professional hunters and action to kill wolves. Last year, $50,000 was paid out in wolf bounties, but the wolf population was not appreciably reduced.

REPORT BALLOONS

BERLIN (AP) — Communist East Germany charged that several Western propaganda balloons landed in East Berlin Thursday, damaging property and endangering lives. The balloons were said to have carried packages of propaganda leaflets, and one package weighing 11 pounds fell into a school yard. Another crashed through the roof of a house, the Communists added.

Firemen Will Be Allowed To Appeal

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government served notice Thursday it will go ahead with a bill to allow firemen to appeal their dismissal, despite opposition from several municipalities.

Attorney General Roberts told the Ontario legislature Thursday the bill will be presented to the House again in a slightly amended form.

It would let firemen appeal dismissal to a municipal council or a committee, appointed by that council, and would require a council to meet firemen's representatives to discuss pay increases and other benefits within 120 days, instead of 90 days as in the other draft.

IN 30 DAYS

It would also require arbitration boards to be set up within 30 days, not 14 as the first draft stipulated.

Three weeks ago, a delegation of Ontario mayors and reeves, led by Mayor Charlotte Whitton of Ottawa and Lloyd-Jackson of Hamilton, charged the bill was improper.

It would make councils into a judicial body, and did not give them enough time to prepare their side in financial disputes.

The other bill filed been given first reading.

ELBE VETERANS TO MEET

MOSCOW (AP) — Tass news agency Thursday said a group of Soviet war veterans have accepted an invitation to go to the United States for celebrations of the 11th anniversary of the meeting of U.S. forces on the river Elbe. The invitation was extended by Joseph Pokovsky, secretary of the American veterans "Meeting on the Elbe" organization. The celebrations are scheduled for April 24.

Convicted of Bus Boycott, Negro Vows Not to Give Up Battle Against Segregation

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—A convicted leader in the Negro boycott of city buses here has pledged to continue the fight against segregation "no matter how many times" he is convicted of violating Alabama's anti-boycott law.

Rev. Martin Luther King was convicted Thursday of violating the boycott law and fined $500. Thursday night the 27-year-old Baptist pastor vowed at a mass meeting to continue fighting for "justice and equality" and to keep on in a leading role in the protest movement.

King has been prominent in the winter-long campaign against segregated seating on city buses, and Negroes here generally are expected to prolong their mass protest despite King's conviction.

The fine assessed against King was suspended after his defense served notice of an appeal. The lawyers said they would take the appeal all the way to the United States Supreme Court if necessary in another test of segregation laws in the southern states.

Pastor King told his Negro audience Thursday night the verdict "reason doesn't come on a silver platter."

"Some of the things we have to go through are a necessary part of our campaign. There can never be growth without growing pains."

He was given an ovation.

In addition to the $500 fine, which was suspended—King was also charged with court costs of approximately $500. This was converted into a jail sentence totalling 386 days, since he chose to appeal rather than pay the money. He is free on bail meanwhile.

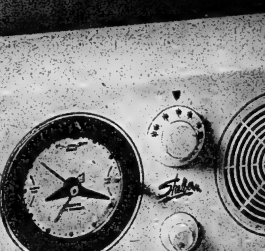
King, together with 89 other Negro leaders still awaiting trial on similar boycott charges, had exercised his right to a non-jury trial. The conviction was sentenced by Judge Eugene Carter at the end of a four-day trial. The state then agreed to postpone the trials of the other defendants pending King's appeal.

Judge Carter could have sentenced the minister to six months, and fined him $1,000. But the jurist said he took into consideration testimony which indicated that he had repeatedly appealed to his people not to use violence in the bus protest.

BC Government Grants $20,000 Cup Expenses

VICTORIA (CP)—A $20,000 grant toward expenses of the Grey Cup football game last November was authorized by the British Columbia cabinet Thursday for the Pacific National Exhibition.

The PNE provided Empire Stadium rent free.



A government spokesman said the grant is the "implementation of a promise" by the government that it will give financial aid to help meet the costs of bringing the Grey Cup game to Vancouver.

OPPOSITION

He said there is "pretty conclusive evidence of lack of sympathy" in the labor department administration of anti - discrimination laws.

He told the Ontario legislature during debate of a CCF motion to have the act administered by a commission that Labor Minister Daley has not followed the intent of the legislation, which was to educate persons against discrimination if possible.

The CCF motion was defeated and the government substituted one of its own saying the Fair Practices Act expresses effectively the wishes of Ontario to be free from discrimination.

The CCF supported the motion as being good in principle at least.

DALEY COMMENTS

Labor Minister Daley, who Wednesday challenged Mr. MacDonald to a fight after the CCF leader charged the minister's son-in-law was receiving special favors in the labor department, kept up a running barrage of comment during the presentation of the motion.

At one point, when Mr. MacDonald started to say the labor department was too overworked to administer the anti-discrimination laws effectively, Mr. Daley said: "I don't want you ever to try to be fair to me."

When he stood up to reply to Mr. MacDonald's motion, his first remark was:

"Is there a House rule which says I have to refer to that man" —pointing at Mr. MacDonald—as "the Honorable Member?"

Mr. Daley repeated charges he made recently after two Negro students went into a Dresden restaurant whose owner had been accused of racial discrimination that the affair was "organized by Communists."

WAS SETTLING DOWN

He said the Dresden situation at that time was settling down peacefully, when an "organized attempt" was made to disrupt it.

"Do you mean organized by Communists?" interjected Mr. MacDonald.

"I would say so, yes," the minister replied.

Mr. MacDonald described the persons fighting discrimination in Dresden as "honorable and respectable" citizens seeking only to draw the racial problem in that southwestern Ontario town into the public view.

Mr. Daley told the assembly he was "quite most bitterly" the CCF leader saying he is not sympathetic to the anti-discrimination laws, administered by his department since they were passed by the government.

BY EDUCATION

In Dresden, it was obvious old established traditions would cause trouble, but the best way to overcome them was education, not prosecution. His department was most anxious everyone in Ontario got a "fair deal."

The act was administered by three men in his department who were doing an excellent job. When reports of discrimination were received, "though not any report which would send us on a wild goose chase," it was investigated immediately.

If a commission was hearing the complaints, it would take weeks to settle them, while the three experienced men could handle each case in only a few days.

Liberal members also supported Mr. Daley.

Arthur Beaume (L—Essex North) said Mr. MacDonald's motion was an attempt to "tear down a good act." The opposition's job was not that.

Opposition leader Oliver said present anti-discrimination legislation is a "move for some distance" in the right direction, and until there was proof the laws were not working, it should be supported.

TAKEN THE LEAD

Premier Frost, presenting the government's motion, said Ontario has taken the lead in anti-discrimination work. Although present laws carried penalties, trying to enforce them without proper care could create ill-will that would do more damage than good.

The CCF motion was intended only to criticize Mr. Daley and the labor department, and was not a genuine effort to improve public welfare.

He indicated, however, he did not agree with the minister that disturbances in Dresden were "Communist inspired."

That, he said in reply to a question from Mr. MacDonald, was the minister's opinion, and not necessarily his own.

SHOULD BE GOOD!

One of the most colorful teams in the Eastern Ontario Senior "B" series is expected into action at Kingston on Wednesday night, leaving a very pleasant taste in the mouths of the near-4,000 fans that watched them battle gallantly in a desperate effort to snatch victory out of defeat.

The conquerors of these gay hockey caballeros from Cornwall, the Kingston Goodyears now stand poised, with arms ready and spirits high, for the next most important series of battles in the march to the Ontario championship.

The Kingston-Cornwall series was a playoffs "spectacular" with both teams giving all they had, and the tie to those who while in the minority believe that Senior "B" hockey is the part of the Ontario neck-of-the-woods, is ready for the meticulous without benefit of floral or other tributes.

We haven't had the pleasure of witnessing the high-priced $3,500-a-week hockey as "she is played" in the climate of the Arctic Circle, Trenton, Yorkshire and other sports centers of the tobacco plains of western Ontario, but the type of Senior "B" hockey played up thisaway appears to satisfy the greater majority of fans east of Whitby.

And it should be even better when the powerful Dunlops, members of the Belleville Elks, cross-town finals halfbacks with Art Casterton's red-hot Goodies with the first jousting slated for Saturday in Whitby. Community Centre down Saddington Park probably by the time this is in print" come Monday night when the clubs resume hostilities.

And wouldn't it be a strange stroke of fate, or something if the Goodyears . . . well . . . a guy can dream can't he?

While the general consensus is that Whitby will take the series, and possibly the provincial title, don't tell these Goodies short. Right now they are hotter than the south end of a firefly and unless somebody blows a fuse, Saturday night's game should be a rousing battle.

The Dunnies haven't been doing much of late, playing a couple of exhibition games and tasting on their rare occasions the dregs of defeat. They could be below their peak for the fifth inaugural tilt and if they are not two touchdowns. Messrs. Stanchfield, Murray, MacCraven, Terpstanford et al are little Johnny Fulsom around a fireman's net, and the hunting should be good.

But Dunlops will be going all-out to win the finals series in as short a time as possible. Defeat would mean a tremendous loss of face for Manager Blair who has been sabring over Ontario bulldog up his cause for possible Senior "A" entry next season. The Dunlops' success or failure in their quest for top Senior "B" could be the deciding factor as to where the team will play next season. Yet it was hardly unusual the Kingston press box the other night that Blair had stated the Dunlops would be back in this group next season. What ever an!

Yet Blair apparently has designs on entering Senior "A" next season because he has been using Senior "A" players in exhibition ilte. Wearing Dunlops' colors are Jim Ted O'Connor, Windsor defenceman, and Gordie Myles, North Bay Trappers forward. And as has been mentioned before in this column, wealthy Ontario sports has a finger in dickering with Detroit Red Wings' Bob Goldham, if he retires from the National League, for his playing coach.

Chick Appel, Stratford sports editor, while wondering what will be done to accommodate more than in the Whitby rafters, "Chic might be well advised that the 1,500 capacity of the building would not be sufficient to finance a Senior "A" team, salaries being what they are. It would take at least 2,500 paid attendance for every game, and then he might have trouble to make ends meet. Travelling from Whitby to Windsor, for instance, can be mighty expensive."

SOCCER, SOFTBALL

The soccer boys of the city and district will get down to business over the weekend with two meetings on the agenda. Tonight the Eastern Ontario Football Association is holding its annual at Bolton Station C.P.R. where seasonal and organizational business will be dealt with.

Monday night the Bay of Quinte Football Association is holding its annual get-together at the Y.M.C.A. starting sight o'clock and all interested persons are requested to be on hand.

The newly-formed City Softball Association will hold a meeting at the West Moira Street Fire Hall Sunday afternoon starting at 1.30, and representatives of all teams present and future are requested to be present. President Bob Bidrod requests that one delegate from each club be on hand to represent his team's interests.

Probe Unearths More Throw-Dirt In California Fight Investigation

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Two more boxers have given Governor Goodwin Knight's special investigating committee testimony that they participated in fixed fights ordered by Babe McCoy, now a matchmaker at the Los Angeles Olympic Auditorium.

Soldier Eddie Stanley, a former fighter and challenger, told chief investigator Jamesy Cox Thursday that he once took a heavyweight, Iru (Pinky) Hughes, to Portland, Ore., to bet Joe Kahut.

"McCoy sent him up there and I was sent along," said Stanley. "McCoy told me: 'Take him up there and get him out in a hurry.' I didn't tell Hughes until about 30 minutes before the bout. He was a little nonchalacious but he finally cooled down. He took one in the eye in the fourth and the fight was over."

"Who gave you your instructions for this fight?" asked Cox.

"I was instructed by McCoy," Stanley replied.

Georgie Hansford testified McCoy sent him to a friend in the East, Chickie Bogad.

"McCoy told me to take my orders from Bogad for the former fighter. "McCoy and Bogad were to split the manager's share of my purses."

Hansford told the committee that in a fight against Allie Stolz in Newark he received instructions from Bogad to take a dive and go the distance but not hurt or beat Stolz, who then was in line for a big-money bout. The fight record book shows Hansford lost to Stolz Dec. 26, 1945.

Hansford said that when he fought Enrique Bolanos in 1946 in San Antonio, Tex., "McCoy told me to make it look good for about four rounds and then 'get out.' The fight lasted two rounds.

Score Decisive 4-2 Victory With Brilliant Performance; Injured Lindsay Fires Winner

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—The beautiful dream that Montreal Canadiens had a well-nigh invincible hockey team was only a shattered myth today, punctured by the brilliant comeback of New York Rangers.

Canadiens learned the hard way Thursday night that past performances mean nothing against a team that can call on an indomitable fighting spirit and strike back.

Rangers' 4-2 victory over the newly-crowned National Hockey League champions was especially just as impressive and decisive as Canadiens' 7-1 runaway win on Tuesday.

Their forward lines switched around, a minor league defenceman, 21-year-old Gordie Bell—guarding the Ranger net and their defence tightened immeasurably, the Rangers Thursday night were never trailing.

WERE STOPPED COLD

Canadiens caught up twice but were stopped cold in the third period. Without the injured Dickie Moore, Canadiens' attack was held in Rangers' third goal while the New Yorkers stormed the box-seated Montreal defence. The crowd of 13,700 sensed a Ranger victory by the second period. Jean Beliveau made it certain less than six minutes from the end of the third period.

Horvath's goal came after only 24 seconds of the third period, while Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion, leading Canadiens' sharp-shooter for Montreal, was sitting out a penalty for slashing.

Horvath, a speedy, black-haired centre who played with Edmonton Flyers of the Western Hockey League last season, was in the right place at the right time. Bill Gadsby, another ex-Western Leaguer power play, fired a screened shot from the point. Horvath stuck out his stick and deflected the puck past goalie Jacques Plante.

That started the Rangers rocking. Rookie Andy Hebenton had counted for Rangers at 3:45 of the first period, with a backhander off Andy Bathgate's pass. Big Jean Beliveau, swatting in Goffrion's rebound at 7:38, had evened things temporarily.

ABOUT 7 MINUTES

The 1-1 tie lasted little more than seven minutes. Jean-Guy Gendron returned in Dance Lewicki's sharp forward pass at 14:41. Battling back once more, Canadiens got even again at 11:20 of the second period on a deflection by rookie Claude Provost off Doug Harvey's booming shot from the point. Defenceman Jack Evans of Rangers was in the box on a holding penalty at the time.

Then came Horvath's goal and the desperate Montrealers tried time and again to crash through and beat Gordie Bell. They were stalled by the Rangers' ceaseless checking and defence that could get the puck out and ease the pressure on Bell at the critical times.

The Rangers' made their own breaks by keeping up the game on Prentice's goal. With Larry Popein carrying check, Prentice turned their sprint into a virtual breakaway. Prentice took Popein's pass, cut in front of Plante and fired his goal past Plante at 14:10.

Canadiens outshot Rangers 34-27 but as a rule were far less dangerous with their drives than they were Tuesday when they romped in on goalie Lorne Worsley almost at will.

CANADIANS OUSTED

GLASGOW (Reuters)—Canadian players taking part in Thursday night's session of the international invitation badminton tournament here were all eliminated from the events in which they played.

Beverley Westcott, 30, of Toronto went down 15-8, 15-5 to Finn Kobbero, beaten Danish finalist in the dil-England championships last week, in the first round of the men's singles.

Dave McTraggart, 23, of Vancouver, and Marjorie Shedd, 27, of Toronto, were beaten in the first round of the mixed doubles.

DETROIT (CP) — Two games down as a result of their 3-1 defeat at the hands of Detroit Red Wings Thursday night, Toronto Maple Leafs headed home to practice their Stanley Cup series having learned the 20 doesn't pay to carve up Ted Lindsay.

The 163-pound Detroit left-winger sicked for three stitches by Ted Sloan's stick during a second-period melee, returned later in the red patching job to score the winning goal barely two minutes after his penalty had expired.

It was the 24th goal in 11 years of Stanley Cup competition for the scrappy little forward but his first of the current series.

JUST LUCKY

Until Lindsay scored, it had been anyone's game. 2-2 following the period. Then, after Lindsay's goal, which Wings won 3-2, Toronto got the only goal in the third when Armstrong deflecting home a long shot, just as he did in the series opener.

Alex Delvecchio, another open ing-game hero, got the score early in the second period, driving the puck behind Lumley from 30 feet out after taking a pass in a teammate.

The hard bumping developed into the Lindsay-Sloan duel a few minutes later as the long sticks swiped at each other with their sticks, attracting support from most of the other players on the ice.

When the officials parted the combatants, Sloan drew a major penalty for drawing blood. Lindsay got a double minor for high-sticking and slashing and additional high-sticking penalties were given Howe and Leaf defenceman Marc Reaume.

Sloan, the Leafs' top scorer, was hurt early in the third period when he crashed into the Wings' boards in the Detroit end and was helped from the ice. A few minutes later the Red Wings lost first-string centre Earl (Dutch) Reibel when he aggravated a shoulder injury.

The nature and severity of Sloan's injury was not known immediately. Leaf officials said he would be kept when the team returned to Toronto.

On one of Detroit's few third-period sorties Lorne Ferguson got an insurance goal, banging home Metro Prystai's pass from behind the nets.

The best-of-seven series resumes in Toronto Saturday night.

PROVIDENCE, R. I. (AP)—Striking for three goals in the first 11 minutes, Providence Reds defeated Pittsburgh Hornets 4-1 Thursday night and regained first place in the American Hockey League.

The Reds, who had held the lead since the early weeks of the season, had relinquished the top spot for 24 hours. Each team has two games remaining.

Parker Macdonald fired the Pittsburgh tally at 18:13 of the third period.

Calgary's Margie Crosland Leads Junior Ladies Figure-Skating Finals

By PETER MAITLAND
Canadian Press Staff Writer

GALT (CP)—Red-haired Margie Crosland of Calgary's Glencoe Skating Club today carried a 25-point lead into the junior ladies' singles finals of the Canadian figure skating championships.

The pert 15-year-old Thursday outdistanced 21 competitors in the compulsory figures event. The free skating event scheduled for today will decide the champion for 1956. Skaters are marked 60 per cent on figures and 40 per cent on free skating.

Miss Crosland topped the event with a score of 574.1. In second position was Sandra Twerdzbury, 14, of the Chatham Figure Skating Club, with 548.8. Judy Lawrence, 17, of the Toronto Skating Club, was half a point behind in third place with 548.3.

Lise Petit of the Montreal Skating Club was fourth with 533.5 and Barbara Wagner of the Toronto Skating Club was fifth with 534.8. Elaine Richards of Oshawa placed seventh with 529.9 and Doreen Lister of Timmins was eighth with 524.0. Two Niagara Falls girls, Carol Ann Robinson and Barbara Markall, placed 16th and 18th respectively. Mildred Galway of St. Catharines was 20th.

SECOND LAST YEAR

Miss Crosland, who started skating when she was eight, placed second in compulsory figures last year. She dropped lower in the standings, however, owing to her points in the free skating were added to the total.

The Saturday skating meet gets into full swing today with five events starting off of the 77 skaters registered.

The large number of entries in the ladies' singles stretched the event to nearly eight hours. At the end of each figure five girls dressed in short kilts and plaid tams marched on the ice and held up score cards of each judge's marking.

They stood in a box around the performing skater to mark their points. At times they went to hands and knees to examine skate marks on the sea-green ice.

Once off the ice Thursday, however, the judges relaxed and waited for the totals.

"She's a cute one," remarked one judge as an accountant called out a girl's name and her score. "I like to see with the dark hair better," said another.

E. R. S. (Dick) McLaughlin of Oshawa, referee, said the number of entrants in the junior event made it difficult for both competitors and judges.

May Pay $10,000

Dublinski Decision Reserved Passer Will Not Leave Argos

TORONTO (CP) — Footballer John Dublinski was told Thursday he probably will have to wait many weeks before knowing whether he must pay $10,000 for joining Toronto Argonauts from Big Four Football Union.

There appeared, however, little danger of star passer being told he must leave Argos to honor a contract signed two years ago with Detroit Lions of the National Football League.

Chief Justice J. C. McRuer Thursday reserved decision in the Supreme Court of Ontario on a Detroit Lions claim for $10,000 damages for breach of contract and request for an injunction blocking Dublinski to the contract which Lions say gives it option until May 1.

The chief justice said he may not reach a decision before May 1.

He allowed an amendment to Detroit's statement of claim asking him to say the injunction should have been issued, thereby establishing a precedent which Detroit wants.

Detroit seeks the injunction to establish the legality in Canada of U.S. football contracts.

Dublinski signed a contract with Detroit in 1954 but had an option clause which gave the team the right to extend the contract one more year. Detroit says it exercised that option.

The defence argued the contract is unenforceable and invalid in Ontario. It also said the exercising of the option is contrary to the agreement.

HAVE CRITICIZED

Defence counsel Charles Dubin and, to a degree, Chief Justice McRuer, have criticized the contract on several points. Mr. Dubin said it imposed penalties on the player.

Thursday Mr. Dubin finished a summing up that took 4½ hours on Wednesday. He termed "unconscionable" a provision that the NFL commissioner could suspend a player for life and the player would have no recourse.

Chief Justice McRuer said that if the injunction was issued in time and Dublinsky returned to Detroit, the commissioner has the right to suspend him for life because he negotiated with Argos.

Spring Training

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Harry Coby, the hard-hitting outfielder of Chicago White Sox whose hobby is stage plays, is taking a lot of bows this spring.

And if he continues his hefty hitting in the regular season there may be no stopping the Sox.

The team from Chicago's south side hasn't won an American League pennant since 1919. In the last few years, their troubles has been a lack of power.

Coby might be the guy to supply it. He hit 26 homers for Cleveland in 1954 and was acquired from Indians last Oct. 25. He is doing better than all right in his new uniform, hitting a cool .429 in the Grapefruit League with five home runs and 13 runs batted in.

TWO HOMERS

Thursday, he slammed a pair of homers and drove in five runs as White Sox beat Milwaukee down to their fifth straight exhibition defeat, 9-4.

Meanwhile, both Indians and Yankees lost.

Jim Wilson, Baltimore's veteran righthander, struck out nine Cleveland batters in six innings and hit a home run to lead Orioles to an 8-6 victory. Sherry Robertson and Bobby Adams also homered for the winners.

Yankees dropped a 7-5 decision to St. Louis Cardinals, who got homers from Stan Musial, Red Schoendienst, Wally Moon and Bob Rand. Bullet Bob Turley pitched for four runs in six innings was the losing pitcher. Vinegar Bend Mizell picked up the victory.

NIP FIRATES

Boston Red Sox, another American League pennant contender, nipped Pittsburgh Pirates 4-3 in Norm Zauchin, a pitch - hitter, singled home Jim Piersall for the game-winning tally in the ninth inning.

To Art Fowler of Cincinnati went the distinction of being the first pitcher to go nine innings this spring. He gave up 11 hits, seven in the last three frames, as Redlegs downed Washington Senators 10-2.

In other games, Duke Snider's three - run homer in the seventh inning gave Brooklyn Dodgers a 4-3 victory over Detroit Tigers and home runs by Willie Mays, Daryl Spencer and Ed Bressoud powered ever New York Giants to an 8-1 win over Chicago Cubs.

FEAR MANY CASUALTIES

BELGRADE (Reuters) — Many casualties are feared in the frontier zone of Hungary where sudden Danube floods have swamped about 6,000 people, the Yugoslav newspaper Borba reports. In the Danube valley in south Hungary Yugoslavia more than 1,500 persons were reported homeless today in widespread floods.

Shirley Campbell Wants to Tackle Juan De Fuca

VICTORIA (CP) — Swimmer Shirley Campbell wants to tackle Juan de Fuca strait this year, Bert Crockett, her coach, said here Thursday.

The 20-year-old Fergus, Ont., native last Aug. 4 was pulled out less than two miles from the Toronto shoreline in her bid to swim Lake Ontario. She trains in Toronto, getting her instructions by mail from Crockett.

The Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce is trying to raise a $15,000 prize for the race across the 18.3-mile strait.

Clif Lumsdon of Toronto and Bert Thomas of Tacoma, Wash., only swimmer to conquer the strait, have indicated they will compete.

Wolves, Maroons Clash Tonight In Finals Series

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Senior A hockey championship final opens in Sudbury tonight, first game in a best-of-seven series between Chatham Maroons and Sudbury Wolves.

Wolves, champions of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association, are also at home for the second game, Saturday night. The next three are at Chatham March 26, 27 and 29. The last c4ow are scheduled for Sudbury for March 31 and April 2.

Winner of the series moves into the eastern Canada Allan Cup final against the Maritimes champions.

Maroons were the surprise team of the OHA playoffs, eliminating Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen, last year's Allan Cup winners, 4-0 in the best-of-seven final.

McKeown Scores Seven Goals in Vimy Victory

NAPANEE (Special) — Kingston Vimy's Jack McKeown, former senior "B" star, exploded for seven goals here last night to spark his club to a 17-7 victory over Napanee and a 2-0 game lead in the OHA - Intermediate "C" best-of-seven playdown round.

The third tussle is scheduled for Kingston Community Centre tonight.

While 900 fans looked on, the homesters raced to a 3-0 lead in the first period only to have it wiped out midway through the second heat. They grabbed a 5-4 lead in the latter minutes then Vimy squad splurged for three in a row to lead 7-3 at period end.

Napanee cut the margin to 7-6 early in the third frame but the soldiers roared back with a trio to salt the game away. The homesters added another with Vimy netting six more for good measure before the final whistle.

Referees Ken Parris and Bill Reason, Kingston, handed out but five penalties with three going to Kingston.

YOU'RE THE MANAGER

(Twenty-third of a Series)

By BEN OLAN

AP Newsfeatures

Duke Snider is one of the National League's most dangerous batters. He walloped 42 homers while batting .309 last season.

Following is what he'd do as Manager Walt Alston of the Dodgers and he puts a spike-crowned shoe with Snider approaching plate. His strategy paid off. Would yours here?

Would you:

a. Let Snider swing away?

b. Have Reese try a steal of second?

c. Try a hit-and-run?

DUKE SNIDER

d. Order Snider to Sacrifice?

Results: D—Snider Sacrificed and makes Jeffcoat throw the ball past first base; Reese went to third. Pee Wee registered on a grounder and Brooklyn won 4-3 (June 23).

In the Dressing Rooms

MONTREAL (CP) — The New York Rangers dressing-room was near bedlam Thursday night, less than a minute after the New York-Detroit had turned back Montreal Canadiens and end evened the Stanley Cup semi-final one-all.

Coach Phil Watson was beside himself shouting almost deliriously: "That a time we've won a time to win!" Watson was so excited he was trembling.

Of his replacement goalie Gord Bell, he said: "I know if we had another goalie out there, it would make a difference in the play of the whole team."

Watson also said he realized he had to change from the defensive style his team played in the first game and he told his boys to "skate and skate."

KEPT SHUFFLING

He said he made up his mind to use Bell, immediately following Tuesday's 5-1 win, but his counsel until Thursday night. He didn't tell Bell until little more than an hour before game time.

"I wanted to keep our fellows in something of a suspense so they would keep talking about the game," he said.

Bell was surrounded by newspaper men who jammed into the room.

He sat quietly smoking a cigaret. He said he got a break when a shot by Bernie Geoffrion hit the post, but thought Canadiens also got a break when Geoffrion was secored on a deflected shot.

Watson and newspaper men he would use Lorne Worsley, replaced by Bell Thursday night, when the teams meet in Detroit Saturday, but general manager Muzz Patrick said so far as he knew, the question is still undecided.

CANADIENS QUIET

There was little talk in Canadiens' dressing room. The players dressed quietly and went home.

Coach Toe Blake, sitting on a bench disconsolately, said something about the defence backing up on goalie Jacques Plante, and then was a bit critical of Geoffrion getting a penalty in the third period. While Geoffrion was off, Rangers counted their third goal.

General manager Frank Selke said: "It seems our fellows have been reading their press clippings too much. They don't realize how strong this Ranger team is. The Rangers must have something or they wouldn't be where they are. They were bound to come through with a win here sometime."

DETROIT (CP) — Ted Lindsay described as lucky the tie-breaking goal Thursday night that sent the Toronto Maple Leafs down to their second straight loss in the Stanley Cup semi-finals.

The goal took a funny bounce after landing in front of Leaf Lions (Lest goalie Harry Lumley) and Leaf goalie Lumley and Lindsay in the dressing room.

But the little guy, who had been without a goal for at least a half-dozen games, came back quickly and said: "But it's been a long time between goals for me and I'm willing to take them all."

The second straight contest-from-behind win by the Red Wings gave Detroit Maple Leafs little to talk about.

Said general manager Hap Day: "Well, I guess we'll have to do it on our own ice."

And if the regular season records mean anything, Hap has a good point. The Wings-won only one of seven games on Toronto ice.

Award Ottawa Junior Series

KEMPTVILLE, Ont. (CP)—A scheduled best-of-five Memorial Cup series between Ottawa Shamrocks and South Mountain Combines was awarded to Shamrocks after two one - sided, poorly-attended games, a Canadian Amateur Hockey Association official announced here Thursday night.

The Shamrocks, who defeated Combines 6-3 and 11-3 respectively in Ontario Thursday, will meet Toronto advance to the eastern Canada semi-finals against Montreal junior Canadiens.

The series likely will begin in the capital next Monday.

Announcement of cancellation of the remaining games was made by W. G. (Baldy) George, immediate past president of the CAHA and official in charge of all playoffs.

He made the announcement after consultation with Robert Labelle of Montreal, CAHA first vice-president, who is in charge of Memorial Cup play.

From the day the crews started their training six weeks ago, rowing experts have picked Cambridge to win—a fact that has done little to dishearten the Oxford crew.

Two years ago the sport's pictured Cambridge, and Oxford won easily. Last year Oxford was an overwhelming favorite but lost miserably by 16 lengths.

Of the 101 races so far, Cambridge has won 53 to Oxford's 48. There was a dead-heat in 1877. Cambridge has won 34 of the last 50 races.

One reason for the Cambridge support this year is the comparative weights of the two crews in the race in which heel and stemline plays an important role.

With an average weight of 186 pounds, Cambridge outweighs Oxford by almost 24 pounds a man. J. O. Denny of Cambridge, at six feet, three inches, is the tallest coxswain ever to compete in the 127-year history of the race.

But he weighs only 140 pounds. R. E. B. St. Vezner, the Oxford cox, is almost a foot shorter and 19 pounds lighter.

However the Oxford crew members will wear a fresh bunch of violets as they have every day during the training period. The violets come from an anonymous supporter.

Cantabs Favored Over Oxford In Britain's Rowing Classic

BY KEN METHERAL

Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Oxford and Cambridge match their skill and stamina Saturday in the 102nd running of their annual boat race, one of the world's last truly amateur sport classics.

To the roars of encouragement from thousands of Londoners lining the banks of the Thames, two crews of eight oarsmen and a coxswain will propel their 300-pound shells over a 4¼ mile stretch of the river to perpetuate a challenge laid down in 1829.

The race, which calls for almost 20 minutes of back-breaking effort in one of the world's toughest sports, offers no prize for the winner and no professional future for the individuals concerned.

AT THE BELLE — The terror visited upon a peaceful home by three escaped convicts is the stunning dramatic subject of William Wyler's "The Desperate Hours", now playing at the Belle Theatre, with Humphrey Bogart, Frederic March, Arthur Kennedy, Martha Scott, Dewey Martin, Gig Young and Mary Murphy starred. The powerful suspenseful film has been called one of the year's better pictures, based on the best-seller novel.

Young Pros Top Field In Miami Open

By MERCER BAILEY

The young pros—Maxwell is 25, Dickinson 26—played brilliant golf, worthy of Hogan himself, as each posted an eight-under-par 64 in Thursday's opening round. They were three strokes better than the best of the rest.

Dickinson, who once was an assistant to Hogan and who tried to pattern himself after the batam of the fairways, breezed in ate with a 30 on the back nine to pull into a tie with Maxwell. Dickinson is from Panama City, Fla., and Maxwell is from Odessa, Texas.

TIE RECORD

Their 64s tied the record for the 18th in par of 36-36—72. Shelley Mayfield of Westburg, N.Y., set the record in this tournament last year.

Veteran Pete Cooper of Detroit and Sam Urzetta of Rochester, N.Y., former U.S. amateur champion, shared third place with 67s. A stroke back were Mike Souchak of Grossinger, N.Y.; Jimmy Demaret of Klamesha Lake, N.Y.; Bob Inman of Detroit; and Leo Biagetti of Wilmerding, Ohio.

None of the touring Canadians threatened. Al Balding of Toronto had a 36-35—71; Gerry Kesselring, Kitchener, Ont., a 37-35—72; Stan Leonard, Vancouver, and Lachute, Que., 38-37—75, and Murray Tucker of Toronto, 36-40—76.

Dickinson strung together four straight birdies on the back nine, then got two more to earn his first-place tie.

SET FIGHT DATE

MILAN, Italy (AP)—Wallace (Bud) Smith, world lightweight champion, will meet Duilio Loi, European middleweight title-holder, non-title fight in Milan, in June, Vittorio Strumolo, director of the Societa Impresse Sportive, announced Thursday.

Hopes for a world title match in Milan, Strumolo said, have vanished because of financial reasons.

Glowing Future Predicted for Basketball Here

VANCOUVER (CP)—A glowing future for Canadian basketball was predicted here on the eve of the Olympic trials and Canadian championships.

The opinion was expressed by top coaches and officials who hailed the trials opening tonight as "a major first" for the game which so far has created only a mild stir in Canada.

Four zone champions—from Ontario, Manitoba, Alberta and British Columbia—will compete in the five-day, round - robin knockout tournament.

Thursday night, the teams, officials and coaches gathered at a dinner.

AS MAJOR SPORT

Freddy Thomas, coach of the Ontario Northerns, is an optimistic opponent of basketball as a major national sport.

"We've had a lot of competition from hockey in the past," he said. "Kids get into the game — especially in eastern Canada and on the Prairies—and they don't want to play anything else.

"But with the kind of publicity basketball is getting from these trials, we will be getting a lot more attention in the future."

WOLVES SIGN WINGER

MUST WEAR HELMETS

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP)—Manager Paul Richards Thursday followed up Wednesday's beating of outfielder Dave Pope with an order that all Baltimore Orioles must wear protective helmets while batting in games.

The Orioles have had the helmets available all along, but Richards has left it up to the individual whether he wants to wear one.

Pope was hit in the back of his head on a pitch by Cleveland Indian Dick Tomanek in an exhibition game. X-rays disclosed no serious injury.

English Pictures Lack Sex Appeal Says British Import

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The trouble with English pictures is that they lack sex appeal, says Joan Collins, provocative young British import.

The failure of British films to make more of a dent on the American and even the British market has been a source of constant concern there. Miss Collins believes she has the answer, based on her own experience.

"It's simply impossible for a girl to get a break in England," she said, echoing a sentiment of another recent import, Dana Wynter.

"They're not interested in women in England. They prefer their old favorites like Jack Hawkins. I love Jack, too, but I think it's a shame that girls can't get a break.

PRODUCERS NOT INTERESTED

"It's not the people's fault. They're interested in sex. It's the producers. They don't care about making pictures about girls. They prefer to make them about trains or auto races or bird-watchers or the old vicar who is dying of cancer. Marilyn Monroe would never have any success in England."

What about Diana Dors, England's answer to Doubleday?

"It took Diana 12 years in films to get where she is," Joan replied. "I know, because she is a friend of mine." She said Diana is known more by her publicity than her films.

That Joan could qualify in the sex sweepstakes is without question. I watched her perform a dance number for The Opposite Sex, in which she plays the siren role performed by Paulette Goddard in the original version of The Women. The Collins doll slinked down a stairway and wiggled in as close to the bumps and grinds as the censor will allow in films. She also has not one, but two batshub scenes.

Joan is a lively addition to the Hollywood scene. One gossip columnist remarked that he was going to keep his eye on her, because he felt sure she would be a girl.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Your Venus and Mars send enlivening, forceful rays now to encourage hard work, national and international cooperative measures. Good returns from efficient efforts.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Oncoming Mercury rays warn against careless promises, thoughtlessness in legal and written matters. This known, you can enjoy New benefits, advancement in your work, business, private affairs.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — While work and essential tasks should bring automatic rewards now (if you extend yourself), needed rest and healthy pastimes are also in order.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Yes, it is both a work and play day. Many must work. Influences are for your good if you give your best and without complaint. Enjoy your tasks and they'll speed ahead.

"It's always interesting in the morning to see if Tweedy can get to the bus ahead of that Anderson dog."

Lussi, coaching the Galt section of the Toronto Skating Club in the Canadian figure-skating championships which started Thursday, said better coaching techniques are a major reason for improved skating.

"Figure skating knowledge has increased tremendously in the last five years," he said "and we still are learning."

Lussi, who arrived from New York, also has coached Dick Button of the United States world champion five times and Suzanne Morrow, former Canadian champion. Clubs at which he has coached include the London Cnt., Skating Club, Toronto Skating Club, and Ottawa's Minto Club.

He considers a few rule changes might make figure-skating more of a crowd-pleaser. Compulsory figures dull and lifeless. Free-skating was what the spectators wanted.

Under present rules, compulsory figures count for 60 per cent in championships. The figures should be reversed, says Lussi.

He also predicted a change in scoring of world skating to a 10-point basis. Two sets of judges could be used during Olympic and world competitions to avoid charges of favoritism.

Lions, Argos May Exhibition In Seattle

SEATTLE (AP) — A Vancouver report that an exhibition football game between two Canadian teams is contemplated for August 19 has lifted more eyebrows here Thursday than could a flying saucer.

The general opinion was that if Los Angeles Rams and New York Giants couldn't get into the University of Washington Stadium, how could Canadian pros unlock the gates?

Don Mackenzie, president of B.C. Lions, said that he would select the Toronto Argonauts on the Seattle field. He said he had discussed the possibilities with Seattle interests and expects to make a definite decision here Thursday.

Double that the university's regents would consider any sort of pro appearance in the 55,000-seat stadium go back to a game last summer between the Giants and San Francisco 49ers and the University of Washington football player revolt.

Dave Lang, gridiron upheaval, which deposed head coach Johnny Cherberg and athletic director Harvey Cassill, it was disclosed that $28,000 from the pro game receipts had been placed in a "downtown fund" to help university athletes.

Athletic director George Briggs said Thursday he had heard nothing of a proposed Canadian pro game in the stadium. H. P. (Dick) Ernerst, university vice-president, said the same.

Three Horses Rated Tops in Grand National

LONDON (AP)—British bookies bracketed Sundew, Must and Carey's Cottage as joint favorites at 100 to 8 in Thursday night's final callover for Saturday's Grand National Steeplechase at Aintree.

Betting money showed Carey's Cottage, a nine-year-old bay gelding who has fallen only once in 57 races over fences and steeplechase courses, into favor at the last minute. He had been 20 to 1.

Many experts had expected Queen Mother Elizabeth's Devon Loch to move into the favorite spot on Tuesday's scratching of Quare Times, last year's winner. But the royal-owned 10-year-old remained at 100 to 8.

FEW WEEKS AGO

Carey's Cottage joined Gerald Balding's string in England only a few weeks ago. At his preparation for the big race, on which the Irish Sweepstakes sweepstakes prizes are based, was in Ireland.

Complete betting odds after Thursday night's callover: Sundew, Must, Carey's Cottage 100-8; Devon Loch 100-8; Cloth of Gold, Pippykin 100-7; Armorial III, Gentle Moya 100-6; High Guard 22-1; Early Mist, Mariner's Log, Merry Windsor 25-1; Ken Royal, Royal Duke, Crudwell 28-1; MacTu-Vu, Reverend Prince 50-1; Polemius, Dundrum, No Income, Polonius, Much Obliged, Martinique, Eagle Lodge, Border Luck 66-1; Mr. Jones, Mr. Ferry, Witty, Domata, Clearing, Eagle Lodge, Very Mope, Wild Wisdom, Clearing, Venetian Law 100-1 and up.

About 30 horses are expected to go to the post.

MISUNDERSTOOD HIM

RIO de JANEIRO (AP)—Brazilians were heavily disappointed Thursday when told their idol misunderstood heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano's plans for an exhibition here next Tuesday.

They thought Marciano was going to fight a Brazilian boxer in an exhibition, instead he's going to skip rope.

"They asked me to do something for the Rotary Fund," Marciano said. "I said I would put on a demonstration of rope skipping, gym work and other things. . . ."

BUYS WHEAT

OTTAWA (CP) — Communist East Germany has agreed to buy several million bushels of Canadian wheat for cash, federal officials disclosed Thursday. The exact amount involved and the grades were not disclosed but the deal is believed to involve well over $3,000,000. East Germany thus becomes the fifth Communist country to negotiate purchase of Canadian wheat in recent months.

MENTAL HOSPITAL PATIENTS ABUSED AT CAPE BRETON

2 Former Attendants Testify Before Probe

SYDNEY, N. S. (CP)—Poor sanitary conditions and mistreatment of patients were among charges made to a royal commission investigating conditions at the Cape Breton County Mental Hospital Friday.

Two former attendants, Mrs. Helen Carter of Sydney and Mrs. Victoria MacLeod of Glace Bay, appeared before the commission headed by Exchequer Court Judge Vincent L. McDonald.

The provincial government named the commission at the request of the Cape Breton county joint expenditure board, which operates the 800,000 hospital.

Mrs. Carter said a patient whom she identified only as "S" was "definitely mistreated." She said the patient was dragged out of the dining room by two attendants when she refused to eat macaroni and had been beaten.

FORCED DOWN THROAT

The following day, Mrs. Carter said, the patient's meal was "thrown to the floor and food was forced down her throat."

She said an attendant dragged the patient "screaming to the entrance of a disturbed ward and threatened to place her in the cell with the rest of the hospital's more violent patients."

Mrs. MacLeod said she "was threatened by attendants for giving one of the patients a stick of gum and a cigarette. I was attempting to keep her quiet. I know that patients were forced to sleep on mattresses on the floor without mattresses or even straw."

Her brother testified: "I have personal knowledge of a woman who was thrown down several overseas, and who was confined to a cell containing no toilet facilities whatever. Her food was served through the door.

DISMISSED FROM JOB

The patient was given a bath once a week and no provisions were made for her to wash her hands except the time she received her weekly bath. She had to eat with her hands."

Mrs. MacLeod said she was dismissed for giving a cigarette and to a patient who was locked in a strong room.

She denied that she slept on the job and that one time she came to work with the smell of alcohol on her breath.

The hearings continue Monday.

E.S.B. Wins Grand National Gentle Moya 2; Royal Tan 3

Gentle Moya was second and Royal Tan third.

Twenty-nine horses started in the Grand National, crowning event of Britain's steeplechasing season, run over 4½ miles and 30 obstacles at the Aintree course near Liverpool.

The victory was worth £8,724 to the winning owner.

E.S.B. was 100 to 7 in the betting. Gentle Moya and Royal Tan were both 25 to 1. Must had started favorite at 3-1 to 1 and fell early.

Appeals Court Orders New Trial

TORONTO (CP) — The Appeals Court of Ontario Friday ordered a new trial for Gregorio Giannotti, 36, sentenced to hang April 10 for the murder of Mrs. Lionel Sharpe, 28, last July 30. Giannotti was convicted Jan. 11.

Mrs. Sharpe bled to death on the verandah of her Toronto home. Police said her throat had been cut and she had been struck on the face, arms and hands. An Assize Court jury found Giannotti guilty after deliberating for almost two hours.

500 Miles to North of Canada's Tip Massey Ready for Flight Over Pole

By JOE MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

RESOLUTE Bay, Cornwallis Island (CP) — Looking fresh and happy despite a rigorous schedule, Governor-General Massey arrived here Friday night for a three-day visit as part of his 10,000-mile tour of the Arctic.

Carrying gifts presented to Mr. Massey on three earlier stops on his 17-day tour, the RCAF plane bearing the governor-general and his party set down here after a 500-mile flight from Hall lake, the northernmost tip of the Canadian mainland.

Mr. Massey was greeted at the airport by Flt. Lt. J. Forest, commanding officer of the RCAF station here in this area 1,000 miles north of Churchill, Man.

The governor-general's visit here will be broken up by the highlight of his tour—a flight over the North Pole—scheduled for Sunday. A 30 - pound canister will be dropped over the pole to commemorate the governor-general's visit.

It will carry instructions for Eskimo, French and Yiddish readings.

"Will you please report your discovery to the Canadian people and your community, who in turn, is requested to forward it to the minister of state for external affairs, Ottawa, Canada, of the place and date of your find, as a record is promised."

Earlier Friday, the governor-general greeted personnel of isolated radar stations by radio as they prepared to leave the craggy, snow-clad bluffs on the way from Resolute bay to Hall lake.

In addition to receiving several gifts, Mr. Massey also gave several toys at Frobisher bay, Baffin land, which he fashioned at mess for the Northwest Territories Council.

A half-moon, visible 24 hours a day in this season, rests on the northern horn. There are about 12 hours of daylight in the Arctic at present. Temperatures were about

$1,500 Increase in Indemnities For House Members Advocated

TORONTO (CP)—A special committee studying allowances paid members of the Ontario legislature Friday recommended indemnities and expenses be increased by $6,400 from $3,500 annually.

The committee also recommended that Premier Frost, cabinet members and Opposition leader Oliver get an additional $2,000 expense grant; a grant to the speaker's office to be increased to $5,000 from $3,000; the Liberal office be granted $12,000 a year instead of $6,000 and the CCF office be given $3,000 for secretarial services.

At present, Premier Frost receives $14,000 annually; cabinet ministers $10,000; the leader of the Opposition, $8,900; and the Speaker $6,900.

In presenting the committee's report, Chairman William Murdoch (PC—Essex South) said any similarity "between the provincial treasurer and Santa Claus is purely international."

Of the six-man committee, he said:

"Never has so much been done by so few for so many in such a short time."

The committee was set up three days ago and held its first meeting Thursday.

The last time members voted themselves an increase was in 1951 when pay was raised from $3,000.

Members' new allowances are divided into two groups—an indemnity of $8,000, an increase of $4,500, and a tax-free expense grant of $1,800, $500 more than before.

The increases were made retroactive as members who have attended the present session will be able to collect the full allowances. To make the allowances legal, the Ontario Legislative Assembly Act will have to be amended.

Some members, however, may complain the increases were not large enough. Several had been hoping for an indemnity of $4,000 and $2,000 expenses.

Mr. Murdoch said no members can ever expect to be rewarded financially for their work with the work he does or the responsibility he carries.

Members also will be given six instead of four free trips a year from their homes to Toronto. Their car allowance of 10 cents a mile remains the same.

Members had been agitating since the present session opened for a pay increase. The problem was discussed by all parties and Premier Frost met Liberal leader Oliver and CCF leader MacDonald before setting up the committee.

Milkman Defends Bravery Citation Given by Queen

MONTREAL (CP) — Milkman Edward Chipman, "very upset" over a state department investigation into whether he was awarded the George Medal improperly Friday night denied that his citation for bravery as "accurate."

Chipman answered reporters' questions at a press conference called by his employers following the disclosure in Ottawa by State Secretary Pinard that an investigation had been launched.

The medal was awarded to the 33-year-old milkman Jan. 24 by Governor-General Massey for his bravery in the rescue of three children from a burning house on the nearby Caughnawaga Indian reserve. One of the children died in the fire.

"My wife and I are very upset by the investigation and we're taking it very hard," Chipman told reporters.

In the Ottawa statement, Mr. Pinard said the investigation was necessary "following report of that this man did not rescue the children. We are checking the accuracy of alleged facts which do not correspond to an act of heroism."

Chipman, dressed in his milkman's uniform and nervously chain smoking, gave reporters an account of the incident that differed only slightly from the citation, published in the Canada Gazette Dec. 17.

BUDGET DEBATE KEEPS EYE ON ELECTION YEAR

CCF Leader Says Date Will Be June '57

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons is keeping one eye cocked at next year's federal budget—expected to be a pre-election one—as it debates this year's budget.

Speeches for the Progressive Conservative and CCF parties agreed Friday in forecasting that big tax reductions, not provided in the budget presented Tuesday night by Finance Minister Harris, will be made next spring on the eve of an election.

Conservative financial critic J.M. Macdonnell said the budget shows government members are ignoring pressure of economic problems and "are primarily concerned with so arranging matters that they can win the next election."

IN TWO MOTIONS

Main budget criticisms of the two parties were summarized in motions of non-confidence in the government.

The Conservative motion states the budget is "empty, negative and partisan" and contains no concern about distressed areas in Canada or growing United States domination of Canadian industry.

The CCF motion said the budget "failed" to provide for a "full-employment economy" and "failed to take advantage of the present high level of employment to reduce the national debt." It went only the independence and improvement of free nations, he added.

His speech thus was designed in part as an appeal for U.S. support of administration foreign policy—particularly the foreign aid program now in Congress and in part as a reassurance to the Asian peoples of America's respect for their aims and their way of life.

The new foreign aid program calling for $4,900,000,000 was sent to Congress by President Eisenhower soon after. About $3,000,000,000 is asked for strengthening U.S. allies by military assistance and $1,900,000,000 for economic aid, chiefly to the underdeveloped regions of Asia and the Middle East.

The president furthermore asked authority to pledge up to $2,000,000,000 over five years to long-term foreign construction projects. That feature, as well as the increased size of that program, is already under sharp congressional attack.

Dulles said Russia "is trying to outstrip us" in technical support into key posts in lands which the Russians "hope to dominate."

Their marriage broke up in 1937. However, the Culbertsons remained friendly after their divorce and continued their business partnership.

Law Society Clerk Falls to Death At Reunion; Two Newsmen Attacked

TORONTO (CP)—A law society clerk was killed early today when he toppled over a steel railing and plunged 25 feet down after a lawyers' reunion party at Osgoode Hall.

The victim was Herbert Attwood, about 60, of Toronto. He was a clerk in the Upper Canada Law Society offices.

Police said Mr. Attwood was descending the stairs when he suddenly slumped over the railing and fell 1½ storeys to the concrete basement floor.

The party was for members of the 1950 graduating class at Osgoode.

Mr. Attwood had been a clerk for 20 years and was known to hundreds of students now practising law in Toronto. C. H. R. Connor, treasurer of the Law Society of Upper Canada, said he will be "greatly missed and respected."

Two newspaper men said they were attacked by a man who was trying in front of Osgoode Hall just after the accident.

They are Andrew MacFarlane, and photographer Jeff Truman, both of The Telegram, said they were 12 men jumped them. Police broke up the fracas.

Mr. MacFarlane said that when he walked up to a group of men one of them asked: "Are you a reporter." Mr. MacFarlane said he replied "yes" and was attacked.

The photographer said his camera was smashed.

Dulles Is Alarmed By New Communist Economic Tactics

U.S. Must Meet Challenge With Own Program of Aid

WASHINGTON (AP)—State Secretary Dulles said Friday night new Communist economic tactics in Asia "are a danger" which the United States must challenge through its own program of aiding free nations.

Dulles also said he is "encouraged" about the future of Asia but believes that "if we wish to see the free world preserved and enlarged, we must help, for forces of despotism will take control."

He left no doubt that the Eisenhower administration plans an all-out fight for its foreign aid program as a "vital" weapon in the latest conflict with communism.

Dulles reported by radio and television on his impressions and conditions in the 10 Asian countries he visited during the last three weeks.

His report generally was an optimistic one. He said he was "encouraged" about the future of Asia even though "Soviet and Chinese economic tactics are a danger."

The one spot in the Far East where "conflict most threatens," he said, is Formosa, which he noted the United States is working "patiently and persistently" to maintain its freedom with the Communists on a renunciation of force there.

Dulles said he came back from his trip "more than ever convinced of the importance" of American foreign aid, both past and future.

But, he said the United States has no desire to dominate other nations and "does not seek the kind of mutual defence with any country which would violate that country's sovereignty," he added.

Dulles spoke in the Commons opened the first of an eight-day debate on the new 1956-57 fiscal year budget which proposed $11,000,000 in scattered sales tax exemptions and left basic tax rates unchanged.

Mr. Harris budgeted for a $12,000,000 surplus, based on a peacetime high of $4,650,000,000 in revenues and a spending total of $4,000,000,000—an increase of $375,000,000.

Mr. Macdonnell said the next year's budget would have to be offered "new inducements paid for by their own money. Government trump cards would be health insurance and the repeal of the iniquitous succession duties," he said, entirely in the underdeveloped regions of Asia and the Middle East.

The president furthermore asked authority to pledge up to $2,000,000,000 over five years to long-term foreign construction projects. That feature, as well as the increased size of that program, is already under sharp congressional attack.

Dulles said Russia "is trying to outstrip us" in technical support into key posts in lands which the Russians "hope to dominate."

A substantial increase in the volume of service, increased costs, increased revenues, a satisfactory operational financial year and an optimistic construction of the hospital's new addition marked the operation of the Belleville and District Hospital in 1955.

These 1955 record was presented in detail at the annual meeting of the hospital's Board of Governors in the nurses' residence at the hospital Friday afternoon. Not one private citizen attended the meeting despite wide advertising.

Board chairman J. N. Yanover gave a general summary of the hospital's year. Committee chairmen and administrative officers reported in detail. Bound copies of both reports were distributed.

Mr. Yanover said that "the building of our new addition is progressing satisfactorily and according to plan, and we have every expectation that the new wing will be ready for occupancy in the fall of this year."

He said that the Board anticipated a dislocation of services from the new wing is dealt with the present building with inconvenience to patients, staff and a resultant loss of revenue.

The financial picture in brief showed an increase in assets as at 1955 of approximately $30,000 over 1954. Costs were up $32,000. Balancing the apparent net increase of $32,000 was a rise in the accumulated deficit to about $30,000. During 1955 the hospital wrote off $47,000 worth of bills presented to indigents and met the annual $33,000 payment on structure debt from operating revenues.

CITY PAYS FULL COST

In speaking of the write-off of indigent accounts, Mr. Yanover said, "the City of Belleville continues to pay the full cost of the indigent patients, but I regret exceedingly that on one municipality has seen fit to do likewise. The write-off on indigent patients' accounts and indigent ratios for the year 1955 would go a long way to help in reducing the charges or increasing services to our patients."

The year 1955 has finally seen our hospital become fully recognized as one of the approved full accreditation from the Joint Commission on accreditation of hospitals," he added.

HOSPITAL SERVICES

During 1955 a total of 67.556 patient days or care were provided by the hospital, an increase from 66,565 in 1954. Private and semi-private care totalled 20,971 patient days in 1955 as compared with 20,463 in 1954. Public ward care totalled 38,784 patient days compared with 38,597 in 1954. Newborn infants had 7,801 days compared with 7,513 in 1954.

The daily average number of patients in the hospital, including newborn, was 185. The hospital

Business was a little more brisk on the local market on Saturday despite the cold weather.

There were a few more vendors in attendance while the number of purchasers, particularly on the inside market, seemed to be increased over last week. Prices were unchanged.

Eggs remained to bring 57 cents a dozen for extra large grades, 54 cents for large, 50 cents for medium and 46 cents for pullets' eggs.

Dressed pork, maple syrup, again on sale in good quantity, was $3.50 a pail, $1.50 a quart, 75 cents a pint, while maple sugar brought 15 cents a cake.

Apples were offered in six-quart baskets and $3 a hamper for McIntosh and Sweets with Spies selling for $4 a bushel and $2.25. Greenings were $1.50 a hamper.

Parsnips, beets and carrots all were 50 cents a basket and $1.50 a bushel. Home-grown radishes were 25 cents a quart, four bunches for 25 cents. Sauerkraut was 25 cents a quart.

Police Blotter

An unsuccessful attempt to force entry to the Belleville Market, 94 Moira Street West, was reported to city police this morning.

Investigating officer Detective Sergeant Ernie Lewis said a half bit had been used to make an opening about three by four inches in the side door, following which an attempt had been made to turn the lock. He believed the would-be intruder was scared away before he got the door open. Nothing was reported missing from the store.

Constable Jack routine checks are brakes, lights and mufflers. Yesterday he issued a ticket to driver giving cars with equipment not up to the standard called for by the highway department.

Three Victims Of Car-Train Crash Buried

The three victims of Tuesday afternoon's car-train crash on the second concession of Thurlow township were buried yesterday in the Lasher family plot at Belleville cemetery.

The funeral service for Stewart Lasher and his five-year-old daughter, Brenda, and for Karl Lasher, was held in the chapel at the Thomas C. Thompson Funeral Home. The service was conducted by the Rev. R. Ward Hill, 7th Day Adventist Church at Ottawa, assisted by Mr. W. H. Farrell, lay minister of the Belleville Avenue United church circuit.

School mates of Brenda Lasher were among the mourners.

The bearers for Brenda were Carl Mowers, Lyle Mowers, Billy Hardwick and Ronald Merritt.

A Lift for Living

The Lesson of Palm Sunday

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

As a boy of ten I was taken to see Niagara Falls. Almost every year since that time, I have tried to find some excuse to visit that mighty cataract. The majesty of the spectacle, the fairy lightness of the rising mists, the deep undertone of its cascades roar these possess a perennial appeal. But I must confess that the towers of Manhattan have tended to dwarf for me the height of Niagara.

As a lad I read the Biblical account of Jerusalem the Holy City, with its gates, its temple, its splendor. In my youthful imagination the city of David and Solomon took on magnificent proportions. Later in life I visited Jerusalem. And the contrast between its buildings and the soaring structures of American cities left the temple area looking little and the Street of David rather tawdry.

Who has not formed in his mind a picture of the triumphal entry on that first Palm Sunday? And yet if we were to compare the company which followed Jesus with the triumphal parades accorded our heroes returned from the last war, the Jerusalem spectacle would rather contrast.

BLIND TO GREATNESS

We Americans have developed a massive production which is in danger of dwarfing the wonders of nature and of the spirit. Bigness of scale may blind us to greatness of quality. We must remember that the size and cost of the gilded frame do not prove the painting to be a masterpiece.

On this Palm Sunday let us turn from skyscrapers and America's triumphal parades to a Man glorified with a towel and holding a basin in His hand. It is in a little upper room on a side street.

There is nothing in the physical setting to suggest significance. It is the Passover Season, and Jewish households had followed the custom of eating the Passover as families. A Galilean carpenter has come up to Jerusalem. He has no family, but He has a little company of followers whom, on this occasion, He treats as His family.

There are ten of them at table. Jesus, rising from table, took a towel and basin and began to wash His disciples' feet. When He had finished, He sat down and said, "Know ye what I have done unto you? Ye call me Master and Lord, and ye say well, for so I am."

HISTORIC DIVIDER

The Jesus who said that is the Figure who has split history into before and after. If we had been there that night, could we have believed that the Man who had been washing the feet of those 12 humble men would some day outshine Caesar who scorned Him as a peasant, beneath even the dignity of a title? Or that this Carpenter would make those fishermen the pioneers of His Immortal so that uncounted churches would be built in their names; that the cross on which He was to hang the next day would be transformed by time from the ugliest of tortures to the loveliest of decorations; that His name, as Emerson would say centuries later, 'is not so much written as ploughed into the history of the world," and the ploughing of His name and spirit into the soil of the world would so fertilize the minds of men with hope and truth, with purpose and service, that the world's wilderness and waste places would blossom with democracies like Canada and America.

DOES HE LOOK SMALL?

Does that figure of Jesus with a towel washing His disciples' feet in a little room on a back street of a provincial town look small and insignificant to you? Well, just remember this, that if He had not been there, we would not be here.

In Him was a greatness which dwarfs our skyscrapers and a power which rivals the atom. Aye, in Him is a power without which our skyscrapers will prove mightier Babylons headed for oblivion and the hydrogen bomb, a shortcut to suicide.

Raymond Foadick, who headed the giant Rockefeller Foundation, told of a huge rock in the backyard of his country place. Through the years some seeds collected in a crevice of the stone. After a time a seed was blown on that soil and it took root. The years passed and the roots of that tiny seed split the massive rock. Why? Because life was in that seed, and the power of the universe was behind it.

So with the King who came into Jerusalem nineteen centuries ago.

Bulletins From Birdland

By WINIFRED E. WILSON

BIRDS IN COMMERCE

Apart from their usefulness as destroyers of injurious insects and weeds, the economic value of birds is rarely stressed; yet we depend upon them for a large amount of our food, and need their help in other ways.

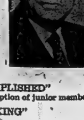
What would we do without our domestic fowls? There would be no more chicken dinners a n d, more important still, no food concoction requiring eggs. We are apt to overlook the fact that members of the barnyard flock are as much birds as English sparrows a n d starlings.

When on the subject of food and birds in captivity, let us think of cormorants, which are kept by the Chinese and Japanese, and trained for the fishing industry. With special collars around their necks, they are able to catch, but not to swallow, fish. In Peru, cormorants and other kinds of sea birds living on the cliffs of the Southern Pacific Ocean are valued for the large supplies of guano that is marketed commercially. This is a splendid fertilizer, used as we use manure.

Of late, scientific devices are displacing Carrier Pigeons to a large extent. However, the bird did noble duty, especially in times of war, from the days of the Romans, up to and including World War II.

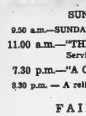
BIRDS FOR HATS

Unfortunately the millinery business for many years made a profit from the sale of feathers. On this continent the birds which suffered most were terns, for their long, pointed wings, and great white herons and egrets, for the beautiful plumes of their breeding costumes.



Ostriches of Africa came near extinction because of their plumes. For a long time they were hunted and shot that women might deck themselves. Before the end of last century ostrich farms were started, and now feathers can be cut off without harming the birds. Osprey have also been used as birds (instead of beasts) of burden.

Nothing to equal elderdown has ever been discovered when a combination of warmth and light weight is desired. An ounce fits into a box 1"x2", yet can be fluffed out to the size of a basket ball. Its insulating qualities are marvellous. Three pounds go into a sleeping bag.



The chocolate brown mother eider plucks down from her o w n breast to line the nest. It was found that if this were removed she would without harm to herself replace it with more; and so some years ago the elderdown industry was begun on the Lower St. Lawrence River.

Iceland recently discovered a method of cleaning the down by machinery, and this is now being tested in Canada, with the expectation of demonstrating it to Esquimos, that they may establish Elder duck or' sies.

SPRING OVERDUE

It is time somebody did something about the weather. The calendar says that it is spring.

Any Canadian—or at least any resident of Ontario—who believes the calendar when it comes to dusting off the thermometer preparing for the annual bout with spring fever is obviously badly in need of the services of a free shrinker. If he will believe the calendar about the homecoming of spring, he will believe a politician at election time. If he expects Spring to arrive promptly on March 21, he will expect a woman to be ready and waiting for a date.

Still, by March 21 there are normally some signs that Spring is on the way. Her press agents have put in an appearance. The snows of winter have turned to slush. The mud between sidewalk and front door is as soft as the summer grass. The sun has generally had a look in and out of our long undies at least half a dozen times. Children have been experimenting with maple sap as a substitute for green apples when it comes to working up a tummyache. Young men have been chasing a puck all winter have been surveying the current crop of blondes, brunettes and redheads as possible objects of pursuit in the months ahead. The girls, unless they have been very well treated during the winter months, have been discarding their current boy friends in preparation for the excitement of being chased—this being true even of the chaste. Housewives have started their spring cleaning and mothers have started pouring out the sulphur and molasses. Housewives and mothers are right on schedule, but the other harbingers of spring are just yet in evidence.

It was such a beautiful winter. The snow was soft and scanty. The days were cool and clean. The skies were blue and bright.

We had every reason to expect that Spring would be able to come bustling down the garden path without stubbing her toes on Old Man Winter's trash.

And what happened? Old Man Winter says, and stays and stays. From his actions, you would never dream that the mortgage was overdue, that there had been a foreclosure notice that the sheriff was at the door and eviction was imminent. Here he sits, as comfortably ensconced inside the fireside as he was in December, thumbing his way through fuel bills, leering at rubbers wearing thin, sneering at overcoats worn out last year's mainstay.

Away with him! If we cannot expect Spring to arrive on time, the least we can expect is for Old Man Winter to depart and leave us alone with our longing. Begone, old man; start your trip northward toward the Arctic retreat before the advance of Spring, for surely she is en route. Leave us not find you and your blustery old mouth usurping her rightful place amongst us. Step hence—and if you do we shall perhaps be ready to welcome you on your return next December.

MOST CROSSING DEATHS AVOIDABLE

A father, his daughter and his brother were killed at a level crossing west of Belleville this week when their car was struck by a diesel engine.

The onus of preventing level crossing accidents rests on the individual driver approaching the tracks. A train cannot take evasive action when something rests on the rails. Bringing a train to a halt quickly is a difficult and dangerous feat.

A railway track is about five feet wide. Equipment overhangs the rails by a few more feet. A train must have, at the most, less than a 10-foot width for its passage. It is not too much to expect that private citizens, concerned for their own safety, should see to it that trains have clearance.

Accidents, unfortunately, happen all too often at level crossings. Sympathy is little consolation to a dead man's family.

Sympathy for the engineer, however, can be of some consolation to him. The engineer in a train involved in a fatal accident at a level crossing is often the only person involved who is aware of impending tragedy. As his train hurtles to his doom, he must suffer the particular anguish of being a spectator to a tragedy in which he is involved and which he is powerless to prevent or avoid. That such experience comes unexpectedly in the routine discharge of his duties can only add to the engineer's personal anguish.

The Fredericton Gleaner has appealed for the creation of a new word. The Gleaner says that "what is needed is some simple, easily pronounced, not more than three-syllable word which, at a glance, will denote a person who is on the receiving end of a television broadcast, and which, doubling as a verb, will describe the acts of listening or watching or both."

How about "videot" and "videocy"?

In the past 102 years the City of Windsor, by a process of natural growth and eight annexations, has increased its size five times. When incorporated, Windsor covered 2,218 acres. Today it covers 9,250.62 land acres and 1,257.27 water acres. Who would have thought of Windsor as a Canadian Venice?

TO THE CRITICS

Be not so quick to criticize.
You may not know or understand
The reason for the faltering hand.
Some things are hidden from your eyes.
A heart may be behind
What once you thought a brilliant mind.

Be not so quick to jibe or jeer.
No man is always at his best,
And one who is troubled or distressed
And is a prey to doubt and fear
Deserves your pity, not your blame.
When he has failed to play the game.

Be not so quick to take offense.
Sometimes the hasty, hurtful word
By which your bitterness is stirred
Is born of suffering intense.
His temporary lapse forget.
Perhaps his nerves were all upset.

Oh, there is much we cannot see,
And much at times we cannot know
To all of us come days of woe
And nights of sleepless misery,
And no man when he's so distressed
Can be himself or at his best.

Holiday In Mexico

By C. A. Morton

Land of sunshine, wonderful scenery and wild-eyed drivers, that is the Mexico that bulks largest in our memories since our return to Belleville only a few days ago. We went to this country, as you'll recall, with some misgivings as to whether a winter holiday spent there would be as enjoyable as we had been led to believe. Well, we were not disappointed. Mexico has much to offer the tourist who is looking for something out of the ordinary.

For several years we had spent winter holidays in Florida and then came home feeling indeed. However, it was decided that other parts should be visited before rheumatism, indigestion and fallen arches laid us low. For awhile we toyed with the idea of going to Jamaica's famous Montego Bay section, but after looking over the brochures of several hotels in that district we felt they were not for us. The prices were almost in line with some of Miami Beach's more luxurious hotels and it was then we decided on Mexico.

Dr. and Mrs. James H. Forrester of Belleville, had visited Mexico several times a year ago during a medical convention in Mexico City and they were enthusiastic about what they had experienced. Also, in October, we had met Mr. Hamilton Pacific Airlines were establishing a non-stop flight from Toronto to Mexico City starting the first of November. That really sold the trip to us. We decided to go by plane, not only for ourselves but for our daughter, Mrs. Ken Hubbard, Tom Mulock, who decided they would like to go along on the trip.

LOTS OF PUBLICITY

Mexico has been getting lots of publicity this past winter. Newspapers and magazines have featured articles on this country and all of them have been favorable. Arnold Meyers from Sidney Crosby's office in Ottawa made a favorable detail his impressions of southern Mexico near the Guatemala border on his return. However, at the risk of boring you, we decided to get in the act, too, and tell something of what we saw and did in Mexico during our central and western Mexico. We have decided to write more than one article on how to own particular parts of the country. Newspapers and magazines have featured articles on this country and all of them have been favorable. We have decided to write more than one article on how to own particular parts of the country.

The Mexican government is doing a great deal to encourage tourists to come to Mexico and they brought about $250,000,000 into the country in 1965. In fact tourism is the second or third largest business in Mexico next to oil and mining. The Government Tourist Bureau up a very active organization designed to see to it that the tourist gets an even break. Inspectors are stationed in all the main tourist centres and these officials are always willing to investigate the complaints of cheating by store keepers or others if complaints are not honored. Several hotels last year were fined $1,000 apiece for overcharging. The address of the main office is at 89 Juarez Avenue, Mexico City, and if you would suggest that anyone contemplating a visit to Mexico should write to the Bureau for information or visit the office on arrival in the city.

Another thing which we intended to do, but did not get around to, is to call on the Canadian Embassy and register our names with them. This registration is needed such as in case of illness, the Embassy would be of great assistance in notifying relatives regarding medical and hospital services or even in case of trouble with the law the staff would be of inestimable help.

AMBASSADOR WILLIS

We learned, too, that Canadian Ambassador Douglas S. Cole and his charming wife entertain quite a bit with all groups in the Mexican capital and are doing a splendid job of maintaining friendly relations between Canada and Mexico. Another feature of the Embassy that paid big dividends was the visit to the Capital of Captain D. W. Piers, Captain of the Canadian lead Light Cruiser "Quebec." The hand-some Captain and his officers were were entertained at the Embassy by an official reception and were also given a very cordial reception by President Lopez Mateos. Pinos, the White House of Mexico. The group of Canadian officers were known to the City by a special plane provided by the Mexican government. Some of this information was given by Canadian newspapers during the visit of the Quebec but we did not see it.

Before we proceed further we would like to say that we make no pretense of being an expert on things to do and see in Mexico. No one can visit a strange country any later or any time and see everything. Some of our impressions are based on what we read, what we saw and what we heard. We shall try to be as factual as possible at all times and trust that a review of our experiences will be of some interest to those who read them.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

SHADOWS

I sat at the desk in my library recently and glanced up to the mantel of the open fireplace. There is a small statuette there that a dear friend gave me. It stood at an angle that the sun rays struck it and the shadow seemed to bring out the beauty and solidity of that work of art.

Next to the figure is a painting by an artist I have long and deeply admired. It is a landscape the artist painted before his students. The great beauty rests in the shadows, in fact they make it alive.

In the use of my camera I always try to get pictures that emphasize the shadows. The contrast of light and shade is always beautiful and lends character to the picture. Even with a portrait shadows can play an important part. At my summer camp I love to view the golden shadows of a full moon cast over the waters of the lake. And the shadow of a bright star at night upon the water is a dramatic sight.

Life has its shadows, too. Shadows of both type and sorrow. And they lend character to all that we are. Without these shadows nothing would be lacking. It has been said that we often stand in the shadow of our best character. I think this is true. We see the bigness of the man, the beauty of close companion of a person is often referred to as the shadow of his great one sorrow.

There is something very beautiful about the shadows of trees in late afternoon. They spread out like reaching hands. They whisper peace and good will to all about them. Shadows are essential in most great paintings. They give emphasis to the painting as a whole. Without these shadows there is something of the artist silently expressed.

From Splott To Fassifern

(Hamilton Spectator)

Barlee-la-The-Beans is an English village (pop. 1,701) which crept into the world's news columns the other day because it felt slighted. It had been omitted from the new index of 19,000 place-names in England and Wales — yet it has been in existence since Roman times.

The publishers, at a loss to explain the oversight, admitted it was not really an easily forgotten name.

No more, we suggest, than Pity Me, Windy Nook, Yoops Green, Bell's Button, Splott's Knoll, Anchorum, Ashby-de-la-Zouch and Worts, as well as Pacific Ash Corner, Broadbottam, D'Arcy Lever cum Bretlghtcot, Queens and Gus. Why aren't they in the index?

While in Canada Indian names have a romantic, dramatic quality of their own, and go far in matching some of the Irish rogue-twisters (Tregrity Tetwyth, to pick at random) the general run of place appellations is pretty dull and unimaginative. The double-barrelled efforts usually include creek, river, lake, beaver and dam (or less) though between Abana, Que., and Zwicky, B.C., in the catalogue is a guild, there are sandwiched some rare designations.

There are two Happy Valleys (and only one Happy Land in England) and a Hazard's Corners (much more polite than England's blunt Hell Corner). Prince Edward County provides the awfully formal Interprovincial Brick.

Manitoba's prize is by far the world's only Dipplet, and Ontario's Kenora, Ignorant Foreigners don't believe, anyway) can produce a Lora. Nova Scotia has this compared with Lower, Paradise, Cosby, Smeltzer and other rather indelicate names of this nature in the U.K.?

Of course, it's all a question of usage. Muddied Sock could easily produce giggles in Belgravia, while Big Muddy (Man.), Fassifern (Ont.) or even Bigwin Inn could conceivably be the name of a bar parlor joke at Upper Volscian.

But small and remote though most of these oddly-named communities remain, the inhabitants drift to the towns of simple nomenclature, and by bringing the county maps and what the appetites of the hikers. It's time they had together. Yes, Toronto, Tweedie Brook, N.B., to Turners Corners, Ont., or even to get Barlee-la-The-Beans reinstated in the official index.

Personal Health Talks

The Fried Food Phobia

A typhoid patient in the third week of fever, when liquid diet was routine for typhoid patients, inasmuch as a bit of solid food might perforate an ulcer in the intestine, suffered a perforation. He that is, a tear in the intestinal wall, permitting intestinal contents to leak into the abdomen (abdominal) cavity and set up peritonitis—if the patient lived long enough.

At operation the perforation was found, partly corked or scoppered by a finger-size piece of gristle-like substance, which proved to be a tough curd of milk. The case occurred in hospital where I was an intern with the legal to dispute the staff physicians' diagnoses or treatment when I believed they were wrong. Once I was hauled before the board of managers and censured for exceeding my authority. Another time I was suspended for a similar offence. But both times I had the satisfaction of proving that the ward man who complained of my insubordination had been wrong in his diagnosis. Come to think of it, I have been looking for trouble ever since.

It was just my luck that typhoid began to decline steadily in prevalence about the time I began to practice. But in the next four years—perhaps 18 or 20—I saw to it that the patients had they wanted to eat, within reason, and the latest feeding plan kept them in pretty good condition. Nowadays with the malnourished state of patients kept for weeks on a starvation regimen of milk and thin broth.

The quaint notion that a very sick patient must have a "liquid" diet was based on fancy. If the patient is able to chew solid food, that's just as digestible as vegetable-oils or combinations of them used to make margarine. The old-time physician of the liquid diet era had a notion that fried foods are "difficult" to digest. So he excluded all fried foods from the menu that he gave the patient. It wasn't just fried foods but "friends and greasy" foods.

Fried eggs, fried ham, fried fish, fried potato, fried nuts—now you call that indigestible? Man, you don't know it.

Fried foods are usually easily digestible as regards the digestive juices of the stomach. Of course, if you overload the stomach with any food, it takes longer to digest. But the fried food itself is digested as readily as any other food. The fried food is digested in the small intestine, not in the stomach. Fried foods are "difficult" to digest in the sense that they require more time in the small intestine than do other foods. But they are digested as readily as any other food.

SO START RUNNING

There are certain people who have a degrading effect upon those with whom they come in contact. Unfortunately, some people are highly educated and cultured. Their bad influence frequently arises from the tone of their personality. They can make bad appear good, and good appear bad. Sometimes their evil influence is so surrounded with commendable qualities that such a generously Kingdom and a pleasant attitude toward everybody that one would not suspect that there is evil lurking in their lives.

To say this is not to be cynical and certainly not to convey the impression that people are always this way. These things are being said only because everybody should be conscious of the fact that such people are the most powerful temptations of life are subtle. One becomes almost involved, tied up, bogged down in trouble before he knows it.

If you discover that some person's influence is not good, get away from that person—and influence as quickly as possible. Some situations work themselves out with a generosity of love, but not this situation. Sometimes we confront a temptation which has to be fought. Most temptations are best handled, however, by flight rather than by fight. Few temptations overcome us; most of the time we overtake them—and escape.

THE PACKSACK

British Columbia has dispensed with the bounty paid on wolves. Once again a wave of controversy is sweeping across the Canadian provinces as to whether bounty should be paid or not on that one animal we all condemn and which we can't seem to impress with our humanity.

The wolves on which bounty is paid would, in many instances, have been killed anyway by trappers or no. Trappers are death on wolves. Trapping wolves is a specialty—the rinks: Belleville rink [—R. J. Wolves, like any other animal, will only thrive where there is abundant, and suffer, or decline, where there is scarcity upon which food is scarce. In addition to the problem of food supply, the wolf is the natural enemy of several of its dangers that face animals everywhere but Mr. Man. He is a competitor of man. He wants the meat of the animal in the trap. He wants the skin of the carnivorous want. Of course, in addition, he has the added thrilling zest, the thrill of the chase, the joy of a hunting bird, up to a thoroughly high pitch of any living thing that comes, by accident, maliciously or by design into the trails in the forest. And, of course, though we forget it constantly, infinitely more of life dies of natural causes than from the hand of predators, whether man, wolf or bear.

Hostesses For Moon Trip

When some big Airline starts its first commercial service to the moon, it won't have to worry about timid hostesses.

Two Jersey City girls have already applied for jobs. They asked American Airlines to give them an estimate of how long before the trip can be taken with an acceptance of "average safety." The girls said they had designed special uniforms for the flight, do not leave for the moon without us."

Their letter concluded: "Please entertaining spirit, and it is possible that the girls are only a few steps ahead of the experimental astronaut-to-be. But in the meantime they might find more practical employment on the runs to Boston and Chicago, proiac as they may seem.

Negro Dollar Good as Gold

(The Financial Post, Toronto)

The purchasing power of the negro population of the United States is roughly equal to the total income of Canada. This comparison helps to explain the concentration in the Southern States over the last few years of transportation by colored residents of Montgomery, Alabama. The boycott (by refusal to patronize Negro passengers) has already caused serious losses to the bus company involved. Other firms have learned by experience that to practice discrimination is to throw away sales.

Both Negroes and Whites may be learning that the market-place is one spot where race doesn't count. One customer's dollar is as good as another's—and, as necessary for the survival of a business enterprise, the accumulated profit may turn out to be a first-rate ally in the struggle for better and saner race relations in North America.

By April Oursler Armstrong

THE LAST SUPPER

At sundown on Thursday, thirteen men met to celebrate the Passover in an upper room in a house in Jerusalem.

It was a plain room, heavy - beamed, furnished only with rattan divans and a long oaken table.

They were gathered in this room as by a kind of miracle. That afternoon the Master had called Peter and John, and said:

"As you go into the city, you shall meet a man carrying a pitcher of water. Follow him into his house. And say to the man of the house: "The Master says, where may I eat the Passover feast with My disciples?' And he will show you a large room. There make things ready."

Now here they were, all twelve, waiting for the Master to come.

In spite of all that Jesus had foretold, none of them realized this was to be their last meal together. They were busy with an old argument.

"Which one of us is greater?" they asked.

FULL SILENT

Suddenly Jesus appeared at the doorway. They fell silent like children discovered in mischief.

Jesus poured water from a pitcher into a basin. Then He knelt at Peter's feet.

"Master!" gasped Peter. "Wash my feet? No! You must not!"

Jesus, on His knees, looked up at the fisherman. "What I do, you know not now — but you shall know hereafter."

"You shall never wash my feet!"

"If I wash you not, you shall have no part with Me."

Then Peter said: "Lord, not only my feet, but also my hands and my head."

Jesus began to wash the feet of each of the twelve.

Then He said: "You call Me Master and Lord; and so I am. If I then have washed your feet, you also ought to wash one another's feet. The servant is not greater than his Lord. Neither is an apostle greater than He that sent him."

MEASURE OF GREATNESS

There was the answer. Who is greatest in the kingdom of heaven? The one who humbles himself, and puts himself last, as Jesus did.

Then Jesus sat at the table. His eyes were lowered and He looked at no one.

"I have desired to eat this Passover feast with you, before I suffer," said Jesus. "For from this time I will not eat it, till it be fulfilled in the kingdom of God."

After a long silence He lifted His voice in one of the beloved old psalms of David, and all sang with Him, giving glory to God. A cup of wine was passed and blessed. Then each ate of the traditional foods of Passover.

Then Jesus said sadly: "One of you shall betray Me."

Those words echoed frightening- ly in the dining room. One of them would betray Him? The idea stunned them. They loved Him! How could they betray Him?

Yet, humbly, faces tight with sorrow, they asked Jesus:

"Is it I?"

"Is it I, Lord?"

"Who is it?" shouted Peter.

"He it is to whom I shall reach bread dipped," Jesus answered. "He that dips his hand with Me in the dish, he shall betray Me."

The Master dipped a morsel of bread in the dish, then quietly held it out toward Judas.

Judas turned.

"Is it I, Master?"

"You have said it," answered Jesus. He could not keep the pity from His eyes. "That which you do, do quickly."

Judas fled from the room.

Even then, the disciples did not really understand. Who could believe Judas would sell his Master's life?

They told themselves that Judas must have simply been sent on an errand. After all, he was in charge of the purse. Perhaps Jesus had sent him on some secret mission.

Jesus did not mention him again.

Instead He turned their eyes to the most important act of His life — so earthly simple, so heavenly in meaning.

IMPORTANT ACT

He took bread, and blessed it, and broke it, and gave a piece to each. And He said:

"Take you, and eat. This — is My Body."

And they ate.

Then He took the cup, filled with wine, and gave thanks to God. And He passed the chalice of wine, saying:

"Drink you all of this. For this is My Blood of the new testament, which shall be shed for many unto remission of sins."

And they all drank of it — all except Judas, who had gone, but who still crouched outside listening to the great new mystery — the way in which a man becomes one with God.

And Judas knew that for him it was too late.

This was the real parting between Jesus and those who loved Him in this world, this hour after that first communion.

"Little children," He told them softly, "yet a little while I am with you. You shall seek Me, and as I said to the Jews: 'Where I go, you cannot come.'

"A new commandment I give to you! That you love one another— as I have loved you, also love one another."

But Peter said: "Lord, where do You go?"

Jesus answered: "Where I go, you cannot follow Me now. But you shall follow hereafter."

"Why cannot I follow You now? I will die, for You!"

Jesus looked at him, gently, but oh so sadly! "Peter, the cock shall not crow, till you deny Me three times!"

Peter roared in protest.

"Although I should die together with You, I will not deny You."

"Let now your heart be troubled. You believe in God, believe also in Me.

"In My Father's house there are many mansions . . . I go to prepare a place for you. And if I shall go, . . . I will come again, and will take you to Myself, that where I am, you also may be.

"And where I go, you know, and the way you know."

Thomas leaned forward. "Lord, we do not know where You go — and how can we know the way?"

And Jesus answered:

"I am the way, and the truth, and the life, No man comes to the Father, but by Me."

SHOW US

Words burst from Philip: "Lord — show us the Father, and it is enough for us!"

"Have I been so long a time with you," sighed Jesus, "and have you not known Me? Philip, he that sees Me, sees the Father also!"

Then in the simplest of words was the answer for which they had waited so long.

"I am in the Father. And the Father is in Me."

At that candlelit table in the upper room God sat with them now.

"If you shall ask Me anything in My name, that I will do.

"If you love Me, keep My commandments . . ."

And Jesus made His farewell.

"My peace I give to you. Not as the world gives, do I give to you. Let not your heart be troubled nor let it be afraid . . .

"If you abide in Me, and My words abide in you, you shall ask whatever you will, and it shall be done unto you . . .

"This is My commandment, that you love one another, as I have loved you. Greater love than this has no man, that a man lay down his life for his friends."

And as the candles burned low on the table of the Last Supper, Jesus faced the darkness:

"Arise! Let us go!"

And one by one, they followed Him to Gethsemane.

The Face on The Stamp

THE GREATEST MICROBE HUNTER

ARTICLE 24

On a bright spring day almost seventy years ago nineteen seriously ill Russian farmers arrived in Paris. Some of them were so weak that they could barely walk. They had been bitten by a pack of mad wolves in the woods of Smolensk. Their hands and faces were badly mangled. Their eyes were filled with horror knowing that they were condemned to die in agony from one of the most merciless killers mankind knew, rabies. Certainly, there were more than half a dozen other deadly diseases. But even from the most dangerous ones like typhoid was a chance to recover, not from rabies. Death was not only certain, it was deliverance from the wild tortures of pain and thirst that could not be quenched because the victims were not able to swallow. There was no cure, no medicine against the invisible killer that travelled slowly to the brain.

At this time, however, there was a man living in Paris who had stirred the world with the news that he had conquered rabies. He was a chemist, one of the most remarkable chemists who ever lived and one of the greatest microbe hunters who ever searched for the secret weapons against diseases.

His theory about microbes caused the most violent controversy in the medical world. He had thousands of followers who worshipped his genius, but he also had thousands of enemies who were ready to destroy him. They laughed at him, "how could those tiny parasites kill a healthy, strong man?" Hard to believe. "Prove it," the skeptics said.

And while the battle about microbes went on, farmers were faced with the disaster of a sheep disease, anthrax. In southern France the silk industry was paralyzed. What was it that made the silk worms die before they could spin their precious thread? There was no more time to spend behind the closed door of the laboratory. Equipped with bottles, flasks and burettes he rushed to the trouble-spots. In the most dramatic performance before hundreds of spectators he proved that the sheep inoculated with his special vaccine would not die of anthrax. It was not like an ordinary experiment, it was like a miracle. What he did was very simple. He knew that man was helpless against the millions of deadly parasites. So why not turn microbes against microbes! This he did.

In his fight against the silk worm disease he nearly filled His old enemies again raised their voices. But they soon were silenced and the silk producers said that they owed him a golden monument.

When the vine growers complained about their wine going sour he showed them how to prevent it. This process we call "pasteurization" which means killing of destructive microbes. This same word is written on millions of bottles of milk as a safe-guard that protects us from diseases.

He never smoked because he believed smoke would kill his microbes which he was growing in his laboratory. Some of them were as dangerous as a carload of dynamite, but he loved them, he dreamed of them and all his life he spoke of nothing but microbes.

When he was nine years old he witnessed a terrible event. A man who was bitten by a mad dog was dragged to the blacksmith shop and under his cries of agony his body was held with red hot iron. This picture haunted him all his life and he pledged that some day he would find a cure for rabies. He kept his promise. Mothers with tears in their eyes thanked him for saving their children who without him would have been condemned to a dreadful death. Letters and telegrams poured into his laboratory from every corner of the earth.

And now the nineteen farmers from Smolensk, who were bitten by mad wolves, stood before him in silence. They did not speak his language. But words were not necessary for their faces was written what they had suffered. All Paris talked of the poor Russians who might die because it was too late to give them the life saving serum. Everyone was doubtful but one man. He entered the race with time, day and night he spent in his lab, no time for eating, no time for sleeping. Each dose he watched the rising temperature of their bodies and the burning despair in their eyes. And then suddenly the battle was over. He had won. A new resurrection for the farmers who went home.

In his admiration, the Czar of Russia sent him a diamond cross and hundred thousand francs to build an institute in which this man could continue his fight against mankind's diseases. Other countries followed with generous contributions.

And while today his spirit of never-ending research lives on in this institute in Paris, he sleeps within the same walls where he worked as one of the greatest benefactors of mankind — Louis Pasteur.

FIRST EUCHRE

The Parkdale Women's Institute recently sponsored the first euchre card party at the home of Mrs. C. Keeble.

There were eight tables in play. Mrs. Fairbrother won the ladies' high and Mrs. H. Hodgson ladies' low; C. Doyle won the men's high and R. Mory men's low. Mrs. H. Ironson won the door prize. Ladies of the Institute provided refreshments.

It is hoped that this will become a weekly event when the community hall is completed.

Fellowship Club Forms Bible Study Group

The March meeting of the Fellowship Club of Holloway Street church was held in the church Wednesday night.

The president, Mrs. C. Sinfield, took charge of the business part and opened with an Easter thought.

During a discussion, a motion was accepted to begin a Bible study group with the new pastor-al assistant as leader. The club will welcome all in the church interested in learning more about the Bible—always a 'book-of-the-month.'

Mrs. MacFarland took the balance of the meeting, a program consisting of an Easter reading by Mrs. Tucker, a lovely solo by Mrs. Yeomans and Mr. Thomas gave a fine inspirational talk, centred around the Easter theme.

—Following the benediction, refreshments were served by the group.

WELLINGTON UNITED CHURCH W.M.S.

The W.M.S. of Wellington United church met recently in the school room with their president, Mrs. Hamel, presiding. The meeting opened with soft music with Mrs. Maybee at the piano.

Mrs. Hamel read a short meditation on "The Cross", an Easter message. This was followed by prayer.

Mrs. Lewis, the corresponding secretary, read letters of appreciation from Mrs. I. McFaul, Mrs. Ethel Vanwagner, Mrs. George Green, Mrs. Ross, Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. Watt and Mr. Dean.

Mrs. Wait, Christian Stewardship secretary, reported on Christian Missionary decidiveness, stating "we need members who will act, pray, study and give of their time and money."

Mrs. H. Nash reported on Christian Citizenship. Frances Willard said "Christ shall be the World King, whom we should all follow."

Mrs. Bishop, supply secretary, reported on the sewing of two lovely quilts, also on baby supplies donated and requested that more used clothing was needed for the bale, donations to be left at Mrs. Blakely's and Mrs. Hartel's. Mrs. Poulter reported on film to be shown on the evening of March 15th.

An invitation is to be sent to Miss Brown, a missionary home on furlough to speak at the WMS service April 29th.

Plans were made re the W.M.S. Presbyterial; delegates appointed were, Mrs. Stoneburg, Mrs. Don MacDonald and Mrs. Hamel. Arrangements were made for conveyances for all who would attend.

Mrs. Poulter and group 1 had charge of the program, devotional (prepared by Mrs. Marvin) was given in her absence by Mrs. Bishop. Scripture reading by Mrs. Yourt. Mrs. Bishop read a splendid Biblical story on the "Prodigal Son."

Mrs. Wm. Teskey gave a short but concise report on the study book on mission work in Northern Ontario and Norway House. In the area of 2,500 miles there are in the neighborhood of 500 Indians. One has only to visit their shacks and homes to realize the importance of mission work and the help the bibles bring to them.

Mrs. Poulter thanked all who helped and after benediction, her group served refreshments.

Going Places

Tips on Visiting Florida

BY SHIRLEY AND BOB SLOANE

We thought we'd written enough about our trip to Florida last month, but when we got home we found so much mail containing questions we hadn't answered in the previous columns, that perhaps you'll forgive us if we try to clean it up today:

(Q) "Can you pass along any shopping hints for Florida?" — A.C., Alton, Ill.

(A) And how. For one thing, you can't beat the summer, sport and other casual clothes available in Florida's better shopping centers, such as Palm Beach, Miami, St. Petersburg and Tampa. We think it's hard to believe, but many of these never even turn up in Chicago and New York, let alone smaller cities.

If you ladies haven't yet got any clear plastic handbags and shoes, the after may be interchangeable heels made of such exotic stuff as ribbonstone sodded aluminum. Today's the place to find a profuse selection.

Men's sport clothes are greatly influenced by both the European and Caribbean imports and come in selections you probably will envier find anywhere else.

Bringing or sending home a bag of citrus fruit may be a standard joke about Florida but there's no you can get the most luscious grapefruit and oranges you ever saw at a fraction of their cost at home. And they do keep well.

Contrary to popular belief, everything from children's playsuits and costume jewelry to complete outfits can be had at fantastic savings over what they would cost if you could find them up north, if you just shop around. Good old American competition does it.

FLORIDA WEATHER

(Q) "Is the extreme South of Florida the only area where the weather is like summer even in winter?" — Mrs. Muncie, Ind.

(A) by no means. Quirks in the weather frequently make it warmer by several degrees in such areas as St. Petersburg and Tampa, inland in places like Ocala and Orlando, and even up north in Jacksonville.

(Q) "There are just so many hotels and motels in the parts of Florida we want to visit that we wonder whether it would be safe not to make any reservations but just decide where we want to stay when we get there. I can't think this would be advisable!" — L.M.N, St. Paul, Minn.

(A) Well, it would be a bit of a gamble but not too much. If you arrive at one of your destinations during a particularly busy week you may find the place of your choice booked up, but that's only about a 50-50 prospect. Besides, there are so many good accommodations everywhere that you'll undoubtedly find a satisfactory place to stay without much trouble.

(Q) "We've heard so much about the Miami Beach area being crowded, trash and gaudy that we're a little bit hesitant about trying it. What do you think?" — Mrs. J.P.S., Dodds, N.Y.

(A) It's become fashionable in recent years to pooh-pooh the Gold Coast that way. But look at it this way. If you were at a lavish but fat dinner, it might make you sick to eat or even contemplate everything on the table. So you take just what you like.

Depending on where you stay, play, and visit, it can be peaceful or noisy, gaudy or tasteful, garish or just bright. It's all there and you can help yourself.

BEST ROUTE SOUTH

(Q) 'What is the best route from New York to Miami?" — W.W, Jamaica, N.Y. and a couple of hundred other readers.

(A) For our many friends in the northern garden us a moment, westerners):

There are three major routes from New York through which a majority of northeasterners must pass enroute by car. We found the fastest to be the Ocean Highway, viz., the New Jersey Turnpike to Washington, D.C., U.S. 1 through Delaware to Kiptopeke Beach, Va., a 90-minute ferry ride to Little Creek, Va. ($3 for the car, 75 cents a passenger, no charge for children), U.S. 17 to Jacksonville, and U.S. 1 to Miami. This route cuts out most major cities.

You can also try U.S. 301 from Baltimore to northern Florida, which cuts out all large cities but may slow you down through a host of small towns, or U.S. 1 out of Washington, which allows plenty of interesting through several of the South's historic cities.

The big bottleneck is out of Jacksonville. Alternate to U.S. 1 are U.S. 27 or U.S. 17 and U.S. 441. The former will allow a cut-off to visit the West Coast, but neither is faster or more scenic than the other. Jammed though U.S. usually is.

SUN BOOTHES

(Q) "Is the Florida sun really so good for what ails you? — F.P., Louisville, Ky.

(A) We don't practice medicine in this column (or anywhere else) but since we're reading in a field even the doctors don't know much about, suffice it to say that Florida reputedly has one of the healthiest-looking sick people in the world.

But while the sun probably won't cure your personal cold, it will tend to be that postnasal drip. People with arthritis and rheumatism generally report feeling more limber.

Anyway, it won't do you any harm and you'll undoubtedly feel better after a couple of weeks of sun-bathe you did in the cold, damp north.

The First Robin

A cheering song from the tree-top
Where the maple buds show red,
The tawny gleam of a red-breast
In the branches overhead —
And a look and listen
To the robin's old-time strain,
New hope and faith and courage
Thrill the weary heart again.
The song, so sweet and tender,
Has bridged the span of years,
And with it comes the memory
Of all that life endears
Of a mother who loved the
And bird and bloom and bee,
Who taught me the joy of living
With heartfelt ecstasy.

O bright and beautiful robin
What dreams your warblings bring,
Of summer's rippling meadows
Where bob-o-links gayly sing,
The flood of your songs brings visions
Of life that's a joy to live,
And the songs that you lavish so freely
Teach us of our cheer to give.

This - - and That

BY HARRIET STEVENS

Although we are not uttering a call to rest on our oars, we do believe that our community must be one of the more progressive ones in the nation. The reason for this comment is very simple indeed. We have still another first to report, or to repeat. Those readers who happened to be listening to Ted Snider's tape recording over CJBQ last Wednesday evening will recognize the repetition.

Two weeks ago today, we mentioned the series to be broadcast by Ted Snider of Trenton. CJBQ's flying reporter was the guest recently of the R.C.A.F. on a trans-Atlantic training flight which took them to the U.K., Paris, the Azores, Nova Scotia and back home to Trenton.

Wednesday's broadcast was the record of Ted's interview with the chief officers of public relations for the R.C.A.F. in the U.K. and Europe. Speaking from the R.C.A.F. office in London, England, Flight Lieut. Duke Palmer congratulated Ted for being the first independent radio station in Canada ever to be permitted to report to be brought back to its listeners. It was a splendid report which covered many matters of interest to friends and relatives in Canada. We think it was an exceptional first for the radio station which serves our whole area as the "Voice of the Bay of Quinte."

Ted Snider was a natural choice for the R.C.A.F. to invite as a flying reporter because he, like several of the boys at radio station in Belleville, served overseas in the air force. He was a bomb-aimer in the crew of a bomber during the war. He told us that he was very much at home to be in the air again and to be associated with the boys who wear the wings for Canada. T & T is happy to add its wings in salute to CJBQ and Ted Snider for a distinguished first.

Once sometime ago we experienced the "good neighbour policy in action. Parking the car we were riding in on the main street of a strange city, the driver pulled into a vacant space between two parking meters. Another body congratulated the driver by exclaiming, "I wish I could park my car so expertly." The car stood evenly along and about the proper distance from the curb at almost exact centre between meters, just about perfect.

Walking along the street a friendly woman looked at our out-of-town licence, and approached us. She commented, "I see you are strangers. If you don't pull your car forward so the front bumper is at the front meter, you'll get a ticket." We called a thank you but before anyone could think to ask 'why,' she was gone. However we did as she advised.

Our correct driver was one of those people who insists on knowing 'why' and I could see that this is one of the reasons she is a good driver. She could not rest until she learned why the nose of a gasoline horse should be fed to a modern fleshling post. What difference did it make! While we were shopping, she wandered along the street. She discovered, believe it or not, that cars not only had more room to back park and pull out, but that actually every space could be utilized. There was no overlapping; there was no space which could not be used. The result not only more parking accommodation but parking with a minimum of confusion and a minimum of frayed tempers.

We hear and read a great deal these days about the North Atlantic countries. A few days ago Canada's ambassador and permanent representative to the North Atlantic Council, Mr. L. D. Wilgress made an interesting observation in his address to the English Speaking Union at Edinburgh. "Canada derives 25% of her imports from the North Atlantic area, and sends to it a similar percentage of her exports." He was speaking on "The Economics Of Peace."

The Rotary Club of Belleville asks us to let a crippled child lead! And by supporting the drive for funds in the interest of the Ontario Society for Crippled Children, it is an opportune season for a happy deed? Easter, the anniversary of Christ's resurrection in spring, the season of rebirth and new life and new hope, is time for the young lives of crippled children. An Easter Seal and a beautiful flower in a bouquet made up of wheel chairs, braces, crutches, summer camps, special treatments, transportation, hospitals and everything to help a crippled child. And one of these children may someday lead Canada to greater glory."

When writing last Wednesday's column in which we mentioned the debate about whether spring started on March the 20th or 21st, we never guessed that the weeper were being blamed for that too. It appears because 1956 is a leap year the ladies force Old Sol across the equator one day earlier. Surely this has nothing to do with the female prerogative but maybe the men should be aware if the ladies can hurry the seasons by twenty-four hours. As well, we trust there are no hard feelings and that he shines benignly on the daffodils and bonnets which will decorate the Easter Parade.

2nd Birthday Marked by Special Party

Thursday evening, little Billy Thompson of Shannonville, entertained a few little friends and some two candles, over a birthday cake, at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William Bartley, Shannonville, on the occasion of his second birthday.

The evening was spent in children's games, following which refreshments of ice cream, sandwiches, tea and milk, including a white and pink iced birthday cake with two candles, were served.

Billy received some pretty personal gifts.

Alpha Lambda Chapter Outlines Its Purpose, Its Aims, Local Projects

The Alpha Lambda Belleville chapter of the Beta Sigma Phi Sorority, which is composed of a group of young women active in community interests, was formed on May 29, 1946 by the international representative of Kansas City, Mrs. Esther Lewis.

The purpose of the Sorority is the "giving to young women in search of further cultural advantages and expanded social contacts an opportunity to unite in fellowship with other young women who also desire to develop their cultural natures by definite courses of study, with the ultimate aim of making an 'art of living.'"

FOUNDED 1931

The Sorority was founded in Abelline, Kansas, in 1931 by Walter W. Ross, and is international in scope, having chapters in the United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Europe and Asia. Many well-known people were members or honorary members, among these are: Mlle. Fifi Dorsay; Sister Elizabeth Kenny; Senator Iva Follis, and Barbara Ann Scott.

In recognition of the 25th anniversary of Beta Sigma Phi, Alpha Lambda chapter, with 4,500 chapters in forming a new "Silver Anniversary" chapter, with Mrs. J. L. Acton, as president. An Exemplar chapter, composed of members having four years standing, is also contemplated, thus continuing three Beta Sigma Phi chapters in Belleville.

CULTURAL PROGRAMS

In cultural programs the arts are studied in relation to the girls' everyday living. Each member participates in the program, helping in its preparation or in the general discussion following its presentation. Programs are begun with the beautiful initiation ceremony and includes many other delightful events planned by the members.

The social sponsor and the director serve as guiding hands in all chapter activities. The first social sponsor was Mrs. G. H. Stobie, followed by Mrs. E. Folwell, and serving at present, Mrs. J. Lennox Smith. The first director was Mrs. W.J. Doyle Sr., then Mrs. W. C. McCutcheon and at present Mrs. M. Clyne Ryan. Their generous assistance has added greatly to the success of Alpha Lambda chapter. The first president was Mrs. William Bishop, (Miss Mildred Dress; Sister Elizabeth Kenny) who was followed by many capable young women. The present president is Merle Ray.

Although culture is Beta Sigma Phi's main object, it has an impressive part of service work. Through the efforts of the organization much financial help has been given to the work of cancer research; Girlstown, U. S. A., a home for underprivileged children; and recently Brian Moore, a young author received the first award from Beta Sigma Phi (for his book the best first novel written by a Canadian and published in 1955.

LOCAL PROJECTS

Local projects include: assistance to the Kiwanis Club in the care of needy children; financial assistance toward a university education for a ward of the Children's Aid; much hospital work, including the donation of a wheel chair for the pediatric ward; the sponsoring of a hospital library, and assisting with the Samaritan cupboard for babies in need. This year's years the Alpha Lambda chapter has been affiliated with the Hospital Auxiliary. The present project is the building and the furnishing of prizes, in the new wing of the hospital.

To support these efforts the main undertaking each year is the Sorority dance. The "Pink and Lavender Ball." Since 1952 this has become an annual affair and with the experience of each dance, efforts are made to make them even more enjoyable. There are door prizes, special dance prizes and at each dance the "Girl of the Year" is crowned. This award goes to the girl, who through her personality and effort has contributed most to the success of the chapter. Under the convenership of Mrs. J. H. Hall and her committee, it is hoped that again this year the Black and Gold Ball will be a social success.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

TALK THIS OVER WITH YOUR DOCTOR

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

My husband and I have passed our thirties, and have been married over eight years. We have two daughters, one nearly seven and the other nearly four.

My problem is that my husband told me he will separate from me if I don't have another child. He is a very devoted husband and father, and we are a very happy couple, but I don't want another child. I'm afraid of being very sick in childbirth.

Will you advise me what to do?
—Mrs. C.M.W.

Dear Mrs. C.M.W.:

Is the reason that you are afraid to have another child because you had a hard time at the birth of the two children you have already? Or do you just imagine that at your age you might have an especially difficult time?

What I would advise is that you and your husband go together to your doctor and talk this all over with him. It may be that you are just building up a lot of groundless fears to worry over.

If the doctor feels that you should not have any particular difficulty going through childbirth again, why not please your husband and have another child? On the other hand, if he doesn't feel you are able to do so, then he can explain it to your husband so that he will understand and stop talking about leaving you if you don't have another child.

It seems to me it would be wise to base your decision to have or not to have a child on what your doctor tells you.

RELAX AND BE NATURAL

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I am 15 years old and there is a boy 16 I am very fond of.

About seven months ago we were going together. Then he had another girl friend, but that broke up three months ago.

Now he tells my girl friend that he still likes me, and has been coming to see me for two months. Whenever we're at a dance or a party he always dances with me, and we have lots of fun together.

What I can't understand is why he won't tell me he still likes me. I don't know whether he just wants to stay friends, or whether he is not sure of my feelings for him. He sometimes gives my brother money to find out what I say about him.

Do you think he still cares for me? If so, what should I do to encourage him, or should I encourage him? — V.W.

Dear V.W.:

Why can't you be satisfied to have a nice friendship with this boy instead of wanting to make a big thing out of it?

What you are after, of course, is to be his "one and only," and "steady" with him. Why try to rush things? If you do try, don't think this boy won't know it—and most boys don't care much for girls who make a deliberate play for them.

If you'll just relax and be natural, go out with any boy who asks you instead of waiting around so you'll always be available if this particular one should call, you'll be far more likely to get his real interest than if you try to think up ways to "encourage" him. The girl who interests the boys is the girl who is liked by all and who always seems to be having a good time.

Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE B. POWELL

JESUS, THE CALM THAT FILLS MY BREAST

Jesus, the calm that fills my breast,
No other heart than thine can give;
This peace unstirred, this joy of rest,
None but Thy loved ones can receive.

My weary soul has found a charm
That turns to blessedness my woe:
Within the shelter of Thine arm,
I rest secure from storm and foe.

In desert wastes I feel no dread,
Fearless walk the trackless sea:
I care not where my way is led,
Since all my life is life with Thee.

O Christ, through changeless years my Guide,
My Comforter in sorrow's night,
My Friend—when friendless—still abide,
My Lord, my Counselor, my Light.

My time, my powers, I give to Thee;
My immost soul 'tis Thine to move;
I wait for Thy eternity,
I wait, in peace, in praise, in love.

Hymn writers of all churches have helped to enrich the world's treasury of sacred song, and many of the best-loved songmakers have been Methodists.

One of the most distinguished of the Methodist hymnists was the Rev. Frank Mason North, a minister who was born just at the middle of the nineteenth century and who spent most of his ministry in the city—New York. He will always be remembered for two songs, a home song and one entitled "Where Cross The Crowded Ways Of Life" and the hymn, "Jesus, the Calm That Fills My Breast", which is listed above.

Dr. North was graduated from Wesleyan University and began his theological studies in 1878-79 year. For nearly two decades he held pastorates and service posts of honor in the denomination and then, in 1872, he accepted the secretaryship of the New York Church Extension and Missionary Society.

During his New York ministry and later when he was serving as a city missions leader, the pastor-poet took a deep interest in the needs, problems, and heart-aches of ordinary people in a big city. It was this interest which led him to write his popular home missions hymn. It is still in wide use today.

In our day of world crisis, too, his second hymn with its message of Christian trust has a new meaning for men and women who are seeking comfort and inner strength in spiritual things. This hymn was written in 1894 and made its bow a year later in the Christian Advocate magazine. In 1903 it was published in the Plymouth Hymnal and today it has won a place in many church song books.

Readers' Saturday Column

As Conducted by Mary Moore

QUESTION:

I am a constant reader of your column. . . and get much help from it. I was lucky to get a pressure canner cooker (No. 4) for Christmas and I was wondering if you would have recipes for cooking or any hints in their use. We have used it to cook chicken and it is delicious.—Mrs. Sam H.

QUESTION:

A most pleasant surprise I received at Christmas was a pressure cooker. I have often seen recipes in your column for pressure cooking, but never saved any because I never dreamed of owning one. Would you send me some of your recipes . . particularly steamed puddings, and can a cake be baked in them . . I heard a woman on the radio talking about baking in a cooker. . I have no oven.—Stella S.

ANSWER:

I have mailed to you two girls each a copy of a pressure cooker cookbook. (I have no more on hand but could tell other interested readers how to get them.) In the two pressure cooked cake recipes which follow you will see that one says pour batter into heated cooker; the other says don't heat cooker. This difference of opinion is rife among pressure cooker users. You should both try both ways, and see how you like the results.

FEATHER CAKE

One-quarter cup butter (or margarine or shortening), 3-4 cup sugar, 1 egg, 3-4 teaspoon salt, 1-2 cup milk, 1 1-3 cups flour, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 2 teaspoons baking powder. Cream butter and half sugar. Beat eggs, add rest of sugar to them and add to butter mixture. Add flour with salt and baking powder alternately with milk. Have pressure cooker heated. Put 2 layers of wax paper in bottom. Do not grease pressure cooker. Pour in cake batter, fasten cover, but do not put on pressure. Place over low heat (or on back lids of a wood fire). Heat should be so low it will not burn. Add 20 minutes to baking time, which is the length of time it takes for steam to start flowing—this cake takes 20 minutes after steam flows freely. Top will not brown but can be iced. Note—After you have baked 1 or 2 cakes in the pressure cooker you can tell they are done by smelling the steam. At first it is very moist, but as the cake cooks it becomes dry and you can tell that the cake is nearly cooked. Note 2—Cake baking tends to dry the rubber gasket from the high heat and it may have to be replaced for canning. Place rack over cake and turn cake out onto cooling rack.

CHOCOLATE CAKE

To 1 1-2 cups sifted pastry flour add 3-8 teaspoon baking soda and 1-2 teaspoon salt. Sift twice. Cream until light 7 tablespoons butter and gradually cream into it 1-2 cup fine sugar. Beat 2 eggs 3 minutes, add sugar slowly, beat constantly. Blend 3 squares melted chocolate, 3-4 cup milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Sift dry ingredients into creamed butter mixture alternately with the milk mixture. Stir just to blend. Pour into buttered cold cooker. Lock cover in place. Place over low heat. When steam appears in steady stream start counting 20 minutes baking time. Never use pressure indicator. Open cooker, let stand five minutes, then invert over wire rack.

Stella and Mrs. Sam H.—you will both see that you have to learn to use your cookers by experience, but lots of girls are using them successfully.

THEY'RE IN TIERS

Slips and petticoats for girls' full-skirted dresses are styled with multiple tiers or ruffles. Triple skirts swinging from hip yokes give the petticoats a party-dress look.

A popular slip style is embroidered polished cotton with a camisole top.

SEIDE'S MOTHER AND BROTHER DEVOTED TO HER . . . HER FATHER INDIFFERENT

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. My mother and father separated three years ago, and he hasn't bothered to ask for any of the children. He made things most unpleasant when he was with us. Therefore we all lost all respect for him. And now that I am to be married in several months, the question arises as to who is to give me in marriage. I very much want my brother to give me in marriage, and my mother agrees, but my brother and I are both in our early twenties, and we have always been devoted to each other. Several friends of ours say I should have an older person give me in marriage, for example an uncle. But since I haven't any relative close by, I feel that my brother is my best choice.

2. If you approve of my choice, should my brother sit in the front pew with my mother after he has given me away?

3. With whom does my mother walk? — Thank you.

1. In the circumstances my suggestion is that you give to your brother, in whom you are so devoted, the honor of escorting you up the aisle . . . and then give to your mother, who has given you so much love and care, the honor of giving you in marriage. Then not even your father could take exception to this plan to give honor where honor is due. Consult with your mother who is to perform the ceremony, and ask if he would approve of this plan. If he does, your mother may simply reply "I do" to the minister's question as she stands in her place in the first pew on the left of the aisle. Don't you think it would be a wonderful idea of you and your mother and your brother to show at your wedding such a brave and close family-relationship?

2. Yes.

3. Your mother, who is the last person to be seated before the processional starts, walks up the aisle on the right arm of an usher the head usher, if there is one, or with her son, if perhaps another of your brothers is to be an usher. After the recessional she walks down the aisle (the first one after the recessional) with the same usher, your brother who escorted you following them.

LIQUID ROUGE APPLICATION

A color blind woman, doctor tell us, is very rare indeed but from the way a lot of women apply their rouge, we should think they were unable to distinguish red. The trouble undoubtedly is that these women have just never learned how to apply it.

Now on the market are some new liquid rouges that leave no excuse for any woman to present a face to the world that looks like a newly painted barn door.

All you have to do to have the coloring nature intended you to have is to apply one drop of the liquid to each cheek, over your make-up base and smooth it on, gently blending it in with your finger tips. You'll find it spreading easily and quickly, just where you want it to give you that natural looking flush. Also you'll find that it will probably last throughout the day without need of a retouch.

Whatever your coloring you can get one of the newest of these liquid rouges in a shade best suited to you. If you are a dark brunette, or olive skinned, you'll want the ruby shade. If you're a light brunette or titian haired, you'll choose the red rouge and if you're a blonde, or fair complexioned, you'll find the pink liquid rouge is for you.

In applying the rouge, follow the natural flush area of your cheek and be sure that it is so carefully blended that it fades into the natural skin tones.

Did you know that if you use an extremely light application of rouge, very cleverly under the eyes, you can "reduce" puffiness along the jawline?

Some women like to use their lipstick as rouge. They dilute the lipstick with cream to get an even application and to prevent the bright pigment from settling in the pores. To use the lipstick as rouge, rub it across your inner wrist then a dab of light skin cream and blend rouge and cream together. When it is blended, apply it to your cheeks as you would any other rouge.

For any rouge other than the new liquid rouges, apply it to your face before you use your cake or liquid foundation.

But if you have trouble getting the effect you want, try these new liquid rouges.

MILKMAN

"The Queen has been graciously pleased, on the recommendation of the governor-general and the secretary of state of Canada, to award the George Medal to Mr. Edward C. Chipman of Montreal, P. Q., for great bravery in saving the lives of three children on December 30, 1954.

"Mr. Edward Chipman, a milk driver, was on his usual daily run when he noticed a house on fire as he entered the Indian reservation of Caughnawaga, Que.

"When he stopped his vehicle, he was informed that the mother and father of the family living in the house had escaped with two children, but that there were other children inside the building.

WENT INTO HOUSE

"Mr. Chipman accompanied the father into the burning house. The father was overcome by smoke and left the building, collapsing outside.

"Mr. Chipman saved one child, returned and rescued a second child.

"Learning from the father whom he revived by means of artificial respiration that another child was still inside, Mr. Chipman entered the house but was forced out by smoke.

"He made another gallant attempt, reached the child and brought him to safety.

"There is reason to believe that, but for the courageous action of Mr. Chipman, the three children would have perished in the fire, in Unfortunately, one of the three children later died in hospital as a result of the fire."

ACTUALLY FATHER

Chipman said it was actually Georges Julien, father of the children, who carried the child who died in hospital from the building. He said he accompanied Julien into the house and assisted him down a ladder-like stairway with his burden.

Chipman said he drove off after the fire toward Huntingdon, Que., the nine southwest of Montreal, but drove his truck into a ditch. He blamed the accident on the effects of having gulped too much smoke in the fire.

Chipman said he did not speak to police either after the fire or after the ceremony.

He described newspaper reports expressing doubt that he had actually rescued the children as "news to me."

"I seen what I did," he said. "I did what I did."

Det. Gerard Besserite, questioned at police headquarters about the fire, which he investigated, said he had "never heard of" Chipman.

"Later, when I saw him receiving a medal on television, I thought it funny," he said.

The police report at the time on the blaze made no mention of Chipman. It quotes Julien, however, as saying that Mrs. Julien took three of the youngsters outside, one child got out himself, and the father took the two remaining children outside.

Another report on the fire has been prepared by Verdun police director Pierre Lemoan but has not been made public. It will be submitted to council Monday.

Fire-marshal Charles Desgrosellers said the city had decided to honor Chipman, a resident of Verdun, and wanted to check first to see if the account of the fire "was on the up and up."

Questioned about the investigation in Ottawa, Mr. Picard said it had not been decided what steps would be taken if it were proved Chipman was not the rescuer.

Chipman also has received several other awards, including the Louis Carrier Trophy, and the Gold Medal, since the fire.

The Invasion That Failed

By LEONARD L. KNOTT
Illustrated by Jack Tremblay

During a century and more of war between French and English in North America many successful attacks were made by each side. There were brilliant campaigns and there was stupidity on both sides. There were great victories and terrible disasters.

One of the most amazing and disastrous campaigns of all was that of M. de Rochefoucauld, Duc D'Anville, who commanded a mighty French Armada which left France on June 22, 1746, and sailed for Canada. Its mission was to recapture the French fort of Louisburg which had been captured by new Englanders the year before, to capture Annapolis Royal, to burn Boston, recage the New England coast and then move on to the British West Indies.

There were 63 ships in the Armada, most of them powerful sea forces to have crossed the Atlantic. Included were 11 ships of the line, 30 frigates and other ships including transports and fire ships. The transports carried 3,510 soldiers and vast quantities of arms, ammunition and provisions.

FAILED WITHOUT A SHOT

The Armada failed in its mission without ever encountering its enemy.

Within a few days after sailing, sickness broke out on board ships. Much of the flour was dumped overboard, unfit for use. The fleet then ran into bad weather and many ships were driven off their course. Four ships of the line and a transport were left in distress off Sable Island, the Mars and Lacide, each 64-gun ships, turned off for the West Indies, the Ardent, 64 guns, turned back to Brest and was captured and burned by English ships.

The few faster ships which reached America had to wait for the others. One was struck by lightning and six men were killed. A store ship was burned. A plague broke out and 1,200 men died. During a storm a transport collided with a ship of the line and sank with all on board.

MORE MISFORTUNE

Finally, with only two ships of the line and four transports left from his fleet of 63, D'Anville sailed into Bedford Basin which was then known as part of Chebucto Bay.

Here the French camped until the end of October, when the troops re-embarked. So many had died, however, that there were not sufficient to man the few ships that were left, so some were scuttled and burned. D'Anville himself died the day the last of his three transports arrived. Under his successor, the pitiful little fleet sailed for Annapolis, intended to attack the three fortress there, but ran into more storms and the plan was abandoned.

A few miserable survivors of the ill-fated expedition returned to France, the remnants of a great Armada that was defeated without a shot being fired.

Your Car

Have Mechanic Check Faulty Meter Cable

By EUGENE MILMOE

Normally, a close watch is kept on the speedometer, and the driver readily notices if it begins to act up. But warning signs are sometimes ignored, or passed off as "nothing to worry about," so a relatively minor trouble eventually mushrooms into a more costly repair or replacement job.

For example, a speedometer may become noisy with the needle jumping erratically. In most cases, this is due to a cable kink or just lack of lubrication; but if it's neglected, it can result in a ruined cable, housing or head.

That low humming or buzzing sound should also be investigated promptly, even though the speedometer mileage and speed indicators seem to be working correctly. The noise probably means the cable end is improperly connected to the speedometer head, but it could easily develop into something more serious.

Most important of all, don't try your own hand at repairs. Speedometer trouble is a job for the expert only.

STRIPPING LOOSE

R. W. asks: "The rubber weatherstripping on one of my car doors is hanging loose. Can I get some kind of glue or cement for this?"

(A) Get a special weatherstrip adhesive. Most auto accessory shops and hardware stores carry a few name brands.

Mrs. M writes: 'My husband recently put one of these deep tone purring mufflers on our '50 car. Now he is sorry because he doesn't like the noise. Will he have to completely remove it or can something else be done to stop the noise?"

(A) The only practical solution is to replace it.

From S.Y: 'During the last four months, my 1954 engine seems to have lost some of the speed it used to have. I've spoken to at least a dozen mechanics, but everyone of them has given me a different reason. Please tell me where the trouble lies."

(A) There are many possible causes and that's probably why you have received different opinions. I could speculate on the long list of possibilities, too, but I'm afraid it wouldn't help you very much. Let a good mechanic road-test the car and do a little troubleshooting. He'll soon have the answer.

PLUGS FOULED

M. J. writes: "My new car has only been driven 2000 miles, yet I notice a slight but definite increase in gas consumption. I've kept a close record of this, and I know I'm not mistaken. The dealer claims this is not surprising because the plugs are probably a bit fouled. This explanation doesn't satisfy me at all. If the plugs are fouled after only 2000 miles, then something must be wrong with the engine. Don't you agree?"

(A) I'm more inclined to agree with the dealer. As he says, this condition is not unusual nor any cause for worry. During the break-in period, some oil will get past the rings until they become properly seated.

This, plus the tendency to drive slowly when the engine is brand-new, will readily promote carbon on the plugs. Gas mileage will fall off a bit, and you may even notice some loss of pep, until the plugs are cleaned up.

Garden Notes

Making Ready the Garden

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

If you have saved some seeds over from last year you can test them for germination now. You can get the seed flats ready and lay in a supply of aluminum stones, plant bands and one of the dusts prepared to fight fungi.

To test those seeds place a piece of cotton, or blotting paper on a plate, or pie pan mark the paper, or cotton, or blotting paper on a plate, or pie pan, mark the paper, or cotton in four quarters wet the surface and arrange 25 seeds; in each section lable them and cover with another layer of damp cotton or blotting paper. Keep in warm place and examine daily. At the end of ten days you can judge whether the percentage of sprouts warrants keeping the rest of the seeds for planting.

There are a few flowers which need a longer period for germination. Among these late sprouters are; snapdragon (20 to 25 days), scabiosa (12-20), Portulaca (12-20,) nicotina (20-25), lupine (25-30), larkspur (15-20), Gaillardia, (12-15). Four o'clock (12-15), cosmos (5-15), cock's scomb (20-25), Canterbury bell (12-15), california poppy (5-12), Ageratum (8-12.

There are some hardy flowers that can be planted out early in April, or as soon as the ground is dry enough to work. These are poppy, California poppy, sweet peas, scabious, annual larkspur, centurea cyanus, wallis and purple, calendula and cosmos.

LARKSPUR

Annual larkspur will often self seed, but this plant does not transplant easily. Get it in as early as possible since it requires several weeks to come to bloom. Most of the other plants in this list may be planted in the open ground, or planted in a sheltered space on the south side of the house, or fence, later when they have produced their second pair of leaves they may be planted out in the bed, or border.

In the vegetable garden several of the plants will also stand light frosts and may be planted by the first of April. Lettuce, radish, carrots, beets, and peas may go in if the soil is dry enough for planting. It is a good plan to make raised beds which will drain early for this first vegetables. The beds would have to be prepared in the fall in most areas. Where the soil is sandy the ground can be worked much earlier. Be sure to incorporate plenty of humus material into this soil it will help to hold the moisture, and slow up the leaching away of soil nutrients. Sunday soil requires frequent applications of fertiliser, and as the summer progresses more frequent watering, but for an early start it is the best.

SWEET PEAS

Sweet peas should be planted very early the seventeenth of March is traditional. In this case the trench should have been prepared in the fall. A fairly deep trench, six inches is recomended. The seed should be soaked over night in warm water—or nicked with a sharp knife to break the hard seed case. Cover the seed lightly and as the plants grow fill in the trench. This will give the plants more moisture and keep the roots cool. It is also possible to start the plant pots indoors and set them out when the ground is workable.

A new type of sweet pea is the small compact "Little Sweetheart."

It is bushy and needs no support, the average height is eight inches. The flowers are large, start to bloom early and come in all the usual sweet pea colors.

Nasturtium celosia (cock's comb) and morning glories may be planted in pots to give them an early start.

THE VILLAGE BLACKSMITH

Today's Living is measured in Kilowatt-hours

"The smith a mighty man is he, with large and sinewy hands . . ." That's how Longfellow saw him, and how he was regarded by his community. Today, he doesn't have to be a physical giant, for the smith has a new kind of muscle. We can't describe it, for it's invisible. A unit we know as a "kilowatt-hour", muscle-power without an equal.

Today, the roar of the bellows and vibrant ring of the anvil are replaced by the hum of motors and the dull thud of the forging hammer. Electricity, accomplishing tasks thought impossible 50 years ago. And who can say what future applications will be developed?

Would you venture to estimate how much electricity will be used to power machinery in, say, 1975? Ontario Hydro endeavours to do that every day . . . look into the future . . . anticipate electric requirements. .

Tomorrow's living as well as today's will more and more be measured in kilowatt-hours. It is the aim of Hydro to provide an adequate supply of electricity . . . so vital to Ontario's farms, homes and industries.

Blake Swaps Workout For "Workover"; Leafs Say They Can Be Tough

Sport Slices

Rare, Medium, Well-Done

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

QUICK WATSON, THE NEEDLE!

Montreal has its Canadiens and Gotham has the Blues — but not the kind that gal from St. Louis sang. After that sparkling 4-3 victory that shattered the Habitants dreams of four-straight, Les Canadiens' faithful may cast eyes misted with trepidation towards Manhattan and Madison Square Gardens come evening.

It is not the score that sent the Habs' supporters home wantonly on their feet from shock. It was the decisive all-out performance of the Watsonian troops who came out David-like to administer a solid coup-de-grace to the National League's Goliaths.

To use the ancient sports cliche, the Gotham Blues rose to undreamed-of heights in a mere or less fantastic display of both offensive and defensive ability—with emphasis on the latter. They clearly proved they have the potential and while none but the shamefaced Canadiens in their wildest Lorne (Gump) Worsley, who sat out Thursday's game because of a sore knee.

The Canadiens didn't work out Friday at Montreal but they were worked over by coach Toe Blake who said:

We had our meeting and we cried over our mistakes. If we can't take a game in New York then we shouldn't be in the series. If we are going to be a bunch of homers we might as well bow out."

THINKS WILL RECOVER

Blake said he thinks the Canadiens will snap back from the defeat. He blamed overconfidence to some degree for the loss.

"Too many people have been taking the Rangers too lightly. They showed pretty clearly in the second game what they can do."

"Worsley said he feels good and he's played well against Canadiens in New York. But my old coach (Lester Patrick) used to tell me 'Never break up a winning club.'"

The Rangers had been interested in four or five other goalies to be standby for the playoffs. Bell turned out to be a fortunate choice.

The 31-year-old goalie said he almost quit hockey altogether in January while with Springfield Indians of the American League.

"I was only the second-string goalie with Springfield and I was disgusted," he recalled. "Just before I took the step, however, I was sold to Buffalo in the Quebec League. So I decided to hang around the game a bit longer."

"And am I glad you did," said Watson, overjoyed after New York's first win in Montreal since . . . Bell was 30, 195, and second in six seasons.

Bell was the first emergency goalie used by Rangers in the playoffs since Bert Gardiner subbed for Dave Kerr against Boston in 1939. The Rangers bet that last time and won in six games.

The Rangers hope it will be different this time.

Discussing the Canadiens, Watson was free with praise.

But would he pick Montreal to win the semi-finals? No. He said the Ranger should be 6-to-5 favorites because they have three of the five remaining games on home ice.

Manager Muzz Patrick, asked separately for his opinion, had it the other way around—Montreal 6 to 5. He thought the Montreal super-stars would be enough to offset the New York home-ice advantage.

This is the 18th straight appearance for Detroit in Stanley Cup playoffs . . . . It is the eighth in a row for Canadiens . . . . Last time New York Rangers were in the playoffs was in 1950 . . . . Butch Bouchard, Montreal captain, has taken part in 112 playoff games up to the current series . . . . Maurice Richard holds four playoff scoring records . . . . He has scored most goals in a single game (five against Toronto on March 23, 1944); most goals in a playoff series (12 goals in nine games in 1943-44 playoffs against Toronto and Chicago); most goals in playoff competition (37 goals in 19 playoff series) and most points in playoff competition (82 points in 10 playoff series) . . . . Elmer Lach holds record for most assists in playoff competition (45 in 11 playoff series) . . . . Dickie Moore of Canadiens smashed the most points in a single playoff game. He scored two goals and assisted on four others for six points against Boston on March 25, 1954 at Montreal . . . . Toe Blake had most assists in a playoff game, (five against Toronto on March 23, 1944)' . . . . Detroit's line of Dutch Reibel, Gordie Howe and Ted Lindsay set a record for most points by one line in 1954-55, in 11 games they accumulated 51 points . . . . Most assists in a playoff series is 19. It was set by Elmer Lach in nine games in 1945-46 and by Ted Lindsay in 11 games in 1954-55 . . . . Gordie Howe holds record for most points in a playoff series. He set this in 1954-55 when he scored nine goals and had 11 assists for 20 points in 11 games . . . . Most one-sided victory took place on March 30, 1954 at Montreal as Canadiens blanked Toronto 11-0 . . . . The 1955 playoffs went a total of 16 games . . . . Kingston TV station will telecast the Canadiens, Rangers game tonight instead of the Wings, Leafs' tussle.

Will the Bell Toil for N.Y.? Watson Knows, He Won't Tell; 'Not Push Us Around'--Clancy

By MEL DUFRIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK (CP)—Two months ago Gordie Bell, veteran minor league goaltender, was ready to quit hockey.

Now the hero of New York Rangers' 4-3 victory over the Canadiens in Montreal Thursday waits nervously to learn whether he will see action against Montreal Canadiens here tonight in his second National Hockey League playoff game.

With the best-of-seven series tied at a game apiece, Phil Watson said he couldn't decide until just before game time (9 p.m. EST) whether to go with his standby goalie or return to his regular netminder,

Bell was the first emergency goalie used by Rangers in the playoffs since Bert Gardiner subbed for Dave Kerr against Boston in 1939. The Rangers bet that last time and won in six games.

The Rangers hope it will be different this time.

Discussing the Canadiens, Watson was free with praise.

But would he pick Montreal to win the semi-finals? No. He said the Ranger should be 6-to-5 favorites because they have three of the five remaining games on home ice.

Manager Muzz Patrick, asked separately for his opinion, had it the other way around—Montreal 6 to 5. He thought the Montreal super-stars would be enough to offset the New York home-ice advantage.

'Tiger' Takes Whisker Verdict From Humez

NEW YORK (AP) — Ralph (Tiger) Jones, the spoiler of the middleweight division, has done it again.

This time the victim was punch-scarred Charley Humez of France, European 160-pound champion who was making his U.S. pro debut. Fourteen months ago it was Sugar Ray Robinson, the song and dance man on the comeback path.

Old Sugar Ray shrugged off the defeat and rebounded to regain the middleweight crown from Carl (Bobo) Olson. Humez, edged by the Tiger in a very, very close 10-rounder in Madison Square Garden Friday night, hopes to do the same and get his long-sought shot at the world title.

"He deserves a return," said Harry Markson, managing director of the International Boxing Club, and he tentatively marked it for May 25 at the Garden. Jones, however, said he would like to get title crack at the winner of the May 18th Robinson-Olson championship fight.

Forbes had the bout even in rounds, 5-5, but the Tiger in front with 5-4 and 6-4 leads. Referee Frankstein plumped for the Yonkers, N.Y., contender, 5-4-1. Judge Bart Grant gave it to the 28-year-old Frenchman on his fine, second-half form, 5-4-1.

Jones, eighth-ranking contender and supposedly the weaker puncher, dominated the first half, forced Humez back constantly and hurt him several times with fast combinations. Humez bled from the nose in the first round and suffered a deep, ugly gash over his left eye in the fourth.

That forced Humez to change his style. In order to protect his cut, he relied on a snapping left jab and occasional rights to the head. He kept the 28-year-old Tiger off balance and made him miss often. Humez outweighed Jones, 159 to 157½.

BEAT CANADIANS

GLASGOW (AP) — Joe Alston, the American single champion, reached the semi-finals of the invitation badminton tournament here Friday after a win by defeating Don Smythe of Toronto 17-18, 15-10, 15-7.

Also entering the round of four was Finn Kobbero of Denmark who won't go out on limb and predict the Wings will wind things up Tuesday.

"The loss of one player, even if he is a star, doesn't mean Leafs are finished," he commented. "They are still a young and tough club. We'll have trouble against them."

To illustrate his point, Skinner recalled the Stanley Cup semi-finals of 1948-50 when Detroit, one of the game's greats, was knocked out of the lineup by a severe head injury. The Wings went on to beat Toronto in the semi-finals and New York Rangers in the championship final.

200,000 See Classic Light Blues Snatch Slim Win Over Oxford in Boat Race

LONDON (AP)—Cambridge lad all the way to snatch a narrow victory today over Oxford in the 102nd rowing of the university boat race on the Thames.

The heavier Cambridge crew, averaging 184 pounds, held off a strong late challenge by Oxford to win by a length and a quarter.

The winning time was 18 minutes, 36 seconds—only 46 seconds off the record set by a Cambridge crew in 1949.

It was Cambridge's 56th victory. Oxford won 45 times and there was one dead heat.

The all-English Cambridge crew of six-footers got away to a good start in the gruelling test over four miles, 400 yards of the Thames course and went into a length lead after only a minute and a half rowing.

RECORD FOR MILE

Oxford, including three Australians in the crew, favored a faster stroke—34 to Cambridge's 32. Cambridge passed the mile post in a record time of 3:30. The water was calm and smooth.

About 200,000 persons lined the river banks. Millions of people followed the race on television including viewers in six European countries.

Cambridge, 6 to 4 favorites, found Oxford hard to shake off. After 3¼ miles the crews bit their first headwind—and that was the signal for Oxford to put on another spurt.

Six hundred yards from the finish Oxford was only a quarter of a length behind. But the fast pace told on the lighter Oxford crew and in the last 200 yards Cambridge pulled away.

RETURN FROATS

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP)—Detroit Tigers Friday returned pitcher Bill Froats to Buffalo of the International League on option. Froats, a lefthander, had an 0-5 record with Buffalo last year and was 5-7 at Augusta, Ga., in the Sally League.

COMMENTS AND CONGRATULATIONS

Our congratulations to the Eastern Canadian Singles Champions—MRS. MARION PUSEY of Sarnia, who rolled a fine single score of 362, while winning the Ladies' Championship and BOB TAYLOR of London, Sales Representative for the Clover Valley Food Company, the Men's Singles Champion—who bowled an average of 260 for his 40 games! Nine of these games were over 300!

Many former Molson Classic records were broken during this year's Sportsmen's Show. DENNY LINTON, Oshawa-Peterborough Regional Champion, set a new high five game block of 1586 and BOB TAYLOR'S ten game block of 2866 was also a new record.

MARION PUSEY'S 362, for which she received the Sportsmen's Show Trophy and a cash award, is also a record high single for ladies competing at the Sportsmen's Show Tournaments. ERNIE WHITE (Peterborough-Oshawa team) won the Tomy Ryan Trophy and cash award for men's high single with 369.

The runner-up to BOB TAYLOR was popular HAL REIBEL—who won the Kitchener Regional Championship for the third straight year to gain permanent possession of the Molson Regional Trophy. MARION ROBILLARD of Barrie offered keen competition to MRS. PUSEY in the Ladies' Finals.

Apart from the excellent bowling we were delighted with the fine spirit of sportsmanship displayed throughout the tournament.

We also had the pleasure of honouring MR. EDWARD TUFF of Stoney Creek, who at the age of 87 is the oldest league bowler we have been able to locate.

Czechs Plan Hockey Shake-Up Will Seek Advice from Russ

By RONALD FARQUHAR

PRAGUE (Reuters) — Czechoslovak hockey fans are expecting a drastic reorganization among players and officials of their national team following its unexpectedly poor showing at the 1956 Olympic winter Games at Cortina, Italy.

Hockey is Czechoslovakia's national sport and supporters are still discussing why the team finished second-to-last in the final pool, winning only one game, after confident expectations that it would gain at least third place. Russia won, with the United States a surprise second, Canada a disappointing third and Sweden fourth.

The Czechs used to pride themselves on having the strongest hockey team in Europe. Their failure at Cortina is regarded as something of a national sporting disaster.

Critics seeking the reasons for it have attacked almost every aspect of the game. They have accused players of being conceited, pampered prima donnas, lacking camaraderie and fighting spirit. They blamed club officials for lax discipline and "crawling before the players."

DISPUTES CRITICIZED

They also spoke of disputes between coaches and officials about the selection of the national team, criticized the preparations for Cortina and complained about the general conduct of hockey in this country.

A state committee which controls all sport there took it to task only that it spent three weeks investigating the failure after the team returned from the Olympics.

It criticized the bad "education" of players, outmoded tactics, too many international matches and too little attention to home competitions. As remedies it proposed casting a wider net in the search for national team players, concentrating on developing young blood and systematically checking on players' "education" and coaches' work.

TIGHTEN DISCIPLINE

Press reports say the committee decided to tighten up discipline among players and transfer regulations.

The reports also say that there will be a drive to improve playing standards, and the committee will pick a "nursery" of about 30 most promising players and groom them for the national team.

Czechoslovakia also will turn for advice to the Soviet Union, whom she helped to teach when the Russians took up modern hockey for the first time in 1948. The Soviet coach, Cherniche, will be invited to lecture to Czech coaches.

Boxing Guild Prexy Handed $500 Fine

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York state athletic commission Friday handed a $500 fine to Charley Johnston, manager of two world champions and president of the International Boxing Guild, for failing to file assigned contracts on three Italian fighters.

The rule was put into effect three years ago to eliminate undercover managers and undesirables.

Johnston had told the commission that he and Carmen Tarantino were partners for 30 years in Italian fighters. He said he had neglected to file the assignee contracts on Paoli Rod, Italo Segetichini and Livio Minelli. He pleaded guilty to the charge of violating commission rules and took full responsibility for the failure to file.

The commission gave him a light penalty because no undercover dealings were involved. Both managers could have had their licenses suspended or revoked. Johnston is the manager of light heavyweight champion Archie Moore and featherweight ruler Sandy Saddler.

Boxing Probe Marked by Verbal Fire

LOS ANGELES (AP) — California's boxing investigation resumes Monday, and Los Angeles matchmaker Jack McCoy will be on call to resume testimony interrupted Friday when he pleaded illness.

"McCoy still hasn't answered most of my questions, which it is his duty to do," said James Cox, chief investigator for the committee of Governor Goodwin Knight. "At the rate we have been proceeding with McCoy, it may take two more days to get his testimony in the record."

McCoy's lawyer, Jake Erlich of San Francisco, interrupted Cox's questioning Friday, and the hearing plodded haltingly. McCoy did not appear for the afternoon session.

Erlich at one point threatened to walk out of the hearing, claiming the line of questioning was unfair. A committee member, Jack Hannon, spoke up: "Mr. Erlich, I want to state that your threat to leave doesn't set well with this committee."

HE OBJECTS

Erlich replied: "But, sir, I object to the innuendoes. I won't allow it even if the Governor demands that I do."

Some of the exchanges between Cox and McCoy became heated. One was when Cox asked the matchmaker about deals with Blinky Palermo, a fight manager who is under suspension in some states.

"Have you ever been in jail with Palermo in the bay area?" asked Cox. McCoy exploded.

"No" he shouted. "I've never been in jail in my life!"

"I see it then," said Cox, "that sheriff Gleason is lying when he says he once placed McCoy and Palermo in the locker to cool off."

"Yes," yelled McCoy. "He was lying."

Wolves Wilt Before Maroons Drop First Senior Clash 3-1

SUDBURY (CP) — Sudbury Wolves are the first team to wilt under the rejuvenated power of Chatham Maroons.

Wolves learned that it doesn't pay to let up for even a minute against Maroons as they dropped the first game of the all-Ontario senior A hockey finals 3-1 Friday night.

Second game of the best-of-seven series will be played here tonight. The winner may then meet Saint John Beavers, Maritimes champions, for the right to represent Eastern Canada in the Canadian championships.

It was Maroons' seventh straight playoff victory. After barely making the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League playoffs, Maroons eliminated Stratford Indians 4-3 in the best - of - seven semi-final round, then won the last two games of that set.

In the OHA best-of-seven final round, Maroons have cut out defending Canadian champion Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen in four straight games. In their seven-game winning streak, they have scored 26 goals and have had only 15 scored against them.

Wolves had Maroons in a little until midway through the third period when Chatham shook the Wolves' defensive shackles and scored twice within 31 seconds to win the game.

Ted Power fired two goals, the tying and winning markers and Graham Joyce added an insurance goal. Andy Milne gave Wolves a 1-0 lead at 11:20 of the first period.

Power broke out of his own end of the rink while Wolves were in the midst of changing lines to go on Sudbury goaltender John Abbott and score at 11:32 of the second period. That tied the score.

Power fired the winning goal at 9:32 of the third period after taking a pass from behind the Sudbury net from Chick Chalmers. Joyce added the last goal at 18:31.

Goaltender Marv Edwards, playing his first season in Senior A hockey after graduating from St. Catharines Teepees of the OHA Junior A League last season, played a standout game for the winners.

He stopped 34 shots, 15 in the last period as he held the Northern Ontario Hockey Association champions at bay in the final 20 seconds while Maroons' defence watch was serving a hooking penalty. Albani had 20 drives to handle.

Regina Teen-Age Sprint Miss Breaks Indoor Track Record at Montreal

By GERRY LA FONTAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — A long-standing women's indoor track record went west today, largely on the efforts of a pert little sprinter from Regina.

"And that's just where it should be," 18-year-old Maureen Rever said after running the 50-yard women's open sprint in 5.9 seconds at the 19th annual Canadian indoor track championships here Friday night.

The Canadian open and native record shaved 1-10 of a second off the old mark held by Myrtle Cook now a Montreal sports writer and columnist.

Dwyer had no competition in the open mile as he lapped eight men and won almost casually by 80 yards. His time of 4:11.1 broke an old provincial record of 4:12.4.

The Americans provided determined competition for him in the open two-mile run, Dwyer had to come all out the last lap to edge Reg Darley of Toronto Olympic AS by Crawford Kennedy of Hamilton, who was running for Michigan State University. Darley finished third for second place.

The winning time was 9:30.

One other Canadian open record and one native mark were broken, while a third was equalled.

Bill Bastien of the Mount Royal AC ran the 50-yard midget girls' sprint in 6.1 seconds, to top 1-3 of a second off the old mark. Another sprinter, Brian Mildon of Toronto Olympic AC, equalled the old record of 5.5 in the 50-yard junior boy's sprint.

Miss Rever won the 50-yard juvenile girls' sprint only a few minutes after her record-breaking run. Her time of 6.1 bettered by 1-5 of a second the old provincial open record.

Billy Maxwell Leads Field In Miami Open

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—After two of the finest rounds in his golfing career, young Billy Maxwell led a par-shattering field of 64 pros into the third round of the Miami Beach Open today—but gave Pete Cooper hung dog-gedly on his heels.

Maxwell's midway total of 125—10 under par—was only three strokes better than Cooper, a 41-year-old veteran who has put together rounds of 67 and 68 in his second tournament appearance of the year.

IN THIRD PLACE

Leo Biagetti, a Willoughby, Ohio hero in Maxwell's age bracket, carded a second-round 66 to climb into third place at 134. Dumaret of Kinnesha Lake, N.Y., another old hand on the tournament trail, posted a 67 for 135.

Gardner Dickinson Jr., of Panama City, Fla., co-leader with Maxwell after the first round, and four others were knotted at 136. This group included Walter Burkemo of Franklin, Mich., who fired a record-matching 64 Friday, and Shelley Mayfield of Westbury, N.Y. who set the record last year.

Of the Canadians, Al Balding of Toronto had a 69 on top of his first-day 71 for 140. Stan Leonard of Vancouver took a 66 but his first-round 75 left him at 141. Gerry Kesseiring of Kitchener, Ont., had 72-72—144 and Murray Tucker of Toronto 76-75—151.

Wins Bonspiel

TORONTO (CP) — W. D. Adams of Toronto Granite Friday won the Granite Club's annual mixed bonspiel championship with an 8-3 win over Andy Grant of Unionville.

Don Best of Brampton captured the Reid-Rowland event. The only other out-of-town winner in the six-event bonspiel was the Marston family of Kirkland Lake which defeated Roy Avery of Toronto 11-4 in the C. E. Defoe Trophy competition.

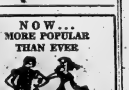
Four Teams Enter EO Soccer League; Digby President

Mr. Les Digby, well-known figure in Belleville's soccer circles, was elected president of the Eastern Ontario Football League last night at the organization's annual meeting. Mr. Digby takes over from Jack Bennett.



Other officers elected were Fred Jones, last season's secretary-treasurer, to the vice-president's office, succeeding Harry Pollard of Kingston and Eric Peterson, the new secretary-treasurer.

Four definite entries were present at last night's meeting. The league this year will consist of Batawa, Kingston, Peterborough and Belleville Northern Electric with the possibility of a Lindsay entry.

The deadline for registration has been set for April 15th with any teams wishing to participate welcome to contact the league executive. It is expected the schedule will open on or about May 13th.

The Northern Electric team of this city urges all prospective players to turn out, with every position on the team wide open. Vice-president Jones stated that all teams this season will use young players.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Sunday, March 25, 1956

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Think over past performances. Are they worthy of you and your talents? You must produce commensurate with your ability. Schedule time for rest, relaxation.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Don't envy others except as it can spur you on to new laurels. An honest, forthright approach to problems will avoid confusion. Happy associations foster a sunny outlook.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — In your haste for recreation don't overlook your Sunday obligations to church, family, friends. Help others to make this day one to remember.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Advice to Gemini also applies to you, now. Spread a bit of happiness around by displaying your likeable disposition, your sense of humor and community spirit. Variety is day's keyword.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — At times it pays to be a good listener. The thoughts of worthwhile folk may prove very productive for you. Make a trial run with a new idea, then evaluate its intrinsic worth.

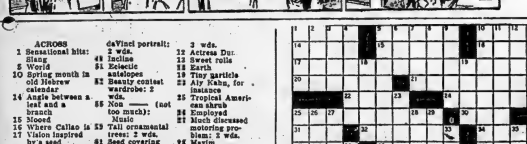
August 24 to September 23 — (Virgo) — First things first! On Sunday that means religious and family matters. And civic and community affairs should have their share of your attention. Healthy recreation, too.

September 24 to October 23 — (Libra) — Review past week's efforts. Profit by your experiences. Where could you have done better? Are you headed in the right direction? Be sure you are "on course" before proceeding.

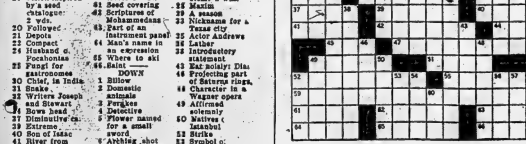
October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — Don't just scratch the surface when digging for ideas. An attentive ea often picks up the solution to many problems. Do travel along a pre - planned route lest you waste time along the way.

November 23 to December 21 — (Sagittarius) — Yes, Sunday, is a day of rest from normal weekday routine. Study your religious needs. Partake of community and neighborhood activities. A good book can provide welcome relaxation.

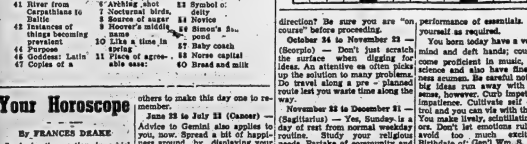
December 22 to January 20 — (Capricorn) — Put latent talents to work. Make use of your conversational ability, inject it with humorous anecdotes, sympathetic understanding. Application to duty can be your strong point.



January 21 to February 19 — (Aquarius) — Curtail any tendency to abandon projects which are only half finished. Be patient even when the goal is not easily reached. Nothing is achieved without effort.



February 20 to March 20 — (Pisces) — Introduce something new into day's program. It can be of a recreational nature. This relieves tensions and permits better performance of essentials. Pace yourself as required.



You born today have a versatile mind and deft hands; could become proficient in music, art or science and also have fine business acumen. Be careful not to let big ideas run away with better sense, however. Curb impetuosity, impatience. Cultivate self - control and you can vie with the best. You make lively, scintillating actors. Don't let emotions rule you: avoid too much excitement. Birthdate of: Gen'l Wm. S. Knudson, USA; Gutzon Borglum, sculptor of Nat'l Memorial, Mt. Rushmore, S.D.

The Times, published every Thursday and Saturday, had its second floor photo-engraving and bindery departments gutted. Water falling through to the main floor press room and office ruined the company's flat-bed press and left business women water logged.

Between three and four tons of newsprint in the basement were ruined by water.

The Picton Gazette, the Times' rival in the weekly newspaper field in Prince Edward County, immediately offered Times' publisher William G. Mikel the use of its plant until he can resume publication.

The fire was discovered at 3.15 a.m., Monday by Picton Police Sgt. Scott Hale, who noticed flames coming through a second story window. Members of Picton Fire Department battled the blaze to the second-floor photo-engraving plant and bindery and had the fire out half an hour after arriving at the scene.

TRIBUTE PAID FIREMEN

Publisher Mikel paid tribute to the firemen this morning for their quick work in putting out the blaze before the whole building was lost. A firewall between the Times' building and adjacent properties prevented spread of the blaze.

The fire is believed to have been caused by a short circuit in a power line connection at the point where the line enters the building.

Several partially completed printing jobs were lost along with equipment including 30,000 folders for the Prince Edward County Agricultural Society and two issues of a 50,000-folder order for the Ontario Tourist Resort Owners' Association.

Equipment lost in the photo-engraving plant included a large camera, a darkroom, printing and developing tanks.

The bindery bindery included destruction of a paper cutter, a folder, a folder and a paper punch.

Two linotype machines on the composing floor escaped serious damage. They were located at the back of the building previously and were dropping through the ceiling missed them.

All office records and business machines suffered extensive water damage.

It is not known whether Mr. McLean intends to try to publish the Times from temporary quarters today.

The loss was partially covered by insurance.

LIFT BAN

PARIS (AP) — A spokesman for Msgr. Paul Marella, papal nuncio to France, said Sunday the Roman Catholic Church had lifted the excommunication of Argentina's foreign minister, Jeronimo Remorino, now in Paris for treatment of a liver ailment. Remorino was excommunicated last June 16 along with Argentina's dictator Juan Peron.

Leaders of Canada, Mexico Meet Eisenhower for Talks

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W.Va. (AP) — President Eisenhower meets here today with the leaders of Canada and Mexico for talks aimed at building goodwill with the United States' next-door neighbors.

Eisenhower arrived by train at 7:30 A.M. EST. His guests were due in from Ottawa and Mexico City in the late afternoon.

Both Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent of Canada and President Adolfo Ruiz Cortines of Mexico arranged to fly to Charleston, W.Va., and then ferry here in light planes suitable for landing at the smaller Greenbrier airport.

Eisenhower arranged to receive St. Laurent and Ruiz Cortines at the conference site's luxurious Greenbrier Hotel. U.S. officials were cheered by a forecast of mostly clear weather.

Diplomatic officials said the sole purpose of the gathering, which was Eisenhower's idea, is to afford neighborly talks among the three North American powers. No action could recall a precedent for such a three way conference. The United States has many common interests with each of the other countries, aside from a general interest in peace and hemispheric security there are no important issues of common concern to all three.

The talks will begin this evening. Other sessions are scheduled for Tuesday, winding up with dinner Tuesday evening. All three principals will leave Wednesday morning.

Protocol presented a ticklish problem since Prime Minister St. Laurent is technically outranked by the two presidents. They are chiefs of state as well as chiefs of government. St. Laurent is chief of government. This problem has been met by dispensing with virtually all ceremony such as guards of honor and army salutes.

A special detachment of marines has even been put into civilian clothes so they can perform guard duties inside the restricted section of the Greenbrier with little formality and military show.

CYPRUS CURFEW KEEPS VIOLENCE AT MINIMUM

Mysterious Chieftain Of Rebels Sought

By L. S. CHAKALES

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — The population of Cyprus went back to work as usual today after the British ended their unprecedented 24-hour curfew of the east Mediterranean island colony.

One killing and some minor violence were reported during the 7 a.m.-to-7 a.m. restriction the British ordered to prevent a sit-out-break Sunday on Greek independence day.

But with Cypriots free to roam the streets and countryside again, the threat of new violence was alive from pro-Greek islanders seeking to get rid of their colonial government. There were recurring reports, also that another general strike might break out later this week.

HUNT CHIEFTAIN

British intelligence agents pressed a search during the curfew for the mysterious chieftain of the Cypriot rebels. They had been tipped off that the shadowy figure returned to the Dhenegia after a legendary Greek hero, was disguised as a black-robed Greek Orthodox priest.

The British governor, Field Marshal John Harding, declared the absolute curfew in 15 cities and a number of towns elsewhere to avoid possible violence on the 135th anniversary of Greece's independence from Turkey.

More than 180,000 Cypriots were confined in their homes in the 15 cities during the curfew. The rest of the island's 500,000 Cypriots were restricted to the immediate vicinity of their homes. Virtually all of the 10,000-man British garrison and the entire police force moved about on the alert.

MAN SLAIN

Masked men shot and killed a Turkish Cypriot in a coffee shop near Limassol. The assassins escaped.

A bomb was tossed at a military bus at Paphos, on the west coast southwest of Nicosia. A Greek woman was injured slightly. Other bombings were reported in a village near Paphos and at a police station near Episkopi. There were no casualties and damage was slight.

Greek-origin Cypriots are seeking union with Greece. Harding deported Archbishop Makarios, Makarios, March 9 on charges he had sponsored violence which has cost the lives of 22 British soldiers.

Two Are Killed As Train Hits Car At Foster Avenue

Ronald Belnap of This City, James Gay, Stirling, Victims

Level crossing accidents in the Belleville district claimed two more victims over the weekend as a Belleville youth and a Stirling young man died from injuries received when their car was struck by a C.P.R. freight at the Foster Avenue crossing Saturday evening.

Almost instantly killed was Ronald Belnap, 21, 13 Franklin Street. His companion and believed driver of the car, James B. Gay, 23, of Stirling, died in Belleville General Hospital less than 24 hours later.

It was the eighth car-train fatality in the immediate Belleville area in about four years.

Last November three residents of the Corbyville area were fatally injured on the 5th concession of Thurlow when their car was struck by a C.N.R. freight. Less than a week ago three members of the Laake family died when their auto was struck by a C.N.R. diesel on the 2nd of Sidney.

CAR STRUCK BROADSIDE

Saturday night's fatality occurred when the northbound car carrying James Gay and Ronald Belnap was struck broadside by a westbound C.P.R. freight and was carried 106 feet down the right-of-way coming to rest just off the tracks.

Both victims were thrown clear of the badly wrecked 1953 model coach. James Gay was taken to hospital by Thompson's Ambulance, Belnap died at the scene.

The accident is believed to have taken place at about 7:15 at which time the westbound freight was due at the station.

The accident took place only minutes after the two young men had left the Belnap residence although within sight of the Foster Avenue level crossing.

EMPLOYED AT N.E.

Both young men were employed at the local plant of the Northern Electric Company and were to spend the evening together. James Gay had called at the Belnap home to pick up Ronald and the accident occurred as they were on their way toward Dundas street.

Ronald was a popular young local athlete playing both softball and hockey. He was a member of the "Orfuns" softball team in the Belleville and district league and played lacrosse with the Northern Electric house team.

Coroner A. R. Dafoe is looking into the deaths of the two young men has been ordered by Coroner Dr. R. T. Potter, the inquest and hearing set for April 16th.

Ingenuity of Eskimo Amazes Massey as He Visits in North

Canadian Press Staff Writer—RESOLUTE BAY (CP)—Governor-General Massey was treated to examples of Eskimo ingenuity Sunday as he resumed his Arctic tour after a flight over the North pole Saturday.

Mr. Massey marvelled at the ingenuity displayed by a young Eskimo who, in one day, fashioned a violin from a ham tin and a sucking gramophone from a pail, amazed by the talent of Mark, a young wife of the Rev. Dr. Inventor, as she played Scottish strathspeys and reels on the sweet-toned instrument.

"You make me feel like a duffer," he told the young man when he met in their wooden home, almost covered with snow.

Jacksoner made the instrument in one day, with the aid of pictures. Mr. Massey was told. Mark took just one more day to learn to play it.

At another home he visited during his busy schedule, the governor-general saw a microphone made from an ink tin and wired to a ham tin. He was told that many Eskimos are fascinated by electrical gadgets and will either copy or buy them when they have in their homes, although they have no electricity.

Today Mr. Massey moves on from this community some 1,000 miles north of Churchill, Man., to Cambridge Bay, 425 miles to the southwest.

Mr. Massey, openly delighted after the first six days of his 17-day tour, returned to what was a normal occupation of meeting the residents of the Arctic Sunday. On several occasions he was entertained by Eskimo musicians.

The governor-general was a home owned by Eskimos Edlih and Mark Norlen, and a silver and white cup while Edith played "Road to the Isles"; and an Eskimo boy, Simon Kadlutsiak, played "Amazing Grace" on her accordion and jews harp.

Mr. Massey also had an opportunity to use his prerogative as a broadcaster. Radio operators D. W. (Denny) Prendergast, 33, of Port Norlen, N.S. and Steve Turner, 36, received new certificates some time ago but were unable to attend a required notary public. Hearing of the situation, Mr. Massey volunteered to serve as a notary and witnessed the certificates.

The governor general also listened in on a Moscow Molly radio broadcast. Molly, heard regularly here, delivered a routine news broadcast largely accented with Russian propaganda.

Security Council Holding Session On Middle East

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The UN Security Council met today to take up a United States proposal that the United Nations secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold on a peace mission to the Middle East.

Chief U.S. delegate Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. was expected to introduce such a resolution formally soon after the 11-nation council session opened (3 p.m. EST). Lodge requested the meeting to discuss the potentially explosive situation along Israel's borders with her Arab neighbors—Egypt, Jordan, Lebanon and Syria.

The American resolution asks Hammarskjold to undertake urgent discussion with all parties concerned even with the Gulf of Aqaba truce chief in Jerusalem, Canada's Maj.-Gen. E. L. M. Burns. It asks him to arrange adoption of measures to "reduce existing tensions" along the armistice lines.

BAD HOPES

The big Western powers had hoped the UN security council would be approved today. Hammarskjold intended to leave right after Easter for London and Middle East Arab capitals. But Arab manoeuvres during the weekend put this timetable in doubt.

Delegates Rafik Asha of Syria and Edward Ilaik of Lebanon first informally requested postponement of today's meeting. Ilaik hinted of following through with formal requests for postponement, they would ask for permission to participate in the council debate without a vote. The Arabs speak, so will Israel, and this will prolong the debate considerably.

Chief Communist Organizer In Tiflis University Fired

MOSCOW (AP)—The chief Communist organizer of Tiflis University has been fired for failing to indoctrinate the students with communism successfully and for failing to wipe out national and racial pride.

This was disclosed in the March 24 issue of the Tiflis newspaper Dawn of the East which reached Moscow today.

The firing of the university Communist cell's party secretary, S. Djorbenadi, was revealed in an article which said that the students had indulged in mass cutting of their sessions of Marxism-Leninism and dialectical materialism since last September.

Eight Killers Think Death Sentence Needed

EDDYVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Eight convicted murderers were asked how they felt about a proposal to abolish capital punishment in Kentucky.

One prisoner, who was in Death Row during a period when 22 men were executed, said: "It isn't pleasant. But some crimes, especially those involving little children, cannot be adequately punished short of death."

Another, who spent five months in Death Rowe before a new trial resulted in a life sentence, commented: "Just the thought of it (death) will keep a lot of people from committing crimes."

"I don't consider the life sentence severe enough for some crimes," said another admitted killer. "The death penalty prevents a lot of premeditated crimes."

Another prisoner pretty well summed up the sentiments of all on the question of a mandatory death sentence in that 8 months.

"If I were given a sentence like that I'd spend all the time trying to get out," he said. "I'd kill the first prisoner who looked at me funny. I wouldn't do a lick of work. I'd laugh at the guards. What could I lose?"

Governor-General Massey Sips Coffee As His Plane Zips Across North Pole

By JOE MacSWEEN

The 68-year-old governor-general whizzed across the pole at 1:33 p.m. EST in a four-engine RCAF North Star.

Mr. Massey, clad in a sports jacket, sipped coffee coolly as his vice-regal plane circled the top of the world. Vapor trails streamed from the wings in the Arctic haze. The temperature was 25 degrees below zero.

A 20-pound canister was dropped over the pole to commemorate the governor-general's visit. It carried instructions in English, French and Danish reading: "Will-you please report your discovery to the principal citizen of your community, who in turn, is requested to inform the secretary of state for external affairs, Ottawa, Canada, of the place and date. A reward to the finder is promised."

"I am speaking to you from the North pole. At this moment my aircraft has reached that spot on the earth from which you look farther north. In our childhood we all learned the Nursery Rhyme of the pole. Some of our ideas, of course, have faded with the years but the romance is lasting. I can feel it now as I look down at the endless wastes."

Accompanying the Toronto-born governor-general were three men of his secretary-sec, Lionel Massey, and his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Raymond, who became the first Canadian woman to fly over the pole.

Also in the party was Sqdn. Ldr. Keith Greenway of Woodville, Ont. one of the world's foremost aerial polar navigators who had helped develop the navigational system used by the RCAF in polar regions. About half the flight to the pole was over ice packs in I-

HALIFAX (CP) —Unseasonable cold weather prevailed over most of the Maritimes today in the wake of the third blizzard in eight days.

The temperature dropped below zero in several sections of eastern Nova Scotia during the night and the cold snap sent temperatures here tumbling to a new low of 28.6 March 26.

The snowstorm dumped up to a foot along the province's eastern shore but the rest of the Maritimes missed the full brunt.

The weather office said a weekend 5½-inch snowfall in the Halifax area brought the March total to 37½ inches, with six days still to go. The previous record for the entire month was 32 inches in 1.

National Front Wins All Seats In Assembly

TUNIS (AP)—Tunisia's moderate National Front today appeared to have won all 96 seats in the constituent assembly.

Only one per cent of the North African country's 750,000 registered voters heeded a call from the extremist wing of the Neo-Destour (independence) party to boycott the legislative elections Sunday. It was the first vote since France promised Tunisia internal autonomy.

Unofficial returns gave 597,813 of the 618,898 votes tallied thus far to the front led by Habib Bourguiba's moderate faction of the Neo-Destour. The Communists, who put up only about 20 candidates, had piled only 3,000.

The rest of the ballots were voided by mistakes in voting. Other opposition groups refused to offer slates.

Inquest Expanded To Probe Charges Pair Attacked

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Smile Lawson, supervising coroner for Ontario, said today an inquest into the death of Herbert Attwood, 43, of Bowmanville, Ont., will be expanded to "investigate charges that newspaper men were attacked by young lawyers."

Mr. Attwood died in a 28-foot fall down a stairwell. A clerk of the Law Society of Upper Canada, he had been attending a party in the hall's lounge room.

Dr. Lawson said a full investigation was ordered by Clifford Mahaffy, deputy attorney-general of Ontario.

Reporter Andrew MacFarlane and photographer Ronald Thompson of the Telegram, sent to investigate the accident, said they were met by 10 to 15 young lawyers who had been at the party.

Mr. MacFarlane said he was knocked to the ground, punched and kicked. The photographer said his camera was damaged.

Dr. Lawson said "It would appear the reporters were there quite within their rights in inquiring into the circumstances of death and there seems to be absolutely no justification for their being pushed around."

An autopsy performed during the weekend showed death due to a severe skull fracture and multiple rib fractures.

REACH AGREEMENT

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Westinghouse Electric Corporation and the United Electrical Workers Union (Independent) Sunday reached agreement on a five-year contract providing a minimum 25-cent-an-hour wage boost during the life of the contract and ended a strike at some 3,300 employees in eight plants.

The agreement is subject to ratification by union locals.

'Black Magic' Orgies Rife in Britain Call for Sacrifice of Human Blood

LONDON (AP)—A leading Anglican Church official has condemned "black magic" after a newspaper reported orgies in the pagan rites were rife in Britain.

Canon Bryan Green, rector of Birmingham, warned his parishioners: "I understand black magic" is the rites which seek to enlist spirits in the cause of evil.

A Scotland Yard officer said "the police do not dismiss black magic lightly. Any fresh evidence will be thoroughly investigated."

The Sunday Pictorial News, reporting the cult was widespread in Britain, said some members were "well known publicly."

"They claim to be practising an ancient pre-Christian religion," the newspaper said; "but this is merely a cover for obscene, debauched practices."

A man who claimed to have been in touch with them told how he was quoted as saying:

"The ritual demands the sacrifice of human blood. This may seem fantastic to ordinary, decent people. But to the followers of the 'black arts' the danger attached to such rites only adds spice and the determination to match, for their pagan beliefs, the sufferings of early Christians for their beliefs.

Reynolds News said there were 600 active cult members in the Midlands alone.

Canon Green, a well known evangelist, said in the parish bulletin: "I understand there has been a revival of black magic practices in Birmingham. I want to utter a condemnation and a warning.

"Nothing can be worse or more destructive than the deliberate perversion of the beautiful and natural gift of our God-created sex and its sacred feelings of gratification. And this is what black magic does.

"Moreover, it debases man's natural desires to love and trust God as his heavenly Father and tries to get him to make the devil his source of guidance.

"My warning is—keep clear of black magic. And, if anyone should invite you to attend a circle that he suspects has black magic links and leanings to perversion, he should talk at once to his doctor or a friendly parson who will respect his confidences."

A cult of black magic and devil worship has been reported operating in Sydney, Australia, but Sydney police so far have not pressed any charges.

Company officials said the tubes were of no value to anyone, but informed police that the poisonous lead contained in them could be dangerous if it came into contact with a person's skin.

BONFIRE BLAMED FOR BAYSIDE FIRE

A children's bonfire was blamed Sunday afternoon for a blaze which damaged the roof of a driveshed at the home of Rev. R. W. T. Middleton at Bayside.

City firemen were called to extinguish the blaze, which started from sparks from the bonfire that apparently caught in the rafters and set the roof afire.

Two other calls were answered by firemen over the weekend when was to Herchimer avenue and the other was Penguin Seafoods on Front street where the motor of an electrical cooler became over-heated.

Police Blotter

Attempted break-ins at the Bellevue Finance Corporation office over the Bank of Montreal and at Tulk's Coffee Bar on Pinnacle Street were reported to police over the weekend.

Screws were taken out of the door lock at the finance company office, while at the coffee bar a window in the premises was broken in. Police said that no entry had been made in either instance.

John Trumpour, 144 Albert St., reported that his 1950 model car had been stolen Saturday night while it was parked on Front St. Gone with the car was an adding machine resting on the back seat.

The city is receiving complaints of cars damaged from pot holes appearing in streets. One motorist driving on Foster Ave. broke a spring when his car dropped into a deep hole. Police referred the man to the city hall.

Easter Bunny Will Arrive By Helicopter

Belleville's Easter Bunny, fast becoming an old tradition, will make a comeback to the air this when he arrives in town Easter Saturday.

In former years the Bunny has always made its grand entrance into the city by means of the railroad. However, next week he will arrive in the heart of Belleville by means of helicopter.

Otherwise, however, the traditional customs will prevail, his arrival will be strictly adhered to. The Bunny will, as usual, proceed with a colorful parade through the city streets to Carson Elliott's store on Front street in supervise a free candy distribution.

The flying Bunny will probably touch down on the BCVIS grounds. A special group of citizens will be waiting to welcome the big and genuine parade to the Front street store will be led by the Quinte Highland Pipe Band.

As in the past the planning of the entire operation will be supervised by Carson Elliott himself. This year, however, several other city businessmen have co-operated on the affair. Assisting Mr. Elliott are Jack Bush, Donald Keet, Jack Keller, Elliott Motors Limited, and the Belmont Hotel.

The helicopter will be supplied by a Toronto company.

Minimum Salaries for H. S. Teachers Raised by Board

Effective in September of this year, minimum salaries for teachers on the Bay of Quinte District High School Board staff will be raised to $3,400 for non specialists and to $3,600 for specialists.

The decision of the board to up minimum salaries for teachers in local high schools was made at a special meeting of the board held last week. Present minimum salaries are $3,200 for non specialists and $3,300 for specialists.

Board members felt that the increase in minimum salaries to a figure on par with many other centres in the province would keep the local board in a more favourable position to attract new teachers.

Resigning from the teaching staff will be Mrs. Patricia Crighton, Miss Beryl Linnin, Miss Helen St. John, Miss Winnifred Patterson and Emil Varsava.

Magnificent New Pipe Organ Dedicated at Bridge St. Church

A congregation totalling nearly 1,300 parishioners packed Bridge St. United Church to capacity Sunday morning for what probably will prove one of the most auspicious events in the church's history for some years to come.

The event was the solemn dedication of the church's magnificent new pipe organ, the culmination of much work by a select committee and of much expectancy on behalf of the entire congregation.

An overflow congregation attended the ceremonies to take part in the dedication, packing the church's seating capacity of 1,200 and resulting in additional seating brought into the church.

Special music of praise, thanksgiving and dedication were sung, following an introductory statement by J. C. Demeza, chairman of the committee responsible for purchasing the organ. The dedicatory prayers ended with a consecration whereupon the choir sang Handel's triumphant Hallelujah Chorus, accompanied by the strains of the new pipe organ, played by S. Alec Gordon, church organist.

SPECIAL SERMON

A sermon suitable to the occasion, "Music for the Soul" was preached by the Rev. Dr. H. M. Davis. In his text Rev. Davis gave a resume of the various portions of the Bible which were received special mention; he emphasized to the congregation that music will appeal to emotions which words fail to reach.

The new organ replaces an older instrument which was rebuilt in 1914 and during the past few years had become unreliable. In January of 1955 a special 15-man committee was formed, headed up by Mr. Demeza which canvassed

Curlers Ready For Evening's Play at Kingston

Everything is ready for the curling night of the Quinte Curling Club to be held at the Kingston Curling Club on Wednesday evening.

The committee in charge have arranged for a bus to take the curlers down and back and will leave from the Memorial Arena at 6.15 p.m.

The facilities of the Kingston club have been turned over to the visiting curlers and a keen friendly and prospective one is invited to be on hand and enjoy the evening's play. Skips will be chosen and at the end of the first game the rinks will be changed so that everyone will get acquainted with the members curling.

Progress on the formation of the Quinte Curling Club is well ahead of schedule and more than 125 have signed for membership in the group and finalized plans are being prepared and will be ready for presentation as soon as the Fair Board is ready to act with the two governments. A membership campaign will be inaugurated in the outlying districts and it is expected that the required number of 300 will be quickly obtained. Each day a number of curlers are signing and finalized their intention of curling this winter on the new ice at the fairgrounds.

regular board meeting included approval for trial installation of factory cotton drapes over windows at one room in the Quinte Secondary School. Sun rays shining through a large expanse of windows in the hall make the room too hot. If the installation of cotton is successful the windows in the other rooms will receive the same treatment.

Portable gas tanks at B.C.I.V.S. will be protected with a chain lock and key. The chairman of the property and supply committee was authorized to negotiate with a firm for replacement of panic bars on the doors at B.C.I. and was directed to install an asbestos curtain in the welding room.

Ardell Wilson, presently acting as assistant shop director at B.C.I.V.S. was named shop director to take in September.

NEW TEACHERS ACQUIRED

New teachers who will join the staff in the fall were given nine to twelve-roomed extension to the Quinte Secondary School will be proceeded with as soon as possible following discussions of the property committee with high school inspectors. Board officials point out that the addition of new school will be required by September, 1957, and it is hoped the extension can be completed by that time.

Kiwanis Music Festival Plans Are Outlined

The Kiwanis Music Festival Committee has announced that Mr. Lloyd Chamberlain, Toronto CBC will adjudicate the speech classes during the forthcoming May competitions.

Three awards have been added to the festival, namely, a medal donated by Mr. and Mrs. Hyron Perks for the youngest vocal soloist; a trophy by the University Women's Club of Peterborough for senior students in speech classes; and a trophy by the South Peterborough Kiwanis Club for Village School Class together with $25 to be used for special equipment.

Speech competitions will be heard May 10 and 11 thus leaving six full days for music classes.

Entries are already looking into the possibility of having a late night conference meeting. This gives teachers an opportunity of discussing further any suggestions or criticisms given by the adjudicators.

The three's year's adjudicators of music are Dr. Leon Forrester and Mr. Kendall Taylor, both of England.

Two new classes have been added in order to accommodate student demand.

In all, there are 2,995 pipes forming part of the organ, varying in length from 16 feet to a fraction of an inch. In addition to 53 stops, arrangements of keys and pedals there are no less than 73 different controls to assist Mr. Gordon in playing the instrument.

ORGANIST FACES CHOIR

The huge array of pipes is located in two large chambers, either side of the choir, while the organist himself is located that the organist faces the choir.

An ornamental grill work shortly will be placed over the open pipings in the chambers.

Mr. Demeza pointed out that the need for installing a new organ was apparently only once or twice in a century.

NEW INSTRUMENT

The new instrument, he said, was worthy of the rich heritage the church has long enjoyed in music.

He paid tribute to the various persons and official bodies who had made the installation possible.

Total cost of the organ, together with renovations made necessary by its installation, plus interest and payments on a loan, is expected to total up to $45,000. However, Mr. Demeza told the congregation, enough money already had been subscribed to meet the first two cash pfyments on delivery and installation totalling $24,000.

He also made an appeal for the underwriting of the balance of over $20,000, which has already been pledged and it is anticipated by the committee that the remainder will be underwritten within a short time.

Large Number Welcome Mystery Man at School

Climaxing several weeks of special interest and speculation as to the identity of the "mystery man," a good attendance of three hundred at Calvary Temple Sunday School on Sunday morning discovered the "mystery man" to be Mr. Jack Bush, well known Belleville business man.

The successful prize winner of the contest was Mrs. Jean Bartley, who had phoned Mr. Bush and invited him to Sunday School. The lucky clue given a few weeks ago was that the mystery person lived between Deseronto and Trenton and between Bloomfield and Madoc. Subsequently another hint was given that the individual who had consented to be the mystery person was a very well known business man whose picture had appeared recently in the Belleville Intelligencer.

Introduced by the Reverend Laurie Price, Mr. Bush spoke briefly to the Sunday School. "I am deeply impressed," said Mr. Bush, "when I see such a splendid gathering and the keen interest that is taken in Sunday School. In my business I come into frequent contact with your pastors and I have learned to respect them and appreciate their zeal for God.

"Let me say to you children, how fortunate you are to have the opportunity of attending Sunday School, and to you parents, how thankful you should be that your children are able to come.

"I do not like to make reference to my profession on a public platform but I want you to know that in my business I have had to visit the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto on various occasions. If you could see the maimed and suffering little bodies there, you would appreciate more than ever that you have health, and thank Almighty God that you are able to attend this lovely Sunday School."

Pastor Laurie Price presented Mr. Bush with a gift from the Sunday School in appreciation of the part he had played in the successful contest. The Superintendent, Mr. H. G. Harris, also thanked Mr. Bush for coming, and for the gracious words he had spoken to the Sunday School.

Costs of Education May Boost Trenton's Tax Rate Six Mills

TRENTON (Special) — There are unconfirmed reports here that Trenton's 1956 tax rate, to be brought down this week, will be 69 mills, an increase of nine mills over the 1955 rate.

Increasing costs of education are reportedly responsible for the major portion of the increase. Officials have estimated that educational costs may be responsible for six mills of the nine-mill increase. Government education grants may produce some slight readjustment.

In 1954, Trenton's tax rate was 50 mills; in 1953, 53 mills and in 1952, 65 mills. Reassessment in 1953 produced the adjustment in the mill rate.

Total assessment in Trenton for 1956 will be $10,830,000. One mill will raise $10,830 in revenue.

Included in the budget will be debenture payment on the $60,000 storm sewer to the west end housing development and the new Trenton collegiate.

Opening of the new collegiate in the west end in September of this year boosts operating costs for education for the final four months of the year.

Prospects of a declining mill rate in the future seem slight as Trenton expands. Facing council will be a $100,000 addition to the North Trenton public school next year; construction of a new public school on the west side in two years and municipal contribution of $100,000 to the Community Centre.

The town has obligated itself to support the Community Centre project to the extent of $100,000 if the Centre committee can raise $70,000 by public subscription. The committee has already raised $50,000 and the $20,000 objective seems certain.

Council will meet this week to discuss the Community Centre project. It is expected that the 1956 tax rate will be confirmed before the end of the week.

British Assails Premier Nasser For Propaganda

LONDON (AP)—Britain turned sharply on Egypt and Premier Abdel Gamal Nasser Sunday night for "actions and propaganda" against this country and its allies.

"So long as it continues it is difficult to see how there can be hope for improvements in Anglo-Egyptian relations, or for the friendship which Col. Nasser says that he desires and which Her Majesty's government desire," the foreign office said in a statement.

The foreign office accused Egypt of propaganda actions in areas where she had "no direct interests, for example, East Africa."

The statement about Egyptian propaganda toward East Africa was a reference to Radio Cairo's Swahili (African) language broadcasts to Kenya, a British colony.

YAWN IN SELF-DEFENCE

Ever been bored?

Of course you have. The chances are that, while bored, you have yawned. Most of us do. Most of us, associating a yawn with sleepiness, have just assumed that when we are bored we are sleepy and when we are sleepy we yawn.

A question asked Gerald Wendt, and answered by him in "Science Notes" in Unesco Features, carries with it the implication that we ought to revise our opinion of the motivation for a yawn when we are bored.

Why is it," Mr. Wendt was asked, "that when a person yawns his sense of hearing is completely obliterated for the duration of the yawn? If you are listening to somebody, you are bound to miss the words spoken while you are yawning."

Why, of course, that's so, isn't it? And since boredom is often associated with listening to words which one does not want to hear, we now have a new possible explanation of why we yawn under such circumstances. We do not yawn because we are sleepy, but because we wish we were deaf—and our sub-conscious mind supplies us with a method of achieving the desired immunity from the flood of boring words.

Mr. Wendt's explanation of the reason why yawning renders us temporarily deaf is as follows:

"There are thin tubes, called Eustachian tubes, that connect the rear of the mouth cavity with the 'inner ear,' the space behind the eardrum. These tubes are normally lightly closed, but in yawning or sneezing, and often just in swallowing, they are momentarily opened and the pressure of air in the inner ear may be slightly increased or decreased. If a large yawn the muscles at the back of the mouth may press on these tubes, close them and even compress them so that the air in the inner ear is slightly compressed. This produces the sardonic yawning freely in response to sounds and thus gives the impression of partial and temporary deafness."

Mr. Wendt, with a sly humor, concludes: "But this is only one reason for not yawning when one is listening to another person."

One might add that it is also a very good reason for yawning often and energetically when listening to some people.

A SOFT ANSWER - - - -

Allan Grossman, Progressive Conservative member for Toronto St. Andrew, said in the Ontario Legislature on Wednesday that Donald C. MacDonald, CCF leader, is being evasively possible in "deadly people's faith in and respect for democratic proceedings."

If this is Mr. MacDonald's aim, it is unlikely that he will succeed. But if he does succeed, he will owe his success in large measure to the manner in which Progressive Conservative members, and particularly Cabinet members, react to his criticisms.

Hon. Charles Daley, Minister of Labor, may have obtained considerable personal satisfaction out of challenging Mr. MacDonald to a fist fight, but this is not the approved parliamentary method of criticism.

Mr. MacDonald has been talking too much in this session of the Legislature. The public gets tired when politicians talk all the time. It gets tired a lot faster, though, if the targets of the verbose politician's criticism are able to maintain some semblance of dignity and if the critic is given a hearing.

Mr. MacDonald appears to have taken J. B. Salsberg's place as a thorn in the flesh of the Frost administration. It took many years to eliminate Mr. Salsberg, even with his handicap of the Labor-Progressive Party. It may take even longer to get Mr. MacDonald off the administration's back unless the Progressive Conservative majority learns to stop rising to the bait even though the provocation is sometimes very great.

WHAT'S A MILLION?

It could happen only in a bank.

The Chase Manhattan Bank of New York City has failed to locate a one million dollar bill and no one is unhappy.

Nearly two weeks after 400 company employees starting searching the files for the missing bill, the bank entered a claim for a million dollars with the 18 insurance companies acting as surety. The insurance companies have paid. The government will reimburse the insurance companies.

"Nobody will lose any money over it, though," said a bank official.

That is fine. Until now the bank has been content to consider the bill missing. The term employed was "incorrectly filed." It is to be hoped someone searched the "M's" for "money" and "millions."

The average bank depositor worrying about the safety of his money can relax. After all, if the bank is not worried about losing one million dollars, why should editors be concerned about a $3.27 overdraft.

EIGHT

At eight you like to go to shows,
And watch the television, too,
And know as much as father knows
Or let the neighbors think you do.
At eight you've learned to add and read
And ride a bike and roller skate
And go to stores for what you need.
Today's my birthday, and I'm eight!

At eight you can assist your dad
And cut the grass or shovel snow
And be the pal he never had,
And fishing with him sometimes go.

On Friday when to work he goes
I clean the boat and get the bait.
This morning when from bed I rose
I told them all that I am eight.

Eight's not an easy age to be,
There is so much they make me do.
My mother often says to me:
"Now here's an easy task for you."

For her the dishes I can dry,
And I can drive a nail in straight.
My birthday's now. How old am I?
I've reached the ripe old age of eight.

Holiday in Mexico

By G. A. Morton

Part of the pleasure of going away on a trip is the form of transportation used whether by car, train or plane. Each has its appeal to us, but going to Mexico, the non-stop plane trip was the logical one to select. As part of our narrative we would like to give an outline of the journey, realizing, of course, that flying is old stuff to many people now, but there are many others who rarely get an opportunity to fly or perhaps prefer not to. It is to them we address this article. Our own experience we might add has been limited to just a few flights, none over two hours long.

We arranged with Aviation David son of Davidson and Davidson to make our reservations on the Canadian Pacific Airlines. There are two classes on each plane—tourist and first class. Tourist class provides transportation without any extras in the way of special meals and refreshments and the seats are in the forward part of the plane so that part of the plane toward the ground is obscured by the wings. The saving in fare is quite substantial. First class is located next to the tail section and the seats are two each on either side of the aisle. There are twelve to fifteen passengers in first class compared to around fifty in tourist.

The planes used by CPA are the Douglas DC 6B with a speed of 360 miles per hour at 20,000 feet. It weighs with load fifty-four tons and four motors develop 2,500 horsepower. The cruising speed is over 300 mph. The advertised flight to Mexico is seven and one-half hours, but the round trip we made took nine hours because of head winds. As a matter of fact it would be impossible to make any percentage of trips is made on time. Having to wait at airports three or four hours is all in the game and we heard the opinion expressed that perhaps the airline is endeavoring to maintain too close a schedule. However, that could be wrong. Nobody knows for sure.

For the Mexican trip we selected first class for the reason we thought we were familiar with the routine during a long trip. However, we would not hesitate to recommend tourist for both the cost and superlative service. The CPA has two flights to Mexico City every Sunday each way. The former flight will be cancelled the end of the first month we were told.

We were due to leave at midnight Saturday but the first leg of the plane was three hours late arriving from Mexico so did not leave Toronto until 3 a.m. We must admit it was quite a thrill to walk out of the waiting room of the station airport toward the huge plane and be escorted to our reserved seats. We were shown to them and after a short warm-up period the plane taxied down the airfield. The pull of the engines drives you back into the seat with a force that is astonishing and in a few moments we were airborne.

The course of the plane took us westward toward Detroit and Chicago, then to Cincinnati, Memphis, Shreveport, Houston, Corpus Christi, Brownsville, Interesting four cities are in Texas—then along the Gulf of Mexico over to Tampico and inland toward Mexico City. Clouds obscured the ground until we were in Texas and then the land is flat with little to be seen.

About one hour after leaving Toronto we were served light refreshments consisting of cold ice and French champagne for those who desired it but we were not interested as we quite a few. Presently everyone settled back with the aid of pillows or blankets, were dimmed and the plane drones on in the night at a 310-mile-an-hour speed, steadily and smoothly.

RINGED BY MOUNTAINS

The approach to Mexico City is over a range of mountains that rise to 18,000 feet and higher. They haven't the jagged, rocky peaks of the Canadian Rockies but are partly covered by a mantle of forests and lesser vegetation. However, they are impressive when seen from the air. Once over this land barrier, the plane drops lower over the valley on which the Capital stands and we begin to see flat industrial areas stretching all the way to our destination. The tall buildings of the city loom in the distance and soon we are flying over Mexico City in a wide lazy circle and then land at the airport at 12:30 EST or 1:30 MEDT on time. We have travelled 2,400 miles in a little over nine hours against fairly strong head winds. No one felt unduly tired and, indeed, we have been more fatigued in a drive to Toronto than in this pleasant journey to Mexico.

Coming out the plane we feel the warm glow of the sun and the very pleasant temperature like a tonic. Flowers and green grass greet the visitor along the walls of the airport building which are about the most modern on the continent. We pass inside to a large room attractively decorated and with plenty of comfortable seating arrangements. Courteous customs and immigration officials call out our names then we are guided along corridors for examination of our papers, a perfunctory examination of a couple of pieces of luggage is made, porters come and take the luggage out to the taxi stand. We have been told what fare to pay so all we have to do is give the address and we are on our way. Could anything be more simple? It's to be continued.

Letter To The Editor

The Earthworm

Editor
The Ontario Intelligencer,

When Mother Nature designed the Earthworm she had a sentiment to keep her soils at top fertility continuously.

The humble Earthworm is one of her marvels. He subsoils down to 14 feet to bring minerals and trace elements to this surface and mix them with the organic matter deposited by trees, shrubs, plants and grasses. He processes the said minerals and deposits worked on the way to the surface so they will become plant food lastly immediately available for growth. He opens up the soil so it may breathe and so that water may get down to the root systems.

In his underground workings he plows, discs and harrows as well as cultivates. There is no richer or healthier soil than that worked over by Earthworms. It is only when soil becomes mineral deficient that proper components that Mother Nature sends in her hordes of parasites and her diseases to decrease the unbalanced plant life that is not to be seen.

Man has never devised any machine or series of machines to duplicate the Earthworm. And he has no fuel bill or labor cost. He does his work at night. Any farmer and can be used equally as well in potato patch, in window box, a garden, a flower patch or to take care of the largest farm! Often you find a community like provincial Green Thumb, you find an individual who works with Mother Nature.

Canadians are a wasteful lot. Annually they dispose enough sewage to refuse to feed billions of Earthworms and bring their soils to top fertility. Each person produces about three-quarters of a ton of organic waste every year. If these tons were collected and fed to Earthworms we would have millions of tons of the very finest plant food known. With an amazing speed the Earthworm would transform the wastes to the most powerful fertilizers here. He is many times better than the original wastes.

Our native Earthworm, left to his own devices, has been busy but man has bred a special type that will live in 20 inches of soil. It is much better worker. This worm does not develop the wandering habits of our native worm. It is a home job. Mother Nature is a slow and thorough worker. She gives us a little assistance and her speed is totally unbelievable.

Healthy soil, and your healthy food that is highly resistant to all types of parasites and diseases. If you have used the Earthworm for the past seven years and have never had to resort to poisonous sprays or chemical fertilizers. My yields run from three to five times what they were a much earlier maturity but the main thing is that my fruit and vegetables are healthy and have a finer flavor with much better keeping and packing qualities.

If you love your garden plants for give them the best treatment possible and they will respond in wonderful fashion.

Capt. C. Fenwick,
Fenwick, Ontario.

Editor's note: Capt. Miesner is well known in Belleville gardening and for his efforts to promote better gardening practices in northwestern Ontario. Special articles on his methods have appeared in the Toronto Globe and Mail. We understand he will be glad to answer inquiries.

British Frogs Prove Tough

(Detroit Free Press)

Durability tests on British frogs have given added zest to the Lent diet. The frogs are kept at a 38-degree temperature, given one minute of light and darkness every other day and on the alternate days squirted with icy water. So far they've stayed content and healthy, and have maintained approximately the average frog size for Lenten fare.

As we reach for our vitamin pills our hats off to the humble frog. It sounds to us as if the rugged frogs are in line to take over control of things. And leave the human race to sniffle and wheeze in husky marshes.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

At dinner in the home of a friend the other evening, the maid who waited on us was in a temper. She was flushed. She placed the dishes on the table with an elaborate care that was more pointed than if she had banged them down. She never raised her eyes to any of the five of us at the table. The one question she was asked by the mistress of the house was answered curtly, just a shade this side of impolitely.

But my host and hostess appeared to be unconscious both of the performance of their maid. Not the slightest glance from either of them betrayed any awareness of the girl's obvious illhumor.

After dinner, their TV being down with the flu, we sat in the living room, we were able to sit around the living room and relax in pleasant conversation.

"I supposed you noticed," said my host, "that Bessie was in a bit of a tantrum tonight."

He admitted it.

"Well," said he, "we make it an invariable practice to allow Bessie to dignify herself occasionally by getting into a temper. Times have changed. It is not easy to find anybody to serve as a domestic any more. Even with wages which with a generous allowance for board, food, security, amount to far more than the same girl could earn in a factory or office or as a store or factory, we have had to lose several maids, in past years, because we resented them getting into tempers and mistakenly having a right to behave that way. It dawned upon us that the chief impediment to being a domestic is the sense of inferiority that is implied. A domestic does not eat with the family, as hired girls always did on the farm in my grandmother's time. She is not taken into the family circle as she was in those days, or even as city domestics were, to some extent, after long service.

"So we have come to realize that the only decent way to get into a tantrum once in a while, to have the right, even to be rude and defiant occasionally, is allowing her to assert her individuality, to dignify herself by a tantrum. She really wouldn't want to eat with us at the table. She would be bored stiff to sit with us here in the living room. She is entirely happy to have this good, secure home, and work for it. But every now and then, she likes to assert her independence and individuality."

From down the cellar came Bessie's voice. She was singing.

"Bessie," said the mistress of the house, "will be okay by bedtime."

Calcium and Painful Shoulder

Bursitis is inflammation of a bursa.

A bursa is a sac or pad of tough fibrous tissue containing a few drops of serous fluid such as that which "lubricates" joints. There are bursae in various parts of the body. Several around the knee, and several around the shoulder.

From experience I can testify that fracture of the shoulder is a trivial incident in comparison with shoulder bursitis.

Sub - acromial or sub - deltoid bursitis is the cause of painful stiff shoulder in most cases.

Usual cause of bursitis is strain, sprain or contusion, for instance the "glass arm" of baseball pitchers, tennis elbow, housemaid's knee.

Like the old hermit who complained of all his troubles—most of which had never happened — I find I haven't had enough painful trouble to speak as an authority, but I don't mind telling you that you have my sympathy when I had shoulder bursitis, I cried piteously until a doctor came and gave me a shot of — I'm not sure what it was but probably morphine.

That was before the technic of procaine injection became the general use. Today a physician skilled in "needle surgery" can inject a few drops of procaine through a long needle into the tissues around about the bursa, or, if necessary, into the bursa itself, after aspiration (withdrawal) of any fluid present, a few drops of cortisone. This will give relief for at least hours.

During the respite, the shoulder may be put through passive movement that would ordinarily be intolerable, and thus adhesions which might otherwise cause permanent stiffness and disability may be prevented.

Sometimes the most gratifying results are obtained by inserting two needles into the acutely inflamed bursa and irrigating the bursa with warm physiological saline solution which flows in thru one needle, out thru the other.

Or the mere insertion of the needle into the bursa to drain give great relief even though only a few drops of serum are withdrawn.

When I had acute bursitis deep heat — diathermy — applications to the shoulder for 20 to 30 minutes once or twice daily gave the greatest relief. Following the diathermy I could endure more passive exercise and perform more active motions than without it.

In the course of die or eight weeks to get recollection, I recovered fully, with no impairment of shoulder motion.

A year later (when the opposite shoulder was fractured) I learned from the X-ray films (of both shoulders for comparison) that the bursa had calcified.

Whether the calcium deposit is still there, I don't know, because I don't take the trick specialists' funny notions about "calcium deposits" seriously as you poor geeks do.

A piece to follow will reveal how little or what little I know about the influence of high calcium diet, adequate exposure to sunlight or at least daylight and the exercise of supplementing the ordinary diet with Ca and D, on prevention and relief of bursitis.

MEN BEYOND FIFTY

It would have been a most disconcerting piece of news had I been told that at the age of fifty I would be no good to anyone in business. Hence I feel sure that the men who have kept on keeping on in their way at the age of forty. Later he said: "You take all the experience and judgment of a man of fifty out of the world and there wouldn't be enough left to run it."

In many countries there is usually one man who is termed "Older Statesman." He is the one who is consulted when things get mixed up, when the need for a "wise head" is needed, to help guide a nation out of trouble. It is not the young man who is consulted at such a time, but the "elder" one who has seen much, learned much, and whose judgment is clear and without prejudice. In other words, he is experienced man.

History is full of names of those who became famous after fifty years of age. Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

MONDAY OF HOLY WEEK

Yesterday was Palm Sunday. Jesus come into Jerusalem riding triumphant as a king. Because He had thrust all regal honors from Him. Now, He accepted them gladly. The King in Zion was to be crowned—with a crown of thorns—and a cross. The cross was to be upon a cross.

It was on this day—Monday of Holy Week—that He did two things which through centuries have been remembered by His followers. He passed judgment on the barren fig tree, full of leaves, but without the promise of fruitage but having no fruit. The fig tree was His own people Israel. It had had it's chance of glory, and the opportunity to bear the fruit of righteousness, and it had by-passed all its opportunities.

But our Lord's other conspicuous act on Monday of Holy Week was the cleansing of the temple. Immediately upon entering the city He went to the temple. This He did because then—as now—the house of God stood at the very centre of the city's life. It was the centre of worship, thus symbolically reminding His contemporaries that all human life at its best and any community unless its churches were centres of spiritual power, spiritually healthy and vigorous. He demanded that the temple become what it was intended to be—a house of prayer.

Our churches will be strong and vigorous, if they make their first devotion the devotion to the glory of God and their first concern follow—on the part of the clergy and laity alike—to the things of Christ.

Stories from Life of Jesus

By April Oursler Armstrong

JUDAS ISCARIOT

It was a damp spring evening, the night we would call Thursday, the sixth day of April, in the Year of Our Lord 30.

In a fetid room near the Temple two men sat talking. One was Caiphas, high priest of the Temple, bitter enemy of Jesus. The other was Annas, father-in-law of Caiphas, and the most powerful man in Jerusalem.

For years Annas himself had been high priest of the Temple. Now that he was old, he had given the job to Caiphas, but Annas was still the real authority. His cunning made him a man to be feared. Like the others of those sad and selfish chief priests in the Temple Annas did not really love God. He loved no one but himself.

Annas and Caiphas were met to plot the death of the Son of God.

"Unless we settle this fellow Jesus, He will ruin us all, said Caiphas. "And tonight is the night to get Him."

Annas sneezed. "How can a wayside tramp ruin us?"

Caiphas replied: "The people believe that He is the Messiah! Last Sunday He rode into Jerusalem on a steek white ass, like a king — and the people swarmed to greet Him and sing Hosannahs!"

PEOPLE FORGET

"The people will forget Him soon. He can't really be the Messiah, because He is no such thing! I am too tired to worry about Jesus!"

"My dear Lord Annas, He has dangerous ideas. He tells people that all men are equal in the sight of God. That God loves the poor, the sinners, as much — or more than He loves us! He is always telling the people that we — all of us, Pharisees, scribes, chief priests — are hypocrites, sinful men!"

"A terrible thing to let anyone say — because it is true!" whispered Annas.

"The other day Jesus walked into the Temple with a whip, An I drove our money-changers out!"

"He attacked our dealers!" croaked Annas.

"He said, 'Make not My Father's house a place of merchandise'."

"His Father's house!" Annas pulled his beard. "That sounds like blasphemy!"

"He told the people there was no need for them to buy doves and lambs. He said — listen, Annas! — that He Himself would be the sacrifice for their sins!"

DANGEROUS JESUS

"Wah!" rumbled Annas. "Jesus is dangerous. When the feast is over, we must go after Him."

"Lord Annas, we can't wait that long. Everything is planned. We can be rid of Him quickly!"

"Tell me your plans!"

It would not be easy to be rid of Jesus. Most of the people of Jerusalem, the good souls who trusted Caiphas as their high priest, loved Jesus. Caiphas must find a way to make Him seem to be a criminal, and have Him executed as quietly as possible.

Swiftly Caiphas explained. They must arrest Jesus this night, accuse Him of blasphemy — of speaking against the true God, by pretending to be God Himself. And accuse Him of treason — of leading a revolution against the Roman conquerors, and trying to be King. The punishment for those crimes was death.

"Blasphemy and treason," whispered Annas.

Caiphas went on. "Our own court, the Sanhedrin must try Him. But we must have the trial at night — this night — because if the people hear there will be a riot, and they might kill us all!"

PILATE MUST AGREE

Only one thing was left, Caiphas explained. The judges of the Sanhedrin would sentence Jesus to death. Then the Roman governor, Pontius Pilate, must agree. That was the law. The Roman conquerors were the real rulers, and nothing could be done without them.

"Lord Annas, can you get Pilate to agree to have Jesus executed? Quickly, before the crowds can save Him?"

"I will do it. Send out and arrest Jesus!"

"We don't know where to find Him, yet. But there is a man outside, one of His own men—"

"An informer? A traitor?"

"A man who was a friend of Jesus."

Judas slouched into the room.

"Your name?"

"Judas, from Kerioth, so called Iscariot."

"How did," asked Annas, "a good man like you take up with this wild Galilean?"

"I believed in Jesus," replied Judas.

"Why do you turn away from Him now?"

"What I do, I do — and why is my affair. But I do not want Jesus to come to harm."

"Why do you turn on Jesus now?" asked Annas again.

Judas looked at the ceiling. "How can I say? For a while I believed Him. Love everybody, He says . . ."

"I see," interrupted Annas. "You thought He would be a leader, start a revolution, maybe become a king?"

"Yes!" said Judas. "He should have done that. He could have!"

"And if He had become King— you might have become pretty important!"

"Jesus doesn't believe in money or power. For Himself — or for others."

"You told Caiphas tonight was the best time to arrest Him. Why?"

NOT RESIST

"Because He believes He must die. He keeps saying He must die to save the world. He will not resist you tonight," said Judas.

Annas stood. "Find out where Jesus will spend tonight. We must not arrest Him until Jerusalem is asleep. And we must be through before Jerusalem wakes up."

"No harm will come to Him?" asked Judas.

"Leave everything to us — and hurry."

Judas heard a clink of silver.

"I am not doing this for money!" Judas blurted out.

Old Annas glanced at him. "For money? Don't be foolish, Judas. You are doing it only because you think it is right. But no one does anything for nothing. You will be paid off now. Thirty pieces of silver!"

The coins clinked in Judas' palm.

"Hurry!" said Annas. "Or you will be late."

Annas also had to hurry. In the darkness in a filter chair he had himself carried through the streets to Pilate's castle.

Strange errand! Annas, who hated the Roman conquerors, must go to ask Governor Pontius Pilate, the Roman, for help. And Pilate, who despised the Jews he ruled, would listen to Annas, who with his treachery controlled even the good men of Jerusalem, and help him. Annas was afraid of Jesus. Pilate was afraid of the mobs who might riot. Two men, full of fear and hate, were to help each other on this darkest night of history.

Annas spoke to Pilate less than half an hour, but when he came out, he was triumphant.

"When Jesus comes before Pilate, Jesus will die," he was thinking. "And that will be the end. Jesus will never be heard of again. And for His death, I and Pilate, we two, can take the credit."

Caiphas, too, had been busy.

Parents' Night For 'Y' Boys Much Enjoyed

Over one hundred and fifty parents jammed the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium Friday night to see their sons take part in the annual boys parents night. The program was started by Mr. W. A. Beach, Chairman of the Physical Education committee who commented on the program and then introduced physical director Jim Heffernan who put the classes through their demonstration as follows: First the prep class (9-11 year olds) demonstrated tumbling and tumbling relays followed by the juvenile class (11-12 year olds) who demonstrated tumbling and spring board with the box horse. Next came the older boys, the juniors, who demonstrated on mats flying rings and trampoline. After the junior class, Mr. D. Desmantides, General Secretary of the Y.M.C.A. gave a short talk to the parents about the new Triangle Club which has been formed by the parents of members. At the conclusion intervals the preps, juveniles and juniors went in the swimming pool as the parents watched. At the same time the junior and intermediate leaders corps demonstrated advanced work on the parallel bars and horizontal bar.

After all the physical activities the parents met their sons in the auditorium where refreshments were served by the following 'Y' Mothers: Mrs. Bert Whitfield, Mrs. Foote, Mrs. Valcamp, Mrs. Pope, Mrs. Bailey, Mrs. Regenburg and Mrs. Blaker.

From the back alleys he had called together a dirty mob, who would do exactly as Caiphas told them. All Caiphas demanded: they would shout and insist that Jesus be killed — It must appear that all Jerusalem was condemning Jesus.

Caiphas had also assembled the Temple guards, and some Roman soldiers to make the arrest. Temple guards were slightly, but no weapons. The Roman conquerors allowed them none. That was why the burly Roman soldiers were needed too.

"You have acted quickly, Caiphas," said Annas.

"Better that you realize," replied Caiphas, "I have sent word to every judge of the Sanhedrin, telling them all that the sanhedrin must meet tonight. Meanwhile, Judas is back."

"I do not like that man!" sniffed Annas. "But we must use him, hideous sallow-faced snake that he is."

And Judas, hated by the scoundrels he helped, started off in the darkness, leading the way to betray the only true Friend he had ever had.

Conservation Authority Now Operating Lingham Lake Dam

The Moira River Conservation Authority recently took over the maintenance and operation of the Lingham Lake Dam in order to use its water storage facilities to improve summer flow on the Black River. A plan of operation will be drawn up by hydraulic engineers of the Conservation branch, Department of Planning and Development so that maximum benefit will be derived from the structure. The repair and proper operation of the dam will benefit operators of water driven mills along the river as well as improve the river as a habitat for fish and increase its scenic appeal to the city summer months.

Mr. Ralph Franklin of Queensboro was engaged by the Authority to remove the remaining old stop logs and cut and new new timbers. The new stoplogs are now in position and will impound the spring freshet. It is possible that the Authority will allocate additional funds to build up several small wing dams that are impairing the effectiveness of the main dam by allowing water to escape at several points around the perimeter of the lake.

The dam is located some fourteen miles north-east of Madoc and impounds some nine square miles of water when full. It was originally constructed as a relief project in the twenties and received no maintenance until taken over by the Authority. Its repair and efficient operation is part of the Moira River Conservation Authority plan to protect water supply and stream flow in the watershed of the Moira River.

Forty Children Taught Painting By Arts Club

The oldest art in the world—painting—now is being indulged in by the youngest in the community as an organized sport.

Since January over 40 members of the city's small fry have been discovering and enthusiastically studying the finer points of fine art under the wing of Belleville's Arts and Crafts Club.

The group now gathers in the club's room in the basement of King George school every Monday, where under professional supervision, it assiduously tackles a two-hour session of art with paint and brush.

Object of the course is to develop a child's ability to become a commercial or fine artist, or to provide a young student with the knowledge of an educational hobby during life.

A visit any Monday evening after 5.30 p.m. (when the classes commence) will find over two score children, ranging in age from six to 16, eagerly overflowing in the rooms, sketching or painting various models set before them.

Passing among them you will find either Mrs. Dolly Cain, president of the arts club, or the club's instructor, professional artist Pasvo Airola.

GET INDIVIDUAL HELP

Despite the large number of students taking the course simultaneously no one is overlooked by either instructor. Both Mr. Airola and Mrs. Cain are continuously at the beck and call of any youngster requiring a helpful hint, tinged with gentle criticism.

"We see that every student here receives individual instruction," said Mrs. Cain, "and at no moment in her busy circulation through the groups of young artists."

Under the sponsorship of the city's recreation committee, the arts and crafts club decided to form the group and called for registrations at the end of January. However its idea met with such popularity was an unexpected response. The enthusiastic reception given the idea by young students resulted in more pupils desiring to take the course than there was room for.

CONTINUE UNTIL JUNE

Since then, the selected students have been attending "pretty regularly" and it is expected the class will continue until June. During the warm days the students will have their horizons widened when the class will be taken outdoors to practise closer to nature.

Clad in every manner of nondescript clothing for painting after all can be a sloppy affair until you become proficient, the youngsters are busy as bees during class hours. The cost of the evening amounts to just 50 cents a head per lesson. At registration $1 is all that is necessary. All materials save oil paints are supplied the class, including washable paints and crayons, by the Arts and Crafts Club. An estimated one-third of the pupils use oils in their work.

A bright aspect for the students is the professional guidance provided them by Mr. Airola, who at present instructs in painting at Cobourg, Trenton and Colborne centres. He also is president of the Color and Form Artists Society of Toronto.

William Southam

William Southam, sometimes called the Northcliffe of Canada, was born in Lachine, Quebec, in 1843. His parents moving to London, at 12 he became a delivery boy for the London Free Press. At the end of a five-year apprenticeship in 1865, his employers presented him with a volume of Scott's poems, which was a cherished possession. An omnivorous reader he is said to have read almost every book in the Mechanic's Institute.

He became a partner in the London Free Press and in 1877 when the Hamilton Spectator came on the market he purchased it in partnership with William Carey. At first, even as an owner, he was foreman of the printing plant. He acquired an interest in job printing plants in Montreal and Toronto and in 1913 these were amalgamated as the Southam Press Ltd.

In 1890 he purchased the Ottawa Citizen and since then the Calgary Herald, Winnipeg Tribune, Edmonton Journal and the Vancouver Province. He was a director of many companies which later became famous industrially as Canada progressed, and was keenly interested in the St. Lawrence Waterways movement.

He took part in the Fenian raid operations and was proud of his medal. A keen sportsman in later life he was a well known figure on bowling green and curling rink.

He was a first director of the Hamilton Health Association which built the sanitarium on the Mountain, and a quiet philanthropist. He died Feb. 27, 1932.

Hospital Auxiliary Hears Talk On Nursing, Hospital Services

To have a shadow, there must be sunshine. This, Miss Margaret Peart radiates in her activities as director of nursing in the Belleville General Hospital, and these activities Mrs. H. F. Alford who was her guest for a day, described to the members of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary.

Mrs. J. E. Buchan, convener of the "Shadow Program," in introducing the guest, said that Mrs. Alford was eminently fitted to give this talk on the nursing department as she was a graduate of the Belleville General Hospital and could give her report the benefit of both a professional and student point of view.

Mrs. Alford first gave a brief account of the nursing service personnel, with Miss Peart, consists of the assistant director of nursing, supervisor of Auxiliary personnel and health supervisor, the evening supervisor, night supervisor and relief supervisor. The responsibility of this staff is first of all the safe and good nursing care of all patients for which they are entitled the duties of this service, emphasizing that the nursing staff make daily rounds of all patients and is constantly in touch with the more acute cases.

Reports are sent in concerning the condition of all patients to the interested parties with changing of staff which is three times in 24 hours. Also is included in the work of the intravenous team, which consists of three graduate nurses specially trained by doctors and laboratory technicians. The new operating room, Miss Finlay, assistant director, through one of the wards and the delivery room, the operating room, which is supervised by Miss H. Collier and is staffed 24 hours a day to meet emergencies.

OTHER DEPARTMENTS VISITED

Mrs. M. Barrett, health supervisor, escorted Mrs. Alford to the third floor where she visited the nursery room. Later she continued to the central supply where Miss Ruth Hall and her staff were busy used for treatments and dressings must be serviced in this department. Next year Miss Peart is responsible for recruiting of new personnel for the hospital, also speaking at the Collegiate and distribution of pamphlets and other publicities. Many applications must be examined and acceptable applicants interviewed in this department. Miss Peart, whose duties seem to be unlimited, is assisted in this department by one science instructor, two nursing aris instructors, two medical-surgical instructors, one obstetrical clinical instructor, one operating room clinical instructor. They have all received special university training and are well qualified to teach their various academic subjects. Miss Kidd, senior instructor, described the planning of lectures to the speaker. Affiliation courses for students are planned with the Children's Memorial Hospital, Montreal; Ontario Hospital, Kingston and the Ongwanda Hospital, Kingston. Conducted tours are also planned which include a day with the Victorian Order Nurse and visits to the Hastings County Home for the Aged.

Mrs. Alford described briefly the students activities of ward duty and classes, the student nurses' association, the choir under the direction of Mr. A. Evans, the "capping ceremony" and graduation. She paid tribute to Miss E. McAuley, secretary of Nurses and the school of nursing when, in addition to her regular duties, mimeographs the monthly bulletin of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary. In concluding her remarks, Mrs. Alford expressed thanks to Miss Peart and members of the staff for supplying her with unlimited information.

PROJECTS DISCUSSED

An important business session, at which Mrs. J. Lennox Smith presided, preceded the above report. The minutes of the last executive meeting as read by Mrs. S. C. Angus brought the subject of a "Telephone Card Party" to the fore. This plan, under the convenership of Mrs. Mervin Jones, would replace the Spring Tea and would enable anyone interested in helping their Belleville hospital to take part by entertaining in their own homes. The results of the play would be telephoned to a central place and prizes awarded. It was passed unanimously and further meeting further information were asked to contact Mrs. L. B. Conger, 92 S-8373. It was announced that Miss Dickens and Mrs. E. H. Hall would take care of the patients' Easter treats.

The suggestion of a travelling gift cart with nightgowns, cosmetics, etc., was made by Mrs. A. B. Mitchell. This matter was left in the hands of the executive. Favorable reports of the Coffee Shop and Opportunity Shop were heard with a plea to the members to keep a box handy for donations during housecleaning.

Thanks were expressed to those who had donated to the coffee shop including members of Beta Sigma Phi, Gamma Mu, Kiwanis Queens and Kinettes. Mrs. E. Hall and Mrs. C. Dueberry volunteered to make up one dozen puppets, the materials for which are available through the Women's Hospital Auxiliaries Association of McGill University.

It was moved that these be donated to the children's ward from the auxiliary. Mrs. M. L. Scott was the winner of a Chinese auction, the proceeds of which will be used to purchase the material for the puppets. Among the new members and guests welcomed was Mrs. R. C. Bastable whom A. Gilbert Scott introduced.

Tea was served and further plans for the "Telephone Card Party" were made.

Women's Activities

HOLLOWAY UNITED E.A.

The president, Bernice Fox, opened the meeting with a poem and a prayer.

Marjorie Miller read the minutes of the last meeting.

At the business session, it was agreed to have a booth at the October bazaar.

Elfreida Vader and her group presented an interesting study period which showed a great deal of preparation and gave everyone present food for thought.

The study period consisted of Scripture readings by Loreta Fairman and Dorothy Craighead followed by discussion. Readings were also presented by Marjorie Miller, June Wright and Elfreida.

An amusing contest was given by Dorothy Craighead.

Refreshments were served by Elfreida's group which brought a most enjoyable evening to a close.

The members thanked Marion for opening her home for this occasion.

It is estimated that 97 per cent of the work of the Canadian Red Cross is done by volunteers.

C.A.S. Work Detailed to Bridge St. W.A.

The regular monthly meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of Bridge Street United church was held Friday afternoon with Mrs. Arthur Clare presiding, and opening the meeting.

Monthly reports were given, also reports of banquets successfully convened by several of the groups. Announcement was made of the Spring Tea to be held at the parsonage on May 16th, also of the Presbyterial meeting to be held May 24th at Tabernacle church.

The program was in charge of Mrs. G. McIlraith, Mrs. Salisbury and their group with Mrs. Ralph Morden in the chair. Mrs. D. S. Cox led in the devotional period reading from Psalm 51.

Mrs. Reidel sang the beautiful solo, "Were You There?"

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. R. Arnott introduced the speaker of the afternoon, Miss Byrd Corbet, assistant director of the Children's Aid Society, who came to Belleville, seven years ago from New Brunswick and from Montreal. She received her social service training at McGill University.

Miss Corbet told that times were changing in the work of the Children's Aid Society just as in other types of work, that the emphasis of the Society was not a part of the government, but that its work was paid for by the city and county. Prior to the meeting of Hastings, Trenton, the Red Feather campaign and subscriptions.

Miss Corbet told of the efforts made to find suitable foster homes; of the work done for unmarried mothers, and of prevention work in trying to keep a family together even when conditions in the home were far from ideal.

CASE WORKER'S DUTIES

The case worker must first find out why things are as they are and then seek to make corrections; perhaps to make living conditions a little easier for a sickly mother of several children, or to have the father shoulder some of the care and responsibility.

Miss Corbet said that "about nine out of ten of these people never go to church, and have no connection with the church, but the children have no Sunday school training whatsoever."

She felt that the church should make a stronger effort to look after these people, and to have their children might become better citizens and live a more complete life.

Mrs. McIntosh thanked Miss Corbet for her valuable talk on her work and also thanked Mrs. Reidel for her beautiful solo.

Mrs. Morden invited the ladies to stay for a cup of tea and a social half-hour.

GIRL ACQUITTED

TORONTO (CP)—A 17-year-old girl, charged with wounding with intent to endanger a youth's life after he teased her about being fat, Friday was acquitted by a general sessions jury. Victoria Bennett was charged after a drinking-party skirmish. Harry Quin, 17, testified he was stabbed in the throat after "needling" the girl about her plumpness.

Arts and Craft Club to Share In Exhibit

The Belleville Arts and Craft Club held the second local and district art exhibit last Friday evening which was received by a capacity crowd in their club rooms at King George School.

The interest shown in this exhibit was very stimulating to the club and the paintings submitted were considered by many as showing definite signs of improvement, in many cases, over those of last year.

This is indicative of an upward surge of art throughout Belleville and district. On March 19, Mrs. Harry Cameron of Carrying Place and Mr. J. A. McCaffery of Trenton, took two hours to make a selection of five paintings out of forty exhibited to enter the East Central Ontario Amateur Art Exhibit which indicates the competitive quality of workmanship in the paintings shown.

Their final decision was one pointed by each of the following: Miss Mary Moult, Mrs. C. P. Cain, Mrs. W. H. Bersht, Mrs. A. Wrinch and Mrs. J. E. Mastine.

The success of the local exhibit was due to Mrs. W. H. Bersht, Mrs. John Grant, Mrs. W. J. Watson, Mrs. E. R. Campbell, Mrs. A. Cain, Mr. Lloyd Doran and members of the Belleville Arts and Crafts Club.

The guest of honor for the opening reception will be Mr. Henry Masson, eminent Canadian artist, who will comment off the paintings chosen from the above communities.

Chatterton W.I. Hears Brief Talk On 'United Nations'

The March meeting of the Chatterton W. I. was held at Turner's School in the form of a pot-luck supper. Despite the cold and snow there was a fine turnout of members.

The committee, Mrs. Dan Smith, Mrs. Ross Reid and Mrs. Cyril Gardner used the St. Patrick's motif for decorations.

The chairman of entertainment was Ben Bleecker. The program was as follows: "Canada's dress", songs by Seniors of Turner's School, Leslie Garner and their puppet; community singing, movies of the Calgary Stampede.

The guest speaker of the evening was Frank Follwell, M.P. Mr. Follwell's speech on the "United Nations" was most informative. Mr. Follwell cut short his speech in order to show the children movies of themselves at the birthday party of his son, Jimmy.

The group would greatly appreciate the opportunity of hearing Mr. Follwell's talk in full at some future date as it is of great interest to all.

Identification Factors Topic at So-Ed Meeting

The meeting began with interest activities for which the group had been split into sections. Harry Morrison's dance section was introduced to the waltz. Jim Ketcheson's photographic section was engrossed in the black magic which is photography, while Trudeau's motor mechanics group studied the mysteries of the insides of automobiles and Joachim Reiman's music appreciation group was learning to appreciate the complex groups of sounds which produce music.

After the interest activities, B. Lawson introduced the guest speaker, Corporal R. J. Rackham of the Ontario Provincial Police. Corporal Rackham spoke on the "Identification of Humans," and described some of the factors by which identification can be achieved. Photographs of nine types of fingerprint patterns produced by the friction ridges of the fingers were shown to the group. Corporal Rackham also had a plaster cast, a footprint and one of his face which served to demonstrate the detail obtainable in this manner. Corporal Rackham touched on the subject of bone measurements, and went on to describe the work of Corporal Reg. Kidd in Ottawa. Many nature sculptured heads of wanted persons from descriptions given by witnesses. The method is to show the witness seven sculptured faces incorporating all of the basic types of features. The witness then picks features similar to those remembered and Corporal Abbot makes a sculptured head incorporating the proper features. It is reported that such heads bear a striking resemblance to the person described.

Refreshments were served followed by the showing of a YMCA film of the YMCA centennial held in Paris, France, which had been attended by chairman John Luscombe last summer and who made interesting comments and answered questions.

The remainder of the evening was spent dancing to recorded music. A system of dance programs had been organized and proved highly satisfactory. The spot dance prizes were won by Joan Lord and Bert Hiles.

She stressed each one giving of their time, talents and material things. No one answered roll call until he or she assumes responsibility. Due to radio and television people are becoming listeners and observers in the scheme of things today. We must teach by example as, there seems to be an evasion of responsibility among the younger generation. She closed with a poem "For a Time of Mission."

A reading "The Wearing of the Green" by Mrs. Lane was enjoyed and Mrs. E. Moore conducted a "Green" contest.

The members sang "Happy Birthday" for Mrs. Lane.

Mrs. Will Sills, group leader for the day, gave a reading "Expendable for Christ," a story of five young students who made an attempt to take the all-important news of Christ to the savage lands of Indians of Quito, Ecuador. They took many risks in getting a paper on Prophets and tried to make friends with them, but finally lost their lives among these savages, who have still to hear the gospel message.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

SHALL HE DIVORCE A NAGGING WIFE?

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

Do you think a man do about a nagging wife? I don't mean one who just speaks occasionally, I mean one who does it all the time about everything.

Twice I have walked out with the intention of never coming back, but every time my wife has begged me to come back and promised to stop her nagging. But in no more than a couple of days she starts all over again, and who can stand fighting all the time? I can't especially when I am always having to dodge a rain of things she throws at me when she gets into one of her tantrums.

I know I'm not perfect myself, but I have done the very best I can to make things nice for my wife. I have a good steady job for which I get a good salary, and I turn my pay over to her every week. I never ask her where it goes, nor say of it, either, and believe me she keeps tight hold of every penny. We have been married just a few dollars out of her when I really need them.

After six years of this, I'm fed up on it especially because I feel sure she doesn't love me any more. I've lost all the love I ever had for her. How could she do it quite this way if she really loved me?

I have asked her to divorce me or let me divorce her, but she refuses. Do you think I would be doing a very wrong thing to divorce her whether she likes it or not? Naturally, I would expect to assume and carry out conscientiously all financial obligations toward my wife and we have no children.

I am only 32 years old to her 30, and it seems to me that at times like this we should have the chance to find some happiness in life separately if we can't find it together. — George T.

Dear George T.:

You have raised a question to which almost anyone would be inclined to answer a quick "No, you would not be doing a wrong thing to divorce your wife." But reconsider, I don't think such an answer can be given without certain stipulations.

In the first place, have you given any thought to the possibility that your wife's bad temper might be the result of frustration over her childlessness? Every normal woman wants children of her own, and when they are denied her for any reason she feels it keenly. This denial of motherhood could easily make itself evident in various ways, among them a nervous tension and irritation such as your wife constantly shows.

If you have not done so already, I think the very first thing you might do is to explore this possibility, with the purpose of finding out if your wife does feel cheated by life in this respect. Then, if you find she does, take up the matter together with a good doctor who may be able to give you real help.

And, finally, if it is found that the situation cannot be helped, try giving your wife much understanding and affection that she can better handle her frustration. It might even be that it would be wise to have her get some psychological help in order to aid her in developing a new attitude, if she would consent to such a course.

It is also possible, of course, that your wife may have some undiscovered physical ailment which keeps her from feeling up to par and so everything she has to do demands more energy than she actually has. This, in turn, could produce emotional explosions. If you are able to persuade her to go with you to see a doctor on the previous point, he will undoubtedly give her a medical check - up, which she ought to have.

One more thing you might consider is having a talk with a qualified marriage counsellor to whom you could give all the details about your marriage and who might be able to suggest adjustments between you and your wife that could go far toward helping you remake your marriage.

If all these attempts to solve the problem fail, then, and then only, I would think you might consider divorce. But I strongly advise you to try everything possible first, so that you would not have feelings of guilt to haunt you afterward if you did divorce your wife.

FUR ACCESSORIES FOR SPRING

A Little Mink Collar on Her Spring Suit Will Make Her Very French.

Just because it's Spring and the robins are chirping and every tree and bush is "bustin' out all over" with new leaves, don't think you have to give up all thoughts of fur when you put away your winter coat.

Touches of fur, edgings and collars of various kinds of fur are usually seen in the Spring are being shown on the smartest new costumes, according to the latest word from Paris. Then there is the fur stole, still riding high in popularity.

So, if you have any pieces of fur stuck away, or an old fur jacket that can be made into a tricky little cape or a stole, or some new perky bit of trimming somewhere, bring them out and get busy planning that Paris touch to your Spring outfit.

White edgings on almost everything that can be touched up with white, are being shown by all the great designers. Some of the most imaginative ones are even carrying out this new trend in narrow bands of ermine and pipings of this same fur usually seen in the collar. Somewhere in the family you may have an old ermine jacket that will do nicely for just such trimming, or your furrier can probably supply you with enough ermine scraps at not too great a cost to make these bands and edgings.

If you want to be very, very French, try a mink collar on your new Spring suit — a small neat collar of mink instead of velvet. This is quite the newest thing in Paris. Again a small piece of mink should do the trick and what a conversation bit it will prove!

Don't expect to find summer furstoles and capes in their natural colors. Paris has to touch up everything and now it's dying furs all colors. Imagine the amazement of a lover if it were to encounter a navy blue beaver. That's what Paris has done to the beaver. For wear with your navy blue suit I recommends a navy blue beaver stole.

If you're a chinchilla girl you'll be interested to know that Paris says that old silver chinchilla, which chinchillas have been wearing from time immemorial is practically out of date. To be really up-to-the-minute it must be gold chinchilla.

With your gold chinchilla you'll probably want to wear your green eyelids which fade into a paler green shadow right up to the eyebrows and out onto the temples, for a wider and romantic gaze." That's also the latest from Paris.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECHMAN

QUESTIONS ABOUT INFORMAL WEDDING PLANS

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

1. If bride's dress is white, street-length, should she wear a hat and corsage, or wear a short veil and carry a bouquet?

2. After the ceremony there is to be an informal reception, about 50 guests. (a) Should invitations be worded as engraved? (b) Should there be a receiving - line: (c) When should the wedding cake be cut?

3. Are thank-you notes sent to the guests as well as the hostess after a bridal shower?

4. When the bride-to-be writes her thank-you notes for wedding presents, should she sign her names only? — J. J. C.

1. That depends chiefly on the style and material of the bride's dress. Today the bride who is planning to have a small, informal wedding may wear a white, street-length dress of, say, taffeta, so cleverly designed that it gives an appearance of quite a degree of formality. Such a bride may wear a very, very short veil and carry a small bouquet. Or her white, street-length dress may be one of her less tailored in design, and then usually a smart little hat is worn, and the bride wears a small, simple corsage.

2. (a) For this small, informal wedding the invitations may properly be printed or written. (b) Yes . . . even though the reception is small and informal it is customary to have a receiving - line. (c) When there is seated service, the bride and groom cut the cake at the end of the meal, the cake is then eaten with ice cream. Where there is no seated service, the wedding cake is cut at some convenient time after all, or the majority of, the guests have arrived.

3. The bride-to-be who wishes to show that she appreciates the kind and generous thoughts and gift planning of those who came to the shower writes a thank-you note to her hostess as well as the guests.

4. Yes, she signs her name only . . . but always in the body of the note she should express the enthusiastic appreciation of the present-giver.

WHO SHOULD SPONSOR HER WEDDING INVITATIONS AND ANNOUNCEMENTS?

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

I am to be married soon, a church wedding. My parents are dead, and I live with an unmarried brother. The oldest married brother is to give me in marriage. I also have other married brothers and a married sister, all older than my unmarried brother. We are all very close to one another. My problem is: who should announce my marriage? — L.

Since you have planned to have your oldest married brother give you in marriage, it would seem to me the natural and logical plan to have him and his wife sponsor the invitations and announcements. However, if you particularly wish to give this honour to your married sister and her husband or to your unmarried brother with whom you live, and if the others have no feeling against this, it would be quite proper for you to do this.

USE REAL FIRST NAME ON WEDDING INVITATIONS

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

My fiance has a most unusual first name, and every one knows him by a nickname of that name. Would it be proper to use the nickname on our wedding invitations? I know that many of our friends will not recognize his first name. — Bride - to - be

No, Ma'am. You should use his real first name . . . not the nickname. His first name (which I am not mentioning here) is very interesting and "noble" name . . . I should think you'd be proude to use it, that he would be proud (and even insistent) to have you use it, and I certainly should think his parents would want to have this name used on their son's wedding invitations. And I'm fairly sure that his friends and yours will recognize his first name, included with his surname.

SHOULD ALSO SERVE CAFFEINE - LESS COFFEE

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

M. husband and I have not been married long, and we have just begun to give little buffet dinners in our own "home." We're trying to do everything the right way, as we see it, and thank you for answering the questions we sent you recently. Now we have another one: We have noticed that some guests always refuse coffee at evening parties, and I imagine it's because they think coffee keeps them awake. Do you think we should offer them caffeine-less coffee as an alternative to regular coffee? — Alma S.

Yes . . . you should do just this. Correctly a thoughtful hostess serves caffeine-less coffee as an alternative to regular coffee, just as she serves a non-alcoholic drink as an alternative to an alcoholic drink.

Top Honors

BY TRACY ADRIAN

Checks are taking top honors on the campus and in the classroom for the spring semester and they are equally popular with young careerists around town. This time they appear in a nifty scarf for wear with coats, sweaters and suits.

Ombre tones accented with bright blocks of color and etched in narrow red-cross-stripes make this smart scarf which can be tied in many novel ways. One style is to drape it like a shawl over the shoulders and knot it safter fashion. Being all of thirty-six inches square, the scarf also makes a good head cover for breezy days.

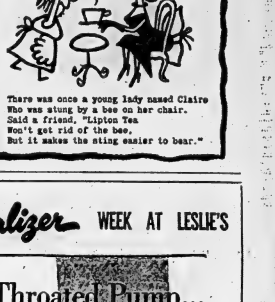
Hot Cross Buns Are Here Again

By Mary Moore

If you want a batch of hot cross buns to come from the oven smelling of spice and everything nice just as if o'clock dinnertime, start making them before lunch.

I make slight changes from the hot cross bun recipe every Eastertime and the changes this year are 1 egg instead of 2, and mixed peel instead of raisins.



Five minutes after they were taken from the oven I had exactly one of them—that's all. I went to Eleanor's house because they were ready in time to be served with their dessert. The remainder went to my sisters, who were billeted some delegates to the Y.W.C.A. conference.

I'm trying to find a way to be modest about these, but what's the use of writing about anything if it isn't tops?

Try making them tomorrow so you will have one batch's worth of experience behind you. Friday, HOT CROSS BUNS

Soak 1 package of granular yeast in 2 tablespoons lukewarm water with 1 teaspoon sugar, stir a little then let it stand. Scald 1 cup whole milk pour it into your large mixing bowl and while it is very hot add 2 tbsp. butter or shortening, 1-3 cup sugar, 1-2 teaspoon salt, Stir. Beat 1 egg and add it and 3-4 cup mixed peel (or 3-4 cup plump raisins or 1-3 cup of each raisins and peel mixed peel). Sift all-purpose flour and measure 4 cups. Put that in the mixture and to it add 1 teaspoon cinnamon and 1-4 teaspoon allspice. Stir the yeast mix well and add the scalded yeast, stir well. Sift in flour mixture and stir, very well. This is still moist enough to stir readily. Scrape down sides of bowl, cover, and let stand in warm place—about 80 deg. Fahr. is ideal—and let rise until doubled and light. Grease baking board with 1-3 cup flour, turn this sticky dough onto it, and knead about 80 times, turning dough 1-4 way round after each punch. Now roll it out with your hands into a long roll about 18 inches long, and with sharp knife cut into 16 even pieces. Smooth each piece into a rounded 3-inch ball. Flatten between palms and place about 2 1-2 inches apart on greased baking sheets. Cover and let rise about 2 hours or until light to touch. (If desired snip a cross in top of each with sharp-pointed scissors. Amateurs should skip this snipping for it sometimes causes dough to collapse.) Gently brush tops with mixture of 1 cup each sugar and milk and stirred until sugar dissolves. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. about 15 minutes. Remove from pan at once. Outline cross on top with plain icing when cold.

THE ADVENTURE OF PALENQUE

Dark outlines of jungle trees glowed in the bright moonlight as the 'fast' train to Palenque chugged on, through the night. The peculiar rhythm of the train was such that at short periodic intervals one could expect a slight jolt to right or left, depending on which way we were curving. The time was 5.00 a.m. and the dawn had not yet begun to steal over the landscape. It was about time —just three more minutes, I told myself, and wondered if the police else was getting off at Palenque. I arose, retrieved my luggage from the rack, and tiptoed out to the outer corridor. After standing there for perhaps ten minutes the door opened and out came a young Canadian gentleman, quite tall and fair-haired.

"Are you getting off at Palenque?" he inquired.

"Yes, we are, that is, my wife and — he replied with a grin. Then he went back into the car to return in a moment with still more luggage.

"I see you have quite a lot of equipment," I observed. "Oh, yes, it is mostly photographic." He disappeared again, and soon popped out with a final few bags, cameras, trappings and a huge tripod.

"Pardon me," I said curiously, "are you working for somebody?"

"No, I'm not, not for anyone in strictly free-lance," he answered.

The train had slowed to a crawl. In the dim light one could see the stony ditch beside the track and the nodding sea grass and bushes growing up its side. As we came to a halt, my friend and I found ourselves crowded out into the corridor. Neither of us, it developed, had informed the guard of our coming as we had been advised to do, so it was with much relief that the cheery voice hailed us out of the darkness: "Passengers for Palenque!" Even in Spanish I understood good.

It was natural that we two parties should string along together because of circumstances could hardly make it otherwise. The question was whether the jeep which was drawn up alongside would hold all of our luggage as well as all of us. Our host, whom we found out later was the owner of the inn at Palenque, had his young son with him and the boy and of them soon had all our luggage tied on two-wheel there in the most miraculous manner. That accomplished we all piled in; the couple in the back seat, and I in between our host and his little boy.

Dawn began to drift across the sky as we jogged merrily over the heavily rutted road into the little village of Palenque, disclosing a noble landscape of giant trees and a roadside decorated with flowers. The road twisted over hillocks lined with bushes; on descending into a valley we wound through a maze of the loftiest trees I had ever seen. In the early morning air the birds were about letting loose with an unfamiliar call.

PALENQUE VILLAGE

At length we were clattering down the cobbled streets of Palenque village; the curious villagers peeking out of their doors to see what new strangers had come to town. Smiling children waved and ran alongside our jeep. Our host drove us right up to his hotel where we were given two rooms for the duration of our stay. The rooms were quite comfortable, and the meals excellent. Being quite weary, we immediately dropped into bed for at least an hour or two of sleep, with the injunction to awaken us at 7.30 so that we could start on the journey to the ruins of Palenque at 8.00.

I awakened to the chattering of children outside my window and, realizing I had overslept, I hurriedly dressed and rushed outside to inquire as to the whereabouts of my new acquaintances.

"They have gone down to the cafe to eat" said the girl in charge. After another inquiry, I located the cafe just across the street on the corner. "See if you don't agree with us that this is the most delicious pineapple you have ever eaten," remarked the photographer's wife. I dived into it, and boy was it ever good! I have tasted many grapefruit, but this beats all for sheer delicious sweetness. They are also of enormous size, one alone would serve a person in itself. I understand that they have an admixture of the orange in them.

Domingo, our host, was ready waiting for us in the jeep when we returned to the hotel. The young lad was on hand to help bring the photographer convey baggage to the jeep. So once more we piled in, all set for a day at the ruins of Palenque.

Passing through the environs of the village provided us with some of the most beautiful sights of our lives: the trees were of a tremendous height, some of them mahogany; others ceibas and there was also a tree whose trunk glowed in the morning sun like metallic copper. All of them sported 'air plants' which hung from lofty branches, some of these being red in color, while others were blue or white. The roadsides bloomed forth with many species of flowers; one type, a fine mauve in color manifested itself in great numbers, its leaves being arranged in whorls and the flower system appearing in a cluster at the very tip of the tall stem. The structure of the flower was quite unique. It being comprised of a series of rayettes which sprung outward abruptly from the centre; a sparkling mauve in the bright sunshine. Many of the surrounding bushes were covered with the purple morning glory, and aside from these, one often saw a tree covered with large yellow flowers.

RUINS OF PALENQUE

From the top of the hill we were able to look out over a marvellous panorama; the winding road straight ahead going down, down, through the forest plains until it disappeared from sight under them; then came the sea of tree tops stretching over hill and dale in endless procession until they turned over and fell into the blue grey of the mountains; and lying upon a projecting shelf from these mountains our eyes caught the first sight of the ruins of Palenque, their light-grey walls standing forth from the shadows of the hills like toy blocks of white marble.

Now the rough dirt road grew narrow, the jungle encroaching upon it from both sides. Shrubs and plants with enormous leaves brushed the sides of the jeep. The tops of the trees could not be seen without craning our necks out of the windows. All manner of vines grew up the tree trunks. Then, with a final curving turn, we came into full view of the ruins, and what a remarkable sight!

The ruins of seven buildings were all situated each upon a little hill of its own. The jeep drew up directly in front of the very high pyramid and Temple of the Inscriptions; all outlined against dark and dense jungle which grew up the sides of the mountain. It was decided that our host should pick us up at 8.00 p.m. Thus leaving us with the entire day in which to examine the ruins.

Impressive indeed is the Temple of the Inscriptions be, the sight which met our eyes on turning to the left was even more so, especially at that hour of the morning when the sun was backlighting this high hill, the latter all covered with tall jungle and outlined against this, the three separate buildings each on its own mound, which again was outlined in high contrast against the dark background. Turning still further to the left we beheld the largest single ruin of them all. The building known as the 'Palacio'.

The sun beat down upon us in all the fury as we made our way along the path which led us to three small shrines mentioned above. There was no breeze whatsoever. The way led across a flat stretch after which the trail began to climb steeply over treacherous rocks, slippery from the morning's dew. My photographer acquaintance had preceded me since I desired a picture of the one edifice from below.

EXQUISITE MURAL

After considerable clambering over rocks and climbing crudely carved steps up to the base of the building, we came out upon the first terrace which was a fine view of the Palacio and of another temple on our right was obtained. The edifice at hand consisted but one chamber, but on the back wall of it was an exquisitely wrought mural in three panels.

The photographer, meanwhile, had taken himself up the hillside and had set up his large tripod opposite a member of the begrudge family. Upon the tripod he set his big brute of a camera. Then he got under the black hood to make his exposure — a process worth watching in itself. His wife was clicking away too, with her 35 mm outfit (Leica) often calling back to her husband for advice on "What exposure would you like this, Jerry?"

We had been told previously that at 11.00 o'clock the lights in the interior chamber of the Temple of the Inscriptions would be turned on; they were run from blue grey of the mountains; and lying upon a projecting shelf from these mountains our eyes caught the first sight of the ruins of Palenque, their light-grey walls standing forth from the shadows of the hills like toy blocks of white marble.

We had been told previously that at 11.00 o'clock the lights in the interior chamber of the Temple of the Inscriptions would be turned on; they were run from a generator which was housed in a shed at the rear of the pyramid. As you may imagine, it was hard work. The generator, however, evidently, in making their people exert themselves in climbing their structures, for their steps are always abnormally high.

This pyramid contains seven stairs and 69 steps lead to the base of the temple. The upper portion of the Temple is largest in ruins, but the first storey is in good repair, and may be entered by five entrances. These latter lead into a small room of which lead five entrances to four inner chambers. On the inner wall of the corridor between these entrances are traced three huge panels of hieroglyphics, the largest known, Mayan hieroglyphic inscription.

EXCITING STORY

In the central chamber at a point almost exactly half the length of the building was located a large, covered hole, rectangular in shape, perhaps six feet by eight feet. Behind this hole there lies an exciting story: When Dr. Alberto Ruz L'Huillier visited Palenque in 1949, he noticed a large stone slab which had two rows of perforations, each with a removable plug-stone. The floor of the Temple of the Inscriptions is composed of cut stone slabs, carefully fitted, in contrast to all the other temples in Mayaland — his curiosity was aroused on finding one day the dirt from the point where it met the stone wall back of it, he found that the wall went down beyond the stone slab. They began to excavate the floor beside the slab and at a depth of a few feet an enormous stone beam was encountered. Then at a depth of six and one-half feet a step was encountered which was the beginning of a long series of stone steps — all of them completely filled in with rubble, they were now certain that they were in a tunnel which led downward.

In the first season, taking out one stone at a time, and one pail of earth at a time, they cleared 23 steps. In the second year they cleared another 22 steps at which time they reached a landing which made a double turn so that the steps now led back toward the interior of the pyramid.

In 1951 a ventilator shaft was discovered at the top of the tunnel vault which solved the parties ventilation problem, and at the same time they went down 13 more steps. At this point only 10 feet remained between their level and the level of the outside plaza.

The fourth year they ran into a wall of rubble which had to let down about beyond this and another wall, strongly constructed of stone and lime. This had become virtually solid owing to the water which had seeped down through it.

Beneath a pile of rubble which lay in front of this wall they found a chest which contained three small painted pottery plates, seven jade beads, two earplugs of beautiful jade; three shells painted red, and a magnificent piece in the form of a bar, one-half inch long. The party now had reached a depth of 25 feet below the temple, or about ground level of the plaza in front of the stone. But now there is a corridor and this wall mentioned above. For a full week the men labored strenuously sometimes even having to break through solid rock, for the mass had all but solidified. The time had a very bad effect on the laborers' hands for they became burned and cracked.

TUNNEL ENDS ABRUPTLY

Finally the tunnel came to an abrupt end because the new wall they came up to now sloped outward just like that of the stair case; and if anything were to be found it would be found at this point to the right or left of this end wall.

On continuing to remove the rubble, L'Huillier noted that the left wall looked quite natural, but not quite jibe with the wall around it. Suddenly, one of the workmen noted his crowbar go through it into nothingness. They removed a stone where the bar had penetrated, then L'Huillier realized that the peculiarity in the wall, a triangular shaped slab was actually a door to some other chamber. In great excitement they widened the original opening until the leader was able to look in. The sight he saw was literally unbelievable; he looked into an enormous chamber, the walls of which were entirely sheathed in what appeared to be ice. From all around the bottom of the ceiling and indeed, from the ceiling itself, pended stalactites and from the floor numerous small stalgmites ascended. The whole room's aspect was one of being sheathed in ice.

Lying in the dead centre of the room was a huge slab which appeared to be an altar, its edge decorated with hieroglyphics and, at the top of the slab completely covered with elaborate carvings.

Before this slab could be turned to admit anyone it was necessary to clear away the rubble at its base. Beneath this rubble they upon a kind of box which which was found to contain the bones of six young persons, five boys and one girl. This, they believe, was a human sacrifice. The skeletons were crowded into 12 square feet.

Finally, the huge stone slab was turned so as to admit one person. The room measured 13 feet by 20 and was 23 feet high. On the walls are seven stucco bas-reliefs which portray a procession of nine priests elaborately costumed.

The extraordinary thing in the room is the huge stone slab which rests upon six supports; four thick ones at the ends, and two smaller in the centre. These supports represent human beads.

The hieroglyphics on the edge correspond to 13 abbreviated dates in the Maya calendar which cannot be fixed exactly because they recur every 52 years. It is thought that the dedication of the altar coincided with the end of the first half of the ninth 'baktun' or 600 year period, which in our chronology corresponds to the year 633 A.D.

MAYAN CONCEPT OF RELIGION

The carving upon the top of the slab represents a young man reclining with his feet on the four earth monster; above his body there is a cross and between the two this is a two-headed serpent from whose open mouths emerge mythological beings. Above all this is the 'quetzal' bird with a mask of the god Pacal. This is a synthesis of the fundamental Mayan concept of religion. Coming out of the earth monster are stalks representing the maize plant upon which man exists his head and his feet...This shows how man and the maize plant are dependent one upon the other for their existence.

Formerly (before 1953) it was thought that the exclusive purpose of all American pyramids was simply to serve as a base for a temple and a place from which to carry on astronomical observations. We now know differently; for in 1953 the birth of the pyramidal was perforated horizontally and vertically to ascertain whether or not it was solid. It was found to be hollow so now began the work of removing the stonefish. This pillar weighed 5 tons and when it was lifted what was thought to be an altar turned out to be a sepulcher. This stone sepulcher was curved in outline and fish-tailed at one end. The interior was all painted red, and the inside revealed the skeleton of a man of somewhat above the average height, lying in a natural position and accompanied by all his ornaments. Obviously he was a person of great importance.

From this discovery it is clear that the tomb was constructed at the same time as the pyramid and connected with the temple. The tomb must have been sealed after the funeral ceremony.

At any rate, that is what I was finally conducted down to see by a guide and he had started the gasoline motor at the top of the staircase which generated electric power for the lights. My acquaintances decided to pass it up, since it was so hot, and they were tired of climbing. They had descended from the pyramid, but I stayed up and so was on hand when the guide came.

The next building we investigated thoroughly was the Palacio, an enormous place extremely complicated. I felt it impossible to try to describe it without a diagram, so will paint a few salient features. It was made one height of high tower which rises from the center.

ENORMOUS PALACIO

There are several courtyards, in one of which are rows of the most fascinating bas-reliefs reveal themselves along the bases of two opposite chambers. Beneath a canopy, in a kind of hall, we came upon many panels of hieroglyphics and since I have a yen for these, I set up my tripod and photographed an interesting section.

Many a fine view of the great pyramid is to be had from here. As a matter of fact, there is much to photograph in the alleyways and byways of this great building that a person feels he could literally spend days here. Certain walls are covered with a beautiful stucco work, while others made interesting color photography as also did various colored fragments of mosaic to be found. The color tints of the walls are plainly discernible in many places. In a series of sombre tunnels closest to the pyramid there are little lofts that remain in either for their abode by scrophytes and llanas. At one point we looked down the throat of a palm to where a cluster of parrots, disturbing us, could not resist the temptation to curry it away in picture form. At almost every doorway there was a view opened up before us. Sometimes it was a glimpse of the jungle and that I might include a bit of human interest, besides having a human element, gave scale to things.

The photographer, who seemed to know where he was going turned off into a narrow pathway overhung with vines and completely closed in overhead by large plants and creepers, the vines their leaves coming together forming a complete canopy; but underneath the hanging was quite open because the path, was partly formed in the by the large leaves of the strange jungle plants which hung out over the water, and the large, spreading trees overhead which almost blotted out the blue sky save for a few lacey patches. But the delight of sliding down into the rope-like formations, giving the whole an effect of water falling over twisted gargoyles.

GROTESQUE FACES

The brink of each cascade resembles the twisting swaths of the ejected contents from a tube of toothpaste. From certain angles this contorted swath appears to contain grotesque faces of animals and all manner of imaginary creatures. Above all this, the late afternoon sun slants down its rays of green and gold through the leaves, creating a scene infinitely lovely, defying description.

I think we were much too awed for conversation, we each set to work setting up our tripods and cameras and anxiously taking flights. The photographer's wife lost no time taking off her shoes and stockings and wading around in the shallow water, stepping from one rock to another, all of which were covered with the softest and greenest moss.

While we were finishing up our last of photographs (the photographer took many, many pictures), his wife decided to wade down the creek, exploring. About two pictures later, she came back with excitement, exclaiming: "There's the darlingest little waterfall down there, and I'm sure that — a very matter-of-fact person" The wife disappeared around the bend.

Meanwhile having finished with my picture taking, (the husband was still clicking away happily), I took off my shoes and stockings and did some wading. How lovely and cool the waters were!

Finding that a good view was to be had from midstream, I got the camera and took a shot, waiting for his wife to return. I had by this time made up my mind to have a swim in that pool myself. The day had been very hot and sticky, and the humidity was still quite high. After a while, his wife came into view, and as she neared I said "guess I will go down now."

So rolling my pant legs above my knees I stepped from stone to stone, and here and there stepped down into the streamlet. Working my away around a big clump of bushes I soon beheld the pool. She had made no exaggeration; it was beautiful. The water cascaded over a ledge with a thin sheet and at the bottom of the cascade was the pool of crystal clear water.

A COOLING DIP

I wasn't long in stripping once I had located a dry place for my clothes. I was a lovely occasion standing there in nature's suit upon the brink of this little cascade with the lovely yellow-green sunlight filtering down through the large leaves of the strange jungle plants which hung out over the water, and the large, spreading trees overhead which almost blotted out the blue sky save for a few lacey patches. But the delight of sliding down into the cool water was even more lovely!

The pool was deep enough for a short swim. How I wished some of those people back home could have a go at this place! How the little children would enjoy this; a place fit for Diana, and her nymphs! After swimming across the pool several times, I felt that I should go out, since my photographer friends would like to swim again, and I took the rest of the time drying off and wondering what lay around the next bend.

One thing that amazed me all the time was the almost complete absence of mosquitoes — I recall seeing one or two, but neither of them bit me. While waiting for the photographer and his wife to finish their swims, I turned my attention to making pen drawings of some of the jungle plants bordering the water's edge, as I had decided to do a painting of this scene, and an intimate knowledge of the flora was necessary.

As I stood there in mid-stream, a voice at my side wondered if we were ready for "home" yet. It was the voice of Domingo's little boy. So I told him that the lady and her husband were still at the pool having a bath. He looked up the trail in vain, however, and soon they were completely exposed; but she didn't care, we found our host Domingo, waiting for us.

Then we loaded into the jeep, first to return to the ruins to pick up the lunch basket which we had hidden in the tunnel. One can of sardines had been taken, but I didn't care — I didn't like sardines anyway.

The ride back home came as an anti-climax to a perfect day. The setting sun cast its rays through the flowers and leaves making every thing quite beautiful. A visit to Palenque is something to be remembered for a long, long time.

A JOYOUS SUPPER

Supper that night was a real joy: raw vegetables and cottee and papaya for dessert. Just before retiring we settled our food bill between us which amounted to 13 pesos apiece, one-third owed by each. Next morning I had to be around at seven o'clock to catch the train to Palenque Station at eight. My share of the tariff amounted to 35 pesos to which I added 5 pesos as tip, and enjoyed my stay so much. The train was a little late, however, so I took movies of the two boys in their father's jeep.

But at last the new train for Allende came chugging up the tracks and we were soon comfortably aboard to begin a new phase of our respective trips. Domingo kindly helped us all on board with the utmost thoughtfulness which is one of the things for which we shall always remember him. Our last view of him and his boy was the two waving and shouting goodbye as the train pulled us gently westward toward new adventures."

Father of Nine 'Felt Good All Over' After $56,000 Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Clarence J. Leblanc of Moncton, N.B., kitchen helper and father of nine, "felt good all over" Saturday when he won $56,000 in the Irish sweepstakes.

Shipyard electrician Horace Whitcomb of Victoria said "I'm just shaking" after he won the same amount.

But in general the other seven Canadian sweeps winners, including Mrs. Helen Orosieta of Vancouver who won the jackpot of $140,000, took it pretty calmly.

The nine big winners between them won more than $450,000 as E. S. B., Gentle Maya and Royal Tan finished one-two-three in the Grand National Sweepstake at Aintree, England, Saturday.

THREE OTHERS

The other $98,000 Irish sweepstakes winners were George Crompton, St. Catharines, Lloyd Goch of North Vancouver, B.C., and Robert Brownell of suburban Windsor, Ont.

Montrealer Mrs. Christina Serafatowicz won $18,800 with a ticket on E.S.B., in the Quebec army and navy sweep. Alexis Cochrane of Port Arthur won $11,200 for second and H. Sanfilippo of Winnipeg won $7,200.

Mrs. Orosieta had to be persuaded to leave her dishwashing job, but said she'd be back Monday. The 43-year-old widow said "I like my job," but she plans to take a trip to Vienna shortly with the money.

NOT ENOUGH

Mr. Goch said he wasn't going to let his money "go to my head." The newspaper salesman figured $56,000 isn't enough to retire on.

Miss Cochrane went right on with her washing after hearing about her win. She's a CPR clerk.

Mr. Leblanc will pay all his bills and revise plans for his new house.

Mr. Brownell said he will buy a car. Mrs. Serafatowicz is a Scottish woman who came here with her Polish husband two years ago.

"I'm a lot quieter now," she said after being asked how she felt. The couple will buy a house.

Armory and Food Stores of King Herod Unearthed

JERUSALEM (Reuters)—An Israeli archaeological expedition has unearthed what are believed to have been King Herod's armory and food stores in the ancient Jewish fortress of Massada.

This was disclosed Sunday by Dr. Johanan Aharoni, leader of the expedition investigating the mysteries of King Herod's citadel, which is perched on rocks overlooking the Dead sea.

Evidence has also been discovered he said, to show how the arsenal was destroyed by a fire in the face of advancing Roman forces.

The finds date later than 73 AD when the fortress fell to the Romans and its 960 defenders — all members of the fanatical religious sect of Sicarri — committed mass suicide with their short-bladed daggers rather than be taken.

At one stage of the investigations two searchers were lowered on parachute harnesses more than 230 feet into a chasm to investigate recesses in the walls.

In this season's excavations the first upper compound of King Herod's three - level palace was unearthed, revealing evidence to show that while the Sicarri fired the arsenal they spared the food stores. Shreds of large storage jars were found by the expedition.

Aharoni said these finds corresponded with the description of the fortress and its capture by the ancient Jewish historian Josephus Flavius in his work The War of the Jews.

Aharoni said among the most important discoveries were ostraca (broken pieces of earthenware) and a piece of papyrus inscribed in Hebrew which established "beyond doubt" the date of the Dead sea scrolls found in the Kourman caves north of the Dead sea. He said the writing on the documents dating 73 AD or earlier was in the same script used by scribes of the Dead sea scrolls.

Market Boom In Soviet Bonds Seen in London

LONDON (Reuters) — A stock market boom in Russian bonds, almost worthless since the 1917 revolution, has followed rumors here that long-standing Russian debts to Britain may be discussed during next month's visit to Britain by Marshal Nikolai Bulganin and Nikita Khrushchev.

Even without interest, Czarist debts, repudiated by the Communists, amount to about £1,000,000,000.

Little Benny's Notebook

I was taking a Sunday walk with pop and ma yesterday, and ma said, Goodness. William, wasn't that Luella Lanker that just passed?

Reely Yes, I believe it was, pop said, and ma said, You know very well it was, but no wonder you wont admit it. Goodness, such a change in a living person. Do you remember when the 3 of us and Oliver Prouty used to go around together? Who would think that a so-called bewty would ever develop into a walking map of homeliness?

At least you used to have a strange idea that Luella Lanker was bewtiful, William, she said.

As I remember, you had a queer notion that Oliver Prouty was a handsome sprig of young manhood, pop said, and ma said, Well as a matter of fact so he was. But I always felt that Luella's temporary good looks were bilt on shifting sands, she said.

By gollies yes, now that you mention it, I used to think her hair was golden, but as you say, of course it was mercly sandy, pop said. I shudder to think what Oliver Prouty looks like by this time. You used to imagine he was a dashing Adonis with his wavy locks, but I knew all the time that his looks were bilt on barren rock. I'm sure that head of his is as bare as a mountain top today, he said, and ma said, Why William, what an unfair remark. I'm sure Oliver is still a perfect picture of good looks in spite of the years, she said.

In the words of Shakesbeer, dreem on, Mrs. MacDuff, pop said.

And he laffed so long ma petity neer got mad.

Only Faint Hope Bulganin And Khrushchev Will Visit Drab Marx Memorial Library

INVESTIGATES DEATH AT LAW CLASS PARTY

By STANLEY GODFREY

LONDON (AP)—Protocol chiefs will lay out the red carpets for the visit next month of Soviet leaders Bulganin and Khrushchev.

But in a dusty former coffee house in the Clerkenwell district of London, where Karl Marx and his collaborator Friedrich Engels worked together, and where for a time Lenin edited his revolutionary newspaper Iskra (spark), there's little excitement.

The building now is the Marx Memorial Library, centre of communism's historical association with this country. And among the volunteer staff there is only a faint hope Bulganin and Khrushchev will visit their drab, brown painted headquarters.

Harry Pollitt, former engineer turned librarian who is in charge of this shrine of the left-wing intelligentsia, thinks they should.

WHERE BIG THREE WORKED

"The most important room of the whole building in the world where Marx, Engels and Lenin—the three great architects of international communism—worked together under the same roof, apart from the reading room of the British Museum, and you can hardly count that," he said.

Marx, Pollitt explained, established a base in London to work on his massive Das Kapital — the Bible of Communist thinking.

There, in Clerkenwell, centre of the British charitist and trade union movements, he received his associates with Engels, who was working in Britain as his wealthy father's partner in the cotton business.

The two men already had worked together in Europe and produced their Communist manifesto. In London they planned the first Working Man's International and established contacts with Red revolutionaries in Europe.

But little now remains of the physical world in which they lived, apart from the coffee house, with its patched brown paint and bare unshaded light bulbs showing up in the paint-pocked walls.

A massive bust of Marx frowns down on the faces of Communist students from a garish, red-silk-lined niche in the library.

UNCONSECRATED GRAVE

Marx was buried in the unconsecrated ground at Highgate cemetery in London, in a common grave with his wife and his daughter Eleanor, who committed suicide.

Last November local Communists bought a bigger, more prominent site for his grave, claiming that the old one was hard to find and there was room for more soil anyway for Communist pilgrims. They raised £10,000 for a massive granite-and-bronze memorial.

Even less remains to recall Engel's life here. He died in 1895 leaving no family, and his ashes were scattered to the sea.

But Bulganin and Khrushchev can, if they wish, visit the little room in the coffee house Lenin used as an office during his brief stay here in 1902.

There he edited his Communist newspaper and called the 1903 party congress which saw the emergence of the Bolsheviks.

Once upon a time there was a bust of Russia's first Communist ruler near the Kings Cross railway station, but anti-Communists tore it down just before the Second World War.

Those are London's only links with Lenin. He must have been somewhere, but the life of a revolutionary in those days was a precarious one, and no definite record of his address was kept—for obvious reasons.

Taken to Port

ERIE, Pa. (AP)—The Canadian fishing tug, Alton B. Hoover, was back in port only after spending two nights marooned by Lake Erie floes.

The U.S. coast guard cutter Kaw nudged the 60-ton Hoover free Saturday and brought the vessel to the Erie public port. There was no serious damage. Five fishermen trapped aboard the tug walked 1½ miles over the thin lake ice to safety.

POKE AT IKE

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — Harry S. Truman told an audience of young Democrats Saturday night any of them know as much about running the government as President Eisenhower.—"I'm very fond of the president," the former chief executive said, "I made him chief of staff of the armed forces. But he doesn't know any more about how to run the government of the United States than any one of you."

Labor Minister Asked to Retract Statement Made

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Ontario Labor Minister Charles Daley was asked Saturday to retract a statement he made last week in the legislature, which claimed racial discrimination problems in Dresden were inspired by Communists.

Lloyd Fell, of Toronto, a United Packinghouse Workers Union official and former CCF member of the legislature, told 50 district labor leaders attending a day-long labor conference here on human rights and fair employment and accommodation practices that Mr. Daley "knew his statement was erroneous" when he made it.

"We are those in the legislature who will seize upon Mr. Daley's rash statement and attempt to embarrass genuine efforts being made by labor and by officers of his own government to cure this disease known as discrimination.

"We have always had 100 per cent co-operation from Mr. Daley's colleagues and the minister's statement has hurt them considerably. I hope he will retract it at the earliest possible date."

Mayor Wright Of Gananoque Dies Sunday

GANANOQUE (CP) — Mayor Claude Evelyn Wright, 53, wartime chief of naval gun production, died Sunday.

A native of Christchurch, N.Z., and a graduate of the University of New Zealand, Mr. Wright came to Canada in 1924 after training with General Electric Company in Schenectady, N.Y.

He was awarded the MBE for his service at Ottawa during the Second World War. A former chairman of the board of education he was first elected to council in 1955 and was acclaimed mayor in January, 1956.

He is survived by his widow and five children.

Communist-Led Union Loses Major Bargaining Agreements

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's largest Communist - led union abruptly lost all its major bargaining agreements in Ontario Saturday when the provincial Labor Relations Board decided it has switched identities.

The Board ruled the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.) became a new union when it added (Canada) to its name and changed its constitution last year. One official of the 32,000-member union said he is confident the decision would result in a more powerfully-unified membership.

The decision, it is said, may have effects in British Columbia and Quebec where the union has several locals.

The LRB ruled that when the name and constitution were changed the organization became a new union. Control signed under the old name were with a nonexistent body. It required only a few contracts, affecting about 200 workers, have been signed under the new name.

Before the ruling the union held contracts at Sudbury, Central Patricia, Falconbridge Nickel, Nickel Offset, Nickel Rim and with 30 firms through the General Workers' Union, in the Sudbury area; in Kirkland Lake Gold and Lakeshore Gold at Kirkland Lake; at Deloro in the Marmora area; inco, the municipal workers and a gas-utility firm at Port Colborne.

LRB hearings on the union's status were held in January.

Kremlin Leaders Afraid to Face Purge Issue

NEW YORK (AP)—Soviet Satellite chieftains may soon be forced against their will to reverse the condemnation of Stalin's purges and 1930 trials and persecutions during Stalin's last years.

These purges in Kremlin-controlled eastern European countries included the hanging of the lives of Rudolph Slansky of Czechoslovakia, Lazlo Rajk of Hungary, Traicho Kostov of Bulgaria, Koci Xoxe of Albania and many other leading Communists executed with them. They destroyed the political careers of Wladislaw Gomulka of Poland, Ana Pauker in Romania, Anton Mielker of Germany and others who suffered with them.

It would seem to follow from the current Soviet denunciation of Stalin's rule of terror during his last 20-years as Communist dictator that all these judgments must be re-examined. Satellite leaders don't want to do it. They fear the results will shake their positions and their regimes.

The Kremlin leaders in Moscow also have been afraid to face this issue so far. But it looks as though they can't delay much longer. Something must be going on behind the Iron Curtain suggests that machinery is already in motion.

Malenkov Takes Whistle-Stop Tour Through North England

By COLIN FROST

MORECAMBE, England (AP)—Georgi Malenkov took a whistle-stop tour through northern England Sunday for his first real closeup of the Western way of life. He seemed to like what he saw.

The former Russian premier was brimming over with friendliness. He patted children on the head and distributed "peace badges" and boxes of candy as he spoke to Englishmen through an interpreter.

On the road Malenkov's big Zim car overtook a family car pulling a weekend trailer to the seaside for the summer.

The big Zim was stopped. Out jumped Malenkov and his bodyguard. They waved the trailer to a stop.

"I wanted to see your house on wheels," Malenkov told the startled driver, Anglician Ernest Storey of Manchester.

Mrs. Storey, mother of three, showed Malenkov around the little trailer. Malenkov had some trouble getting his bulk through the door.

"I, too, have three children," he told the Storeys. "I am pleased to see a good English family. I give greetings to your family from my family."

Malenkov and his 14-car caravan moved off to Blackpool.

He visited a modest home on a new municipal housing estate near Blackpool. The tenants, engineer Ronald Sedley and his wife, Joan, had been tipped off only half an hour before that Malenkov would like to visit them.

Mrs. Snelley showed him her home.

"It's a very cozy place," said Malenkov.

They walked into a bedroom.

Malenkov picked up the boy from his cot and carried him around the house. But little Diana Snelley, 4, ran and hid under the family sewing machine.

"Would you like to do a spot of digging?" asked Snelley.

"No," said Malenkov, "you want to get your wife to do that sort of thing."

World's Largest Pulp Mill Closed By 182 Strikers

CORNER BROOK, Nfld. (CP)—The gigantic machinery of the world's largest integrated pulp and paper mill remained silent today for the first time in 18 years as machinists picketed the Bowater plant here.

Leo O'Rourke led his 182-member Machinists Local 1587 off the job at midnight Sunday to back a demand that sulphite production superintendent Albert N. Roche be dismissed. Four other mill unions with a membership of about 1,600 have agreed to support them.

The walkout, first since the company took over the mill in 1938, will cost $150,000 a day in lost production. The plant turns out 1,000 tons of newsprint and 150 tons of export sulphite daily. Some 1,800 employees are affected.

Mr. Roche was hired last fall to boost efficiency.

Company and union officials met Friday but discuss a walkout of three millwrights from night duty in the sulphite plant in general plant maintenance during the day.

O'Rourke said the change resulted in daytime maintenance men being called back at night, sometimes twice in 24 hours. And he said, made their pay cheques 2½ times larger than normal.

The company said the day workers were not doing their jobs properly during the regular shift and refused to remove Mr. Roche.

Mr. O'Rourke said: "this was not acceptable to the union. The members agreed there would be no compromise on the stand that the superintendent must go."

Three Democratic Governors, Chandler, Harriman, Lausche, Possible Presidential Choices

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some Democrats casting about for alternatives to the two active seekers of the party's presidential nomination speculated Sunday about three governors — A. B. (Happy) Chandler of Kentucky, Averell Harriman of New York and Frank Lausche of Ohio.

The active candidates, Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee and Adlai Stevenson, focused their attention on California's June 5 primary, their last direct clash. Kefauver is campaigning there; Stevenson plans to fly there later in the week to talk with campaign workers.

Since Kefauver upset Stevenson in Minnesota there has been increased talk among some party members about possible alternate candidates.

Several have boomed Senator Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, Senate majority leader, who says he is not a candidate. A weekend report from Chicago indicated that the Stevenson camp regards Senator Stuart Symington of Missouri as a dark horse contender of growing strength.

Governor Allan Shivers of Texas declined to say Sunday whether he would back Johnson for the nomination. Asked in a television interview if he would accept a vice presidential nomination, he added he would not accept the vice-presidential nomination.

Don't be fooled by the "chi-chi" hat!

Today's woman, like women in ages past, likes to wear things that are frilly and feminine. But don't let that mislead you. For she has taken on responsibilities that her sister of yesterday never dreamed of!

She owns more property, controls more wealth, takes a more active interest in community affairs and does most of the family buying. She now represents 23% of the nation's total working force. In many cases, she owns her own business and drives her own car.

In modern times, too, life insurance companies have conducted research which has led to the progressive removal of restrictions on insuring women's lives. As a result, women are now better able to make the future more secure for themselves and those who depend upon them.

Here again is proof that the life insurance business has progressed to meet the changing needs of Canadians in all walks of life!

Salt Water and Solunar Tables

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT
(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solunar Tables.)

No matter how often I say it either in print or out loud, folks don't seem to believe me when I tell them that the Solunar Tables are every bit as useful in salt water as they are in fresh water. Rarely does a week go by that my mail bag does not hold a letter asking about the use of the Solunar Tables in salt water.

This time, let there be no doubt about it. The Solunar Tables are an invaluable aid for the salt-water angler, It makes no difference whether he is a surf caster, a pier fisherman or an offshore addict—the Solunar Tables are just about the handiest gadget that he can put in his tackle kit.

Every year vacation finds us in the Florida Keys, come March and early April. As any read this, envision the writer either taking his ease in a lounging chair on the dock beside the boat lagoon or standing in the prow of a bonefish skiff somewhere to the west of Upper Matecumbe Key, Florida, the center of the bonefish activity every year at this time.

Most of our fishing is done either with Rolle Hollenbeck or Cecil Green, two of the top bonefish guides of the country. To get fishing dates with these two fellows, you must arrange for them one year in advance. That will give you some idea of their standing.

DEVIOUS APPROACH

When first I started to tell these two hard - headed professionals about Solunar Periods and their affects on the behavior of bonefish, the recital was greeted by cynical and not-too-polite rejoinders. Who was I, amateur and a damnyankee to boot, to tell them something about their specialty? Seeing that no lasting good was accomplished through the direct approach, the next step was to resort to devious means.

When you are out with one of these guides, he takes you fishing. You are paying for it, but he is boss man and don't you forget it. Now and then, however, he will condescend to inquire as to your preference. That is where the "devious-means" method can be applied. For example—

Cecil shuts off the motor a n d says, "You want to drift that flat for bonefish—water looks about right—or you want to look for some tarpon?"

You don't answer. Instead, you dig into your kit and haul out the Solunar Tables. Then you look at your watch. Then you put everything away again and light a cigarette. At last, you answer, rather bored,

"Not much use you straining your eyes lookin' for tarpon or bonefish right now. Why don't you stake down beside that channel and I'll see if I can dredge up a jack or a couple of sea trout."

TRIGGER TEMPER

Cecil has a hair-trigger temper. "Jack! Sea trout! You can catch those back at camp, right off the dock. Don't need to come clear out here for those things." ("Out here," may very well be 30 or 30 miles from home plate.)

"O.K. — O.K." you tell h i m. "Don't blow a gasket. We can try for a bonefish if you want to." Then, as an afterthought, "But we won't find any."

By this time the back of Cecil's neck is bright crimson. He jams in the pole and shoves the boat over to the head of the flat. You, instead of standing up and making ready to cast, dig into your tackle kit and come up with a copy of Solunar material. This is spread out on the floor of the boat while you tie together a fresh bonefish or tarpon leader.

While Cecil maintains a steady flow of absolute silence, you fuss with that leader and pray, most devoutly, that no bonefish will be on the flat. Nine times out of ten there will be none. It is the tenth time you have to worry about.

After you have tempted Providence long past the margin of safety, you coil up your new leader, put away your gear, pick up your bonefish rod and go through the motions of being ready to cast to a bonefish, should Cecil spot one for you.

Meanwhile, you know that a major Solunar Period is scheduled for somewhere around ten thirty. You know that there are other good bonefish flats thereabouts, so you figure the time element and then suggest that you try such-and-such flat, this one at least five miles away. Then, again as an afterthought, you add,

"Ought to be some fish on that one by now. Major period came in about ten thirty."

UP LUCK WITH YOU

Once more the big motor roars into life and sends the boat flying over those five miles. If luck is with you, and it usually is, there are the tails of a school of bonefish, feeding happily in the quiet, shallow water.

This sort of thing went on for several years before Cecil and Rolle were broken to harness. Not often, but sometimes we would find an odd bonefish feeding on the flat when he shouldn't have been. Then both I and my blank-blank Solunar Tables would be in for an unmerciful tongue-lashing.

But devious means won out in the long run. Now they tell me when a Solunar Period is due. You see, those boys are out there every day. Once their natural resistance was overcome, they learned that they could find better fishing for their "sports" if they kept track of the daily Solunar Periods.

So, as I say, the Solunar Tables definitely are useful in salt water. Even the most stubborn bonefish guides will tell you that this is true.

able batting mark for a pitcher. In the following situation, Kellner was due up in the plate. What strategy would you have called for? Lee Bondreau, Kansas City Manager, called it right.

The A's and Detroit are tied 2-2 in the last of the sixth at Kansas City. Ned Garver (R), is pitching for the Tigers as Bill Renna opens with a double and Bill Wilson walks. Joe Dessessio grounds out, the runners advancing. Joe Astroth walks, filling the the bases. Kellner (R), the A's starting pitcher, is the next batter with Vic Power (R) to follow.

Would you

a. Try a sacrifice bunt with Kellner at bat?

b. Let Kellner swing away?

c. Put in a pinch-hitter for Kellner?

Results: C—Elmer Valo, a lefty batter, was put in to hit for Kellner and he walked, forcing home Renna. The A's pitched up three more allies to win 6-2 (April 12).

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Owners of the Florida-bred Needles fixed sights on the Kentucky Derby today and said that will be the next race for their sensational three-year-old.

Needles boosted his Kentucky Derby stock Saturday with a convincing victory in the $145,000 Florida Derby at Gulfstream Park before 34,191 when he put on a stationary stretch run to whip 13 other speedy colts in track-record time.

He ran the 1¼ mile in 1:48 3-5, shaving a fifth of a second off the mark shared jointly by Harmonica, Battlefield and Admiral's Pride. Count Chic finished second and Pinter Lea was third.

Needles earned $95,200 and now has a bankroll of $338,905. That compares favorably with Nashua's $402,340 at this stage of his career.

Needles raced against Reaping Right, winner of the Louisiana Derby; Terrang, winner of the Santa Anita Derby, and others.

He was last out of the starting gate and was in front of only one horse after a quarter mile and two after a half. Then he moved up to ninth, was fourth entering the stretch and came fast on the outside to win with authority.

"DO UNTO THEM"

It is the nature of the unbiased sports fan to favor the underdog. While the good little man is generally conceded no chance against a good big man, the sympathies of the good sportsman go out to the smaller. The guy with the biggest handicap; the highest barrier to hurdle; the toughest competition to best usually has the sympathy of all fair-minded followers of the games.

At baseball games; hockey tilts; football classics; in fact every competition, there usually is one side or player on the short end of the odds. The fact that he must rise to some spectacular heights or even try to equal the feats of his opponents gives him a warm spot in the hearts of the spectators.

It has been the same down through the ages. It is the same today. It is the same in life as in sport—generally speaking.

Down through the years a game little group of "underdogs"—if we may use that term—have been battling gallantly in a stern struggle. There is no trophy—no medals, no signed "scholarships", no huge financial prizes or other baubles awaiting them if they win. There is something bigger.

The big prize at the end of the rainbow for these grand youngsters is the opportunity to enjoy life and to obtain a degree of ability to fend for themselves. They want no world records, no Olympic honors, no British Empire track trophies. They want self-respect. They want to reach the point at all possible, where they can feel they are not entirely dependent upon others. They are the crippled children of Canada.

For some time now the annual Easter Seal campaign has been going on in Ontario—and other places. In this province the Crippled Children's Association has been doing a grand job for its little charges. On the sidelines service clubs and other organizations have extended a helping hand in the operation of the campaign.

This city can be proud of its crippled children service record. For years the Belleville Shrine Club and the Rotary Club have bent their efforts to this cause. The Shrine Club has the crippled children as its organization work. The Rotary Club has done a splendid job along these lines especially at this time of the year in the interests of the Easter Seal campaign.

We do not know how much money is in the hands of the Rotary Club campaign treasurer. No matter the amount, there is room for more. The public body has set $625,000 as the quota for this year's needs. It is hoped that through the various service clubs and other sources this amount will be oversubscribed. And if we know the people of Ontario, that is a foregone conclusion.

The seals have been in the mails for a number of weeks now. You have received a set. So have you. And you. And you!

Possibly the envelope has been set aside for the moment—and maybe forgotten. This is a reminder to you to pick it up, insert a dollar bill, a two-dollar bill, a fiver or whatever you can afford, and mail it to the campaign treasurer.

Don't be ashamed of a dollar bill. Don't worry about it being too small. Remember a thousand guys like you can give a thousand dollars. All right, tuck in what silver you can spare if you cannot afford the kind that folds. It all helps.

But do it now. The campaign closes on March 31 and Belleville should not be caught with its big-heartedness down. Give a child a buck—and a break.

"Do Unto Them . . ."

DEATH ON THE MOUND!

The sports fraternity, especially softball circles, was shocked over the weekend to learn of the untimely death of Ron Belyea, killed in a motor accident. Ron had been associated with softball for some time and was a member of the Belleville Orfuns club last year. He was a quiet, unassuming fellow, the kind of guy you liked to have around any team. He will be missed. This department joins in extending heartfelt condolences to the family.

Habs Flash Familiar Power In Two Triumphs Over Blues; Wings Repeat Comeback Win

TORONTO (CP) — To Toronto Maple Leafs, scoring on Detroit Red Wings is like tugging a tiger's tail. All they get is grief.

For the third straight time in their Stanley Cup semi-finals Leafs grabbed an early lead Saturday against the Wings. And once again they were jolted into defeat by a Detroit comeback that left them nothing but bitter memories.

The Wings sprang to the offensive with a three-goal third period and a sensational overtime goal to edge Leafs 5-4. It gave them a 3-0 lead in the best-of-seven series.

The Detroiters did it with such authority that even faithful Toronto fans can't expect the series to be prolonged beyond the fifth game here Tuesday night. If the unexpected happens, the fifth engagement swings to Detroit Thursday.

FOLLOW PATTERN

This, briefly, is Leafs' record of woe. They had a 2-0 lead in the first game here, lost to Detroit last Tuesday. They lost 3-2. In the second game at Detroit Thursday, Toronto went into an 1-0, 2-0 lead, won 3-1. It was no different here.

Lindsay's game winning stroke deflated 13,366 fans at Maple Leaf Gardens who had seen leafs blow a 4-3 lead in the third period.

HAS LAST LAUGH

Defenceman Red Kelly and right wingers, Metro Prystai and Gordie Howe picked up the other Detroit goals. George Armstrong, big right winger shifted to centre in the injury of 37-goal man Ted Sloan, scored two Leafs goals. Utility centre Brian Cullen and rookie right winger Gerry James got the others.

Lindsay, a 30-year-old star with 12 seasons in big-league hockey, was being guffawed as a chump before he turned executioner. The fans rubbed it in early in the night because Leafs scored two goals while he was sitting out slashing and high-sticking penalties.

But Mr. Lindsay had the last word. He even rubbed it in with a show of defiance as he left the ice. The last time he swept the rink, Lindsay bowed in triumph to the customers and, using his stick as a machine - gun, riddled them with imaginary shots.

Lindsay had a perfect setup for the winning goal. He was standing to the right of Toronto goalie Lumley when Goldham snagged the puck on the backboards, manoeuvered to the left side and slipped the puck across the goalmouth.

NEW YORK (CP)—"We try. We skate. But they've got class."

The National Hockey League champions defeated Rangers 3 - 1 Saturday night and 5 - 3 Sunday night to take a 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-finals.

With the fifth game in Montreal Tuesday night, Canadiens are strongly favored to wrap it up then and earn a final berth for the sixth straight season.

BELIVEAU TOO

He scored at 2:11 and 13:33 of the first period Sunday night to give Montreal a 2-0 lead. Although New York fought back to tie the score in the same frame on goals by Wally Hergesheimer and Bill Gadsby the impetus was obviously on the Canadiens' side.

Jean Beliveau, the brilliant centre who also has four goals in the playoffs, made it 3-2 at 2:32 of the second period. Claude Provost added another less than a minute later and Beliveau converted Olmstead's pass at 8:16 of the third to score the game. Andy Bathgate got a third goal for New York at 16:04.

In addition to the Beliveau-Olmstead scoring prowess, the Canadiens threw up a magnificent defence with Doug Harvey stopping at least half a dozen well-aimed shots before they could get to goalie Jacques Plante.

The first two periods were rough and on at least five occasions it appeared full-fledged fights might develop.

BLASTS OFFICIAL

The Canadians received nine of the 13 penalties and—coach Toe Blake had some hot words to say about the officiating.

"That was the worst refereeing I've ever seen," he said angrily as he paced up and down the dressing room afterward. The referee was Jack Mehlenbacher who had also handled one previous game.

Blake contended the Rangers should have received at least three or four more penalties at Montreal of 12 of the 19 penalties Saturday and Blake said the refereeing in Montreal has been "bad." Frank Udvari worked Saturday night.

Montreal scored twice Sunday night while Rangers were shorthanded and New York got one with a man advantage. Penalties did not figure in the scoring Saturday.

Saturday night Ken Mosdell put the Canadiens ahead at 14:42 of the first period. Guy Gendron tied it at 18:30 but two minutes later but from then on Montreal took charge. Olmstead scored on a pass from Dickie Geoffrion in front of the middle period, and shoved the puck into an empty net after Gump Worsley had been removed in favor of a sixth attacker late in the third period.

One minor note of satisfaction for the Rangers was that they managed to keep Maurice (Rocket) Richard scoreless in the two games here and also in last Thursday's game.

The Rocket got three goals in the opener Tuesday.

The Rocket received a misconduct penalty Saturday when he hit an official on the hand while trying to intervene in a fight involving his younger brother and Ranger defenceman Ivan Irwin. It occurred an automatic $25 fine but no further action is to be taken.

Watson said Sunday night he had not decided whether to use Worsley in the next game or put in Gordie Bell, the 31-year-old minor league standby netminder who was in the nets Saturday night in relief of Worsley.

Quebec League

Quebec Aces, a fourth-place club all season, came up with unexpected power during the weekend to maintain a one-game advantage over Montreal Royals in their Quebec Hockey League semi-final playoff series.

The Aces dropped a 4-1 decision to Montreal Sunday, but Saturday they exploited in an 8-3 romp over the Royals. They now lead Montreal 2-1 in their best-of-seven series.

In the other half of the semi-finals, the defending champion Shawinigan Falls Cataracts stretched their lead over Chicoutimi to 2-1 by walloping the Cataracts 6-1 Sunday.

Goodyears Whip Whitby 6-2 In Series Opener

WHITBY-(CP) — Kingston Goodyears snapped back at their tormentors Saturday to whip Whitby Dunlops 6-2 in the first game of the Eastern Ontario Senior B Hockey League finals.

Dunlops, who defeated Goodyears in the seven meetings between the two clubs during the regular schedule, couldn't get rolling against Kingston as Goodyears built up a 3-1 lead by the end of the second period.

Don Murray spearheaded the winners' attack with three goals and Samoleako added another pair. Ted Topparzni scored the other Kingston goal. Frank Donnelio and Sandy Air were the Whitby scorers.

It was Dunlops' first game since qualifying for the finals two weeks ago. They finished the regular season in first place, 25 points ahead of second-place Kingston. The other Kingston goal in best-of-seven series is scheduled for Kingston today.

BC Totems Edge Manitoba In Hoop Opener

VANCOUVER (CP) — A new power in amateur basketball erupted here Saturday night as the British Columbia Totems forced back the hard-driving Manitoba Buffaloes to emerge undefeated after two rounds of the Olympic trials.

B.C. upset the Manitoba squad 81-76 for its second straight victory of the four-team, double-knockout series which will also decide the Canadian championship.

Third Game Tonight

Maroons' Pint-Size Goalie Stars in 1-1 Tie With Wolves

SUDBURY (CP) — Chatham Maroons were held to a 1-1 tie Saturday but it was through no fault of Marv Edwards, their diminutive netminder.

Edwards made like the Rock of Gibraltar as Sudbury Wolves pelted him with 42 shots in the second game of the all-Ontario senior A hockey finals.

It was the first time in their last eight playoff games that Maroons did not win. They lead the best-of-seven series 1-0 with one game tied. Third contest is scheduled for tonight at Chatham.

Edwards was at his greatest in the third period. The score was tied 1-1 and Wolves displayed a vicious offensive attack that could not beat Edwards. Even diehard Sudbury fans gave him rounds of applause as he stopped 18 shots.

NO DIFFERENT

The 10-minute overtime session was no different. Edwards made nine tough stops. The first period was his lightest. He handled five shots and then turned aside 13 in the second frame.

Sudbury goaltender John Albani, just as gutsy as Edwards, had his great moments too. He stopped 29 shots in the first two periods, 13 in the second, three in the third and six in overtime.

Both goals were scored while the opposition was shorthanded. The Wolves went into a 1-0 lead at 14:11 of the first period when defenceman Len Speck fired a shot screened past Edwards but had no chance to stop. Jim Connelly of Chatham was serving an interference penalty at the time.

STOLE THE PUCK

While Wolves' Armand Lemieux was serving a penalty, Chick Chalmers stole the puck from Nick Tomiuk of Sudbury inside the Wolves' blueline and passed to Connelly who beat Albani at 5:54 of the second period.

Referee Frank Slota and Jack Shropshire handed out a total of 11 minor penalties. Wolves received seven and during the first period they had two men off for one minute and 19 seconds.

The fifth game is scheduled for Tuesday at Chatham with the sixth game there Thursday. If the series goes beyond six games, the remaining two will be played back here.

Spring Training Notes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The sad, sad Kansas City pitching staff is looking hopefully to a pint-sized left hander who has won just 11 games in the last three years.

If Bobby Shantz can come back. As will throw their weight around the American League. They may not finish any better than their 1953 spot, fifth, but they won't be pushovers.

In 1952, the five-foot-six Shantz was the toast of Philadelphia. He had won 24 games and had been named the league's most valuable player. But on May 22, 1953, he went to the clubhouse with a strained muscle in his pitching arm. He hasn't been the same since.

SHOWS FLASHES

But Sunday at West Palm Beach he handcuffed Washington Senators for five innings and won the 5th was ahead of the hitters most of the way and scattered seven hits while fanning five.

Another big question mark, Saul Rogovin, is tried out of the major for more than a decade, turned in a fine performance for Philadelphia in Clearwater. He tossed four scoreless innings against Boston and Phillies finally won out in the 10th, 1-0, on Granyn Hamner's home run.

While all that was going on, ancient Tommy Byrne, aided by fuzzy - cheeked Ralph Terry, shut out Brooklyn Dodgers 5-0 for New York Yankees at Miami. Byrne held the Bums to two hits for six innings, and Terry, up from Denver, doled out two more the rest of the way.

Elsewhere, Cleveland Indians edged New York Giants 4 - 3 at Tucson; St. Louis Cardinals stopped Pittsburgh Pirates 7-4 at St. Petersburg; Chicago Cubs battered Baltimore Orioles 10-5 at Los Angeles, and Milwaukee Braves whipped Detroit Tigers 5-2 at Bradenton.

NEW YORK (CP)—Tex Blake attended like anything but a winning coach Sunday night after his Montreal Canadiens had soundly beaten New York Rangers 5-3 and taken an almost insurmountable 3-1 edge in the best-of-seven National Hockey League semi-finals.

"That was the worst refereeing I've ever seen," he snarled as he paced angrily up and down the dressing room.

Canadiens received nine penalties to New York's four Sunday night and Blake said the officiating "has been bad in every game of the playoffs."

Jack Mehlenbacher was Sunday night's referee. He handled one previous game and Frank Udvari and Red Storey refereed the others.

"I thought the Rangers deserved more than three or four more penalties," said Blake, "We can't touch anybody or we're put in jail. They get away with everything."

OUT-PENALIZED?

He said Montreal has been outpenalized against every team in the league and added:

"We must be the dirtiest team in the league only we never take anybody. Tell the referees to go pay attention to the Rangers."

Mehlenbacher made one specific case, contending Ranger defenceman Jack Evans should have been sent off for putting his stick between Ken Mosdell's legs.

Phil Watson, New York coach, didn't agree with Blake.

"I thought Mehlenbacher reflected a heck of a good game," he said.

Watson seemed resigned to the prospect of losing the semi-final series to the NHL champions.

He was clearly disappointed that the Rangers had failed to win at least one of the games at Madison Square Garden, where they were beaten only once by Montreal during the regular season.

"I figured we'd win one at least here," he said.

However, as an afterthought he added:

"We're not beat yet. We'll give it a good try on Tuesday."

Reds Capture American League Championship

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Providence Reds captured the American Hockey League championship during the weekend, winning their two final scheduled games while Pittsburgh Hornets ended in second place, two points behind the pacesetters.

The Reds' triumph clinched the crown Saturday night when they came from behind to defeat Springfield Indians 4-2 while Pittsburgh, last year's titleholders, tied 3-3 with Hershey.

Until then the Hornets had been breathing down the necks of the new AHL titlists. Providence, who finished with 92 points, defeated Springfield twice on Sunday.

Pittsburgh also won Sunday, a goal by Bob Solinger ending a sudden-death overtime period for a 5-4 win over Cleveland Barons, who thus ended up in fourth spot.

Buffalo Bisons assured themselves of fifth place by beating Barons 4-1 Saturday night. The Bisons, who will open their semi-final wrangler Cup series with the Reds in Providence Tuesday night came from behind Sunday to beat Hershey Bears 5-3.

The hot - headed left winger scored the tying and winning goals for Detroit Red Wings Saturday night as they dumped Toronto Maple Leafs 4-3 in the third game of their best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-finals.

Up to that point Lindsay was the target of jibes from customers who didn't like his methods of taunting and high-sticking. He was in the penalty box for such misdemeanors when Leafs scored twice.

The 30-year-old Detroit ace gave the crowd a little curtain-call by play. The last man to leave the ice, he bowed in triumph to the fans and then, using his stick as a machine-gun, shot down a few hundred of them.

DRAMATIC FINISH

Lindsay's second goal, at 4:22 in sudden-death overtime, came with dramatic suddenness. He was standing alone at the right side of the Leaf nets and gently tipped Marcel Pronovost's long pass past goaltender Harry Lumley, who was guarding the opposite side.

"I don't know why Leafs left me all by myself there," Lindsay commented. "But there I was. It was a slow pass and I had to adjust to shoot. Lumley was on the other side. He must have figured on Gordie Howe getting the puck into the nets instead of passing."

The Wings, heavy favorites to wrap up the series in the fourth game here, Tuesday night, accepted the victory with matter-of-fact confidence. That the third straight time they had driven from behind to overhaul the Toronto club.

Why did Leafs blow leads in all three games?

INEXPERIENCE MAYBE

"I guess it's inexperience," said Goldham, who at 33 is the old man on the Detroit team. "How can you figure it? We have as many young fellows as they have. But they don't seem to have the polish. But they will in another year or so."

Detroit coach Jimmy Skinner feels the same way.

"They played a good club," he said. "But they lack some finesse."

What about Howe?

"I'm not predicting anything," said Skinner. "Those Leafs are just likely to bust out."

There was much dejection across the corridor in the Leaf dressing room. The players quietly changed into street clothes and left. Said coach Hap Clancy:

"That's the way it goes. I thought we gave it a pretty fair shot."

Intercounty Loop To Operate as Senior A League

GALT (CP)—The Senior Intercounty Baseball League Sunday decided it will operate the Senior A League in 1956.

Reports from Kitchener last week said there was a possibility the Independent league would fold and thereby necessitate a senior A league being run by the Intercounty baseball Association.

Representatives from the eight-team league—London, St. Thomas, Kitchener, Brantford, Waterloo, Oshawa, Guelph and Galt — expressed willingness to carry on this year.

Commissioner John Gillies of London, who previously said he was intending to retire, agreed to stay.

JUST TALK

IBA president Ernie Reeve of Galt said he thought talk about the Senior League disbanding resulted from lack of publicity from the senior centres.

Use of three junior players in all games was discussed. Gillies and Reeve will settle the issue. The Ontario Baseball Association will be asked if the senior Intercounty championships may compete in Ontario playoffs.

A schedule for the league will be submitted to club owners within 10 days for circulation at the next meeting, April 29.

Ports Juniors Grab 3-1 Lead

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — Port Arthur North Stars took a 3-1 lead in games over St. Boniface in their best-of-seven Memorial Cup series Bay Junior hockey series Sunday, whipping the Canadiens 6-3 in a rough contest which saw two players carried off the ice on stretchers.

Fifth game will be played here Tuesday night. The series winner meets either Regina Pats or Flin Flon Bombers for the western Memorial Cup final.

A capacity crowd saw Bruce Sauder of Canadiens go down with a broken leg after a clean bodycheck, while North Stars' John Mariucci was carried off with a twisted knee.

Carol Pachl Retains Skating Crown Chased to Wire by Toronto Girl

By PETER MAITLAND
Canadian Press Staff Writer

GALT (CP)—Carol Jane Pachl of Montreal Saturday night successfully defended her senior women's Canadian figure skating crown despite an injured back and a determined challenger who almost beat her in the final event.

The battle between the 17-year-old Montreal and Ann Johnston of Toronto climaxed the three-day Canadian figure skating championships which ended Saturday. Seventy-seven skaters competed for championship titles in the event which drew near-capacity crowds to Galt Arena Friday and Saturday nights.

The Czechoslovakian-born champion edged the 19-year-old Miss Johnston by less than five points on total scores. The margin was almost the same after the compulsory figures on which competitors earn 60 per cent of their total.

WORKED CAUTIOUSLY

Both girls worked cautiously in the free-skating event before a crowd of 2,500 in an attempt to avoid any mistake which might decide the championship. The Toronto skater, now a fashion model, held even with Miss Pachl during the free skating phase.

The two rivals placed sixth and seventh in the Olympics last month. Immediately after the end of the event, Miss Pachl left the rink to undergo another injection of anaesthetic. She injured a vertebrae during Olympic competitions and had to withdraw from world competitions. She is to be put into a cast next week to allow the injury to heal.

The event was the same as judged called out final marks of the two skaters after the event.

Miss Pachl received 1,527.83 and Miss Johnston 1,52.7.

SWELLING WINS AGAIN

In the senior men's Charles Snelling of Toronto retained his title in a convincing win over three challengers, all of them former junior champions. Snelling moved into the final with a 43-point lead from compulsory figures.

A new potential champion emerged, however, in the tiny figure of 15-year-old Donald Jackson of Ottawa. His fast, snappy free-skating routine moved him to second from third place in the earlier figures.

Two Toronto teen-agers, Barbara Wagner, 17, and Robert Paul, 18, won the senior pairs title after the 1955 champions withdrew from the event. They scored five firsts for a decisive win, over two other couples.

DID NOT DEFEND

Frances Dafoe and Norris Bowden of Toronto, long-time Canadian champions, announced a few minutes before the start of the event they would not defend their title.

The Toronto couple, who announced earlier this year they would retire from competitive skating, said they felt it was unwise to defend the title because of the uncertainty of their future plans.

Jeffery and Lindis Johnston of London, Ont., won the senior dance Canadian championship. Elaine Prothertoe and William Trimble of Winnipeg took first in the waltz competition.

FLAM BEATS SZEKAS

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Herb Flam won the men's singles title of the Coral Gables Invitational tennis tournament Sunday by defeating Vic Seixas, 3-6, 7-5, 6-3, 6-2. The 6th-ranked United States amateur from Berkeley, Calif., was down 3-6 in the final set. Pennsylvanian Seixas, who is top amateur in the U.S.

In the senior singles, Ray Summers of Toronto defeated Jack Kinlan of St. Petersburg 6-4, 6-1.

Miami Open Won By Dickenson

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Gardner Dickenson Jr., who surprised even himself by winning the Miami Beach Open, is another stirring example that brawn is not required in championship golf.

The skinny young Panama City, Fla., pro stroked a steady 69 in Sunday's final round, good enough to edge out by one stroke two husky members of the Pompano set—Billy Maxwell of Odessa, Tex., and Dow Finsterwald of Bedford Heights, O.

Although Dickinson pocketed top money of $2,400 for his 16-under-par 272, the tournament probably will be best remembered as "the one Maxwell lost."

FUTZER MISBEHAVED

The 36-year-old Texan, never worse than a tie for first, entered the final round with a five-stroke lead over Dickinson, who was second. But a misbehaving putter refused him to a 71 and a tie for second.

Gary Middlecoff of Dallas, Tex., who closed with a 69, and Bob Inman of Detroit, who had a 70, tied for fourth at 275. Jimmy Demaret's par-72 was good for sixth at 278 and Lew Worsham of Willoughby, Ohio, was next with 71 and 277.

Stan Leonard of Vancouver and Lacoste, Ive., had 75-66-70-71 Toronto earned $76.86 with 71-68-71-76—285.

Deadline April 15

Nine Clubs Possibly 14 Will Play In New City Softball Association

The Belleville City Softball Association set April 15th as the deadline for entries and promised "no red tape" at the annual meeting held yesterday afternoon.

The new executive, with president Bob Bisland as chairman, carried out the meeting in orderly manner with 14 persons in attendance.

At the first gathering 17 teams were represented but the numbers were greatly reduced yesterday. Nine clubs have expressed their definite desire to enter with the 14 expected to join the league. Several have full intention of participating but failed to show for the meeting while four clubs dropped out yesterday.

Carly's Distillery and Ontario Intelligencer will not enter teams while the Income Tax and Post Office are very doubtful. One new entry, Deloro Smelters, was in attendance.

After an executive meeting earlier in the week arrangements director "Red" Doran it was decided to play the Alemite Field lights for night games. Fields available are Alemite, Prince Charles, Queen Victoria, King George, Exhibition Park and CNE field.

The affiliation fee was set at $15.00 and must be forwarded to the secretary - treasurer, Leroy McBrien by the April 15th deadline.

It was decided that no imports would be allowed by any team and that no more than two firms could form a combined team. One umpire will be used per game with $2.00 the suggested fee. The league will care for the fields which do not have a caretaker.

The ruling on OASA players reads: "No OASA player of this or last year may participate and no OASA pitcher who has pitched in the last two years may pitch". This means a pitcher of two years ago could be used at another position.

The schedule is for recreation only It was decided that a team which shows for a game with only eight players can draw a player from the other team, providing they be at least 10 men. This can be done only with the consent of the opposing manager and the lone player must be replaced as soon as the short-handed team's ninth player arrives. He could then return to the game for his own team.

Barrie Ousts St. Michael's 2-0; Meet Marlboros

TORONTO (CP)—Barrie Flyers Saturday entered the Ontario hockey junior A finals by defeating Toronto St. Michael's Majors 2-0 in the last game of a best-of-five semi-final.

Barrie meets Toronto Marlboros, defending Memorial Cup champions, today in the first of a best-of-seven league finals.

The bone-jarring, teeth-rattling game Saturday kept most of the 7,322 afternoon fans on the edge of their seats.

Barrie captain Bob Beckett broke through a 0-0 tie at 11:45 of the second period when he circled the net and, with Toronto netminder Bob Savage sprawled on the ice, fired the puck into the open corner. Beckett has tallied 12 goals and four assists so far in the 13 playoff games.

Billy Forbes, who assisted on Beckett's goal, added the clincher at 19:30 of the third frame when he peppered one into the empty net. Barrie were one man shy at the time.

Officials handed out 14 minor penalties—eight to Barrie during the game.

BY SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

In answer to an opening one bid, an immediate jump response by partner promises several things. One is enough tricks to help make a game. Another is two sure tricks somewhere in the hand.

If such response is a takeout to a new suit it promises a suit that is biddable. If such responses is an assit it promises adequate support. If such response is no-trump it promises enough high cards.

An opener promises at least five tricks. So, a jump assist in a minor shows six. So does a jump takeout, because the trump suit has not been decided. Jump assist in a major shows five tricks.

NORTH
♦K 8 3
♣K Q

WEST
♠J 10 9 8
♥J 6
♦J 10 3
♣10 5 3

EAST
♥10 7 5 4
♦9 8 7 2
♣J 9 8 6

SOUTH
♥Q 9
♣A 7 4 2

The correct bidding goes like this:

South	North
1 Spade	3 Spades
4 No-Trump	5 Spades
6 Spades	Pass

Lacking a biddable suit for a takeout, north assists spades with his adequate support. With five tricks inclusive of two sures you can see why his first response of three spades is correct.

With a count of eight tricks in his own hand, south then sees at least 12 in the pair. Consequently, he probes for slam with the four no-trump convention that asks about aces and kings.

Five spades in reply is Gordon convention signal for showing one ace and two kings. Thus does south learn that the opponents have one king. This decides him to go to six.

Even with all aces and kings a grand slam may be in doubt. But the convention helps keep a player out of a lot of bad slams. At least, it tells players when a grand slam is too dangerous.

Make six spades with a trump lead. You can.

Little Benny's Notebook

I was watching ma darning holes out of socks, and I said, Hay ma, ma and Pads Simkins had a new idea for a club, but it didn't work darn it.

Oh, you and your clubs, ma said. Meeting us fellows are, always trying to start a new one, and I said, Well this was a swell idea. Meeting us fellows are to help save the Athaletics, and all the money was scraped up for dumbells and Indian clubs and punching bags and things like that. Ma and pops were the founders, and I was excused us from paying any dues, and that's what the other guys all-objected to, I said.

Well I should think they would be glad to get rid of you, and I said, But G, we only wanted to be excused for the dues, Heck, I wish it wasn't so hard to start a club around here, said.

If you wanted to do with some nice educational object, it might have a longer life, ma said. A club for reeding and discussion, for instants, she said, and I said, G, ma could we meet here?

Certainly, at least occasionally, ma said. A club with such a worthwhile endeavor would be welcome to meet at any of the boys' houses, I'm sure. I can't think of a nicer idea than exchanging and discussing books, she said, and I said. Oh boy. The Comic Book Club and Argewment Sinsiety.

Goodness, perish the thought, ma said, and I got well jumping ters, ma, I thought you just said any club for reeding and talking it would be a swell idea.

Then you were misinformed, ma said. You know my opinion of comic books, she said.

Which I do, being the opposite of mine, and that was the first and last of the Comic Book Club and Argewment Sinsiety.

Right now she is back in the acting field again, starring in My Friend Flicka, which is being filmed by 20th Century-Fox's television subsidiary. Her husband, Buddy Adler, is production boss of the studio, and she rears two children, 8 and 5, and serves as president of the UCLA Medical School auxiliary.

Though she started her film career in 1924, she looks almost as young as when she was playing ingenues. The secret of her youth may be her constant activity.

EARLY START

"I've always kept busy," said the actress, who was a model at 3 and made her stage debut at 6. Her career continued through the silents and into the talkies with such films as Judge Priest, The Story of Louis Pasteur, Anthony Adverse and Green Light.

"I left pictures in 1947 to have my family," she remarked. "But I still kept up my charity work. Now the children are going to school and they are gone most of the day. So I figured it was a good time to start acting again."

After only a few weeks on TV, Flicka has been giving Rin-Tin-Tin trouble in the Friday night spot.

How have her children reacted to the show?

"They think it's wonderful, and they like the idea of my working. By now they've gotten over the novelty of seeing me on the screen and can settle down and enjoy the show."

FIRE ON SHIP

SINGAPORE (AP) — A French merchant vessel which arrived here Sunday night said it was fired on by unknown tinckers on the left bank of the Mekong river in South Viet Nam territory Thursday. The 800-ton Song Be was bound from Phnom Penh, capital of Cambodia, to Singapore. The hold of the vessel was damaged but there were no casualties.

Charged With Murder

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ronald Clifford Dingman, 18, was charged with murder Sunday night in the stabbing death of Raymond Dubois, 29-year-old Algerian.

Police said Dingman had been talking in French with a number of friends at a beer parlor table Saturday night when a man leaped up from an adjoining table and sank a knife into Dubois' stomach.

Dingman, six-foot-four and 185 pounds, was arrested after police studied a cab driver's trip report. The driver said he had carried a youth who laid a blood-stained knife on the seat. The knife has not been found.

ARAB DISORDER

CAIRO (Reuters) — The Arab news agency reported from Aden that one man was killed today when troops opened fire on striking workers in Little Aden. Two workers were electrocuted when trying out a cable, one during demodstrations. Five thousand workers in the Little Aden oil refinery are on strike for more pay and better conditions.

BOMB AFTERMATH

TOKYO (Reuters)—Radioactive rain fell in western Japan Friday and Saturday, the Kochi meteorological observatory reported Sunday. (It was announced in London and Washington on Wednesday that Russia had exploded a fifth nuclear device in eight months.)

DOENITZ ILL

BERLIN (AP)—Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz, 64, last chief of Hitler's navy, is seriously ill inside Spandau war crimes prison, informed sources said Sunday. He is serving a 10-year sentence for war crimes, and is scheduled to be released next October.

Toronto Youths Stroll Across Frozen Niagara

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y. (AP)—Veteran riverman were stunned today at the feat of two Toronto youths who blithely strolled across the frozen Niagara river Sunday night carrying duffle bags and blanket rolls.

Park police said the two lads, John Stewart, 24, and Charles Hunter, 15, took their lives in their hands in risking the 2,500-foot crossing.

The boys travelled from the base of the Rainbow bridge on the Canadian side to a point near the Mald of the Mist landing at the foot of the falls.

They told police they were on their way to Florida.

The boys were returned under escort to Ontario authorities who told them to find an easier way to get south.

Serov Ignores Attacks by British Press

LONDON (AP) — Gen. Ivan Serov, chief of the Soviet secret police, today shrugged off accusations of "butcher" and "murderer" appearing in British newspapers.

"I don't think the allegations made by newspaper correspondents are worthy of my attention," he told a reporter outside the Soviet embassy. They spoke without knowing the true facts."

Serov is in England to co-ordinate security arrangements with Scotland Yard for the April visit of Soviet premier Nikolai Bulganin and Communist party boss Nikita Khrushchev.

The British press, while generally holding out hope for some good coming out of the Bulganin-Khrushchev visit, has been bitterly hostile to Serov's presence.

FAMILY MAN

Serov has gone out of his way to pickup himself as just a "family man" doing a routine job.

Willingly, he poses for photographers outside the Soviet embassy and engaged in chit-chat.

Serov has indicated he will leave for home within a few days and possibly come back to England with Bulganin and Khrushchev on April 18.

British Actor, Robert Newton, Dies in Calif.

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP)—British actor Robert Newton, the wily, gravel-voiced "Long John Silver" of Hollywood and the movies, died at his home Sunday of a heart attack. He was 56.

Newton returned to Hollywood last June after a year in Australia where he made a film version of "Long John Silver" and filmed 39 half-hour television shows based on the character.

The veteran of stage, screen and television was one of the few character actors in the business, except for an occasional glamorous title types. From 1947 through 1951 he was voted one of the top 10 money-makers at British films.

Moving Troops From West Africa

ALGIERS (Reuters)—An airlift of 2,000 French troops from French West Africa began during the night in reliance with 200,000 French troops now tied down in Algeria by 15,000 Nationalist rebels.

The first flying Boxcar landed at Maison Blanche airfield near Algiers shortly after midnight. Other loads of troops are expected each day during the 10-day operation.

Police shot to death three armed men who led them into an ambush Sunday near Nedroma, western Algeria, after promising to show them where to arrest a group of terrorists.

More than 70 per cent of North Africans working in factories in northern France signed work cards in response to a strike call by Algerian Nationalists.

Ex-Communist Declares Soviet Revolution Begun

WASHINGTON (AP)—A former Soviet intelligence officer says the Russian leaders' denunciation of Stalin is a desperate attempt to retain their power. It indicates, he said, "the revolution has already begun."

Nikolai E. Khokhlov, who defected to the West in 1954 after 13 years in the Soviet intelligence service, gives that appraisal in a copyrighted interview published today by the magazine U. S. News and World Report.

The 20th congress of the Soviet Communist party in February, he says, "openly and publicly confirmed that dictatorship cannot exist any longer in the Soviet Union. Without publicly saying so, it actually confessed the complete bankruptcy of the Soviet system."

Some Western leaders have contended the present Russian rulers dared denounce Stalin only after they felt secure in their present power.

Khokhlov discounts that idea, saying "if they were really strong, they could simply have reformed the government, started a new kind of regime and explained it all by saying that conditions had changed and so the government was changing. They would not have felt it necessary to go to all that trouble of blaming Stalin."

SEES GREATER THREAT IN RADIOACTIVITY

Dr. Ralph E. Lapp, noted U.S. atomic scientist, points to a fall-out shielding chart in Washington, as he tells a House subcommittee studying civil defence problems that the power of superbombs can be tripled. Each weapon, he said, could spread "serious to lethal" radioactivity over a 20,000 square mile area. He declared that failure to make available public information on radioactive fall-out has left the North American continent with "an extremely fragile glass jaw."

He says Khrushchev tried and failed to make himself a dictator like Stalin.

"Now," he added, "the members of the Soviet ruling clique are a failure of the whole system of trying to save their skins. But it's not just a failure of Khrushchev. It was a failure of the whole system of dictatorship. It was even more important than that. It was a failure of the whole system of communism."

Press Secretary To Queen Angry About Articles

LONDON (CP) — Buckingham Palace said today it has drawn the attention of the press council to a series of articles now appearing in Woman, a British weekly magazine.

The articles are by Frederick Corbitt, formerly deputy controller of supply on the court staff. Cmdr. Richard Colville, press secretary to the Queen, has written to the council that the series is typical of the stores to which the palace takes exception.

Last year, the council published a letter from the palace, saying that conditions of service for employment in the royal household now include a ban against publishing "any incident or conversation" regarding the Royal Family. The letter said the prohibition was to ensure the Queen of "the privacy at home which all other families are entitled to enjoy."

Some years ago palace authorities were shocked by publication of a book The Little Princess by Marion Crawford, governess to the Queen (as Princess Elizabeth) and Princess Margaret for 17 years.

The series of articles in Woman consists mainly of a detailed account of palace catering arrangements. Among other things, Corbitt mentions the gradual development of an "economy" mentality and relates how the Duke of Edinburgh inspected nearly all of the rooms at Buckingham Palace to find out how things were being run.

The press council, set up to keep an eye on newspaper standards, will probably mention the palace complaint in its next report.

Roof of Peterborough Jail Set Afire by Welder's Torch

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Police reinforcements were taken to Peterborough county jail today when a spark from a welder's torch set fire to the roof of the two-storey stone building.

The fire was under control an hour later. Damage was confined to part of the roof. Officials said the 12 prisoners would be able to stay in the building.

Jail officials said welders had been repairing pipes near the roof on the fire started about 11:45 a.m. Prisoners were taken from their cells into the corridors until the outbreak could be got under control.

City and provincial police were called in to assist jail guards in handling prisoners.

British Paper Says Malenkov's Aides Vanish

LONDON (AP) — The Daily Mail said it learned that several associates of Georgi Malenkov, former Soviet premier, have evidently vanished after being removed from their posts.

The newspaper said reports on Russia indicate the men have been arrested in a move by Nikita Khrushchev against Malenkov, who now is on a tour of British power stations.

Malenkov, protege of Stalin, stepped down from the premiership a year ago because of self-confessed failures in office. He now is head of the ministry of power stations.

The Mail says the missing officials include: V. M. Andrianov, chief of the Communist party of the Leningrad area; F. A. Mamanov, former committee chairman of Kirmsk, capital of the central Asian republic of Kazakhstan; P. N. Pysan, former Communist boss in the province of Molotov, and B. N. Titov, first secretary in the Crimea (United Press).

CANADA GETTING 50 NEW HAMLETS IN ARCTIC AREA

Will Be Main Sites Of New Radar Line

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Somewhere on the Dew Line (CP)—Canada is getting some 30 new hamlets in the Arctic, courtesy of the United States.

These are the main radar sites in the DEW (distant early warning) radar line being built by the U.S. across 3,000 miles of the barren lands from Labrador to the southern Baffin island to Tuktoyaktuk on the Beaufort sea near the Alaska border.

When the line comes into operation, possibly next year, each of these stations will be staffed by about 30 men, including some Eskimos as maintenance workers.

About 5,000 men are employed in erecting the electronic fence, roughly along the 70th parallel and some 250 miles inside the Arctic circle.

MAY BE SUPERSEDED

Even after the DEW and other radar lines across Canada are no longer needed—and they may eventually be superseded by guided and ballistic missiles—the radar sites will be used for many years to survive in 10 years.

Some northerners believe that the buildings on the sites then will be used to house surveyors and prospectors for large-scale mineral exploration of the north.

For some 10 months, planes have been lifting construction materials, diesel fuel and rations into the 30 scattered sites. Only there have been few fatal crashes, the wrecks of planes that have had to make a belly landing under the snow near remote airstrips.

The DEW line will provide the first line of defence for attack on North America coming from over the pole. Early warning will be given by the Mid-Canada line along the 55th parallel and warning jet interceptor squadrons to prepare to meet the attack. Operations of the Pinetree radar net, controlled by the Pinetree radar network, along the 50th parallel.

NO THAW TILL JUNE

The radar and electronic equipment for the $250,000,000 Canadian section of the DEW extends on the flanks into Alaska and Greenland, but it cannot be moved in until the buildings are ready, maybe this summer.

The temperatures up here now run to 30 or even 30 degrees below zero (Fahrenheit) but the real temperatures fall as low as 70 degrees below zero.

Construction of the buildings presented a serious problem because there was no timber around. Prefab foundations have been used. Even the gravel for concrete must be used in the prefabricated buildings.

Power at all sites is provided by diesel electric generators. Some of the stations on the Mid-Canada line will require 1,200 to 1,300 tons of diesel fuel a year. If this fuel is not flown in, it will mean many DC-3 plane flights.

Strangely enough, the Russians are helping—indirectly, of course—in construction of the DEW line. Much of the steel supplied by the Russians, including information from Soviet Russia, is used in the central Arctic basin and other northern stations, is put to good use in the three-year timber in the Canadian north.

Canada receives up to 1,000 weather reports from Russia every 24 hours. In return, Canada broadcasts about 800 a day for Russia and all other countries.

Georgi Tak's High and Low Roads At 70 to Sing at Burns' Birthplace

GLASGOW (Reuters) — Russia's then joined hands with thatchers Georgi Malenkov, travelling the high roads and low roads of Scotland at speeds up to 70 miles an hour, snatched time today to realize a life-long ambition and visit the birthplace of poet Robert Burns.

His pilgrimage to the humble cottage where Scotland's warm-hearted bard was born in 1759 was the more gracious Malenkov could find to say about the snow ploughs and bulldozers that have kept Russia's roads open.

Burns in Russian, listened to long quotations in lilting Gaelic, and

Then Russia's minister of power stations raced off in a high-powered car to catch up with his official programme.

Wednesday he leaves the delegation of electrical experts which has been leading through Britain for almost two weeks, and returns to London. He has offered no reason for cutting short his scheduled tour by a week.

Probe Poisoned Soft Drinks On Eisenhower's Railway Car

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W.Va. (AP)—Secret service agents and railroad investigators joined today in trying to find out whether "poisoned" soft drinks were put aboard a private car later used by President Eisenhower on his trip here to meet Prime Minister St. Laurent of Canada and the president of Mexico.

U. E. Baughman, secret service chief, who described the attempt on his men, said in an interview: "It may take another three or four days to run this thing to earth."

A spokesman for the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad said its investigators are working with Baughman's agents.

Howard Skidmore, railroad public relations director, put out a statement Monday night saying three persons who drank ginger ale aboard one of the railroad's private cars last Thursday later became ill. Two were taken to hospital.

Baughman said he wanted to emphasize that in getting some 30 men into this resort for the conferences with the leaders of Canada and Eisenhower already boarded the train Sunday night and scrutinized here Monday morning.

"We don't think there has been any foul play aimed at the president," Baughman said. "But we do want to find out how it came to be in about the situation."

Baughman called the investigation "routine" but he refused to secret service, whose job it is to guard the president, "must look into all such matters of this kind."

Syria Seeking to Sidetrack U.S. Peace Mission Proposal

By WILLIAM N. OATIS

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) A new Arab delaying action today threatened a United States plan to send Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold on a United Nations Palestine peace mission.

In Damascus, Syrian Premier Ghazzi told the Syrian Parliament that his government opposes the U.S. proposal shifted from the Security Council to the General Assembly. Western sources fear that the Soviet Union, in line with its recent pro-Arab policy, would support such a Syrian move.

The 11-member Council agreed Monday to postpone a vote on the American proposal at least until next Tuesday, to study a brief new agreement on measures to reduce the explosive tensions along Israel's frontiers with the Arab states.

Backed by Britain, France and Australia, the U. S. had hoped for Council approval this week so the secretary-general could leave next Monday on a three-week swing through London, Paris and the Middle Eastern capitals.

Sweeps Did Not Get a Tumble In Committee

TORONTO (CP)—A suggestion that Ontario organize sweepstakes to finance a hospital construction plan was made today, but it did not even get out of the starting gate.

Arthur Reaume (L — Essex north) told the legislature's health committee it should consider sweepstakes as a method of raising the money for a government-sponsored hospital plan.

Only one member, however, even partly supported the idea. Premier Frost, other members said a special study was needed on the financial aspects of a plan opposed in detail.

The meeting also saw a verbal outbreak between Premier Frost and T. D. Jutten (CCF—Dufferin).

The premier said he objected strongly to a statement made Monday night in the legislature that cost figures being studied by the committee are "deliberately distorted" to defeat the principle of the plan.

Mr. Thomas replied he wished to withdraw the word "deliberately" but he still felt the figures were over-estimated.

KINGSTON RATE UP

KINGSTON (CP)—City council Monday night approved the 1956 city budget, based on a total assessment of $49,125,300 and a tax rate of 69.89 mills, an increase of 5.84 mills over last year's rate.

MIKOYAN SAYS STALIN ISSUE INTERNAL AFFAIR

It Has No Relation To Other Red Lands

NEW DELHI (AP)—A. I. Mikoyan, deputy premier of the Soviet Union, asserted today that the present Soviet regime's criticism of Stalin will strengthen the Soviet Communist party and assure its future success.

Mikoyan made the statement to newsmen here at a Soviet embassy reception in his honor. He is visiting India to confer with Prime Minister Nehru and other government officials.

He said there is no intention by the Soviet regime to revise its judgment of Leon Trotsky, who was denounced as a traitor and was murdered in exile. Some sources have speculated that the current denunciations of Stalin, the arch rival in the 1920s, would result in a rehabilitation of Trotsky as a Soviet hero.

INTERNAL MATTER

Asked whether the criticism of Stalin will mean rule—Stalin's dictatorship — would spread to satellite countries of Red China, Mikoyan said the matter was internal to the Soviet Union, "not general — and a question that has no relation to other countries."

He conceded there had been opposition within his country after he and party secretary Nikita Khrushchev criticized Stalin at the Communist party congress in Moscow last month.

"However," he added, "there was no unrest."

Will Not Pay Increased Fee For Dog Licences

HOLLAND LANDING, Ont. (CP) — Kennel owner Joseph Forster said Monday that before he pays a $340 increase in dog-licence fees he will let police shoot 60 hunting hounds he took eight years to train.

Mr. Forster said Monday that they will "cut their own throats," he said, "if dogs were a bulwark against rabies in the area. In the last three months of 1955 the Simcoe and Ruiz Curtines had been. There were 10 foxes here, 40 miles north of Toronto.

Mr. Forster, who used to pay only a $10 kennel tax, said he has been ordered to buy individual licences this year.

No Wonder He Kept Awake

LONDON (Reuters)—A husband complained in the London divorce court Monday that his wife used to sit in a chair at night with a carving knife in her hand threatening to stab him if he fell asleep.

The judge noted that the husband's wife was "a quiet, placid type, calm even when the wife slapped him in the face." He granted him a decree on grounds of cruelty.

North Bay Housewife Bitten by Fox Refuses to Take Anti-Rabies Shots

NORTH BAY (CP)—A 56-year-old housewife who reported she was bitten by a fox says she will not take anti-rabies treatments because she doesn't care whether she dies.

Mrs. John Hart said she was attacked on her back porch last week by a fox which bit her leg. Dr. R. H. Dillane, medical officer of health at nearby Powassan, said he thought the fox had rabies. Mrs. Hart refused a free series of 14 daily anti-rabies injections, known as the Pasteur treatment.

Authorities say the fox must surely have been rabid to attack from a rabid animal almost certainly leads to infection.

Mrs. Hart has ignored the entreaties of three married daughters, two brothers and her husband, who works for a lumber camp 30 miles at Temagami, to take treatment.

"She just says she is willing to take a chance and doesn't care virus.

Canada, Mexico And U.S. Leaders Open Conference

Eisenhower Host at Dinner In Senate Room Get Together

By GEORGE KITCHEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (CP)—A three-power conference, designed to further continental relationships and include a review of the world situation, was opened here today by Canada, the United States and Mexico.

President Eisenhower, Prime Minister St. Laurent and President Ruiz Cortines opened the first formal session at 10 a.m. (EST) after a round of talks in Eisenhower's presidential suite in the Greenbrier hotel. conference site in this Allegheny mountain resort town 250 miles southwest of Washington.

With the three leaders were their foreign ministers and other key members of their staffs. The Canadian group included External Affairs Minister Pearson, M. J. Hennessy, Canadian ambassador to the United States, and Norman Robertson, assistant undersecretary of state for external affairs.

The opening session was to be followed by a 1 p. m. luncheon, attended only by the three government heads and their foreign ministers. It was expected that the last session would take place this afternoon, with Eisenhower meeting separately with the Canadian leader and Ruiz Cortines. Eisenhower will entertain the three delegations at dinner this evening.

While the talks have been widely advertised in advance as a get-together aimed at improving continental relationship, there was little doubt they would roam far beyond these confines and take in a general review of world problems.

The three leaders arrived here Monday, Eisenhower in the morning and the other two in the late afternoon, and had a warmup get-together last evening at dinner in Eisenhower's quarters.

ENTERTAINMENT PLANNED

Officials later pronounced the dinner a success. In informal, relaxed atmosphere, Eisenhower was in a reminiscent mood and carried the conversational ball, telling stories of his wartime experiences. Informal toasts were exchanged.

Many of the 14 at the black-tie dinner had met earlier in the day and the evening gave them an opportunity to get acquainted. It was the first time for Eisenhower and Ruiz Cortines met.

The president let Canadian Secretary Dulles, External Affairs Minister Pearson and Foreign Minister Martin of Mexico and other members of the delegation do the entertaining.

With officials insisting that the conference is designed only to enable the three leaders to get to know one another better, the nearly 200 correspondents who gathered here for this first top level United States-Canadian-Mexican conference had been put to find a "sleeper" in the reasons for it. There is no formal agenda.

The conference was proposed by Eisenhower and White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty passed along to a press briefing session Monday the president's view that it was "an invitation to discuss two neighbors who never meet—just as they might invite neighbors in for dinner or for the weekend, people living on either side of their house."

Britain Plans Bomber to Fly At 1500 MPH

LONDON (AP)—The supply ministry was reported today to have placed orders for development of a British bomber which may fly at 1,500 miles an hour.

There has been no official announcement, but the contract is said to have been given to A. V. Roe and Co. of Manchester, producers of Britain's fast delta-wing Vulcan bomber.

The super-bomber is not expected to be available for regular operations with the RAF until some time in 1960.

Court Orders Man's Release

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Court of Appeal Monday ordered the release of a Toronto man sentenced last December to a year in prison after being convicted of stealing two 5-gal. gas heater last November in a fit of temper and then set fire to the gas "to prevent it from spreading through the house and causing an explosion."

J. A. Mahon, Armstrong's counsel, said his client should not have been charged with wilfully setting fire to the gas. He said Armstrong turned on the 5-gal heater last November in a fit of temper and then set fire to the gas "to prevent it from spreading through the house and causing an explosion."

Suspect Caught By Employees

TORONTO (CP) — Two employees of the Bloor branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce Monday caught a suspected bank robber who tried to hold up the bank.

Accountant Allan Scaife and an assistant accountant, Alfred Cooper grappled with the man in an alley and wrestled him to the ground. They then held him until police arrived and took him into custody.

The would-be robber was frightened by a girl teller's scream when he showed his gun and demanded money.

Murdoch Harris, 30, was charged with attempted armed robbery.

The DEW line will provide the initial defence of any air attack on North America coming from over the Pole. Second warning will be given by the Mid-Canada line along the 55th parallel and then the jet interceptor squadrons to prepare to meet the attack. Operations of the Mid-Canada line controlled by the Pinetree radar network, also on the 55th parallel.

NO THAW TILL JUNE

The radar and electronic equipment for the $250,000,000 Canadian section of the line—it extends on the flanks into Alaska and Greenland—will be covered until the buildings are ready, maybe this summer.

Temperatures up here now run to 20 or even 30 degrees below zero before a rise in the mercury. Temperatures fall as low as 70 degrees below zero.

Construction of the buildings presented a serious problem because of the permafrost. Only a few possible foundations have been used, mostly gravel ridges. Most have been used in the prefabricated building.

Power at all sites is provided by diesel electric generators. Some of the stations have huge towers which require 1,200 to 1,700 tons of diesel fuel a year. If this fuel is thrown in the sea, it soon makes flame flights.

Interestingly enough, the Russians are helping—indirectly, of course—in construction of the DEW line. Other than the supplied by the Russians, including information from Soviet ice breakers in the Canadian Arctic basin and other northern stations, is put to good use in forecasting weather in the Canadian north.

The fire was under control an hour later. Damage was confined to part of the roof. Officials said the 34 prisoners would be able to stay in the building.

Jail officials said welders had been repairing pipes near the roof when the fire started about 11:45 a.m. Prisoners were taken from their cells into the corridors until the outbreak could be got under control.

City and provincial police were called in to assist jail guards in handling prisoners.

British Paper Says Malenkov's Aides Vanish

LONDON (AP) —The Daily Mail says it has learned that several associates of Georgi Malenkov, former Soviet premier, have suddenly vanished after being removed from public posts.

The newspaper says reports from Russia indicate the men have been arrested in a move by Nikita Khrushchev against Malenkov, who now is on a tour of British power stations.

Malenkov, protege of Stalin, stepped down from the premiership a year ago because of self-confessed failures in office. He now is head of the ministry of power stations.

The Mail says the missing officials include: V. M. Andrianov, chief of the Communist party in the Leningrad area; F. A. Maximov, former committee chairman of Alma-Ata, capital of the central Asian republic of Kazakhstan; F. E. Presnov, former Communist boss in the province of Molotov, and P. Tikhny, first secretary in the Crimea until 1954.

Airliner Dives To Dodge Jet

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — An airliner had to go into a violent dive over central England today to avoid collision with a Vampire jet fighter heading straight at it.

Some passengers required first-aid treatment, and both aircraft crews were x-rayed after the plane arrived here.

Minister Will Address Union

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—London Council (CIO-CCL) Monday called a special meeting April 18 to hear a local United Church minister explain why he feels labor's right to strike should be "restrained."

In a letter to the group, Rev. George W. Goth of Metropolitan United said he would be glad to address council, but "I have no desire to become involved in a debate."

"The church stand on labor," he said, "has been progressive and clear. The church welcomes constructive criticism. In fact, criticism is a must if an institution is to survive.

"I am amazed at the extreme sensitiveness of labor groups by the slightest suggestion that they may be better ways to achieve the common good. Frequently the best criticism comes to us from an outsider—from one who can be objective."

Georgi Tak's High and Low Roads At 70 to Sing at Burns' Birthplace

GLASGOW (Reuters) — Russia's then Georgi Malenkov, travelling the high roads and low roads of Scotland at speeds up to 70 miles an hour, snatched time today to realize a life-long ambition and visit the birthplace of poet Robert Burns.

His pilgrimage to the humble cottage where Scotland's warm-hearted bard was born in 1759 was by no more genuine. Malenkov quoted Burns in Russian, listened to long quotations in lilting Gaelic, and joined hands with thatchers who had been repairing the roof of the cottage to the classic "Auld Lang Syne."

Then Russia's minister of power stations raced off in a high-powered car to catch up with his official program.

Wednesday he leaves the delegation of electrical experts which he has been leading through Britain for almost two weeks, and returns to London. He has offered no reason for cutting short his scheduled tour by a week.

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W.Va. (AP)—Secret service agents and railroad investigators joined today in trying to find out whether "poisoned" soft drinks were put aboard a private car later used by President Eisenhower on his trip here to meet Prime Minister St. Laurent of Canada, and the president of Mexico.

U. E. Baughman, secret service chief, who ordered an inquiry into his men, said in an interview: "It may take another two or four days to run this thing to earth." A spokesman for the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad said its investigators are working with Baughman's agents.

Howard Skidmore, railroad public relations director, put out a statement Monday night saying three persons who drank ginger ale aboard one of the railroad's private cars last Thursday later became ill. Two were taken to hospital.

Baughman said he wanted to emphasize that the drinks in question were not aboard the car when Eisenhower arrived here from Washington in this resort for the conferences with the leaders of Canada and Mexico. Eisenhower boarded the train Sunday night and arrived here Monday morning.

"We don't think there has been any plot aimed at the president," Baughman said. "But we do want to find out if there is to know about the situation."

Baughman called the investigation a routine, secret matter with secret service, whose job it is to guard the president. "I must look into all such matters of this kind."

"We want to find out whether the soft drinks were poisoned, or whether folks affected may have gotten some bad food before they ever came aboard the car."

Skidmore's statement said:

"C. and O. office car Chessie 29, the car of Walter J. Tuohy, president of the C. and O., was in the C. and O. shops at Huntington, W. Va., last week for a routine mechanical inspection.

"On Thursday night it was taken on test run to Washington with three mechanical service people and one of two crew members—the chef—aboard. . . .

"Before the car left it was visited briefly by the wife of one of the mechanical men, his 13-year-old son, two members of his wife, and one of their young sons, aged 11. In all, nine people were in the car. . . .

"Ginger ale was served but not all drank it. None of those who did drink it commented on its unpleasant taste.

"The train left and the women went home without untoward incident. Later that night three of the sons who had taken ginger ale were stricken with nausea.

"One of the mechanical men left the train at Washington and went to his home in Alexandria, Va., critical. One woman was ill at Huntington but has recovered. A second woman went to a hospital in Huntington where she is recovering.

"Three bottles of ginger ale and similar bottles of soft drinks in laboratory in Baltimore where tests found nothing wrong. Three more bottles of ginger ale were sent to the West Virginia state laboratory at Charleston, W.Va. The tests will not be complete until tomorrow (today)."

By WILLIAM N. OATIS

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—A new Arab delaying action today threatened a United States plan to send Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold on a United Nations Palestine peace mission.

In Damascus, Premier Sabri Al-Ghazzi told the Syrian Parliament that his government wants the U.S. proposal shifted from the Security Council to the General Assembly. Western sources said that the Soviet Union, in line with its pro-Arab policy, would back support such a Syrian move.

The 11-member council agreed Monday to postpone a vote on the American proposal at least until next Tuesday, to enable Israel and her four Arab neighbors—Syria, Egypt, Lebanon and Jordan—to speak on it.

The delay was opposed by chief U. S. delegate, Henry Cabot Lodge, who called on the council to waste no time in "vindicating and making the full authority of the United Nations to deal with the present ominous drift."

Should Syria succeed in getting the American proposal transferred to the General Assembly, the main UN group might not take it up at its March 31 call or early winter. The 1956 assembly session, which normally would start Sept. 18, is slated to be delayed until after the U. S. presidential election Nov. 6.

Syria made no secret of her opposition to two American plans. El Ghazi told the Damascus Parliament that the proposal is contrary to Arab interests and contains "completely new matters that should be debated and voted upon in the General Assembly and not in the Security Council."

The resolution would have Hammarskjold, in conferences with all concerned, try to get a truce agreement on measures to reduce the explosive tensions along Israel's frontiers with the Arab states.

Backed by Britain, France and Australia, the U. S. had hoped for speedy approval of the plan by the secretary-general could leave next Monday on a three-week swing through Israel, Arab lands and the Middle Eastern capitals.

No Wonder He Kept Awake

LONDON (Reuters)—A husband complained in the London divorce court Monday that his wife used to sit in a chair all night with a carving knife in her hand threatening to kill him if he fell asleep.

The judge noted that the husband, Frank Fleet, was "a quiet, mild man who never hit his wife slapped him in the face" and granted Fleet a decree on grounds of cruelty.

Sweeps Did Not Get a Tumble In Committee

TORONTO (CP)—A suggestion that Ontario organize sweepstakes to finance a hospital-insurance plan was made today, but it did not even get out of the starting gate.

Arthur Reaume (L — Essex north) told the legislature's health committee it should consider sweepstakes as a method of raising the money for a government-sponsored hospital plan.

Only one member, however, even partly supported the idea. Premier Frost, other members and a spokesman for hospitals on the financial aspects of a plan opposed it.

The meeting also saw a verbal outbreak between Premier Frost and T. Thomas (CCF-Hamilton).

The premier said he objected strongly to a statement made Monday night in the legislature that the figures being studied by the committee are "deliberately disfigured" to discredit any feature of the plan.

Mr. Thomas replied he wished withdraw the word "deliberately" but he still felt the figures were over-estimated.

KINGSTON (CP)—City council Monday night approved the 1956 city budget, based on a total assessment of $46,940,180 and a tax rate of 69.80 mills, an increase of 5.94 mills over last year's rate.

Elias Mallpitis, 29, was shot three times as he walked toward his house. The gunmen apparently were waiting for him. Troops placed the area under curfew and searched all houses for the killers.

The shooting in the town of Limassol came as Harding told the Executive Council in Nicosia that the cost of fighting the terrorist campaign will amount to some £7,500,000 before the fight is over.

In a budget address, Harding said Britain will contribute £750,000 of this amount.

MIKOYAN SAYS STALIN ISSUE INTERNAL AFFAIR

It Has No Relation To Other Red Lands

NEW DELHI (AP)—A. I. Mikoyan, deputy premier of the Soviet Union, asserted today that the present Soviet regime's criticism of Stalin will strengthen the Soviet Communist party and assure its future success.

Mikoyan made the statement to newspaper men at a farewell embassy reception in his honor. He is visiting India to confer with Prime Minister Nehru and other government officials.

He said there is no intention by the Soviet regime to revise its judgment of Leon Trotsky, who was denounced as a traitor and was murdered in exile. Some sources have speculated that the current denunciations of Stalin's search rival in the 1920s, would result in a rehabilitation of Trotsky as a Soviet hero.

INTERNAL MATTER

Asked whether the criticism of the cult of one-man rule—Stalin's dictatorship — would spread to other countries such as Red China, Mikoyan said the matter was internal to the Soviet Union, "and internal issues do not interest us. It has no relation to other countries."

He conceded there had been opposition within his country after he and party secretary Nikita Khrushchev criticized Stalin at the Communist party congress in Moscow last month.

However," he added, "there was no unrest."

Canada, Mexico And U.S. Leaders Open Conference

Eisenhower Host at Dinner In Neighborly Get Together

By GEORGE KITCHEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (CP)—A three-power conference, designed to further continental relationships and include a review of the world situation, was opened here today by Canada, the United States and Mexico.

President Eisenhower, Prime Minister St. Laurent and President Ruiz Cortines opened the first formal session of a series of talks in Eisenhower's presidential suite in the Greenbrier hotel conference site in this Allegheny mountain resort town 250 miles southwest of Washington.

With the three leaders were their foreign ministers and other key members of their staffs. The Canadian group included External Affairs Minister Pearson, U. D. Heeney, Canadian ambassador to the United States, and Hume Wrong, ambassador to the United States.

Mexico's delegation was headed by Foreign Minister Manuel Tello.

The opening session was to be followed by a 1 p. m. luncheon, attended only by the three government heads and their foreign ministers. It was expected that the first session would take place this afternoon, with Eisenhower meeting separately with the Canadian leader and Ruiz Cortines. Eisenhower will entertain the three delegations at dinner this evening.

While the talks have been widely advertised in advance as ones being aimed at improving continental relationship, there was little doubt they would roam far beyond these confines and take in a general review of world problems.

The three leaders arrived here Monday. Eisenhower in the morning and the other two in the late afternoon, and had a warmup get-together last evening at dinner in Eisenhower's quarters.

REMINISCENT MOOD

Officials said announced the dinner a success. In its informal, relaxed atmosphere, Eisenhower was in a reminiscent mood and carried the conversational ball, it was reported, with his personal experiences. Informal toasts were exchanged.

Many of the 14 at the black-tie dinner never had met before and the evening gave them an opportunity to get acquainted. It was the first time that Mr. St. Laurent and Ruiz Cortines had met.

The guest list included State Department Dulles, External Affairs Minister Pearson and Foreign Minister Luis Padilla Nervo of Mexico and other members of the delegations at the conference.

With officials insisting that the conference is designed solely to enable the three men to get to know one another better, the security officers surrounding the conference here for this first top level United States-Canada-Mexico parley were just as tight as they "sleepers" in the reasons for it. There is no formal agenda.

The conference was proposed by Eisenhower and White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty passed along to a press briefing session Monday the president's view that it was "an invitation to meet—a two neighborly get-together—just as they might invite neighbors in for dinner or for the evening to get acquainted in a friendly way."

North Bay Housewife Bitten by Fox Refuses to Take Anti-Rabies Shots

NORTH BAY (CP)—A 36-year-old housewife who reported she was bitten by a fox says she will not take anti-rabies treatment because she doesn't care whether she dies or not."

Mrs. John Hart said she was attacked on her back porch last week by a fox which bit her leg. Dr. H. Hilliard, medical officer of health at nearby Powassan, said the fox was rabid and that Mrs. Hart refused a free series' of 14 daily anti-rabies injections, known as the Pasteur treatment.

Authorities say the fox must surely have been rabid and a bite from a rabid animal almost certainly leads to infection.

Mrs. Hart has ignored the entreaties of three married daughters, two brothers and her husband, who works for a lumber company at Temagami, to take the treatment.

"She just says she is willing to take a chance and doesn't care virus.

British Plague Bomber to Fly At 1500 MPH

LONDON (AP)—The supply ministry was reported today to have placed orders for development of a British bomber which may fly at 1,500 miles an hour.

There has been no official announcement, but the contract is said to have been given to A. V. Roe and Co. of Manchester, producers of Britain's fast delta-wing Vulcan bomber.

The super-bomber is not expected to be available for regular operations with the RAF until some time in 1960.

Court Orders Man's Release

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Court of Appeal Monday ordered the release of a Toronto man sentenced last December to a year in prison for being convicted of wilful damage to a Toronto gas and engineering a house.

The court allowed an appeal by Desiree Armstrong, 47, against his conviction, instructed that his guilty plea be withdrawn and that a plea of not guilty and a verdict of acquittal be entered in the records.

J. A. Mahon, Armstrong's counsel, said his client should not have been charged with wilfully setting fire to the gas. He said Armstrong kicked over a gas heater in November in a fit of temper and then lost fire to the gas "to prevent it from spreading through the house and causing an explosion."

Suspect Caught By Employees

TORONTO (CP) — Two employees of a Toronto branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce Monday caught a suspect seconds after he had tried to rob the bank.

Accountant Allan Scaife and an assistant accountant, Alfred Cooper said they caught the man in an alley and tackled him as he fled on the ground. They then held him until police arrived and took him into custody.

The would-be robber was frightened by a girl teller's scream when he shoved into her cage a note demanding money.

Murdoch-Harris, 30, was charged with attempted armed robbery.

No Parking on East Bridge St. From Pinnacle to Front From 4.00 to 6.00 P. M. Approved

A rush hour route calling for no parking on East Bridge Street from Front to Pinnacle Streets, from four to six each afternoon was approved last night by the Belleville City Council with the hope that it will assist in alleviating a bottleneck which is holding up traffic.

The rush hour route was approved despite the objection of a delegation of East Bridge Street merchants who opposed the move claiming it would be "unfair" if customers were unable to park in front of their stores.

Alderman Ralph Graham, as chairman of the city traffic committee, in presenting the recommendation calling for the rush hour route said it was not hoped that this would be a cure-all but would allow two extra lanes of traffic to speed the traffic flow.

He urged that the rush hour route should be given a trial at least until July 31st and if at that time no improvement was shown he would be the first to come back to council to ask that the by-law be rescinded.

The best solution to ease Bridge Street traffic would be a clover leaf bridge over the river at Dundas Street, but this was more than the city could afford to do. Completion of No. 401 highway would also relieve traffic.

Most serious objector to the rush hour no-parking was Ald. Ben Safe who declared "this was just a beginning." Soon the no-parking would be for half-a-day and then parking would be denied out completely.

"It's just such a thing as this which encourages more shopping centres in Thurlow township," he said.

The alderman said his objection would not be so strong if other parking was being provided by the city. The city should not penalize merchants to create a speedway.

Also voicing objection was Alderman Herb Temple who said much of the congestion was caused by large transports making the turn at Pinnacle and Bridge streets. He suggested removal of one or two parking meters on the north side of Bridge street. In his opinion ruling out parking would merely remove the bottleneck to the lower bridge.

Alderman G. Hyde said he would support the recommendation on the understanding that if the turn at Pinnacle and Bridge the benefit expected the by-law not intended. He sympathized with Bridge street merchants but on the other hand did not think the rush hour no parking would harm business as much as they expected.

Mayor Jane Forrester noted that stopping to pick up or discharge passengers would not be permissible as ruling this out was not intended.

The recommendation was carried by an 8-8 vote with Mayor Forrester casting the deciding vote. David, Graham, Grandame, Gerrow, Hyde, C. J. Boyle and Keay an approving. Casting opposing votes were Aldermen Clarke, Safe, McCabe, Safe, Temple and Tice.

2 New Members Are Inducted Into Rotary Club

Two new members were inducted into Belleville's Rotary Club yesterday.

They are Perry Wilson, president of the Bakelite Company of Canada Limited and Bill McCormick, city and district real estate agent.

Mr. Wilson was introduced to the club by Rotarian Court Miller and Mr. McCormick by his father, Ernie McCormick, a veteran member of the club.

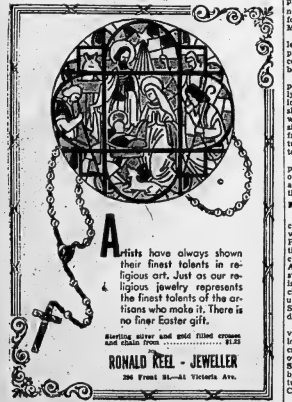
The induction address was delivered by past-president Harold Mott.

Only those who practise the principle of service in their business and professional life are eligible for membership in the club, Mr. Mott told the members.

It is a great honor and privilege to be a Rotarian but these privileges also carry with them corresponding ideals and duties to be fulfilled, he said.

As Rotarians they would be expected to give cheerfully and freely of their time and talents in the ideals fostered by the club. They should also become acquainted with as many Rotarians as possible, for the greater the circle of friendship, the greater the opportunities provided for service both to Rotary and their fellowmen.

"The mottoes of Rotary are 'He profits most who serves the best,' or more particularly, 'Service above Self,'" Mr. Mott reminded the members-to-be.



REPORT ON CAMPAIGN

A report on the progress of the club's Easter Seal campaign also was heard from Rotarian Walter Pierce. Part of the proceeds from the local effort are being used by the club's Crippled Children's Fund. Annually Carson Elliott, local store operator and Rotarian, who is responsible for bringing the city's Easter Bunny to town, ties up this event with the club's Easter Seal effort. This year it will be no different.

Mr. Elliott yesterday called for volunteer to help with a special low-priced sale of roses to the crowds who are expected to turn out on the BCIVS grounds next Saturday to see the Bunny arrive by helicopter at 10 a.m. The returns will go toward the Crippled Children's fund.

An address to the club on Canada's poultry industry was postponed when the speaker, Frank King, was unavoidably detained.

Among the guests present yesterday were Rotarians A. G. Dalrymple of Stirling and Lawson Mackie, of Picton.

Artists have always shown their finest talents in religious art. Just as our religious jewelry represents the finest talents of the artisans who make it. There is no finer Easter gift.

Y Swimmers Give Fine Exhibition In Peterborough

The Belleville Y.M.C.A. swimming team, organized just a short time, came up with a highly creditable showing against the Peterborough Y club in Peterborough Saturday bowing 37-34 to the more experienced Petes' natators.

At that the Bellevilles boys scored three firsts, ten seconds, eight thirds and seven fourths in an outstanding exhibition.

The meet was conducted by Gord Muxy, Peterborough swim coach, with the Belleville contingent under the supervision of Y physical director Jim Heffernan.

The best performers for Belleville were Ron Poste, Ted Hook and Bill Smith. Peterborough's Pete Salonius had three firsts and Leonard Minty two. Other Peterborough stars were Reid, Bill Ronney, Ronald Laing, Gary McInroy, Donald Morrison, Franklin Montgomery and Bill Vankatwyck.

Mine-year-old Bill Leslie, swimming in the under-ten events came up with a first in the 20 yd. free style and a third in the 20 yd. backstroke. In the 20 yd. fourteen and under free style, Ted Hook placed first outclassing the opposition. His time for this event was 24.4 seconds, one of the fastest in Ontario.

Ron Poste, Belleville only junior (fifteen and under sixteen) placed first in the 40 yrd. breast stroke, second in the 100 yrds. back stroke and second in the 100 yrds. free style. Perhaps the most outstanding Y aquatic swimmer in the Belleville team was thirteen year old Ivan Phillipes who placed in every under fourteen event. John placed third in the 40 yrd. back stroke and in the 40 yrds. breast stroke and fourth in the 100 yrd. free style. People swam in both under fourteen relays and also demonstrated diving. Ron Poste did a round swimmer and all eyes will be on him at the Y.M.C.A. championships in Hamilton on April 28th.

At the half way mark in the events a demonstration of diving was presented by four Belleville "Y" boys, John Peoples, Larry Hutchinson, Ralph Boomhower and John Sager.

All four boys will enter in the Y.M.C.A. championships on April 28th in Hamilton.

Coroner's Jury Recommends Signal Lights

A recommendation that signal lights be placed at the C.N.R. double track level crossing on the 2nd concession of Sidney township, where seven members of the Lasher family were fatally hurt last week, was made by the coroner's jury Monday evening at the inquest looking into the three deaths.

Last Tuesday, Stewart Lasher, 27, his daughter Linda, 5, and brother Karl, 17, were killed when a C.N.R. diesel struck their car.

The jury in their verdict stated that the driver of the car should have been more vigilant when approaching the crossing.

The inquest was held before Coroner Dr. J. Russell Scott with Crown Attorney John Pringle questioning the witnesses.

Witnesses included the engineer and fireman of the diesel locomotive; Belleville General Hospital pathologist Dr. Ross Rota, and Dr. Brock Nugent who attended Stewart Lasher at the hospital before he died.

Widening Part of College St. May Be Completed This Year

Efforts will be made to get the widening and resurfacing of College street from North Front to Sidney street underway this year, members of city council were told last night.

Council directed the city solicitor to draw up an agreement with Thurlow township which municipality will share in the cost of the work.

Alderman Ben Safe as chairman of public works said costs in the work would be borne equally by the city and the township as this is a township road. He suggested an attempt will be made to get the work done this year although he admitted no money had been provided for the work in the year's budget.

The council meeting was one of the shortest on record with little business of importance being carried out.

Purchase of parking meters for the market square was approved, work to be paid for out of revenue. Some of the meters will be moved to the Dundas street inside square meters with 12-hour limit will be installed.

According to Alderman Ralph Graham the two types of meters would accommodate both the casual shopper and the motorist who wished to leave his car parked all day.

Former Alderman Douglas Moxam will build the new city dog pound at a cost of $4,598.63. Mr. Moxam's tender was the lowest received, the pound will be built on the agricultural grounds.

BAND GRANTS APPROVED

The Belleville municipal band and Kinsmen Band was voted a grant of $1,000 with the Sea Cadet Band to receive $50 and the Belleville Pipe Band $150.

There was some thought that the Salvation Army Band should also come in for recognition by the city but an amendment to Graham's motion calling for re-allocation of the $1,200 amount going to bands was defeated. Tribute was paid to Alderman R. Reid for his work as chairman of the special band committee.

The Public School Board was granted their request for the right to construct a sidewalk over a city right of way leading from the Queen Elizabeth school grounds to MacDonald Gardens, title of the right of way to remain with the city.

A request for ditches in the MacDonald and Victoria Ave. area to be tiled and filled in was referred to the public works committee.

Council was told that the Foster Ward junk yard operated by Mr. Spiegel would be moved to another location. Mayor Forrester has been the subject of considerable discussion recently as residents of Foster Ward have voiced strong objection.

Booth's Marina Finds Boat Fans Eager for Spring

Winter's ice in the Bay of Quinte is still solid but already local boating enthusiasts are thinking in terms of next summer's fun.

That is the story told by the management of Booth's Marina at South Front street where their new store offering everything for the boatman's needs was officially opened this week.

Booth's Marina is the former Wills Marina now taken over by Howard Booth of Booth Radio and Television. It will be open until ten o'clock nightly.

Increased storage and expanded service will be the motto for Booth's Marina, according to store manager Arthur McBride and Fred Sinclair, head of the Marina service department.

Featuring a bright and completely renovated interior and a new window arrangement on the front, the Marina offers a complete line of boat accessories, "from canoe to tug" models to an elegant 18-foot cruiser. There are dinghies and punt boats, smart pleasure craft and swank runabouts to suit the individual purse and taste. Outboard craft are made by Canadian Canoe Company, Peterborough. Boat trailers are also available.

Also offered are full lines of Elto and Scott-Atwater outboard motors with ratings from three to 33 horsepower.

If you have a boat that needs repair or an outboard and bost the Marina has both for rent and will service one and both.

ALL BOATING REQUIREMENTS

The Marina sales department is chock full of boating requirements, steering wheels, fenders, speedometers, anchors and boat fittings, marine lamps, paddles, boat hooks and pumps.

For the sports who really like to get into the water there is skin diving equipment, water skis and flotation devices. Complete equipment includes sleeping bags, tents, stoves and camp cots.

The requirements of both visiting and local boatmen, insofar as service is concerned have not been forgotten and throughout the boating season the Marina will be open at all hours catering to these needs.

Gasoline pumps will make the purchase of fuel convenient. For the visiting boatman not too familiar with the Bay of Quinte charts, maps and charts for the entire eastern Ontario area are available. Even a shower and washroom facilities are provided for the water traveller who wishes to spot a clean up.

With vastly increased interest in boating which is expected to become more evident as the highways become congested with cars, is the expectation of the management at Booth's Marina.

They feel the Bay of Quinte is an ideal boating district which has a real attraction for both local and visiting boat lovers.

And Booth's Marina is prepared and equipped to give them service.

Britons Spent More Than They Produced in '55

By FRASER WIGHTON

LONDON (Reuters) — Britons ate and spent their country into the red in 1955 because they did not step up production and export enough to satisfy their own demands for foods, goods and services, says an official report published today.

The government's annual economic survey says national income and expenditure rose much more than production. The gross national product went up in value about £250,000,000, or 5% to 5½%, "and half the increased value of home output was due to higher prices. "In consequence the economy was overstrained and the balance of payments suffered."

Eyes Damaged by Ammonia Fumes Repairing Refrigerator

TRENTON (Special) — Dogged by tough luck for the last three years the Mills family of 36 Quinte Street face two more trying problems.

The husband Robert Mills, 39, an electrician out of work, drawing unemployment insurance was painfully blinded by liquid ammonia yesterday when a pipe burst while he was making repairs to the family refrigerator. With his face and the upper part of his body covered with the burning liquid, Mills staggered to the open air before being overcome by choking fumes.

Meanwhile the wife grabbed their nine-month-old son Gerald from a crib in the bedroom and with him in her arms rushed outside for fresh air. Two other children were out of the house playing in the neighborhood.

Family doctor J.W. Farley treated the husband who had the family moved to a relative's place until their house was cleared of the fumes.

Dr. James Forrester is coming to Trenton Monday to examine Mills' eyes and determine whether they were damaged. Mills is his bed the injured electrician had not regained his sight by noon today.

Three years ago in July two of the Mills' children were nearly drowned swimming on the waterfront south of the local legion hall.

The family live in a cottage that may be torn down to make room for commercial project. They expect to get official notice to move any day.

Mrs. Mills, confronted with the big job of packing sighed an ironic comment: "It never rains but it pours!"

Bata Workman Cut on Neck By Metal Ring

FRANKFORD. (Special.) — Carl Woods, 44, of Trenton, a worker at the Bata Shoe Co., factory in Frankford was taken to Trenton Memorial Hospital this morning for treatment of a laceration to his neck and to re-knit.

Woods received the cut when the metal ring anchoring a rubber diaphragm in a press used to glue the soles to rubber footwear descended on his neck.

Woods is reported to have been talking to the press operator at the time of the accident about 11.15 a.m. today. He had rested his arm on a shoe last moving forward the press. The elastic rubber diaphragm in the press regulated producing no undue pressure on Woods' head. The machine was stopped as soon as Woods was cut.

He was taken to Trenton Memorial Hospital by Weaver's ambulance of Trenton, after Dr. D. McMullin of Frankford, attended him in the plant.

Bata personnel manager, Alex Grime, said that the press is a small one of a type being used in Bata plants throughout the world and that no accident of this type had ever been recorded with this machine before.

Father and Son Play Leading Roles in Ceremony

TRENTON. (Special.) — A Trenton father and his son, played leading roles in a presentation ceremony held for them at Montreal last Thursday by the International Association of Machinists.

Son Kitchener Jones, formerly of Trenton, pinned a 25-year-pin jewel on his father's lapel, while the large number of the brotherhood gathered to honor them, looked on. Then his father retired CNR machinist, Jack Jones, 77, was called upon to present his son with a jewel signifying 15 years' membership in the association.

The son works with the CNR, in Montreal, as a machinist. His father retired 12 years ago in service at the Turcott shops near Montreal. For years now the older Mr. Jones has been genial caretaker of the Masonic Temple here. He has a son, Jack, an engineer with the government controlled transportation system.

Early railroaders in the district will recall Mr. Jones senior, when he worked in the shops at Trenton and Belleville.

No. 2 Tomatoes Price Is Fixed Dollar Higher

HAMILTON (CP)—A provincial arbitration board has awarded the Ontario vegetable grower's marketing board a $1-a-ton increase in the price of No. 2 tomatoes over last year's price, it was announced today.

The increase raises the 1956 price to $25. The board set the 1956 price for sweet corn at $25 a ton, the same as last year.

The arbitration board was set up after negotiations between the Ontario Food Processors' Association and the vegetable growers' marketing board over 1956 prices broke down.

The processors had asked a 14½-per-cent cut in sweet corn prices and a reduction of $3 a ton in the basic tomato price.

Judge Harold E. Fuller of Welland was chairman of the arbitration board.

CCF Criticizes Handling of Divorce Cases

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliament's handling of divorce cases has come under another round of CCF criticism during an unsuccessful attempt by that party to defeat two divorce bills.

Erhart Regier (CCF—Burnaby-Coquitlam) Monday accused the Liberals of using a "steamroller vote" to pass divorce measures.

"Anything goes with the Liberal party in the market," he said. The government seemed to regard a vote on a divorce bill as a question of non-confidence, accepting any divorce petition that had passed the Senate.

He spoke after the Commons, on a vote forced by the CCF, had given final approval to one divorce bill from Quebec and before another vote gave passage to a Newfoundland divorce bill.

Neither bill went before legislation committees of the Commons or courts and parliamentary legislation committees handle marriages of their residents.

On both votes—38 to 36 on the first, 39 to 29 on the second—all the Liberals present voted for the bills while CCF members were solidly opposed. The Progressive Conservative and CCF parties divided.

Mr. Regier, apparently referring to the number of Liberals who criticized Liberals who, he said, abstain from voting on divorce bills lest they offend Catholic members, and them to vote against the government.

Today the House resumes debate on the budget presented last Thursday by Finance Minister Harris. The budget debate will continue for the Commons before the Commons adjourns for Easter until April 9.

Monday's debate on the two divorce bills was a continuation of CCF criticism of the session of opposing strongly any divorces petitions where party members think the evidence is questionable or a divorce inadvisable. Many other divorce bills have been passed without opposition. The party also is attempting to have the task of granting Quebec and Newfoundland divorces transferred to the Exchequer Court.

Sees Too Much Stress On Nuclear Warfare

OTTAWA (CP)—Maj.-Gen. W. H. S. Macklin, retired adjutant general, Monday night said there is too much emphasis on nuclear warfare in Canada's defence preparations.

"Several hundred million dollars a year is being sunk into the Canadian army which is useless in any other type of war except a nuclear one," he told a meeting of the Royal Canadian Legion Ottawa Association.

"We've got to get our eye on the whole of the battlefield instead of just one part of it," he added.

In answer to a question, Gen. Macklin said he fully supports the opinion of Lt.-Gen. Guy Simonds, former chief of staff, that Canada needs conscription.

(In a recent series of public addresses, Gen. Simonds has repeatedly said conscription is needed in Canada.)

Britain to Stand By Spirit, Letter Of 1950 Accord

LONDON (Reuters) — Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd Monday told the House of Commons that Britain would stand "by the spirit and letter" of the 1950 tripartite declaration guaranteeing existing frontiers between Israel and neighboring Arab states.

Lloyd, replying to a statement from Labor member Kenneth Younger that the United States and France seemed to be following separate policies from Britain in the Middle East, said he agreed it was "desirable that we should try to evolve a common line of action."

In answer to another question from Conservative Capt. Charles Waterhouse, Lloyd agreed that the United Nations Security Council had at various times condemned violations of frontiers by both sides, but these resolutions had had no effect.

He added: "So far as action by Her Majesty's government is concerned, we are endeavoring to keep the peace. On that function, I think the United Nations has an important part to play."

Staff Is Bid Farewell, New Owner Welcomed

STIRLING.—Recently Mr. and Mrs. Walter Elliott entertained the staff of Stirling Motors and their wives with almost a perfect attendance.

The party was two-fold to bid a fond adieu to the staff, and to introduce the new owner, Mr. Don Williams of Hamilton, and his wife.

Mr. Elliott has conducted Stirling Motors for the past nine years and now he will confine his activities to the Elliott Motors in Belleville, which he has operated for some time.

The new owner, Don Williams, has been conducting a garage and farm machinery business in Hamilton.

The guests played Court Whist, and the Elliotts provided some lovely prizes for each individual in attendance — one prize.

A short program was enjoyed when Mr. George Davies, Kingston, district manager of General Motors, spoke and voiced grateful thanks to Mr. Elliott and welcomed Mr. Williams into the family.

Mr. Herb Hastie, sales manager of the Elliott garage in Belleville, spoke briefly. Both of these men eulogized the work of the past nine years and spoke of the happy associations.

Mr. Walter Elliott expressed grateful words of thanks and wished the new owner and staff every success.

The lunch served appetizing refreshments and the evening was greatly enjoyed.

NO-DEPRESSION THEORY

C. S. Scobell, in "Canadian Business" observes that there is "a belief in many authoritative circles that the old-fashioned business cycle is a thing of the past."

Prosperity, the functioning of all phases of our economy at a high rate of efficiency, depends on such a multitude of things that it would be a miracle if the economic machine ran smoothly forever. It is not merely a case of keeping everything functioning smoothly in one particular country. Most nations are interdependent, so that even the best-run economy can suffer from a kicker by a mistake or a natural development in some distant land.

That does not mean that future depressions need fall into the pattern of those in the past, that hardships cannot be alleviated and burdens more equitably shared. But, if one means by depressions any sizable reversal of the current trend towards ever increasing productivity and prosperity, such a reversal would appear inevitable at some time in the future.

Mr. Scobell refers to those who think "the old-fashioned business cycle" is a thing of the past as "proponents of this advanced and unorthodox school of economics." The inference is that they are still in the minority amongst economists. That is not necessarily so. In fact, we learn that this unorthodox school sees "no reason for a serious recession within the next decade at least." That makes the school's teachings more easily believable. To banish the business cycle for a decade is not to banish it forever, and to fail to see any reason for a recession within the next ten years is not to say that some unforeseeable reason may not develop.

This qualified "no-depression theory" is much easier to accept than the original statement would suggest.

It might still be wise, though, if investors refused to abandon the old-time theory that what goes up can also, upon occasion, come down.

MOVIES AND BOOKS

"You have seen the movie—now read the complete story," says a book advertisement.

That is certainly a approach to selling books is not new; it just happens that this is the first time we have seen it or, more likely, the first time that it has aroused our interest.

There is a new twist to this treatment. Many of us have gone to see movies based on famous books, or dealing with important historical events. In these cases, the movies benefited by a knowledge of many movie-goers about the subjects with which they dealt. This same appeal is certain to be present in many of the movies made in the future. Hence the book advertisement quoted above, however, shows a recognition of the fact that this connection between movie and book is not a one-way street. Many more people may have seen a movie than have read the book on which it is based and the interest kindled by the movie may be utilized to increase sales of the book.

Dit-Lines readers have been disappointed when they have found that a movie has deviated from a well-loved story. We wonder whether a movie-goer, purchasing a book, will experience similar disappointment if he finds the ending is different from that which he had seen enacted on the screen.

Of course, the relation between book and movie is sometimes so slight as to be most difficult to discover. Sometimes there are not just two, but four or more versions of the same story. There is the book: the stage play based on the book; the script based on the stage play and the rewritten version of the original author's movie script.

Noticed the other day where some Hollywood producers are planning to produce a play by George Bernard Shaw. And of all things, somebody has been hired to rewrite Shaw's version.

KLAUS FOR HOPE

Klaus Rasmussen, of Winnipeg, recently was reported missing.

Klaus is a crow. A very special crow. Not just an ordinary, run-of-the-mill, get-close-to type of crow that can drive a crow hunter frantic.

Klaus could sing, "How much is that doggie in the window?" He danced to radio music. He could even talk like the Rasmussen kids. Recently, when accused of filling a potato pot with soup powder, Klaus crowed, "Mickey did it, Mickey did it." Mickey is a dog.

When Klaus turned off the Rasmussen kitchen, ate Mrs. Rasmussen's potted plants, and carried on conversations, intelligently, with the neighbors. Once he told the man next door, "Oh, shut up," and on being reprimanded, answered "You a bad man."

When Klaus was reported missing, a likely theory would have been that a bird with its personality took off, as straight as a crow flies, for a career as a television comedian.

Instead Klaus was discovered entertaining suburbanites in the backyard. Evidently wanted to retain his amateur standing.

ORDERS

No digging in the garden now;
No cutting of the grass;
And when it's time, I won't allow
Bait casting for the bass.
No shouting at a baseball game,
No mingling with a crowd;
No form of pleasure you can name
Henceforth will be allowed.

No dining with your friends in town;
No shows at night to see;
Just take your pills and settle down
And happy try to be.

Excited now you mustn't get;
That's order number one.
Yes, watch your television set,
Unless a fight is on.

No lifting children to your knee;
No romping on the floor;
A lazy man you'll have to be
For just a few weeks more.
To do that should be easy; so
To do it I'll contrive,
But how, I wonder, will I know
That I am still alive?

Holiday in Mexico

By G. A. Morton

Any one planning a trip to Mexico should be prepared to practise some precautions to maintain comfortable health conditions. First all drinking water that flows from taps must be regarded with suspicion, never to be eaten. Under any circumstances. The process: That old debbil bacille dysentery which goes under the euphemism "Turista," "Montezuma's Revenge" or "Montezuma's Curse." In any case it is a vicious form of diarrhoea accompanied by cramps which can make life miserable. It is very uncomfortable for three to four days. Sometimes the attack may be mild for which the visitor should be thankful.

Before the departure of some friends we went prepared with pills, enteric, medicine. The pills, enteric uniform, were to be taken one before each meal as a kind of preventive measure while the medicine was to be used if the worst came to the worst. Also any food, that had to be washed in water and served uncooked such as lettuce, radishes, raw carrots and fruits which could not be peeled such as strawberries, was not to be eaten. Butter, unboiled milk and whipped cream were also taboo. Ice in drinks was also viewed with suspicion. Bottled water, ginger ale or even beer were to be used for the thirst quenches. To the above list we would add — — — no lick goes unlicked because they are handled and then placed on unclean counters.

Despite the precautions one member of our party was taken ill with the dreaded malady and she did not feel at her best until we arrived home. The rest of us became acquainted with the "trots" the first week and used tea in our drinks, used butter and thin cream from the hot water taps for brushing our teeth and suffered no ill effects. At a time of the year when tourists unless assured it had been treated in chlorine water.

There is a story which pokes a bit of fun at all the precautions a tourist takes in Mexico. A couple of friends were discussing their experiences and one remarked, "Gosh, I was glad when I got back to the States from Mexico. I was sick for two days and then I was sick for two days more. I was sick for two days after that. I was sick for two days after that. I was sick for two days after that

By April Oursler Armstrong

THE DARK GARDEN

XXXVII

It was well after nine o'clock and quite dark when Judas, ready to betray his Master, came out the back doorway of the house of Annas, and into the alley. There the Temple guards and the Roman soldiers collected by the high priest Caiphas waited. They carried lanterns and torches, clubs and staves, and swords.

Judas turned his back on them, leading them around a corner into a jagged and poisonous-smelling little street. Not a sound was heard, except the shuffling feet of the men, the clank of armor, and the lonely howl of some faraway dog. Zig-zag through the streets they went. Pale in the light of spring stars loomed the Temple, and out through a gate they went, and down the steep hills.

Across the brook Kedron, Judas led them, and up toward the Mount of Olives.

The soldiers began to grumble. "We have heard strange tales about this Jesus," they said. "They say He has mysterious powers. He can raise men from the dead, and walk on the sea, and feed thousands of people with only a few loaves and fishes. He is a Man to be afraid of!"

"He has never harmed anyone," said Judas.

"Where is He?"

IN A FARM YARD

"In a farm yard—a place where oil is pressed out of the olives. Some call it the Garden of Gethsemane," said Judas over his shoulder. "It is really a series of gardens, with walls. He has been there often, but never so late. Any other night He and His followers would be at the house of friends."

"What are they doing in the garden?" growled a wart-lipped soldier.

"I don't know. But there is nothing to fear. No one could fear Jesus."

The thirty silver coins jingled in his bag as Judas sighed heavily and led the long column of men and hissing torches. Presently Judas raised softly and lifted his hand, and they halted at a high hedge.

Now most of the party knew where they were. This was the farm yard with the oil press—a dark patch of olive trees, not far from the highroad to Bethany.

A little door-like opening had been cut in the hedge around the olive garden. Judas waved back the guards while he leaned in and peered. With narrowing eyes Judas searched among the gnarled and hunchbacked trees. His long shrewish nose sniffed the soft orchard smell and the damp sweetness of night greenery. His peaked ears caught the deep sound of the wind, soughing and murmuring through those ancient olive boughs.

But where were the other eleven apostles and the Master?

APOSTLES SLEPT

Dimly Jugas began to make them out.

Far off, in a different part of the Garden, he saw eight dark smudges of shadow under the trees. Those must be some of the apostles! And there, nearer to the hedge, in this part of the Garden, three more forms. That vast hunk of man sprawled on the grass, his head on a rolled-up cloak, was surely Peter, snoring. The slim form there by the pavilion was John, also deep in slumber. And that hulk under the biggest olive tree was James—John's brother, of course. They were all asleep.

But where was Jesus? Judas could not see Him.

Judas would have entered then and brought the guards with him, but he was stopped by the sound of a familiar voice at prayer. He stood listening. Somewhere off in the deeper greenery there, where he remembered a white boulder half buried in the earth, Jesus of Nazareth was on His knees. Judas could hear the suffering voice:

"My Father! If it be possible, let this chalice pass from Me!"

Judas twisted his nose in scorn. "Afraid!" he murmured. "He is afraid! He is praying to be let off—to escape—"

But Jesus was not through with his prayer.

"Nevertheless," prayed Jesus, "not as I will, but as You will!"

SUCH HUMBLENESS

Then Judas was startled, because of that prayer in Gethsemane. The Master wanted not to die—yet if the Father insisted, knowing what was best, then He would obediently take death. What a way to pray! thought Judas. Such humbleness could not be right for a man. Most men prayed to tell God what they wanted, to strike a bargain with God. But not Jesus. Instead of forcing His will, He seemed to try to understand God's will so that He might obey it.

The silence after the prayer was touched by a low, swishing sound as of a trailing robe brushing the grass. Out of the dark and walking by starlight, the white figure of Jesus appeared, moving toward a sleeping disciple. Judas could see Him clearly now — tall, robed, walking barefoot across the chilly field. Jesus bent over the snoring man.

"Peter! What? Could you not watch one hour with Me? Watch you and pray that you enter not into temptation. The spirit indeed is willing but the flesh is weak . . . Sleep, now, and take rest. It is enough! The hour is come! Look, the Son of Man shall be betrayed into the hands of sinners. Rise up. Let us go. He that will destroy Me is at hand."

HOUR HAD COME

Then Jesus reached forward His foot and with the bare toes gently jiggled Peter's shoulder. The fisherman grunted, rolled over, then sat up violently.

"It is enough, Peter. The hour has come," Jesus said simply.

Peter scrambled to his feet and bared his knife.

Judas waited for no more. He laid a hard clamp hand on the wrist of the leader of the soldiers and whispered:

"Now is the time. Let us go in and take Him. Now is the time. Let us go in and take Him. You will know Him sure. He will be the One I will kiss!"

The sound of rough voices and the clank of steel, the sight of the fires, brought all the sleepy disciples to their feet. They blinked at the frightening torch-lit scene, shining with cold brilliance of armor and swords.

Judas strode forward until he stood directly in front of Jesus. "Hail, Master!"

Jesus moved toward Judas and seized him by the shoulders.

"Friend," said the Master sadly. "Wherein are you come?"

KISS OF BETRAYAL

Then the arms of Christ drew Judas to Him, and the disciple kissed the Master on the cheek.

At the signal the Roman soldiers came forward, weapons in hand. But Jesus did not at once let Judas go. He held him tightly, His cheek laid against the rough ringlets, eyes lifted, as if asking a favor of the invisible. Then at last He released him, and as Judas stood back, Jesus the prisoner brought His hands together, and held them out as He approached the Roman captain.

That was more than Peter could bear. His fishing knife, a knife with a blade five inches long, gleamed in his hand. And Peter leaped at the officer. A moment's tussle, a disorderly struggle, and then the voice of Jesus:

"Peter! Peter! Put up your sword . . . Do you think I cannot ask My Father, and He will give Me at once more than twelve legions of angels? How then shall the Scriptures be fulfilled—for this is the way it must be done."

A little soldier from the Temple scurried forward with a handful of ropes and began to tie the wrists of Jesus. And seeing that, fear overwhelmed the disciples.

This sudden invasion of men in armor and others with cudgels and staves filled them with fright. The torches blazed and fumed. Voices rose in brawling question. Peter and all the others could take no more. Stampeded, like wild creatures, they scampered off into the night. Leaping the hedges and running as fast as legs could carry them, they left Jesus, the captive, alone.

He had done nothing to save Himself.

And as Judas, skulking in the flickering shadows, watched the Master bound, he remembered the strange, humble words of Christ's prayer:

"Lord, not My will, but Thine, be done."

Your Easter Seal dollars sent more than 1200 crippled kiddies to the five camps owned and operated by the Ontario Society for Crippled Children last summer. Won't you guarantee them a holiday again this year by buying and using Easter Seals. The slogan campaign, which is sponsored by the Society in association with more than 211 Easter Seal service clubs are appealing to the citizens of Ontario for $625,000 to carry on this fine work. Won't you help?

Easter Seals, Service Clubs Help Kiddies

In more than 200 communities of Ontario, from the Manitoba border to Quebec, there are 2,000 members of a team which every year carries out a twofold task.

But to them it is no labor.

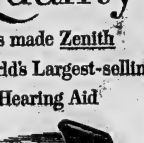
They are the members of the more than 200 service clubs, Rotary, Kiwanis, Lions and others, who are the backbone of the crusade to help crippled children which in the past quarter century has helped more than 50,000 youngsters to have happier, more useful lives.

Once a year, the 2,000 club members are the spearhead of their local clubs' drives to sell Easter Seals to help finance the treatment of crippled children, and to maintain the year round organization which centres in the club-supported Ontario Society for Crippled Children.

But throughout the rest of the year, when their Easter Seals have been sold, the members of the clubs' committees carry on with their second task. This task is manifold. Locally, they maintain constant contact with school authorities, local doctors, public health officers and nurses, and the orthopaedic surgeon of the Society in each of the twenty districts which cover Ontario.

By these contacts they learn of children who are handicapped, whether by accidents, disease or congenital conditions like cerebral palsy or spastic paralysis. They arrange for examination by a doctor, if none has been consulted. They arrange for the children to attend one of the clinics, organized by the Society to bring top specialists to every part of Ontario.

If hospitalization is required, the clubs' committees arrange for it. And their work does not end then. They arrange transportation of the child, and its mother, if that is desired, to hospital and back. Most clubs have motorcar groups, but if train or air transport is needed, the club finances.



So, year round, the work of these club members, often is little noticed even in their home communities. That it is done is evident from the results, because today the members of the big team of members—doctors proudly say that not a child in Ontario who needs help for his handicap need go without that help.

BEE,000 is required in the provinces of Ontario to carry on these services to crippled children. Will you make your Easter Seal donation now?

The Sr. Regt. brought the meeting to a close. The next meeting is to be held in two weeks.

The draw, two beautiful crocheted doilies were donated by Grad. Regt. Selina Isles and won by co-worker Annie Youngs and the Sunshine prize by Marian Madden.

While the tables were being put in order for the banquet, pianist Irene Reed, played a number of selections on the piano.

The beautifully decorated tables were ready and Chaplain Grace Bartlet gave the invocation.

Following the supper Bob Padden expressed his sincere thanks for such an enjoyable supper and said he was looking forward to the banquet again next year.

Special thanks go to the friendship members for making the evening a fine success.

London Hospital Entirely Staffed By Women

By SONIA YOUNG

LONDON (Reuters) — The only London hospital staffed entirely by women is starting its 31st year with an appeal for £250,000 to keep going.

The hospital, St. John and St. Elizabeth's, is one of the few outside the national health program. It is maintained by voluntary subscription.

St. John and St. Elizabeth's was founded by four Roman Catholic Sisters of Mercy who had returned from the Crimean War where they accompanied Florence Nightingale, pioneer of modern nursing, to tend the wounded.

Today the hospital still urges "Crimeabogy" as its telegraphic address, but it has grown from a hospital in a suburban house into an up-to-date building with room for 175 beds, modern operating theatre and children's ward.

At the hospital's centenary, Sister Mary Clare, secretary of the hospital, said: "Our subscribers are generous and the subscriptions have risen—but not as much as the cost of living. Our position is serious but we are confident of raising the £250,000 we need for general purposes by special functions this year."

Bernard Cardinal Griffin, Archbishop of Westminster, who was once a patient at the hospital and arranged for it to remain outside the National Health Act, to preserve its denominational character, was present at the ceremony.

The hospital, hidden among the lime trees of St. Johns Wood, north London residential district, has 175 beds and 100 nurses and sisters. Last year about 3,000 patients were tended there and earlier this year one of the most modern children's wards in the world was opened.

A primrose-colored playroom in the ward has a push-button sliding roof which opens to give children the maximum amount of sunshine. A clockwork nightingale sings in a cage while children are given their injections.

Last year 150,489 men, women and children participated in the Canadian Red Cross Swimming and Water Safety programs.

NEW TRAVEL KIT LIGHTENS BABY'S BEAUTY PROBLEMS

Every Thing Seems Happy Over Her New Travel Kit.

What to take? What not to take? Whether the family's planning a mere week-end jaunt or a grand tour of the country, the problem always there. And, if the trip's to be made by car, with space at a premium, the problem's even greater.

Dad just has to find room for his golf bag and his fishing tackle; Junior can't bear to leave behind his assortment of toys that would fill Santa's bag at Christmas time and Mother not only wants to take along all her prettiest frocks, but a veritable carload of cosmetics. And, last but not least, of course, there's Baby to be considered.

Traveling with an infant always involves a great deal of planning and packing. There are so many things the little cherub needs—plenty of diapers, towels, rubber pantties, fresh changes of clothes, bottles and, of course, bubbling and grooming aids. All of these are "musts" for a baby "on the go" and, because they are so essential, it's Mother who usually winds up the loser in the battle for room in the space.

Then, no her own creams, powders and precious lotions to make room for Baby's soaps, oils and creams. For every conscientious mother knows that the daily care of her little one's skin is an absolute necessity where both health and beauty are concerned.

From now on, however, Mother needn't sacrifice her own beauty aids in favor of Baby's. A brand newtravel kit designed for babies "on the move" is so complete and compact that, when she's packing, Mother will find she has plenty of room for her own grooming aids.

Just introduced by one of the country's leading baby products manufacturers, the kit contains baby oil, baby cream, baby powder, baby lotion, baby soap and cotton buds. The kit's attractive plastic case is in a plaid design, predominantly yellow and white, it is washable, scuff-proof and refillable. A sturdy carrying loop is provided for hanging, and there are handy plastic pockets for wash cloth, safety pins or bib.

The new baby travel kit will make an ideal gift for any parent who's planning to take baby along for vacation, an overnight trip, or a two-week visit to Grandma's. Because it includes all baby's toiletry needs, it does away with the last minute frenzy usually associated with packing for a trip with the perambulator set.

ADVICE To the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

YOU DON'T WANT TO BE YOUR HUSBAND'S PUPPET, DO YOU?

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

Three years ago I married a divorced man twelve years my senior.

Right from the beginning, he had the say-so about everything I'd do. Knowing that things aren't always sunny in a marriage until the man and wife are adjusted to each other, I took it. But now things have got to the stage where it's beginning to affect my whole attitude.

He chooses my clothes — but they're styles for a woman of 30, and I am 24. He limits my visits to my parents' home, and I now have no contact with life - long friends. We have no children; he wants it that way. We work in the same place and we have a bank account in his name only.

At Christmas, we were going to a party to which I was looking forward very much. Well, he fixed that, too — we didn't go. As a result, we had a spat, and I left him, staying away several days. When I went back for my clothes, I found he had changed the lock on the door.

We are together again now, but things haven't changed a bit and I don't believe they will. I want to do right thing, so will you please try to help me straighten out my badly confused mind? Mrs. P.

Dear Mrs. P.:

As far as I can see, you have only two alternatives.

You may elect to continue to do as you did before, letting yourself be bossed completely by your husband without protest. In this case it would be for you to take a stand quietly, but very decisively, and insist upon your rights.

So far as the first alternative is concerned, all I can do is recommend it, as I see it, is that it would lead to more trouble. I don't believe you could possibly be happy in such a situation until you actually made of you a meek little mouse with no mind of your own, and somehow I don't quite see you that way.

To follow the second alternative, of course, is likely to jeopardize your marriage, but you would have to take that chance. Your husband being the dominating sort he is, I would think it virtually certain that he would put up a fight if you were to assert yourself. Then, of, if you chose that alternative, I would advise you not to back out, no matter how much he blustered, but to stick to your guns. If you gave in because he did bluster, you would obviously be right back where you started from, whereas if you stuck to your decision, you might eventually win.

It would all depend, naturally, on how much your husband cares about you. If he honestly loves you, he might, in the end, yield, or at least compromise with you to a reasonable extent in order to hold you. If he doesn't care that much, it would probably be the end of your marriage.

So because you do have a great deal to win or lose either way, you must do some very careful thinking before you make any definite decision of independence: You had better decide very definitely just how much freedom you should have in order to maintain your self - respect and be happy. Certainly the two things you mention—your visits to your parents and your association with your friends—should be counted among the matters to take up in your discussion with your husband.

This, then, is a fairly broad outline of the factors in your problem. Now you can decide for yourself which of the two alternatives to follow. Only you can determine what you want out of life, and what is the best method of getting it.

N.Y. Shop Finds a New Owner For That Discarded Dress

By Nan Robertson in N.Y. Times

An enterprising woman named Florence Morris Barry is making a fortune in the slightly used glamour business.

Two years ago she decided she would do for the second-hand dress market what Commander Whitney did for Schweppes—"give it class." So she started Encore at 1 Madison Avenue Shop (1133 is the number, but Eighty-fourth Street) selling the cast-off clothes of well-off women.

Encore began on $600, thirty-five garments and Mrs. Barry's six major wants—"find a need and fill it." She did some clear thinking first, then decided: "The more clothes a woman owns, the more expensive they are and the fewer times she wears them."

Some of Mrs. Barry's friends discard dresses after one wearing because their husbands didn't like the color, or never-worn suits because they'd gone on a reducing diet. "I've made a business of an amazing waste, and everybody is satisfied," said she.

"The donor gets 60 per cent of the resale price, the customer buys a Trigere dress for one-third its original cost, and I go to Europe on the profits."

WHO'S WHO OF FASHION

Mrs. Barry's plain walk-up shop looks like what it is—a bargain spot. The label of fashions hanging on the racks read like a "Who's Who" of the world of style: Trains-Nord, Adele Simpson, Harvey Berin, Ben Zuckerman. There are mink-trimmed suits from Bergdorf Goodman and once-worn Hattie Carnegies.

On the "Seventh Opportunity Rack," where Mrs. Barry puts slashed-price items, one recent shop dress and a Cell Chapman frock, each selling for $15. But the average price runs at Encore runs to about $45.

Mrs. Barry's donors include stars such as Eva Gabor, Dinah Shore and Jessica Tandy. She finds, however, that her customers "look for labels, not celebrity dresses."

One donor has sent Mrs. Barry ninety-three garments since last Nov. 30. Most of them cost less than $250 originally. The woman gives the proceeds to charity.

When Mrs. Barry went to Europe last summer on her well-gotten gains, did she spend her time sipping aperitifs on cafe terraces? Not she. With Kate Sheehan, her friend and co-worker, Mrs. Barry bought up the previous season's model dresses at continental haute-couture salons.

Mrs. Barry believes she is the first American to buy used original-ity from European high-fashion houses for resale. She returned here with ninety-eight imports by such noted designers as Simonetta and Fabiani of Rome, and Pedro Rodriguez of Madrid. Half of them were sold within two weeks for from $60 to $175 each.

Mrs. Barry, who looks like a well-fed pixie, said she started Encore as a hobby to while away her leisure time. Now she works from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. six days a week, handling about forty customers a day.

"I feel as if I'd swallowed a whale," she said.

Here is a group of items culled from the new and smart spring accessories now coming into the stores. Pastels or dark street shades, with contrasting ribbon band and tab is the choice for a new straw hat that looks like an inverted deep dish and is the essence of the new millinery outlook. Then there's the semi-contour belt that curves around the waist in zigzag fashion and comes in many colors. White leather that is easily washable is used for crisp gloves with contrasting facing that can be worn turned back to form cuffs. Grainy red calf for a pump in red with black front lace and bow and black heel. Red and black is an always striking color scheme.

HOW TO SIGN YOUR EASTER GREETING CARDS

When you sign your Easter greeting cards, sign your informal name. Never sign your name with title. Never sign "Mrs. John Smith" . . . never sign "Mr. and Mrs. John Smith" . . . never sign "Miss Jean Smith."

When, as is customary, a wife is signing the Easter cards that she and her husband are sending, she should . . . politely . . . sign her name last: sign and Mary or, when further identification is necessary, John and Mary Hall. If the husband is signing the cards, he should . . . politely . . . sign his name last: Mary and John, or, for further identification, Mary and John Hall.

When a child's name is to be included in the signature, the father's name is written first: John and Mary, Dorothy and Tommy. Also generally speaking, less formal: The Harrisons—John and Mary, and Dorothy and Tommy.

A widow should sign her cards Virginia, or Virginia Allen. Never should she sign her formal name to a greeting card: never "Mrs. Philip Allen," and never "Mrs. Virginia Allen."

A divorcee should sign her Easter cards Jane or Jane Blake, or, for further identification, Janet Smith Blake. But never should she sign her formal name: never "Mrs. Smith Blake," and never should she sign "Mrs. Janet Blake."

An unmarried girl or woman signs her Easter cards Pamela or Pam or Pamela Lane. But never "Miss Pamela Lane."

The idea is this: Your name on a greeting card is your signature . . . and your signature should be your informal name. No title, please, in your signature, ever.

RETURN ADDRESS ON EASTER CARD ENVELOPES

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Last October my husband and I moved into our new home. Now, when we sent our Christmas cards I wrote our new address on the envelopes enclosing the cards. Would it be correct for me to write our name and address on the envelopes of our Easter cards? I'd very much like to, if it would be correct.

Yes . . . it is entirely correct for you to write your name and address on the envelopes of your Easter cards. Practical, too, to repeat this information of your new address.

9TH INSTALMENT— WEDDING CAKE AND FROSTING.

The recipe for Wedding Cake that I have selected makes over 12 pounds of lovely cake and will fill the three graduated square pans and to a set for just this purpose. Remember girls to clip and file this and make the cake later. Then add the frosting (everybody longer) before the big day.

WEDDING CAKE

(Generous 12 pounds.)

One pound each butter, sugar, flour (4 cups), blanched almonds, pecans, candied pineapple, candied cherries, mixed peel (or all citron peel or all chopped dates instead of peel), one 8-ounce glass grape jelly, 2 tablespoons melted chocolate, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 12 medium size eggs, beaten, 1 cup grape juice, juice of 1 orange, 4 pounded candied or seedless raisins. Soak the almonds overnight in the orange juice and the sugar well. Add the beaten egg yolks, then jelly and chocolate. Then add the flour and baking powder. Add fruit putting in a small quantity at a time and mixing well. Add nuts in same way. Lastly fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Put in tins that have been lined with three sheets of greased brown paper and bake for about four hours, at 275 deg. F., in 3 or 4 pans, having waxpaper beneath during the entire baking period.

GRUTTED ALMOND PASTE

Allow one pound of blanched almonds to dry on a sheet of wax paper at kitchen room temperature overnight. Force through finest knife of the food chopper twice. In large bowl mix with 2 lbs. icing sugar and 1-4 teaspoon salt. Work into this, one at a time, 6 egg yolks, then 1 tablespoon almond flavoring. Turn out on icing sugar-covered board and knead for 1 or 2 minutes. Form into a long roll, cut open, roll well wrapped, for a few hours. When ready, separate into three parts—large, medium and small and roll out to exact size to fit tops of cakes. Brush cakes with fine film with mixture of four parts corn syrup to 1 part water (that is 1-2 cup corn syrup to 2 tablespoons water). Place almond paste over tops of cakes, smooth top surface by rolling with rolling pin and trimming off overlapping edges. Let stand one day before applying.

ORNAMENTAL FROSTING

(For Wedding Cake.)

Double these amounts if you want to do considerable ornamentation.)

One pound (3 1-2 cups) icing sugar, 1-3 teaspoon cream tartar, 3 egg whites (unbeaten), 1-2 teaspoon vanilla. Sift sugar and cream of tartar through a very fine sieve. Add the egg whites unbeaten and mix altogether, using a slotted spoon or wire whip. Continue mixing for about five minutes. Add flavoring. Now, spread a thin layer over the top and sides of the cake to set the crumbs. Continue beating the remaining icing by hand for about 8 minutes or 3 to 4 minutes by an electric beater at high speed. Spread some over the cake, smooth the surface with a spatula. Rest the remaining icing until it is so stiff that a knife draws through leaves a clean-cut. Finish decorating by forcing icing through a decorating tube.

This is the end of the Wedding Cake Series. Write to me, including an 8c stamped, self-addressed long envelope if you would like the complete series.

Dr. Loder Talks To Argyll Chapter On 'Radiology'

The Argyll Chapter I.O.D.E. held its March meeting at the home of Mrs. W. D. Wilson, with 30 members present. A delicious dessert buffet luncheon was served by the hostess.

Dr. Peter Loder, radiologist, and guest speaker for the evening, who was introduced by the hostess, Mrs. W. D. Wilson, came to Belleville General Hospital in 1953. He was born in Grand Falls, Newfoundland, attended Dalhousie University in Halifax, and graduated in medicine in 1947. After post graduate work at Victoria General Hospital, in Halifax, he was certified in diagnostic radiology by the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Canada, in 1952.

Dr. Loder gave a most interesting talk on radiology, highlighting the talk with actual X-rays of his subjects. For this he used a viewing box, set up for the occasion. This gave a black and white view of the part of the body which had been X-rayed.

RADIOLOGIST GREAT ADVANTAGE

Dr. Loder explained what a great advantage it was to the hospital to have a radiologist. His aim is to try to recognize the disease and then it can be treated in its early stage.

Diagnosis of stones in the kidney, stomach ulcers, gall bladder, and pre-natal X-rays are made by the radiologist.

Dr. Loder also showed in detail actual X-rays of many parts of the body; one showed a baby's stomach in which an open safety pin was plainly seen; a broken hip, before and after surgery; a fractured skull, and many others.

He said of the work of technicians and how they had to be careful not to be exposed too much to the rays. Tests were taken often, as there are no visible effects of too much radiation.

Dr. Loder's talk was interspersed with many humorous stories, and the members found his subject most interesting.

Mrs. Everett Fairman, regent, on behalf of the Argyll Chapter I.O.D.E, thanked Dr. Loder.

Mrs. W. D. Wilson was thanked for opening her home for the evening. Two new members, Mrs. Robert Scott and Mrs. Michael MacCauley were welcomed to the chapter.

Reservations have been made for two delegates to attend the I.O.D.E convention in Hamilton, also plans to welcome new Canadians receiving the naturalization papers at the court house. Naturalization cards were given.

A rummage sale is to be held in the Armouries in April.

Correspondence was read and a representative was to be sent to the WCTU dinner being held at the Y.M.C.A.

The treasurer's report was given by the new treasurer, Mrs. Fred Burtt.

Mrs. Fred Lazier reported on sewing projects, with knitting and sewing given out. Special efforts were to be made to finish the sewing out at the present time, so the boxes for overseas could be ready soon.

Mrs. Orland Pinkston offered her home for the next meeting.

Plastic Beauty Aids

A practical plastic container of skin lotion is a good bet for kitchen or bath. Unbreakable, it won't shatter if it is dropped.

BY JEANNE D'ARCY

You should wear bedroom slippers. It's a known fact.

Still, there are moments when it seems more convenient to traipse around the house bare-footed—health rules is the contrary. It's at moments like this when we're specially thankful that somebody invented plastic. The accidents it's helped to avoid!

A BEAUTY BLESSING

In the bathroom, especially, where we tend to hoard beauty supplies, plastic is a blessing. When, with eyes shut so sure we won't get them, you reach for a bottle of shampoo and only succeed in tipping it over, it's wonderful when it doesn't break. Plastic doesn't.

If we had our way, every beauty aid in the world would come in a plastic container. Probably some day they will.

As it now stands, numerous manufacturers have gone in for plastic packaging. It's so convenient and the no-break quality goes over big with the ladies.

Every woman knows what a nuisance it is to shatter a glass bottle or jar in the bathroom. Somehow there's always one small fragment that doesn't get cleaned up. It's this fragment that — ouch! — you invariably step on.

What can you get in plastic containers? Just about everything in the beauty line including shampoo, eye drops, cleansing creams, lotions, perfumes and fragrant bath accessories.

MAGIC LOTION

One of the most recent products to appear in a handy plastic container is a lotion that works magic for skin. Use it on hands, on ankles, elbows, legs, face and body—wherever rough skin is a problem. The lotion contains silicone, protecting hands from water and, at the same time, curing chapping.

Because the container's non-breakable, the lotion can be safely kept in bathroom or kitchen. If you drop it, no damage done!

Coast Guard Service on Lower Great Lakes Proposed in House

OTTAWA (CP)—A plan for a coast guard service on the lower Great Lakes was proposed Monday night in the Commons.

Progressive Conservative Wallace Nesbitt said he wasn't suggesting anything elaborate, but views were "absolutely inadequate." His proposal covered Lakes Ontario, Erie, St. Clair and Huron.

He said the government should consider setting up a service chiefly to co-ordinate existing search and rescue efforts. It could be manned by university students since it would be needed only from about mid-May to the end of September.

Part of its cost could be raised through charging a small licence fee for boats with motors of 10 horsepower or more. They now are required to get a licence but it is free.

Various services were being provided by the RCMP, RCAF, police forces, municipalities and volunteers, but it seemed all they did was search for bodies. There was nothing aimed at preventing accidents.

FOR STORMS

Mr. Nesbitt, whose Oxford, Ont., constituency is north of Lake Erie, said a coast guard service would provide for posting of storm warnings and weather reports. Its officers would have authority to prevent small craft from sailing when adverse weather was expected.

They also would be empowered to regulate water traffic and stop "the smart-alecs" who race boats near swimmers and smaller craft for thrills.

At present there is a complete lack of co-ordination, Mr. Nesbitt said. That was essential because of the urgency in rescue work.

Fred Robertson (L — Northumberland, Ont.) said various government agencies such as the defence and transport departments and the RCMP co-ordinate their activities to provide adequate search and rescue duties.

There were so many Great Lakes resort centres that the government could not possibly maintain a patrol boat at each one. Such patrol services should be maintained on the local level with local funds. Mr. Robertson said that if the government had the money for a coast guard service it would be better spent in increasing the federal railway crossing fund for the elimination of those highway hazards.

Andrew E. Robinson (PC—Bruce) said his district includes 900 miles of shoreline on Lake Huron and Georgian bay. The number of pleasure craft in the area increased each year. He said a Great Lakes coast guard service would provide excellent facilities for the training of Canada's sea cadets. There was no vote on the resolution before the 10 p.m. adjournment.

Ask 69 Million For Ottawa Development

OTTAWA (CP) — The Federal District Commission today unveiled plans to spend $69,000,000 in Ottawa's national capital plan in the next 10 years and asked more money and more authority to carry them out.

In a 100-page brief to a joint Senate-Commons committee the FDC warned that uncontrolled subdivision is putting in jeopardy the proposed "greenbelt" — a lightly populated open area around the capital.

It sought authority to spend some $15,000,000 to $20,000,000 to buy land now in the green belt area to be held for plan use and for resale. This would provide adequate land reserves for the next 100 years.

OTHER POINTS

Other main recommendations in the FDC brief include enlargement of the 900-square-mile national capital area to take in the Lievre river in Quebec's Gatineau hills opposite Ottawa and the Mississippi river running from near Carleton Place to the Ottawa river near Arnprior, Ont.

It seeks power to expropriate property without obtaining written refusal by the owner of an FDC offer, as now required; power to dispose of property, and power to acquire property up to $50,000 without governmental consent. The present limit is $5,000.

The FDC recommended that the height of buildings be abolished a mile away from Parliament Hill. It thought the present zoning was giving the capital a monotonous profile.

FRANKFORD

Rowe Heads Softball Team; Austin Coach

FRANKFORD — The Frankford Merchants softball team held its organization meeting last week and the following executive was elected: President, Raymond Rowe; secretary, Francis Stickle; treasurer, Jack Madill.

The committees are: financial, Bruce Servos, Raymond Rowe, Sharp; transportation, Joe Adams, Gib. Gilmour; advertising, Herb. Rankin; team manager, Francis Murphy and team coach, Karl Austin.

The treasurer Jack Madill gave the financial report for the 1955 season; the report showed receipts of $1038.36; balance 1954 of $34.31; expenditures of $1039.67; balance 1955 $33.00.

The scorekeepers are: Francis Sickle and Selbourne Sharp.

The new executive discussed organization problems and player possibilities for the coming season; President Raymond Rowe voiced the opinion that with the same support given this year as last by the fans the team would have a successful season.

Hastings County Farm Forum

6th SIDNEY — Three forums met on March 12 to discuss workmen's compensation for agriculture.

Hazards met at the home of the Rev. and Mrs. Lewis with 14 present.

1. Yes workmen's compensation is good as regards hired labor.

2. Farmers risk everything they own in case of a serious accident to the hired man. In this day the hired help is always right and the one who hires must pay. Workmen's compensation covers the risk and will make it easier for farmers to compete for labor.

The risk covered by compensation applies to the farmer's family in the same way but most farmers have some form of hospitalization protection for themselves and family.

The disadvantage is the bill. It is an account that farmers are not forced to pay and with money so scarce they don't add to obligations that as not compulsory.

MELROSE FORUM

Melrose met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elliot Embury with 14 in attendance.

1. Workmen's compensation should be used by farmers.

2. The advantages are the many benefits he receives if he suffers an accident while at work such as fixed monthly payments to dependents in case of death; periodic payments to worker while disabled; and medical costs. Workmen's compensation will pay all costs of medical aid for an injured worker as long as necessary which includes medical, surgical, nursing and hospital care.

The only disadvantage is the paper work but-it is felt the advantages over-rule the disadvantages. It is really a good insurance investment.

Brooklale met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carman Frost with 11 present.

1. We think workmen's compensation a good protection to the one in the accident and also to the employer.

2. Advantages:

(1) A fixed monthly payment to dependants in case of death; periodic payments while worker disabled; medical costs.

(2) It tends to safety consciousness which pays direct dividends to the farmer; it will also keep down cost of workmen's compensation to agriculture.

Disadvantages:

(1) It makes more book work for the farmer as he has to estimate his yearly wage bill and keep an accurate account of what he pays in wages during the year.

(2) There is a danger of overestimating the degree of injury, thus abusing the system.

(3) The farmer who hires an occasional day man is not covered by workmen's compensation.

SET CCF DATE

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Council of the CCF Monday announced that the party's national convention will be held in Winnipeg Aug. 1-3. The biennial convention of the Co-operative Commonwealth Youth Movement also will be held immediately prior to the CCF convention.

Manitoba Plans Big Road Program In Next Decade

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Manitoba's Liberal - Progressive government says the province's record $27,000,000 highway budget for 1956 is only the start of a $130,000,000 road program.

Hon. D. L. Campbell, public works minister, told the House Monday the over all program will include $92,000,000 for rebuilding and resurfacing trunk highways, $20,000,000 for trunk-highway extensions, $15,300,000 for completion of the province's section of the trans-Canada highway, and $3,000,000 for completion of a by-pass north of Winnipeg.

He said length of the program depends on federal government participation. Without increased participation, the program would take about 10 years.

The New Brunswick House debated a Progressive Conservative government motion, designed to force the Liberal Opposition to declare its position on government handling of the Beechwood hydro project. The opposition has criticized government action on the project.

Liberal Leader A. C. Taylor attempted to insert an amendment charging mismanagement, waste and patronage in the project, as well as inadequate overall power development policy. The amendment was defeated and the government motion approved.

A plan to collect Saskatchewan Farmers' Union dues by municipal tax was approved in the legislature's committee of the whole. The measure, still to be given third reading, is voluntary on the farmer's part. If he wishes the municipality to add his dues to his tax notice, the municipality must comply.

Carmel W.A. Sponsors Pie Social, Enjoys Travelogue of Europe

RAWDON — On Wednesday evening Carmel W.A. held its postponed pie social in Carmel Jubilee Church Hall in Rawdon Township. There were visitors from Belleville, Frankford, Corbyville, Marsh, Hillcrest, Stirling, Wellman's, Mount Pleasant, Canniffon and other points.

Mrs. Arthur Pryear welcomed the audience and introduced Frank Windsor, postmaster at Canniffon, and a former Carmelite.

Frank spoke briefly and introduced his friend, Mr. A. Foley. Frank was one of a group of 165 postmasters and their wives who enjoyed a delightful tour of the British Isles and Europe last year. He was thrilled to have this opportunity of coming home to Carmel to present his travelogue. Most of the pictures were the product of his own amateur photography and a few he had purchased along the way, and all were exceptionally good.

On a large map he pointed out the voyage across the ocean to England, then on to Holland, Belgium and Switzerland.

CANNEFTON VIEWS

The first pictures were taken in the town home at Canniffon, then several scenes aboard ship followed and finally the party landed in England. Here the group took four different bus tours and went various routes.

He also showed splendid pictures of Buckingham Palace, Westminster Abbey, the Coronation Chair, and Stone of Scone, tower bridge, parliament buildings, Trafalgar Square, Piccadilly Circus and many historical spots.

His travelogue gave descriptive accounts of "The Old Curiosity Shop", the Shakespearian home, various monuments, cathedrals, castles, chapels, Windsor castle, and all this brought vivid memories of articles that had been previously read in magazines, books and school readers.

Close-up views of the Yew tree, the gorgeous display of tulips and other flowers, and the vivid colorings of the scenes were all greatly enjoyed.

The group then visited Amsterdam, with its Dutch markets, and the Canadian war cemetery at Arnhem.

Then on to Germany with a cruise up the Rhine river and the Black Forest, the scene of Grimm's Fairy Tales. Here along a steep terrain various little imitation people were poised in silhouette to attract the tourist. Several interesting stories went along with these pictures.

The scenes of Switzerland in scenic natural coloring closed the first set of pictures.

At this juncture Mr. Sherwood Reid delighted with numerous piano selections and later he entertained with music while lunch was being served.

ONE-ACT PLAY

A one-act play, "After the Church Supper", was presented by Carmel W.A. The scene was the living room of the president, and was the meeting place of the ladies to talk over the success of the recent church supper.

The cast included: President, Mrs. Harry Brooks; maid, Mrs. Jack Armstrong; W.A. treasurer, Mrs. Ray Hagerman; three conveners, Miss Marion Carlisle, Mrs. Helen Neal and Mrs. Archie Bailey.

This skit was very humorous, full of quips and thrills and ended up wrong for all except the president who seemed to be about ready to marry the minister who was single and fond of home cooked meals.

Mrs. Arthur Pryear with Sherwood Reid as accompanist led in a singsong which included "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling".

Mr. Windsor resumed his second reel of pictures following an informative map talk.

Milano, Roma and Florence of Italy; scenes of Venice; Rome; Cannes, France; the famous Church of St. sul's; the house of Marco Polo; scenes of a number of ruins; a story of various crude customs; the old Roman colisseum; St. Peter's Square; the Pizza Tower with its 294 steps, followed by the home of Christopher Columbus and nearby the three ships in floral outline.

MONACO

The pictures then showed Monaco and one of the homes in which Grace Kelly will perhaps be the mistress. There were gorgeous rose trees all in bloom ready for the perfume manufacturers; Notre Dame Cathedral and many other old world scenes. The closing pictures were of a farewell banquet on board ship, views of Quebec and then the Windsor business establishment at Canniffon.

Mrs. Joe Grills voiced appreciation to Frank for his very informative and interesting travelogue which all had so greatly enjoyed and he received a hearty ovation for his efforts.

The Carmel ladies then served abundance of sandwiches, pickles, pie and coffee and all enjoyed a social half hour.

Those on the affirmative side were Murray Meiklejohn and Jim Gray. Mrs. Dick Morton and Mrs. Jim Gray upheld the negative side. Both sides were equally good as the judging was by ballot and resulted in a tie.

Mrs. Murray Meiklejohn, teacher, tendered thanks to all those who helped in any way. A few games of crokinole were played and refreshments were served.

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta soon will revert to the simple ballot.

The legislature Monday night almost completed clause-by-clause approval of a bill changing the voting system used in provincial elections and by-elections.

The 107-page bill eliminates the transferable ballot — the single transferable vote in single-member constituencies and proportional representation in multiple-member ridings.

The bill will became law after committee a p p ro ve al of some clauses held back by the government for further study, third and final reading and royal assent.

Exactly when the simple ballot will be used again is not known. There are no vacancies in the 61-seat House and the last provincial general election was only last year.

BALLOT EXPLANATION

Under the transferable ballot, adopted in Alberta in 1924 by the United Farmers of Alberta administration, the voter marks the fig. 1 beside his first choice, 2 beside his second and so on until he covers the field. Two or more counts are necessary if the leading candidate does not have a majority over the combined vote of his opponents on the first count. Second choices of the trailing candidates' ballots are distributed to others in the race until one candidate has a majority.

Under proportional representation, used in the multi-member ridings of Calgary and Edmonton, a quota is reached by dividing the number of ballots cast for elected into the total of valid ballots and adding one.

By dropping the last-place candidate and distributing the second choices on his ballots, the field is reduced until only the required number of candidates with the quota remain. Either they have reached the quota or have the highest total instead of those needed to fill the remaining number of seats.

Fred C. Colborne, Social Credit minister without portfolio, who is sponsoring the new bill, told the legislature the change is recommended because the transferable ballot results in a high percentage of spoiled ballots.

W. J. C. Kirby (PC—Red Deer) contended there has not been any public demand for a return to the simple ballot or any widespread dissatisfaction with the transferable ballot.

Oshawa Member Says Plan Cost Over-Estimated

TORONTO (CP)—CCF member of the Ontario legislature said Monday night Premier Frost has grossly over - estimated the cost of a government - sponsored hospital insurance plan to discourage it.

T.D. Thomas (CCF — Oshawa) a bill to set up a hospital comin a bill to set up a hospital committee, which will be responsible for administering any hospital plan started that figures in a plan proposed by study area — much higher than necessary.

His remarks touched off a series of heated replies from the premier. At one point, Premier Frost asked the CCF member if he is "fair" in his remarks. A minute later he said:

"No, I won't ask the honorable member to be fair — he doesn't know how."

MENTIONS COMMITTEE

Shortly after, when Mr. Thomas said a government health committee examining the study plan had nothing to do but listen to the pro-Liberal Farmers of Alberta administration, the voter marks the fig. 1 beside his first choice, 2 beside his second and so on until he covers the field. Chief Justice To Personally Probe Charges

SYDNEY, N. S. (CP)—Mr. Justice Vincent Pottier has told witnesses appearing before his royal commission investigating conditions at the Cape Breton County Mental Hospital that he will investigate all charges personally.

In Halifax, CCF leader Michael McDonald called on the provincial government to appoint an administrator for the hospital until the commission returned its findings and recommendations.

Mr. McDonald said "there is a vast amount of anxiety existing" among relatives and friends of persons in the institution.

GOVERNMENT DISTURBED

Premier Hicks said the government will deal "most carefully" with recommendations made by the commission. Health Minister Stevens said he is "very much disturbed" by testimony given so far.

Appearing before the Pottier commission Monday was Dr. Eaton Hartigan, a former Sydney police magistrate, who said he has no knowledge no medical treatment is provided for patients on the second floor where he is chief attendant.

Most of Monday's hearing was occupied with cross-examination by Jeff Gillis, hospital commission counsel, of Mrs. Helen Carter, a former hospital attendant who testified one of five affidavits containing charges against the institution.

STOPS FLUORIDATION

TORONTO (CP) — Nearby Toronto township has stopped fluoridating its water following a ruling by the Ontario Court of Appeal last week quashing a metropolitan Toronto fluoridation by-law, it was disclosed Monday. A spokesman for the township's public utilities commission said: "We do not want to do anything that is illegal."

Thousands of 50-Cent Phonographs Is U.S. Propaganda Answer to Reds

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Information Agency proposes to step up its propaganda efforts by more than half in hopes of countering Russia's new political-economic offensive.

Director Theodore C. Streibert has asked a congressional appropriations sub-committee to recommend $135,000,000 in the fiscal year beginning next July 1, an increase of about 55 per cent over what Congress appropriated for this year.

In closed-door testimony last month, Streibert sought increases for nearly all USIA activities including Voice of America radio broadcasts. His testimony was made public today.

Among other things, he proposed taking an aircraft carrier out of mothballs fitting it with cinemas and non-military display items and sending it on a tour of African, Middle Eastern and Far Eastern ports. He estimated this first year's cost at $3,- 750,000. Cinerama is a motion-picture technique which gives the viewer a sense of being in the scenes shown.

Streibert proposed also the free distribution of thousands of cheap hand-powered phonographs, along with records telling the American story, to natives in 27 countries. Streibert asked for $200,000 for phonograph and records to be produced for about 50 cents apiece and for 10 records at 70 cents apiece.

British Commons Moves to Join Malta to Britain

LONDON (Reuters)—The House of Commons Monday night backed the proposal to end the crown colony of Malta should be integrated with Britain and send three representatives to the British Parliament.

It agreed without a vote to a government motion to "take note" of a report by a British all-party parliamentary conference proposing integration of the Mediterranean island.

With both government and opposition speaking strongly in favor, the motion amounted to endorsement though the motion did not ask for specific action.

Colonial Secretary Alan Lennox-Boyd said the government's acceptance of the proposals made by the round-table conference after hearing representatives of Britain and Malta, was "unconditional."

He added: "I can assure the House government would now consider 'very quickly and very carefully' the report and the debate." Monday and Prime Minister Eden would then announce to Parliament the government's intentions in the House before it adjourns Thursday for the Easter holiday.

U.S. Proposes Advance Notice On Troop Moves

LONDON (AP)—The United Nations atomic powers today studied the latest in the series of new peace proposals to reduce the threat of war in the atomic age.

The United States proposed Monday that countries joining in a disarmament pact should give advance notice if they move armed men outside their borders.

Harold Stassen, President Eisenhower's specialist on disarmament, is meeting with representatives of Russia, Britain, France and Canada as a sub-committee of the UN disarmament commission.

Previously at the current series of meetings the U. S. had suggested the setting up of test inspection areas in that country and Russia, an exchange of technical missions and a 2,500,000-man limit on the armed forces of the U. S. and Soviet Union.

Spread of Industry Eating Up Good Land--Mapledoram

TORONTO (CP)—Lands Minister Mapledoram said Monday the spread of industry to valuable farm land, especially in southern Ontario, may have serious repercussions on future generations.

He told the Ontario legislature fertile land as a limited resource and urge planners to do their utmost to prevent industry and residential areas to less productive land.

The spread of industry and homes around Toronto and Hamilton was eating up valuable farm land which could not be replaced. This loss could be felt much more in future generations when fertile land was at a premium.

He said a long-range plan to note and conserve Ontario's forest and land resources is progressing rapidly. Under the plan, land had been divided into three categories: Wilderness, deferred and potential.

Wilderness zones were accessible only boat or air. They represented many of the few natural forest areas on the continent and were being carefully preserved. No permanent camps were permitted.

In deferred areas, woodlands received cut over or with a high fire potential, development was not encouraged for a stated length of time. Pulpwood areas were being developed at much as possible as sustained yield hunting areas. No control was exercised over private camps.

As part of this program, more than 283,000 square miles of Ontario land had been photographed by aerial survey. This would be continued until the entire province had been covered, giving a complete picture of forest and land resources.

Police Prepare Two Reports On Verdun 'Hero'

MONTREAL (CP) — Two police forces are investigating conflicting reports regarding award of the Commonwealth's highest civilian decoration for bravery to a suburban Verdun milkman.

Centre of the controversy is Edward Chipman, 33, who received the George medal and other honors for the rescue of three children from a Caughnawaga Indian reserve fire in 1954.

Police director Pierre Gutineau told the Verdun city council Monday that his investigation was continuing. It had been expected that his report would shed more light on the part played by Chipman in the fire rescue.

The police report said, in part: "I have to date obtained solemn declarations that would confirm my investigation to determine the veracity of the facts described before making my final report."

CALL IN RCMP

Meanwhile, Secretary of State Pinard said in an interview in Ottawa Monday that the RCMP had been called in by his department to conduct a federal inquiry. He could not say when the RCMP report might be expected.

Small Loan Companies Under Fire in House

OTTAWA (CP) — Hazen Argue, CCF member for Assiniboia, Monday night described the small loan business as a "legalized robbery."

Small loans companies "have become parasites — preying on low income earners," he said in the Commons speech opposing a change in name for Personal Finance Company of Canada.

The company seeks a change in name to Beneficial Finance Company of Canada to conform with the name of its parent company in the United States. A private bill to that effect also requests an increase in authorized capitalization to $10,000,000 from $1,000,000.

CCF leader Coldwell last week proposed an amendment to prevent passage of the bill approved earlier in the Senate.

LED ATTEMPTS

Mr. Argue, who has led unsuccessful attempts by the CCF to cut interest rates of small loans companies to one per -cent from two per cent a month, said the change in name would mislead borrowers.

He said another finance company, Niagara Finance Corporation Ltd., had published a pamphlet which set out the effects of last summer from heat attacks.

"Heart attacks, physical exhaustion, stress in all forms, and normal hazards of firefighting have resulted during the 1955 fire season that special attention is urgently required to be given to in forest fire suppression.

"During 1955, more than 2,200 fires required the burden was particularly heavy on chief rangers and assistant rangers since most of whom are middle-aged. Many fire bosses have had their hived and given lengthy rest periods."

Supply of equipment generally was satisfactory. More, however,

Administration of Timber Rights on Crown Lands Under Fire in Legislature

TORONTO (CP) — CCF leader Donald MacDonald said Monday the provincial government has "betrayed the people's trust" in not administering properly timber rights on crown land.

Ontario once had some of the greatest timber lands on the continent, he told the Ontario legislature. But poor management had almost wiped them out in two or three generations.

Speaking during debate on estimates of the Department of Lands and Forests, the CCF leader said experts have estimated it would take 2,500,000,000 trees to reforest areas "slashed clean by forest barons."

At the government's present rate that would take 250 years. Only 25,000,000 trees were replanted last year, 8,000,000 on private land.

Mr. MacDonald said Ontario's forests produced 8,000,000 board feet of lumber in 1908, but last year production had fallen to 1,- 400,000. A government commission in 1947 reported that unless rapid action was taken, there would be timber left in Ontario by 1970, but the government was only now starting to take steps to remedy the situation.

Lands Minister Mapledoram replied Ontario's program of regenerating forests is the most comprehensive in the world. The only long-range plan to conserve the province's forests and farm land is progressing rapidly.

The entire province was being photographed by aerial survey to give a complete picture of forest and land resources.

Governor-General Will Get Taste Of Ice-Fishing in Eskimo Style

By JOE MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CAMBRIDGE BAY, N. W. T. (CP)—Canada's governor - general today gets a taste of ice-fishing Eskimo style.

Vincent Massey and members of the party accompanying him on his 17-day, 2,000-mile Arctic tour had a date with Eskimos at a nearby camp to go fishing through the ice on Cambridge bay, famed in Arctic exploration.

The event topped a hectic, but interesting schedule on Mr. Massey's two-day visit to this Arctic post on Victoria island. The 69-year-old, Toronto-born representative of the Queen was showing no commitments with the vigor of a man much younger.

One of the first things Mr. Massey learned here was that there are few, if any, juvenile delinquents among the Eskimo population.

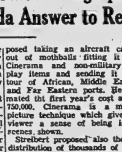
Officials of northern affairs and RCMP say juvenile delinquency such as haunts Montreal and Toronto is practically unknown among dark - skinned Eskimos children. Some evidence of drinking among minors was seen in the western Arctic, one police source said.

The children start helping with hunting and fishing and domestic chores at 12 or younger. By 17, the youth is accomplished hunter with no time for shenanigans.

Mr. Massey was also given an outline of the missionary's role in the Arctic by Rev. Peter Emmerson of the religious mission and Father Louis Lemaire of the Roman Catholic Oblate order.

The governor - general has completed almost half of his three-month tour. The highlight was his flight over the North Pole Saturday to become the first governor-general to cross the top of the world.

He takes off early Wednesday for Tuktoyaktuk on the shores of the Beaufort sea, 700 miles west, where he will stay two days.



Included in today's commitments for Mr. Massey was a dog-sled trip to a Hudson's Bay Company post operated by one of the northern construction company camp.

Jas. Jacklin O.F.A. Addresses Huntingdon Agricultural Meeting

By MRS. PERCY MacMULLEN

Hastings County Federation of Agriculture sponsored a series of evening meetings this week in Madoc, Huntingdon, Rawdon and Thurlow Townships, with Mr. James Jacklin, Fieldman of the O.F.A. as guest speaker at the gatherings.

On the evening of March 22, members of Huntingdon Township Federation together with visitors from Rawdon Township, gathered at Trainor Memorial Hall with the president, Mr. Russell Hills, as chairman.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Haggerty were in charge of the assembly singing and Mrs. D. Francis sang with guitar accompaniment.

Mr. M. Saries gave a full report of the year's proceedings.

COMMODITY CONFERENCE

County president, Mr. Percy Ray of Halloway brought greetings and gave a full report of the proceedings of the meetings held March 13 and 14 in Toronto, when a two-day commodity conference was held. Ways and means were advanced to improve the current situation with agriculture. The group was unanimous that in order to improve marketing the Canadian Federation of Agriculture should ask that a new portfolio in the legislature be established to be known as "The marketing department". In this way farm products could be sold on the world markets and a greater research could be undertaken along the marketing angle; also that recognition be trained men be asked to assist in this job of marketing hogs and other livestock. They also requested the legislature to call together in the near future, a national commodity conference. The great need today is for farmers as a whole to support the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, and thus give them received help in this important matter.

It was pointed out by Mr. Ray that the cheese producers have sold at a low price, but without the organization it would have been much lower.

He gave a graphic picture of the cost to farmers for the foodstuffs produced on the farms and this showed that the farmers are barely receiving enough to cover expenses and they are unable to count the cost of their own labor.

After all, the man who owns a farm should have some remuneration for his work, the same as others.

He introduced Mr. James Jacklin, Fieldman of the O.F.A. who is a graduate of O.A.C. Guelph and an extensive farmer in Bruce County, residing 30 miles from Owen Sound. Mr. Jacklin spends six months of the year doing Federation work and the other six on his farm.

Mr. Jacklin spoke briefly of his pleasure in working with groups in Hastings County, and gave a concise and clear-cut picture of agriculture. He was a fluent speaker with a wealth of humorous anecdotes and his address proved him rapt attention as he unfolded by way of various charts, the story of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture whose motto is: "Not For Ourselves Alone."

AIMS, OBJECTIVES

Their aims and objectives are to co-ordinate some 82 farm organizations in the Province of Ontario for the purpose of promoting their common interests through collective action. They also try to promote provincial, national and international agricultural policies to meet the changing world conditions. No group can work alone, but when several are all of one voice, they have a better chance to get their ideas across.

There are 12,000 farm families and they are organized from Township Federations through county provincial, national and international and there are eight educational organizations, of which is the Federated Women's Institutes, and another, the Ontario Junior Farmers' Association. There are four co-operatives and 32 commodity groups. There are 700 organized farm forums.

Mr. Jacklin thoroughly explained the "Plan You and Your Group" and gave a vivid outline of all of the services that have been provided for the farmer and his family.

The achievements of the O.F.A. are many and varied. Through legislation they have set up "The Ontario Farm Products Marketing Act, The Ontario Milk Industry Act, The Vegetable Crib Act, and amendments have been made to other acts, and all this has strengthened the farmers' position.

The economic picture of achievement covers co-op insurance which was explained fully. Thirty-two different farm crops are marketed by 18 various schemes and the O.F.A. seeks to improve this department.

The speaker gave first hand information re land expropriation for Hydro purposes in his own county and also a clear-cut picture of the problems of this committee which is steadfastly working to protect the interests of farmers in this regard, they have established a precedent in this phase of activity.

Farmers have been given expert assistance through rural assessment, and income tax concessions and important recommendations have been made to the government. He also gave an explanation of the value of a basic herd.

SOCIAL ACHIEVEMENTS

The social achievements are centred on conservation, women's compensation, research, farm forums and folk schools, rural co-operation magazine, "Education and Health". All of these services assist the farmer in various ways: The Workmen's Compensation is available to farmers at $20 per $1,000 paid to labor. Full particulars were given and farmers must apply to the Workmen's Compensation Board, head office, Toronto, if they are interested in procuring this coverage.

The Mill Industry Act combines four milk and cream producer groups, and its effectiveness depends solely upon the producers themselves.

The speaker fully explained the Ontario Whole Milk Producers' Leagues, and how they arrived at a fluid milk price of $4.30. The formula chosen has given about equal weight to demand and supply.

The concentrated milk producers have two objectives — orderly marketing and checking producers' interest. Also have several big achievements, some of which are competitive export market, stabilizing the domestic market, and keeping the producer informed.

There has been considerable reduction in the export trade due in part to stiff competition, however, in time, the domestic market may consume the entire production, especially as the popularity increases.

The Ontario Cheese Producers' Marketing Board have a cheese curing warehouse at Belleville, and another is under construction at Winchester, Ontario. There are 15,000 cheese producers. The speaker gave it detail the work of the Cheese Producers' Agency Limited. Its job is to market Cheddar cheese and export the balance.

The Ontario Cream Producers' Marketing Board works under these headings, "grading", "pooling", "representation", "legislation", "advertising", "improvement", "field service" and "merchandising". There are nine committees and each county elects representatives.

For the first time in history cream producers are recognized as an organized body. The field of marketing is broad and this group strives to build better markets. They are also interested in merchandising and providing a high quality product for the housewife.

The dairy farmers of Canada represent 450,000 dairy producers. They are the national link between 32 producer associations. This group has a strong merchandising program and advertise extensively in Canadian newspapers and magazines at no extra cost to dairy farmers.

The Farm Products Marketing Act extends powers to Farm Products Marketing Boards and sometime in the future it is hoped to set up standards for all of Canada as a whole. Mr. Jacklin fully explained the powers of the local boards.

VEGETABLE GROWERS M.B.

The Ontario Vegetable Growers' Marketing Board administers orderly marketing of vegetable canning crops such as peas, corn, tomatoes and a great many others.

The Ontario growers received $10,000,000 in cash returns in 1955, and this department alone represents a tremendous volume of agricultural production. There are 21 active associations, and a newsletter is published six times yearly which reaches ten thousand growers of vegetable canning crops.

The Ontario Beekeepers' Association held its 75th annual convention last year. They have 700 members and Mr. Jacklin pointed out that farm production requires honey bees for cross-pollination of legume seeds, cucumbers and fruits. If agriculture is going to be successful the bee is a necessity.

The fruit industry has achieved much in the line of co-operation and agency marketing. 4,500 growers participate in peaches, cherries, grapes, pears and as a result of bargaining power, the peach growers have a set price for their product.

Mr. Jacklin gave a clear picture of the old and new ways of the Ontario Farm Products Marketing Board. The old way was unorganized but today there are experienced salesmen, and the advantages are an average $2 per hog. It took a long time to establish the secured good marketing legislation. The organization is not perfect, but it is greatly improved, and this organization needs the backing and support of each farmer who produces hogs.

The Ontario Farm Forum is an educational project which is sponsored by the O.F.A. Here your opinions are discussed with you neighbors and the findings sent to head office in Toronto. The groups who meet weekly also revive the old spirit of neighborliness.

The "Rural Co-operation" is published by the O.F.A. and is read by 30,000 families. It gives practical up-to-date news and helps to built an informed group of farmers.

The Federated Women's Institutes of Ontario have as their motto "For Home and Country". They are affiliated with the O.F.A. and their various programs is to provide a source of knowledge at the door of every housewife. Homecraft is a big project and the Institute stands ready to help through various phases of good living standards. The extension services are worthwhile for every community.

JUNIOR FARMERS' ASSOCIATION

The Junior Farmers Association of Ontario offers special training in many departments. Their motto is "Self Help, and Community Betterment".

The Co-operators' Insurance Association 42,000 policies in force, and the C. S. A. has been of immediate assistance to all policy holders.

The farmers have saved hundreds of thousands of dollars in the last six years. The C.I.A. claims service is second to none in Ontario. Their aim is a high level of protection at lowest possible cost. This was all carefully explained by the speaker with graphic pictures of work accomplished.

Sixty thousand Ontario farmers own 150 local 'coops' and these are under the Central United Co-operatives of Ontario. Farmers do $1,000,000 of business per week and the provincial co-op has served 40 years.

A picture was shown of the most modern and up-to-date feed plant in Canada which was recently built in Guelph. If co-ops are a good idea then farmers should set their values in savings, credit and patronize this phase of their organization.

By working together farmers can provide credit unions and these organizations are ready to assist with insurance, banking, bonding and protection. All of these organizations are ready to serve farmers and help them to organize their own credit unions.

He gave a first-hand picture of a farm group lending and borrowing.

The closing theme of the inspiring address was "The O.F.A. and You". He stressed the ideas that you have on your own farms, and the value of passing these ideas along to the proper groups. You have a responsibility that agriculture is the basic industry.

In closing he said: You have provided all these various ways and means in order to improve your social and economic positions and now it is up to each farm family to use these aids for better living and stand by your organizations and thereby reap the benefits."

QUESTIONS, ANSWERS

A question and answer period followed when many problems were discussed and a host of worth while ideas were given by the fieldman.

Monaco Is Set Like Tiny Gem On Blue Mediterranean Waters

EDITOR'S NOTE: The biggest wedding in a long time will be held in the smallest country in the world next month. What kind of place is Monaco? Here, in the first of four stories, is a grande descriptive of the tiny principality. Other articles will profile Prince Rainier III and Grace Kelly, and tell of preparations for the ceremony itself.

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
Associated Press Staff Writer

Set like a tiny gem on the mild blue waters of the Mediterranean, with the chilly majesty of the maritime Alps rising behind it, is Monaco—where next month the prince will marry the beautiful commoner in the culmination of a fairy tale romance.

For almost a thousand years Monaco has managed to remain an independent state. The reason, no doubt, is its size. The smallest state in the world, it occupies 370 acres.

"My most difficult job," sighs Marcel Palmaro, Monaco's consul-general in New York, "is to get people to understand that my country isn't just a gambling casino."

COUNTRY OF HOTELS

It is a difficult job, for while Monaco is much more than the tables at Monte Carlo, it still is essentially a country of hotels and resorts, thriving on tourists. It exports perfumes and liqueurs, oranges and olive oil, ceramics and postage stamps, but mostly it imports travellers, preferably with money.

Yet this land whose ruling Prince Rainier III soon will marry movie actress Grace Kelly is a sovereign state, even though in miniature. It has a national anthem, on the style of France's Marseillaise, but a little gayer. It has a standing army—of 65 men in skyblue uniforms who double as palace guards and the police force. It has a flag—red and white.

It also, of course, has its Victorian gambling palace. But for some years this has been a rather ghostly structure, its gilt flaking, its red plush wearing smooth, its habitues often on the dowdy side.

Only its legend of glamor is still intact. In spite of craps tables surrounded by tourists in sports clothes and walking shoes, it isn't hard to imagine the casino in the days when it was the playground of elegantly garbed royalty and extremely well-heeled society.

Its history, also in miniature, is almost as bloody and exciting as its giant neighbors: France, which surrounds it on three sides, and Italy, a few kilometres away.

ONCE FEUDAL STATE

In the old days Monaco was a small feudal state whose most important asset was a granite headland, today called Monaco Ville, which pushes into the sea. This headland made an impregnable fortress, easily defended against aggression from land or sea.

The Grimaldi line, which originated in nearby Genoa, has ruled the principality for more than 600 years except for 21 years during the French revolution.

The first Grimaldi gained admission by disguising himself as a Franciscan monk. Inside, he raised a rumpus, diverting the ruling German lords long enough to permit his followers to enter and conquer the fortress.

Once entrenched, the Grimaldis depended on brain and brawn to remain. They made shrewd political alliances, most often with France, and usually turned up on the winning side. Through wise marriages, they allied themselves with some of the richest, most powerful and noble houses in Europe. They made brave knights in the forces of various rulers protecting their domain.

In the 16th century, in return for favors rendered under Spanish protection, a Grimaldi was given the right to collect tolls from ships passing Monaco's port. This painless means of filling the royal coffers was unequalled until 1861, when Rainier III's great - great grandfather set up a gambling concession in Monte Carlo, one of the principality's three towns.

TAXES ABOLISHED

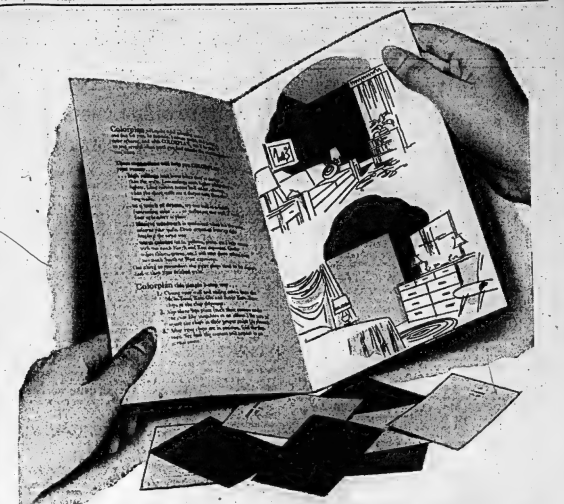
Eight years after the "Sea Bathers and Foreigners Club of Monaco" was founded, Monaco abolished direct taxes. Ten years later it attracted 150,000 visitors; in 1910, half a million. It was the beginning of the Monaco legend.

Through the Victorian period until the First World War, Monte Carlo was the world's most fabulous playground. They still tell of the day when the beautiful "Otero," an actress, won eight billion gold francs at the casino; of the time a bored Russian archduchess imported an entire corps de ballet from St. Petersburg to dance while she gambled. And they still spin tales of breaking the bank at Monte Carlo—although the only time the bank was really busted came after the Second World War, when customers failed to show up and the sea bathing society was losing about $1,000,000 a year.

By 1948, it was obvious Monaco was in trouble. After two wars, there were few crowned heads left to disport themselves in the resort. Rival gaming halls, in Nice and Cannes, cut into what was left of the gambling business. There still was no direct taxation; but the income was coming from a government monopoly on cigarets, matches and a brisk business in postage stamps.

ENTER ONASSIS

Prince Rainier ascended the throne in these critical times. And shortly after the principality acquired its new prince, the sea bathing society got a new boss, a slightly mysterious Greek with an Argentine passport and a $300,000,000 shipping fortune. His name: Aristotle Socrates Onassis.



Onassis got his headquarters into the tax-free municipality through the back door. Rebuffed at first, he worked through dummies to buy up controlling interest in the bathing society, and announced grand plans for the rebirth of Monaco as a resort.

At the moment, Monaco's prospects appear great, although not as a result of Onassis' plans. Tourist business has taken a brisk upward turn, due entirely to the forthcoming marriage.

Much of the storied principality's future may depend upon the prince's marriage to the commoner. In the first place it may result in again swelling the innkeepers' purses. And secondly, it may result in the birth of a young Grimaldi to succeed Rainier.

This is extremely important, for under a 1918 treaty with France, the little country will be annexed by its protective neighbor if there is no successor to the throne. That would mean mandatory military service for the 4,000 Monacans and French taxation for 17,000 other residents.

AMBITIOUS PROGRAM

According to the Ole Sa-Major, who scrivens for the Peterborough daily, rumors arent next season's hockey activities in the Littlock City are flying so thick and fast they're practically wing-to-wing.

To "B" or not to "B". That is the question — or one of them. The rumors have it, probably both "A" and "B" might operate. Gad, it couldn't be a reincarnation of the old Fries and Zagles. We thought that war had ceased some time back.

Anyway, Marse Perdue's sportswrote mill turns out the following: "Since Peter' Stemers bowed out recently to Weston in Metro group semi-finals, rumors fly thick and fast concerning OHA prospects for Peterborough next hockey season. The Memorial Centre should be completed by autumn, and officials are most interested in what type of hockey will be shown there. The junior "B" Stemers want to continue, and we expect the senior "B" Petes, who sad it out the past season, hope to be back in the eastern group for next season, too. There's some talk, too, of possibly pulling a senior "A" club into the Centre wearing local livery. A more persistent rumor has it that we'll have an OHA junior "A" club operating up this way comes next November. The talk is that Hap Emms of Barrie is interested, and also that Montreal Canadiens might put their present Kitchener franchise into Peterborough. Let's just wait and see."

That mesdames, et messieurs, is a lot of hockey eggs to put in the new Community Centre basket. But it makes a variable bill-of-puck-fare for the Littlock faithful, likewise a fairly stiff strain on the box-office traffic.

But if history repeats itself—the kind that has been written so often in centres that iced two or three clubs in the various brackets—the box office sieve will eventually go into action, and the top scrub will get the cream of the support, with the rest sharing the skimmed milk.

Peterborough is one of the outstanding sports centres of Eastern Ontario. Its archives carry records of championships in practically every phase of athletics. It has bred and raised athletes of topflight calibre. Many have made the big time.

But it seems to us that supporting a senior "A", senior "B" and junior "A" and "B" teams is quite a hockey mouthful for the faithful to digest in any city. And that payroll!

We can recall the balmy days when Belleville operated a junior "B" squad in a loop that included Oshawa, Peterborough, Kingston and Lindsay. Belleville, Kingston and Peterborough had senior "B" counter attractions. Oshawa had its well-known Generals—and a senior "B" squad.

The junior "B" teams played to a very sparsely-populated scene in Oshawa. The Generals packed 'em in. Belleville, Kingston and Peterborough will bear witness that their junior "B" squads in schedule play operated before pitiful houses, while the senior clubs got the bulk of the support prawf.

We are not trying to throw cold water on the Peterborough program and we realize these stories are in the rumor stage. However, we would not mind giving the boys in the back room a little business to the effect that the Petes will be back in the eastern senior "B" fold next season, regardless of what happens.

And with this senior "A" rumor coming out of Peterborough, you can now look for a fresh assault from Whitby's Wren Blair on the change-of-status to "A" in the eastern set-up.

GIRLS' SOFTBALL

The Shellettes, starry teen-age softball squad that went through to the all-Ontario finals last year, bowing to the Goderich Dodgers for the title, will operate again this year, but they would appreciate a sponsor. The Shellettes came through with a brilliant all-round performance last season under Manager Leo Luccios, and this year are under the mentorship of Gord Steward. All on the sunny side of twenty, these smart gals should go places in the softball world this season. Anyone with an eye to sponsoring the club is requested to contact Gord Steward at 57 Crestview, Phone 2-4609.

Big Bad Wolves Toss Scare Into Maroons With 4-1 Win

CHATHAM (CP) — Chatham Maroons' non-losing playoff streak is over. It was cut at eight games Monday night by Sudbury Wolves in the third game of the all-Ontario Senior A hockey finals.

Wolves blanketed the Chatham scoring power with a tight defensive game, mixed with spurts of offensive attacks when the opportunities presented themselves, to defeat Maroons 4-1.

The result left the best-of-seven series deadlocked at one game apiece and all. Fourth game is scheduled for here tonight.

Wolves, champions of the North-ern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A league, ended Maroons' winning streak at seven games Saturday when they held the On-tario Hockey Association Senior A champions to a 3-1 tie.

Wolves took a 1-0 lead early in the first period and were never behind after that. Goaltender Marv Edwards, who was the main cog in Maroons' winning string, appeared a little shaky, perhaps from the tremendous effort he turned in at Sudbury Saturday when he stopped 47 shots.

Monday night Edwards handled only 31 shots while Sudbury goal-tender John Albani turned aside 28 drives.

Smelie got Wolves off to an early lead at 4:55 of the first period four minutes later. Connelly scored at 5:33 of the second period while Chuck Blair was serving Maroons only penalty of the game. Con-nelly took a pass from behind the blueline and broke through the Sudbury defence to score.

Lemieux put the Wolves' lead out of reach at 17:49 of the middle frame and Milne closed the scor-ing midway through the last 20 minutes.

After that, Sudbury settled back to form a solid defensive wall which Maroons seldom penetrated.

Wolves were assessed five minor penalties but none figured in the scoring.

Poser for Blues' Fiery Coach Is 'How to Stop Canadiens?; Leafs Did It 14 Years Ago

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—Fall Watson, already sick and tired of second-guessing himself, shudders at what awaits him tonight if his New York Rangers lose to Montreal Canadiens and bow out of their Stanley Cup semi-final playoff.

"I would have to walk across the ice and shake hands—right here in Montreal," said the fiery Ranger coach Monday night. "That would be awful; just awful. In New York it would be different, but here in Montreal . . ."

Did Watson mean he was conceding a Montreal win and a wind-up of the series four games to one?

"Not on your life; we're conceding nothing," shot back Watson with a show of indignation. "We've got a good bunch of fellows, a good hockey team, and they will be out there battling. Don't mis-take that.

WHAT CAN WE DO?

"But what can we do about stopping this Montreal club? Tell me that, then you'll get a lot of things and we're still trying. We don't quit. We stopped Rocket Richard and Maurice Richard once and Jean Beliveau in New York. What happened? Geoffrion is the big goal scorer."

The Rocket and Geoffrion went scoreless in Canadiens' win Sat-urday and Sunday in New York but Beliveau banged a pair of goals. Olmstead, the assist special-ist during the National Hockey League season, suddenly became a prolific scorer with four goals.

"And that Doug Harvey on de-fence," went on Phil. "That guy was wonderful. You have to hand it to him."

Watson said he thought the NHL regulation for the playoffs should be changed so the first and third place teams wouldn't face each other in one semi-final.

NEARLY MADE IT

"We nearly made second place, and I sure wish we had. Maybe things would have been dif-ferent."

Hockey gossip persisted that Gordie Bell, who capably handled the goal-tending job in the only game the Rangers have won so far, would again be in the New York nets tonight.

"I don't know," said Watson, wagging his head dolefully. "I'm so tired of second-guessing myself I don't know right now whether it will be Bell or Lorne Worsley.

"I could have gone with Bell in New York Saturday, after our win here Thursday, but there I go sec-ond-guessing again."

Watson also shook his head about possible changes in his for-ward lines, although general man-ager Muzz Patrick said earlier Monday that the lines would be re-grouped into the combinations that pulled out Thursday's 4-2 win.

BELLE'S TRIBUTE

While Watson was pondering ways and means of stopping the highly favored Montrealers, man-aging director Frank Selke on Canadiens was paying tribute to the Rangers.

"No one conceded them a chance to make the playoffs before the season started," said Selke. "Al-most everybody picked them to finish last at the end of the Ya-game schedule but they furnished the surprise of the season by fin-ishing third and giving Detroit a fight for second place.

"Sometimes they haven't shown to advantage in the Forum but they have given us a battle every time we met them on their own ice. They are a spirited hockey team."

Selke said the series isn't over yet "but the New York fans should be proud of the Rangers, whether they win or lose."

Contempt Charges Sought Against LA Matchmaker

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Contempt charges against Los Angeles matchmaker Babe McCoy are being sought by James Cox, head of Governor Goodwin Knight's spe-cial committee investigating boxing in California.

"As far as I'm concerned, Mc-Coy is in contempt of this hearing for having failed to make his books available . . . as he was ordered by Judge John J. Ford," Cox said as he prepared for today's seventh session.

When Watson Jones, former Cali-fornia state light - heavyweight champion, testified Monday that he threw four fights, three on or-ders of McCoy, matchmaker at the Olympic Auditorium, the list of fights he fixed fights rose to 12.

BROKE DOWN

Jones broke down and sobbed as he told of obeying orders he said came from McCoy who, he said, "was like a father to me."

"I loved that fat man," Jones said of the 300-pound McCoy, "but he robbed me."

Jones told Gov. Knight's investi-gators that on McCoy's orders he "took a dive" against Joe Kahut in Portland, Ore., and Jack McCarter in Toledo, Kan., in 1949. He also said he was or-dered to get out of a fight against Harry Matthews and Jimmy Bi-vins in 1950, But Jones said McCoy is nothing to do with the Bivins fix.

GAVE HIS ORDERS

"Sparky Rudolph gave me my orders for that one," Jones added. Rudolph is McCoy's nephew.

James Cox, the state's special counsel, called Jones to the stand after McCarter's appear-ance. Mc-Coy's attorney said his client was still ill.

Jones, who gave his real name as Alexander Dumas Watson, said he had bestowed the ring name of Watson Jones, but not much more, on him.

"McCoy was my boss man," the boxer testified, crying at times. "He got me what he wanted to. I never received so much as 25 per cept from any of my fights."

Barrie Drops Opener to Marlboros Lead Young Leafs 1-0 But Lose 5-3

TORONTO (CP) — Things are going just the same for Barrie Flyers. They lost the first game of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A finals 5-3 to Toronto Marlboro Monday night.

It was also the same Barrie team which lost the first game of the OHA Junior A quarter-finals to Kitchener - Waterloo Canucks. Flyers later eliminated the pesky Canucks 4-3 with one game tied in the best-of-seven series.

In the second, Flyers again dropped the first game. That time to Toronto St. Michael's Majors. They defeated Majors 3-2 in that best-of-five set.

Whether Flyers will duplicate their earlier feats this time is a big question. But don't count them out.

CHAMPIONSHIP ROUND

The second game of the best-of-seven championship round, which also constitutes the Eastern Canada semi-final for Memorial Cup play, is scheduled for Wednesday at Barrie. The third game is here Saturday.

For a while Monday night it looked as though Flyers were going to take the game. But Marlboros scored once in three-goal period to reverse the trend.

Flyers jumped into a 1-0 lead in the first period. They trailed 3-1 after the second. Midway through the final 20 minutes, Barrie scored two fast goals to tie the score but Marlboros took the lead for good with two later.

OPENED SCORING

Beckett opened the scoring with his 12th goal of the 14 playoff games Barrie has played. He beat Toronto goaltender Len Broderick at 17:09 of the first period.

Girard deadlocked the score at 7:30 of the second and Nevin and Baun gave Marlboros their 3-1 lead. Normand made it 3-2 at 10:42 of the final period while Pulford was credited with the "earner" two minutes later. Smith tied it up at 14:39.

Burns fired a high, 25-foot shot over Barrie goalkeeper Don Sentner's right shoulder for the winning goal at 12:58 and Pulford added the clincher with four seconds left by scoring into a vacant net. Senior had been benched in favor of a sixth attacker.

Junior Habs Edge Ottawa In Opening Tilt

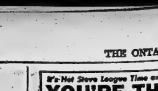
OTTAWA (CP)—A sliding backhand shot gave Montreal junior Canadiens a 3-2 win over Ottawa Shamrocks Monday night in the opening game of their eastern Canada junior A hockey semi-final.

The next game of the best-of-five series here is scheduled for Wednesday night.

Forbes Kennedy was the triggerman on the backhand shot at 3:26 of the final stanza as the Canadiens went one of their toughest opponents of the 1955-56 hockey season.

District hockey fans thought the Canadiens would take the series Carry a walk into the Habitants found they were in for trouble from the opening whistle.

LEADING UP RINK



Kennedy made a third-period rink length rush with linemates Dave Balon and Jean Guy Gendron but the trio were tied up in front of the Shamrock goal. As Kennedy regained control of the puck he got a soft backhander which never left the ice as it slipped behind goalie Roy Houlahan.

Rod Pelchat of Canadiens went off with a minor penalty early in the first period, setting the stage for Jerry Laforce of Shamrocks and one by his own club.

Centre Royden Kelsey notched the first Shamrock goal with a screen hockey champion Shamrocks have been in all their playoff tiers at 8:31 when Tom Lesnick slapped a loose puck into the Montreal cage after a sustained banging attack.

Dudych again tied up the game with only 55 seconds remaining in the opening period. Goalie Gerry Wilson's distrust and rifled a backhand shot into the losers for.

After a goalless second period, Kennedy's marker won the game.

YOU'RE THE MANAGER

(Twenty-fourth of a Series)

By BEN OLAM

The Phillies' Robin Roberts is one of Major League baseball's best and most durable pitchers.

He rarely walks a batter and seldom gives up a home run. He moved from a game. Robin's control is so good, in fact, that he gives up lots of home runs. He led his league in pitcher balls last season with 47, setting a record.

Here's a case where Manager Mayo Smith mates the right move while Robin was in the box and helped the Phils win a game against the New York Giants.

Would you have done the same as Smith?

(If) stands for a right-handed batter or pitcher and (2) for a left-handed batter or pitcher.

The Phillies and Giants are tied 2-2 in the last of the ninth at New York with Roberts (R) pitching. Willie Mays opens the inning with a base on balls. Don Mueller sacrifices Mays to second. Bill Rigney (L) is up to bat for Monte Irvin (R). Hank Thompson (L) is on deck with Whitey Lockman (L) to follow.

ROBIN ROBERTS

Would you—
a. Walk Rhodes, intentionally?
b. Pitch to Rhodes?
c. Relieve Roberts with a left-hander?

Results: B—Roberts pitches to Rhodes, who flied out. Robin got rest of the inning without Mays scored on and the Phillies got two runs in the 11th to win 6-2 (April 17).

Bob Attersley Leads Whitby Dunlops To 4-3 Win Over Kingston Goodyears

Bobby Attersley's two goals late in the second and the other early in the third, were the deciding factors last night as the Whitby Dunlops shaded Kingston 4-3 to knot their OHA senior "B" series at one game apiece.

The third game in the four-out-of-seven Eastern Ontario group finals is scheduled for Whitby on Wednesday night with the fourth in Kingston on Friday.

Last night's fixture was a fast, hard fought affair with the decision in doubt until the final buzzer. There was a capacity crowd of 3,888 paying fans in the Kingston Memorial Centre, saw Attersley's goal at 14:24 in the second period. Kingston clicked for two goals in the opening 40 seconds of the second to go ahead for the only time of the game, but Whitby led at 3-2 as the period ended.

Bob Attersley put Whitby two up for a short time in the third, taking Gagnon's pass at 2:13, shifting around the defence, fooling Devaney with a fake shot and sliding the disc in the corner. Kingston got this back, however, in less than a minute when Bert Ringer deflected Jim Macey's goalmouth pass.

The Goodyears fought desperately to tie it as Whitby drew three of four penalties in the last 15 minutes. Fred Etcher was thumbed for hooking at 18.25 and coach Douglas inserted six attackers into action but the Dunlops hung on for the win.

The Attersley-Gagnon-O'Connor line sparked the victor's attack with Bobby Attersley netting 2 goals, O'Connor scoring once and Gagnon assisting on three. Defenceman Don McBeth also scored.

Hub Macey's line accounted for all eight Kingston markers in the feat. Kingston's "most valuable player", Tom Bellringer, assisted on three goals while Macey assisted on three and George Samolenko on two.

Both goaltenders were terrific, Gerry Devaney holding the powerful Dunlops at bay with several impossible saves in the third period while Jack Gamble robbed Kingston. The winners outshot Kingston 33 to 29.

McBeth scored with a screened drive in the first but was then given a two minute hooking penalty at 1.55 of the second Bellringer clicked for two with Devaney in quick order, O'Connor tied it at 17.15 and Attersley put them ahead at 19.40 to stay.

George MacGregor played outstanding hockey for Kingston, leading rush after rush while Joe Lavarocque also turned in a starring role. Tom O'Connor and Harry Sinden were big men in the Whitby lineup which is stiff bodycheck by Tom Goodfellow, sending Bus Gagnon to the bench, the most popular play of the night.

Summary

1. Whitby—McBeth (Gagnon) 5.39

Spring Training Notes

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Spring exhibition games don't receive the same fan fare for pocketbooks, but they sure can be tough on managers manipulating for the results of winter trades. Ask Frank Lane.

The first trade Lane put together as general manager of St. Louis Cardinals was a beauty. Lane came with his bartering business for Chicago White Sox—backfired right off the bat.

Lane was aware of pitching failings when he took over and so he sent Brooks Lawrence, bothered by an ulcer and a high earned run average, to Cincinnati for Jackie Collum, a Card of the pre-Lane days.

So what happens? Lawrence ran into his old mates for the first time Monday, giving up 10 hits and three walks, but snapping off their six-game winning streak 7-1. Collum, by the way, has appeared in only one game for the Cards so far—for a 0-1 record.

COSTLY ERROR

A bases-loaded, two-out error by Card shortstop Alex Grammas—muffing Lawrence's tap—sent two Reds' runs across in the seventh. It might also be noted that Larry Doby, acquired from Cleveland for Dick Gernert in a waiver deal executed by Chuck Comiskey after Lane's departure, continued to connect with his bat as the White Sox leveled Boston Red Sox 9-3.

Doby rapped home the first Chicago run with a triple and added a single to boost his average to .419.

Brooklyn Dodgers followed the pattern they set in trimming New York Yankees in last fall's world series, clobbered the Bronx Bombers 15-7 after losing the first two games of their spring series. Jackie Robinson unloaded a three-run homer.

Milwaukee's Braves saw their Ray Crone tagged for four runs in three innings the Pittsburgh Pirates won 16-9. Dale Long drove in five Buc runs with a double, triple and homer among Pittsburgh's 17 hits.

Del Ennis walloped a grand-slam homer in a five-run fifth that gave Philadelphia Phillies a 6-2 decision over Detroit Tigers, who have won only four of 16 spring exhibitions.

Johnny Antonelli allowed only four hits while going seven innings for New York Giants this season as New York Giants poured it on Baltimore 14-1.

Chicago Cubs dumped Cleveland Indians 9-5 with Warren Hacker pitching shutout ball for six innings.

Podgy Moore Fights Tonight

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—Archie Moore, an overweight lightheavyweight champ if ever there was one, is matched Howard King of Reno, Nev., tonight in a 10-round non-title fight at Memorial Auditorium.

Moore said he figures to weigh in at about 185, some 10 pounds more than King. The Reno fighter stayed 10 rounds with Moore last month in San Francisco.

FIRST 10-CAR 'SPIEL

SASKATOON (CP) — Canada's first 10-car bonspiel, one of the richest curlers's ever staged, got under way Monday with a starstudded entry of 36 rinks, 28 below the objective.

The prize list includes four new cars, one automobile for the winning rink; four English-model cars for the losers in the best-of-three play-off for each prize and another to the seller of the winning door-prize ticket.

Forty-and-Over Golf Club Back in Action

NEW YORK (AP)—The man who turned the professional golf tour into a gold mine came home from Florida today with the report that the "best Hogan" chart is back.

The Forty-and-Over Club is in the saddle again," said Fred Corcoran, former tournament director of the Professional Golfers' Association and still an adviser, "and Ben Hogan is the keenest as sharpest of the lot.

"Jimmy Demaret is playing some of his finest golf. He says he has discovered 'nerve control.' Sam Snead is overweight but hitting the ball as well as he did at 25. And Lloyd Mangrum has shown he has refound his old touch."

Corcoran, however, was most impressed with Hogan, who announced after a playoff loss to Jack Fleck in the 1955 U.S. Open that he would never again work seriously at the championship.

Corcoran predicted Hogan will be the man to beat in the Masters tournament at Augusta, Ga., beginning April 5.

"Ben is Ben is practicing eight hours a day, just as he used to do. The golfers now on tour are getting a little money as a result of Hogan's example."

Sarnl, at 36, is starting his 14th season in professional baseball. He's been in the majors only two years.

General manager Frank Lane probably deserves an assist for the catcher's new fire. He telephoned Sarni at contract-time to trim his pay and to tell him he had picked up a reputation for lacking aggressiveness.

Sarni's cut was small from his 1955 salary of about $11,000 but Lane said the catcher was "resentful, understandably, and I don't blame him. I told about his reputation. He told me, though, that if such was what I wanted, I sure as the devil would get it."

"And I sure have," Lane added. "He's really running the show behind the plate."

Large Crowds See Hoop Finals

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Canadian Olympic basketball trials committee was optimistic today that gate receipts will cover the $14,000 expenses of staging the four-team series here.

Norman G. Gloag, committee chairman, said total paid attendance at the 4,400-seat University of British Columbia gymnasium was about 7,000.

Saturday night's attendance neared the 4,000 mark and a full house is expected tonight.

About $6,000 of the expenses for the trials are underwritten by industrial and business firms in Vancouver.

Rookie Looms As Cardinals Top Catcher

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—Bill Sarni, annoyed by a pay cut and a rookie's challenge, appeared Monday to have wrapped up the No. 1 catching job for Lou Boudreau's Cardinals' first-string catching job.

Manager Fred Hutchinson said Sarni has shown "he swings a good bat and takes charge back there. Yes, he's shown me more than I had expected."

Sarni, at 36, is starting his 14th season in professional baseball. He's been in the majors only two years.

General manager Frank Lane probably deserves an assist for the catcher's new fire. He telephoned Sarni at contract-time to trim his pay and to tell him he had picked up a reputation for lacking aggressiveness.

May Enter Combined Team In Intercounty

KITCHENER (CP) — Baseball fans take their minds from football and hockey to enter a combined Kitchener - Waterloo team in the Senior Intercounty League in 1956, it was reported Monday night.

Officials of the old Waterloo Tigers and Kitchener Panthers will meet here tonight to discuss the feasibility of amalgamating for the 1956 season.

Ernie Goman, who managed the Tigers when they were in the Intercounty League a couple of seasons ago, arranged the meeting. He said it was time the two teams combined forces along the lines which have proved successful for two hockey teams—Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League and Canucks in the OHA Junior A League and Dutchmen of the Ontario Rugby Football Union.

LAST SEASON

Panthers operated in the Intercounty League last season but Tigers dropped out. They have been considering a return to the league again this year. Goman said Monday the deal by George King to sell the Panthers to Kitchener franchise has not been completed. Although Waterloo has made an entry it would not operate individually.

King offered to buy the Panther franchise from Kitchener Legion but the deal fell through when Harold Gellatly said the idea of a combined team has merit and he feels the legion would be willing to talk it over, since the deal with King has not been completed.

Alberta Five Ousts Manitoba; Take on Totems

VANCOUVER (CP) — Alberta Towne Hallers stifled the dangerous Manitoba Buffaloes in a re-match here Monday night to move into the final eliminations of the Olympic basketball trials.

Towne Hallers take on undefeated British Columbia Totems tonight in a game that could decide the Canadian amateur basketball crown and the right to represent Canada at the Olympic Games.

A B.C. victory would end the series but, if Alberta wins, each team will have one loss and a sudden-death playoff will be held Wednesday night.

The Alberta crew stayed alive in the four-team double-knockout series with a sensational 66-59 win over the Manitobans, cinched with five foul shots in the last 32 seconds.

They ousted Ontario Nortowns from competition Saturday night after losing to Manitoba in the opening game.

Stalwarts for Alberta were centre Ed Lasch, at six-foot-seven the tallest player in the trials, and speedy forward Don MacIntosh, each scoring 19 points.

For Manitoba, standouts were bucket-eyed Ron Thiessen with 18 points, forward Xing Carl Ridd with 12 and fireball guard Mike Kostyra, five-foot-four, who potted seven field goals from improbable angles.

Cup Finals Start Saturday If and When

MONTREAL (CP) — The final playoff series for the Stanley Cup will probably start Saturday if both the Montreal Canadiens and Detroit Red Wings win their games tonight, Clarence Campbell president of the National Hockey League, said Monday night.

The Red Wings have a 3-0 lead in their series with Toronto Maple Leafs while the Canadiens lead New York Rangers three games to one. Both the semi-final and final series are best-of-seven affairs.

Campbell said the only thing that had been decided definitely was that even if Canadiens and Detroit win their games tonight, the final series will not start Thursday. He added that Saturday was a probable starting date. The first two games would be held in Montreal.

In the event that Toronto or New York should extend or win their semi-final series, schedule for the final round would be worked out later, Campbell said.

Teepees' Vasko Signs Contract With Chicago

CHICAGO (AP)—Elmer (Moose) Vasko, one of Canada's outstanding junior defencemen, Monday signed a two-year contract with Chicago Black Hawks.

Vasko, 20, has been with the St. Catharines Teepees the last three years, leading them to the junior championships of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League. The Hawks bought the attire club this year as a farm affiliate.

Vasko stands 6-4 and weighs 200 pounds. He is rated a high scoring defenceman, picking up 11 goals and 18 assists last season. He has been assigned to the Black Hawks' farm at Buffalo to finish out the current playoff series with the Bisons.

"He's big, can skate and if someone gets him mad—watch out," said Bob Irvin, Hawks' coach. "With seasoning, he should become one of the best, if not the best, defenceman in the National Hockey League."

McKenzie Denies Charges of Illegal Permits

TORONTO (CP)—M. L. McKenzie, Ontario Athletic Commissioner Monday night denied charges that the OAC illegally permits weekly fight shows in the Palace Pier, a waterfront dance hall.

He commented on statements made in an American Athletic Union brief presented Monday to the Ontario legislature's committee on government commissions. The brief, presented by William Varley and Charles Baggley, Detroit officials, was "generally incompetent" in his handling of boxing shows, professional wrestling and municipal decisions regarding Sunday boxing.

Said McKenzie:

"To start with they (Varley and Bagnato) do not represent the AAU but two local clubs which failed to get the television contract for the Palace Pier fights.

"Under the provisions of the Ontario Athletic Act, we (the OAC) are the supreme authority for boxing in Ontario. The AAU wants permission to run only zone championships, and has no concern with club fights such as at the Pier."

Lumsdon Will Enter Fuca Swim If Date Right

TORONTO (CP)—Cliff Lumsdon, winner of last year's Canadian National Exhibition marathon swim, said Monday he will enter an international swim across the Juan de Fuca straight if the date did not clash with a 26-mile championship swim at Atlantic City in July.

His decision followed the Victoria Chamber of Commerce's announcement that it has raised $10,000 toward a $15,000 prize for an international swim across the 18-mile strait.

Lumsdon said Monday he would enter the swim only if at least two weeks separated it from the Atlantic City contest slated July 25.

The Juan de Fuca swim is scheduled for July or August.

Swim coach Steve Mellors of Toronto said Monday he will take swimmers Fernley Wheatcroft and George Wiskin to the west coast in June to prepare for a winner-take-all race against Bert Thomas of Toronto. Wash., only conqueror of the strait between Vancouver Island and Washington state.

In each generation is revived the old wheeze that "a peek is better than two finesses." Modern bridge players are so good that they know when to avoid finesses without the aid of a peek.

Take the deal shown here:

South was declarer at a contract of six spades and the opening lead was the two of trump. Without seeing opponents hands you would assume that only a finesse would be used.

The proper way to play the heart suit would be to lead a small dummy heart toward the south queen. This is a finesse although the cards are played as are separated; that is, in opposite hands.

However, when declarer learns that he must lose a trump trick in any event, he will attempt at a finesse would be fatal in this case. He would be bound to lose a trick in that suit, too.

So he must find a play to take its place. This he did. How? By forcing opponent to make the finesse for him. That is, instead of starving his finesse himself he lets opponent take it.

After taking the first trick with a top trump a second trump was led to dummy. This told him who has a trump trick. So, both of opponent's trump stings and queen were cashed.

A trump returned south who was careful not to cash his club ace. Instead, a small club was ruffed in dummy. A diamond let south take two more tricks in that suit with ace and king.

When these tricks went through, south led his club ace and if mattered not whether west ruffed or not. If he did not ruff, south would take his last south trump for west to take.

In either case, west must now lead a heart from his kind and jack. This lead means that south will take both heart tricks and thus lose no heart in the end. For west the end is bitter.

It is expected the schedule will open around May 20.

Sinking of Titanic Will Be Dramatized on Television

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—A Night To Remember, a dramatization of Walter Lord's best-selling book on the sinking of the Titanic, will be presented Wednesday night on NBC-TV.

A cast of 105 will be manoeuvred among a maze of 11 sets in NBC's huge Brooklyn studios on Kraft Television Theatre. Two more in Brooklyn from the cast and crew. Manhattan studios was forced because everybody agreed it simply wasn't safe to store 3,000 gallons of water in tanks on an upper floor of the RCA building.

That's the amount of water which will be used in two huge tanks for scenes simulating the sinking of the ship after it struck an iceberg.

A Night To Remember is the fruit of nearly 30 years of research by Walter Lord.

"I simply began collecting everything I read or heard about the sinking of the Titanic," Lord said the other day. "And then one day I realized I had a book. The writing took less than a year."

He knew the story had the elements of wide appeal," he said. "After all, you had many of the world's wealthiest and most glamorous people sailing on the maiden voyage of the world's largest and most glamorous ship. The ship sank and some were saved and many died and many of those who were lost died because they simply couldn't believe the ship would sink."

Spirited 'Chaser Sees Ghost-Jump Near Finish of Grand National Race

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Turf experts attribute the sensational, stranger-than-fiction finish of the 110th Grand National steeplechase to a "ghost" Jump.

The theory is that the Queen Mother's Devon Loch, with the great race practically over, lifted his front legs to clear an imaginary obstacle, checked in mid-flight when he saw it wasn't there and then slithered along the turf on his hind legs.

Racing writers note that Devon Loch soared into the air at a point parallel with a body of water flanking the race course. They suggest the reflection of the water may have induced the horse to take off on his fatal leap.

The incident, adding an unforgettable chapter to the legends of Grand National history, occurred within 50 yards of the winning post. It enabled Mrs. Fenwick Carver's E. S. B. to sweep by to triumph, with Gentle Mona second and pull the 12-year-old Royal Tan third among the nine survivors in the field of 29 runners.

WAS FAR AHEAD

Devon Loch was six lengths clear of E. S. B. when the accident happened, turning victory into defeat. The climax came amid a storm of cheering and just as the large crowd prepared to dedt hats in the traditional greeting to a royal winner, first since Ambush II won for the Prince of Wales, later Edward VII, in 1900.

One commentator said the last-minute drama could be compared only with the scene at Vancouver in 1954 when British marathoner Jim Peters, far ahead of his field, collapsed in the last 200 yards of a 26-mile run.

BBC commentator Raymond Glendenning, in his broadcast account of the race, attributed Devon Loch's fall to fright caused by a man running toward the rail. But majority opinion is that Devon Loch was not frightened nor did he break down, but that the spill was caused by the ghost jump.

Trainer Peter Casalet said today Devon Loch is completely fit.

"The horse just slipped from behind. No blame can be attached to anyone. It is quite untrue to say Devon Loch was a spent horse. He was finishing very strongly."

SLEW MATRON

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—Five teenage girls were sentenced Monday to' up to 20 years for slaying a matron they overpowered to escape from a detention home. The girls overpowered Mrs. Ruth Boggs, matron at the detention home, and stuffed an ammonia-soaked rag in her mouth before escaping from the home last Nov. 27. They were recaptured a short time later. They were allowed to plead guilty to manslaughter.

Borgnine's First Action After Winning Oscar, Kissed Wife

Editor's note: This is the first of three articles by Bob Thomas on Oscar winner Ernest Borgnine.

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — If it is true that action reveals the man, then much can be learned about Ernest Borgnine from the way he behaved last Wednesday night.

When Grace Kelly announced from the Pantages Theatre stage that he had won an Oscar for Marty, Borgnine's first action was to kiss his wife.

"Then the first thought that came into my head concerned the two men in front of me," he recalls. "They were Frank Sinatra and James Cagney, both magnificent performers. They were up for the Oscar, too. My greatest disappointment was that these wonderful guys couldn't have won. I thought to myself, 'What can you possibly say to them—"I'm sorry" of what?'"

But Ernie didn't have time to ponder this longer. He hurried on stage and accepted the golden statuette.

Miss Kelly, Then he gave his heartfelt thanks to the three people who had meant the most in his life—his mother, his father and his wife.

ITALIAN BACKGROUND

His mother . . . she had been born Anna Boselli in Capri, Italy, the daughter of a cook. . . . "She gave me the idea of being an actor after I got out of the navy," says Ernie. She did before he fulfilled her hopes; she saw him act only once in a Hartford, Conn., drama school.

His father . . . Carmine Borgnine was born in Piedmont, Italy, came to the United States when he was 12. . . . "He was always backing me up," his son recalls. "He always could see me in a fatherly advice, whether it was encouraging me to continue acting or giving me the moral values a father can provide" . . . Carmine Borgnine lived to see his son's triumph, still does factory work in Hartford, "because he can't bear to be idle."

His wife . . . She was a Brooklyn girl, Rhoda Kemiker, when met her when I was in the hospital during the war," Ernie says. "She was a pharmacist's mate and she took such good care of me that I figured I'd better marry her. And she has taken good care of me since."

Round and jolly, she handled the family finances, keeps Ernie well fed and helps in his work. . . . he says, pointing at a dozen leather - bound movie scripts. "Rhoda knew every word in them. She'd work for hours cuing me on my lines and telling me, 'Say every word; that's what they were written for.'"

And so you get a picture of Ernest Borgnine from what happened on Oscar night. He has that rare quality in actors—true humility. He has compassion.

And he is loyal to his friends. His one regret about stardom: "I see a lot of my good friends less often. I don't come to my house so much, because they think I am too busy for them. . . ."

Considering his gentle qualities friends have never heard him say bad word about anyone—it is remarkable that Ernie was almost discovered as a film heavy, only marty came along to save him.

Little Benny's Notebook

I was looking at the circus posters on the empty brick wall with Theda Simkins and Sherry Judge's grandfather Mr. Peevy started to go past, saying, I used to perform in a circus.

What did you do? I said, and Mr. Peevy said, Well, I'll tell you the last thing I did, I got shot out of a cannon. You had to have a strong heart for that job, and the regular man that was being shot out got discharged by the management when they found out h i s heart was so weak it couldn't even stand the strane of having an X-ray picture took of it. So I applied for the job and so did the lion tamer, Mr. Peevy said.

Was your heart stronger than his? Puds said, and Mr. Peevy said No, as a matter of fact his heart was as strong as a bull and it beat 500 times a minute without getting out of breth, but he stayed 300 pounds and the management didn't want to go to the expense of using extra fuel in the cannon, so they picked me instead.

How many times a day did you get fired out? I said, and Mr. Peevy said, Only once, and the first day was the last. The lion tamer hid a small but hungry lion in the cannon just before I got in, and we were fired out together. That last started a chain reaction, me while we were still in the air, and he chased me right out of the circus tent and up a tree 5 miles away, and by the time I was rescued I'd been up in the tree a whole week with nothing to do but study the habits of nesting birds, and I used the information to make a tidy little flute ratail by picking the birds.

And he kept on going in his sailor hat and his blue coat with the brass buttons.

The regular meeting of the Ladies' Guild of Holy Trinity Church was held at the home of Mrs. F. Goodfellow last Thursday evening.

Sympathy of friends and neighbors is extended to the family of the late Mrs. Allan MacDonald who passed away on Friday last at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Lee Grills, third concession of Sidney.

Mrs. MacDonald was in her 87th year and one of the oldest residents of Shannonville, having lived her entire lifetime in this district.

The funeral service was held in the chapel at Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home on Monday afternoon and was largely attended.

The interment was in the family plot in Riverview Cemetery, Shannonville.

Mrs. J. Lazier is a patient in Kingston General Hospital following an operation; Her many friends wish her a speedy return to good health.

Mrs. W. D. Robertson, Mrs. E. Vivian and Mrs. A. Greatrix attended the Quinte Women's Institute meeting which was held at the YMCA, Belleville, on Tuesday last. Irish decorations and music were used in honor of St. Patrick.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Johnson and Linda spent a recent weekend at Mountain Grove.

Mrs. J. Kent had the misfortune to fracture her hand in a fall.

On Thursday afternoon and evening a free rabies vaccination clinic for dogs and cats was held in the show room at K. H. Vivian's garage which was sponsored by the Canadian Department of Agriculture Health of Animals Division.

Taking into consideration the number of pets, about 300 dogs and a large number of cats, the affair passed off quite peacefully.

The pets were brought in bags, bobato crates, on leashes or carried by their owners and the three veterinarians in charge had a busy time.

Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Wilson were Mr. and Mrs. R. LaBarr of Kingston, and Mr. and Mrs. G. Cumming of Corbyville.

Prime Objective Of Conference To Strengthen Unity

One-Day Meeting Closes With Leaders in Agreement

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (AP) — President Eisenhower saw Prime Minister St. Laurent and Mexico's President Adolfo Ruiz Cortines off for home with warm farewells today and then left for Washington himself, convinced that the experiment here in armchair diplomacy had been a great success.

The ease and informality of the first North American summit conference, free of the ceremonies of Washington, apparently have set a preferred pattern for Eisenhower's future international conferences.

He may invite Britain's Prime Minister Nehru here for talks in July, officials believe. Bought on place has been picked. He thinks another American-Canadian-Mexican meeting may be held in the same manner.

"I hope we can do it again some time," he told Mr. St. Laurent as they said goodbye at the end of Greenbrier hotel just before the Canadian prime minister took off for Washington and Ottawa.

A basic strengthening of North American unity was the prime objective of the conference.

The one-day meeting, designed to improve the already harmonious relationship of the three nations here, closed Tuesday night with no formal communique but with a general agreement that they, as the three colonial states, could do much to help the newly - independent countries of the world in the establishment of democratic institutions.

Conference officials have reported that President Eisenhower, Prime Minister St. Laurent and President Ruiz Cortines felt their countries must let those new countries know "that the free world stand ready to give them any normal or economic aid that we can, if that request." This would forestall any possibility of their falling under Communist domination.

FAREWELL DINNER

The conference wound up with a farewell dinner tendered by Eisenhower to the Canadian leader and Ruiz Cortines and members of the three delegations in the president's plush 16-room suite in the Greenbrier Hotel, the swank meeting site in this resort town.

The three government leaders were scheduled to fly back to their respective capitals this morning.

In broad field of assistance to new and under - developed nations, the conference heard a Canadian proposal that the United States and the free world offer to exchange with the Soviet Union "blueprints" of their plans for economic assistance as an extension of the U.S. disarmament plan for exchange of blueprints of military establishments.

TEST RUSSIANS

The prime ministers' test told Canadian reporter he hoped the proposal, put to the conference by External Affairs Minister Pearson, would be discussed through diplomatic channels and taken over by United Nations agency such as the economic and social council.

"There is room," he said, "that it might be a good thing to find out if the Russians are willing to make some move" to test proposals so do in the way of foreign aid."

The Soviet Union offered such assistance to India and Pakistan. The conference discussions, covered in a two hour session Tuesday morning with full delegations in attendance, including a general review of the world's trouble spots, with Eisenhower reporting that the U.S. regards the Suez Middle East situation as a possible threat to world peace.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: A band of cold air from arctic has moved across Michigan during the night and invaded the Windsor area. Its progression since then has been very slow and present indications are for continued very slow eastward movement.

However, it does appear certain that the cold temperatures prevailing fed by the moderate easterly winds will be across most of Ontario Thursday.

Three Cornwall District Farmers Killed in Crash

CORNWALL (CP)—Three Cornwall-district farmers were killed Tuesday night when their car was smashed to pieces by a Canadian National Railways train at a level crossing.

Dead in the crash on a county road crossing at Moulinette, six miles west of here, are:

James MacDonald, 47, of Moorland; Arthur Hough, 65, Newington; and Wesley Waldrott, 34, Northfield Station.

They were the only occupants of the car, a 1951 coupe.

Their mangled bodies were thrown 200 feet from the scene of the impact. The car was fused to the cowcatcher of the locomotive and pieces were found 1,000 feet away.

SKIES WERE CLEAR

Cornwall township police said the crossing was protected by "old-fashioned, anti-social or reactionary."

All levels of government took an active part in the debate. Could Canada afford that? No wonder Canada's foreign capital had to be used to develop the country when governments took so much of the money.

He proposed two changes to tighten government spending: first, collect income taxes in a lump sum every April 30 instead of in four installments, so the government would have to budget through the year, and limit the amount of income taxes on the price tags of goods. These moves would work a change in the federal budget within about a year.

Body of Recluse Partly Devoured By His 20 Dogs

ST. IGNACE, Mich. (AP) — The body of an 86-year-old recluse, partially devoured by his 20 dogs, was found in a locked, fire - gutted shack a mile west of St. Ignace.

Police said Albert Newman apparently died of natural causes some time last week.

Newman destroyed 14 emaciated dogs in the cabin. Seven of the animals ran out the door of the shack when officers opened the door.

Newman, a stonemason, had lived alone since the death of his wife in 1912.

HOLD A-TESTS

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The Soviet Union told the UN Tuesday that H-bomb tests will be held in the Eastern Arctic next month despite the Marshall Islands' protests. U.S. Ambassador Lodge said the matter was considered of such gravity that the decision was made by President Eisenhower alone, himself.

Planes Collide, Two Bail Out

PERRY, N. Y. (AP) — Two United States Air Force fliers bailed out safely from their jet training plane Tuesday night just before their craft crashed in a field on a farm. The pilot of the jet was still unaccounted for early today, Flight Officer Jim Sutherland, 22, and Eric von Schweinitz, 26, of Niagara Falls, N. Y., were taken to Wyoming Community Hospital suffering from burns.

The landing jet pilot was identified as Lieut. Charles Shortle, 27, of the town of Niagara, N. Y.

Daily Sketch Says Sour-Puss Critics Plot to Discredit Queen's Husband

LONDON (CP) — The Daily Sketch says a plot is afoot to lessen the public influence of the Duke of Edinburgh.

The Conservative tabloid newspaper says in a front-page editorial that some recent newspaper articles reminded it of the way "critics, through no more malevolent activity, got to work on Victoria's Prince Albert."

Albert, Queen Victoria's German-born consort, often was accused of trying to force his views on mind for her. There have been similar suggestions in the British newspapers about Queen Elizabeth's husband whose family origins are Greek and German.

Recently The Sunday Express, The Daily Mirror and The Daily Herald suggested that the duke had caused unnecessary offence by his free speech on the royal train, the royal yacht and royal tours.

"These attacks are being made with one object—to discredit the duke in the eyes of the public," declares The Daily—Sketch, adding:

"In a democracy royalty cannot expect to be above criticism, but as they cannot reply, they at least have the right to expect the critics will be fair and based on fact and not fiction.

"And there is a bigger issue. It is this:

"Do we or do we not wish to support the Queen's husband, given from the great benefit they confer on the nation, make us the envy of the world?

The Sketch says "the critics are doing an injustice to a man who is carrying out a difficult job with honesty and vigor."

The duke of Edinburgh has won a great deal of popularity in this country and it will take more than this sour-puss criticism to destroy it."

THATCHER ASKS FOR LOWER TAXES IN BUDGET DEBATE

Calls Harris Budget Dangerous Document

OTTAWA (CP) — One of the Commons' most persistent voices in calling for lower taxes and government economies has been heard again.

Independent Ross Thatcher said Tuesday night that government policies have put hidden taxes throughout the economy 11 to malignant cancer. Government spending must be curbed, Saskatchewan would be paying its bills with inflated money.

He said the budget presented last week by Finance Minister Harris is "a dangerous document" which could cause every Canadian to stop, look and think. High taxes were undermining the free enterprise system just as effectively as any social government could by degree.

BOLTED CCF

Mr. Thatcher, a member for Moose Jaw-Lake Centre, is a prosperous Saskatchewan hardware merchant who bolted CCF ranks last year over differences in policy, including government economic practices. He spoke in the budget debate which continues today and may run into the Friday before the House adjourns for Easter until April 9.

Mr. Thatcher said the tragedy of taxation is that almost all of it is concealed. Critics of high taxation are sometimes called "old-fashioned, anti-social or reactionary."

All levels of government took an active part in the debate. Could Canada afford that? No wonder Canada's foreign capital had to be used to develop the country when governments took so much of the money.

He proposed two changes to tighten government spending: first, collect income taxes in a lump sum every April 30 instead of in four installments, so the government would have to budget through the year, and limit the amount of income taxes on the price tags of goods. These moves would work a change in the federal budget within about a year.

Dust Clouds Cover 6 States, Have to Reroute Airliners

DENVER (AP) — An eerie wall of dust shrouds a six-state area of the United States prairies along an 800-mile path from Cheyenne, Wyo., to Waco, Tex.

The first severe windstorm of the year sent grimy clouds boiling to 20,000 feet and forced rerouting of some airline flights Tuesday.

In its wake lay untold damage to spring crops, grazing land and range animals. In eastern Colorado alone, federal agriculture officials estimated that up to 75 per cent of the state's 3,400,000 acres of winter wheat were blown aloft.

There is little let-up yet in the ferocious winds now battering Kansas, Oklahoma and north Texas.

Visibility ranging down to half a mile was reported Tuesday in Kansas and Texas. Several eastern Colorado towns reported winds gusts to 85 miles an hour.

Much of the area was left in desert wastelands during the "dust bowl" years of the 1930s.

New USSR Disarmament Plan Omits Ban on Atomic Bombs

LONDON (AP) — The Soviet Union has proposed a new plan for world disarmament, omitting the usual Communist demand for renunciation of atomic weapons.

Emphasizing cuts in conventional arms, the proposal was tabled by Russia Tuesday is reported to have urged only a ban or strict control on atomic tests. Demands for outlawing of nuclear weapons and immediate—or eventually—halt, are been high on the Russian proposal list during previous disarmament negotiations.

To some Western observers, the change in Soviet position seems to indicate that the Russians believe they have reached a parity status with the West.

The new Soviet plan was submitted to the five-power United Nations disarmament sub-committee, where the United States already has proposed reductions in arms cuts to reduce U. S. and Soviet armed forces to 2,500,000 men each.

Most delegations termed the Soviet plan a serious contribution, but French representatives saw it as a backward step, considering it would "allow the atomic arms race" to continue."

The U.S., which depends on its atomic superiority to counter the Communist land strength as well as the Communist world, previously has resisted all Red demands for prohibition of nuclear weapons without a rigid system of inspection and control.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Income tax liens totaling more than $50,000 were filed against a group of film and theatrical celebrities Tuesday by the Los Angeles collector of internal revenue.

The biggest lien, $20,891.06, for back taxes for 1952 and 1953, were filed against Michael S. (Sid) and Judy Garland Luft.

Whooping Cough Epidemic Rages Among Eskimos

By JOE MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CAMBRIDGE BAY, N.W.T. (CP) An Eskimo epidemic of whooping cough has hit the Arctic and three deaths is raging in the path of destruction through the region's Arctic tour, it was learned here today.

Doctors reported 400 persons, including many children, out of a total population of some 2,000 have been afflicted with the ailment in the Mackenzie district where the epidemic was still flisa today.

The deaths, all children, resulted from pneumonia brought on by the whooping cough, said Dr. H. E. Bayley, nurse superintendent of Mackenzie youth health services.

Mosley's visit to this frozen port 175 miles inside the Arctic circle coincided with the work of a medical expedition of doctors and six x-ray technicians who Tuesday began a health survey that will extend along a front of nearly 1,000 miles.

It is a coincidence that the visit came at the same time the whooping-cough epidemic was reported. Dr. Bayley and Dr. J.S. Willis of Ottwa, special adviser to the director of northern health services, a new organization. They had been flown in by Transport Minister and Aklavik district of the Mackenzie river mouth some 700 miles northward from here.

Legislature Near Prorogation After Heavy Session

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario legislature moved into the home stretch today, rushing to tie up loose ends of a heavy session so it can prorogue tonight.

Lieutenant-Governor Breithaupt was expected to conduct prorogation ceremonies at 8 p.m.

Members began their 47th sitting at 10 a.m. Tuesday night they struggled through their fifth night sitting in seven days.

During discussion of welfare department estimates, to be voted on today, Miss Shirley Haberfield levelled a sharp attack on the government's social-service program. She said the Ontario Welfare Conservative government should institute legislation to help elderly persons instead of blaming the federal government for its problems. The government had been of great benefit to all needy persons, but Ontario had created not only poorer provinces.

The Ontario government was planning to spend $8,000,000,000 in the next 20 years on highways, education and welfare, "but not one night cents" for old age relief.

In earlier debate on the welfare department estimates, CCF leader MacDonald said the Ontario government is "feeding the people of the province up "a garden patch" diet instead of the hospital insurance issue. A government hospital insurance plan would not only help people pay more than they are paying now.

Health Minister Phillips replied the government is just as anxious as anybody to implement hospital insurance, but it is not ready to rush in before a workable plan has been thrashed out.

Opposition leader Farquhar Oliver said the legislature's health committee, which Tuesday held its last of five meets, is "a waste of time and effort to evade responsibility." The committee had served no purpose, he charged, except complaints that large costs mentioned by Premier Frost were "baloney."

Two Die in Fire, Say Man Set It To Spite Wife

NEW YORK (AP)—A 40-year-old man, reported bitter after a quarrel with his wife, was accused by police today of setting a fire in which two other women lost their lives.

Howard Kennedy of the Bronx was booked on charges of homicide and arson after he was arrested Tuesday afternoon in front of the burning building in which he lived.

Police said Kennedy, who was burned, told them while being treated that he had set the fire to get even with his wife. Later, however, Kennedy denied under questioning that he had set the fire.

Telephone Exchange Is Set up in Trailer

BLIND RIVER (CP)—A temporary telephone exchange at the mushrooming uranium camp at Elliot lake, 35 miles north of here, will operate from a converted house trailer, The Telephone Company announced today.

Ray Smillie, district manager for the company, said the trailer exchange will be capable of handling 400 telephones.

GUIDED MISSILES TO BE PRODUCED IN CANADA—HOWE

Will Be Made in Montreal, Hamilton

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Production Minister Howe says the air-to-air guided missiles Canada's armed forces use will be produced in Canada.

He told a reporter Tuesday facilities now are available in Canada to go ahead with production when choice of a missile is made.

Mr. Howe was commenting on statements contained in the defence production department's annual report for 1955, tabled Tuesday in the Commons.

The report said that, as a result of work on "Velvet Glove," the Canada-developed missile, "valuable experience has been gained by the government, its contractors and by service evaluation teams. A fully operational guidance system complex has thus been added to the defence production base."

The report did not elaborate. Neither did Mr. Howe.

PRELIMINARY WORK

However, it was learned last month that preliminary work has already begun in the design and creation of an American-developed air-to-air guided missile for the RCAF. Production of which will be Roc (Canada) Ltd., of Malton, Ont.

The missile frame is to be made by Canadair Ltd., of Montreal and the electronic guidance system for the missile, by Canadian Westinghouse Co., Ltd., of Hamilton.

The Velvet Glove was developed after five years of Canadian research and development which cost millions. Informants say the defence department decided to bypass over the Canadian product because U.S. air-to-air missiles are cheaper in quantity and in a far greater range.

They noted said Canadian industry supplied 96 per cent of 1955 defence production expenditures compared to only 70 per cent in 1950. Orders placed abroad were for "items which could not be economically produced in Canada within the limits of time and anticipated defence requirements."

TOTAL DECLINES

Department expenditures totalled $1,726,000,000, a decrease of $34,000,000 from the previous year.

Net value of new contracts entered, at $726,000,000, was 40 per cent below $1,211,000,000 in fiscal year 1955, apparently reflecting the fact plane production is catching up with defence requirements and aircraft orders declined by $34,000,000 last year.

Orders placed in the U.S. were down to $16,000,000 from $111,000,000 a year earlier, with exports to the United Kingdom to $8,800,000 from $29,000,000.

APPROVE SALE

OTTAWA (CP) — Regulations have been approved covering sale in Canada of medicated feeds, particularly those containing synthetic hormones to speed up the fattening of livestock.

The hormone is a stimulant which can increase beef production at smaller costs.

Give Pipeline Firm Another 6 Months To Obtain Funds

Transport Commissioner Urges Start on Western Leg

OTTAWA (CP) — The board of transport commissioners today granted Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Limited another six months—to Nov. 1, 1956—to show financial ability to build the proposed $375,000,000, 2,200-mile natural gas pipeline.

But in announcing the extension, the chief commissioner, Mr. Justice John D. Kearney, urged the company to seek more private capital to make an immediate start if possible on the western leg of the Alberta-to-Ontario line.

He said the board can at any time review its decision if there appears to be any indications of protracted delay in building the project, or if there is any modification in the Canadian thinking of how the line should be built.

He referred particularly to the appeal of Premier Campbell of Manitoba for early construction and to the offer of Winnipeg and Central Gas Company of an interest-free 25-year loan to Trans-Canada if it promises to lay down to Winnipeg at once.

NATIONAL POLICY

Mr. Campbell has asked that it have "some assurance" that Trans-Canada—this is the fourth in two years—it be contingent on a company promising to begin the line at once.

But Mr. Justice Kearney said the board had to consider national policy as it exists. Not to grant the extension would practically undo what Trans-Canada has already accomplished.

Mr. Justice Kearney said also that Trade Minister Howe and the federal government supported the requested extension. The support of Ontario could also be implied, he said, because the legislature had approved of Ontario participation in the crown company.

Granting the extension did not commit the board to any decision reviewing the case on the basis of any variation from the basic terms of any undue delay in the federal power commission's hearing of export licence applications or if any reasonable modification in Canadian thinking occurs.

Mr. Justice Kearney and three other commissioners sat in on the hearing which opened Tuesday.

Conversion Costs $223,633,000

TORONTO (CP) — Conversion of all electric power in Ontario to 60 cycles has cost more than $223,633,000 to date.

The Ontario Hydro - Electric Power Commission said Tuesday in answer to an Opposition question in the legislature that the cost of 25-cycle "islands" last year cost $41,787,000.

The conversion work was being done in and near Toronto.

Ontario Is Put Under Wind Dryer But Rain Coming

TORONTO (CP) — March winds put most of Ontario under the dryer today but the weatherman wasn't predicting the beauty treatment would take.

Surface winds gusted up to 52 miles an hour at Centralia and up to 40 at London in advance of a storm expected to move across the province by nightfall.

The disturbance, which poured freezing rain on Windsor early this morning, was reported moving slowly eastward.

Toronto was threatened with mixed snow and rain by noon and eastern parts of the province by tonight. The storm was likely to bring about Lake Ontario's north shore, leaving the northern part of the province in clear, cold weather.

British Troops Search Dwelling Of Greek Bishop

NICOSIA (Reuters) — British commandos seeking hidden arms today searched the residence of the absent Bishop of Paphos, second-in-command of Greek Cypriot guerrillas here, who now is in Athens.

Troops with mine-probing equipment stood guard as other troops and police searched the episcopic for fire arms.

Nearby houses occupied by Cyprus Greeks also were searched as British authorities continued efforts to crush the terrorist campaign for union of Cyprus with the Mediterranean island colony with Greece. Whether anything was found was not known.

On the other side of the island, Greek Cypriot gunmen who killed two British soldiers in an ambush Tuesday struck again in the "triangle of terror" south of Famagusta.

Troops surrounded the village and a house curfew was enforced. Two soldiers were killed when three or four gunmen machine-gunned their army patrol car.

If This Be True, Then Send Us One That Sings Like Nelson Eddy

By HAL COOPER

LONDON (AP) — Ever hear a snake sing "Yoo-Hoo"?

A British newspaper man reports that he has, in Phillips, Maine, U.S.A., and that Mary Phillips the happiest man in London. After 23 years, vindication is his.

After all, if one snake can meow, then there's no reason why another one can't sing "Yoo-Hoo".

The London Times correspondent in Montreal heard the snake's warbling close by a clump of evergreens and a chuckling young ochre-colored fellow mewed like kittens.

Phillips, who had been quietly "Hook" for two or two decades, sprang to his writing desk and dashed off a letter which appeared in The Times today.

"In your issue of Sept. 7, 1932," he wrote, "I ventured to record an observation of mine that certain African snakes appear to be the hits of fear or anger, are capable of producing a musical sound, a kind of high-pitched liquid note, a subdued but very clear whistling sound.

"The director of the East African agricultural research station, Amani, Tanganyika, replied to you on Sept. 12, 1932, that my statement was 'not to be credited' and that all snakes known to science are unable to make any other sound than hissing or rattling." He may therefore rather unkind about it."

The unkindness of Mr. Leechman, Phillips indicated, was typical that is found among Londoner ever since. However, he did not fail to produce evidence to refute.

"In your issue of Sept. 27, 1932, Mr. David Freeman, after 23 years of unbelief, described, as the cry of a cobra, 'a very faint and exceedingly shrill note, so high-pitched as to be barely audible by human ears.'

"In March, 1933, in the periodical 'East Africa,' a Northern Rhodesian reported killing in a sausage-packing house two snakes which produced a sound like 'Yoo-Hoo.' He adds that local Africans state that these snakes can 'croon.'

"Subsequently, Dr. J. O. Shiloh-Perry of Jos in Nigeria, described in 'African Affairs' (page 183) another snake 'uttering a sound like a siren.' He adds that 'the male crows like a cock, the female like a hen, and the two together like a cock and hen.' A warning note—chu, chu, chu, chu —which is repeated in quick succession.'"

Buttressed now by the testimony of The Times man, Phillips concluded with these biting words:

"This evidence is now known and accepted or not, may be of interest."

And as for you, Mr. Leechman, hoo, hoo, hoo.

Cleveland High School Band Delights in Concert Program

By EUGENE LANG

Before a capacity audience in the gymnorium of Quinte Secondary School the Lakewood High School Band of Lakewood, Ohio, near Cleveland made its farewell appearance in this city last evening in a concert which was most appreciated and heartily received by the hundred in attendance.

All the players in the 100-piece band were very proficient on their respective instruments and because of their high calibre of playing they have repeatedly won the title of National Champion Band of the class for the entire U. S. for several years past. Of 30 events in the recent Greater Cleveland Solo and Ensemble Music Festival that members of this band entered, they carried off 16 top awards and gained "excellent" ratings in the other four.

Mayor Jane Forrester gave the band and its director Richard Strang an official welcome to Belleville. Mr. Strang then read excerpts from communications from the Mayor of Lakewood expressing his thanks on behalf of the band for the invitation accepted them to play in Belleville.

A varied program of marches, concert pieces, overtures, novelty numbers and specialities was included in the band's diversified repertoire. The four marches played were each given a vibrant and virile performance, with the added attraction of baton twirling drum majorettes smartly going through their gyrations during two of these numbers.

MORE SESSIONS MUSIC

In the more serious vein the band gave well modelled performances of the "Richard III" Overture of German and two excerpts from the descriptive suite, "The Golden Age" by Kreisler.

Various sections of the band were given the opportunity to offer selections.

In Leroy Anderson's "The Bugler's Holiday" three trumpeters gave forth in blaring splendor in difficult solo parts in which the band added a fitting rhythmic backing of non-overshadowing accompaniment.

Twelve sonorous trombones reverberated throughout the gymtorium as their adept players pumped their slide instruments with gusto in the typical old minstrel show novelty "Lassus Trombone" by Fillmore. The unison playing here was extremely good and so was that on the part of the dozen "sliders."

UNUSUAL SELECTION

A most unusual selection was the "Concerto for Timpani" and Orchestra" by Weinberger which featured the band's cymbals, Jerry Lestuk as soloist. The timpani (kettledrums) are the backbone of the percussion section of any band or symphony orchestra and are utilized to practically every major orchestral composition of the past two centuries, but are seldom used as a vehicle for virtuoso display.

The timpani consist of two (sometimes three) drumheads stretched over hait, egg-shaped, copper kettles and are tuned to definite pitches which can be changed and controlled by the player.

Assisted by four trumpets and four trombones Jerry held a spot of fascinated sway over the audience as he put those two drums and through every possible tonal-shading that they were capable of producing.

From pistol sharp staccato bangs to softly sensitive rumblings and on to fortissimo rolls of excelling climax Jerry coaxed compleasities and subtleties from the two cumbersome paukes. The accompaniments of the brass were quite thrilling.

ROCKED AND ROLLED

For the '56 touch the band rollicked through the popular "Rock Around the Clock" with the drum majorettes twirling batons all the time. "Badinage for Brasses" of Hilters also effected to be organization's capabilities in the modern idiom.

Director Strang brought the best from his teen-day musicians and even though they had played two previous concerts yesterday they showed great stamina in their playing for well on 2 hours and attacks by the different choirs and sections of the band were always well executed. He showed now and then in the clarinets and other winds, but otherwise the playing was very fine and clear with a noticeable lack of muddling.

Mr. Strang kindly offered the conductorial honors to Mr. R. J. Schroder, director of music at Quinte Secondary School, during the playing of the National Anthem as the themes of the two countries and for the concluding anthem, "O Canada."

Airborne Bunny Will Be Greeted By Large Crowd

Belleville's airborne Bunny will arrive in good time for Easter—10 a.m. Saturday, in fact.

Final plans for bringing the Easter Bunny to town now are complete, Chairman Bill Bonter is supervising the entire event, announced today.

The Bunny will step out of a helicopter on the RCYS grounds into the arms (figuratively, that is) of what looks like being a record crowd for the event. Already, Mr. Elliott reports, people from as far north as the county as Coe Hill and west to Brighton are planning on being in town especially to see the Bunny and the accompanying parade.

City officials, including the mayor, and government representatives will form part of the official welcoming party on the collegiate grounds. Rotarians also will be on hand to sell roses at special sale prices to spectators on behalf of their club's Crippled Children's Fund.

Following the official welcome to the city, the Bunny then will be escorted through city streets to Mr. Elliott's Front street store where it will supervise a free candy distribution for the small fry of the district.

Leading the colorful parade through city streets will be the Quinte Highland Pipe Band, while the Bunny's special escort will feature scarlet - uniformed attendants and clowns.

Working in co-operation with Mr. Elliott on the event are John R. Bush Ambulance Service, Ronald Keel, city jeweller, the Belmont restaurant and Elliott Motors Limited.

WILLIAM LONEY (Picton)

PICTON — Discovered in his home where he resided alone, after suffering a stroke on Friday, William Loney, 78, died in Prince Edward County Hospital on Monday. He was found on the floor, with all fires having gone out.

Mr. Loney was known far and wide for his unusual and delicate wood carvings which were done by hand and often included several hundred pieces in one piece of animals, which he mounted in cases to show the various parts as a background and carved setting. For some time, Mr. Loney exhibited his work in the local public library.

Hundreds visited his home each summer to see the work which ranked him high among wood carvers in Canada. He had received offers for many of many shows.

In earlier years, Mr. Loney travelled widely and for some years was engaged with the steel industry at Sault Ste. Marie where he was noted for precision work.

Born at Ivanhoe, Prince Edward County, he was a member of a pioneer family. His wife, who predeceased him, was married for her skill with the needle and as a painter.

Surviving are four sisters: Mrs. George Cenier and Mrs. Edith Hicks, of South Bay; Mrs. Hewlett Hutchinson of Grand Rapids, Michigan, and Mrs. Gallagher in Alberta.

A service is being held at the A. M. Palmateer Funeral Home, Wednesday afternoon at 2:30, with entombment in Glenwood vault.

Miss Nellie Clarke Marks 108th Birthday at Cannifton

Born the year before the California gold rush, Miss Nellie Clarke yesterday counted another year on her life span as she marked her 108th birthday at the Cairn Nursing Home in Cannifton.

A woman who has lived through six reigns, from Queen Victoria to Queen Elizabeth, she was born in Leeds County of English parents.

However, despite her many years, she is in remarkably good and markably active. Last year, according to her doctor, when she was marking her 107th birthday, she still had the heart of a young woman. She also still peeled potatoes, performed other household chores and walked upstairs unaided.

There is no official record of Miss Clarke's birthday. Now living with the Hagerman family as a hired girl in Addington County she recalls that her age is lost. One night, 75 years ago, the Hagerman home was burned to the ground and the family Bible in which her birthday was noted was consumed in the blaze.

However, her claim to so many years of life is grounded by a sole descendant of the family. Edward Hagerman, a grocery operator in Kingston, says that Miss Clarke lived with his grandparents as a baby girl in Addington, where she spent most of her life. She is reported to have attended school at Link's Mills, twelve miles southeast of Napanee.

Had her parents never immigrated, she would have been born and raised in an England that was throbbing with the frantic activity of the Industrial Revolution. But she has very different memories of the early days of Victoria's reign. They are memories, although Miss Clarke may not be aware of it, provide one of the few live links with the days of settlement and expansion in Canada.

The young Dominion then was the scene of a different sort of expansion activity from that of the old country.

Miss Clarke recalls the early settlers of South Addington county, burned the forest to clear the land and establish their homesteads.

She recalls the first intimation of a new age dawning in the distance which left in its wake proof the first railroads and the first woodburning locomotives.

She recalls carding wool and weaving it into cloth to make clothing for the settlers while the settlers painstakingly making their own candles to light their homes.

She recalls while attending school at Link's Mills that she suffered the indignity which left its scars on her through life. She fell through the ice one morning on her way to school and as a result of the accident her speech became blurred. Now she is almost completely deaf and hears only with a hearing aid.

In this, her 108th year, she has no known living relatives. However, she possesses a large circle of friends. She has been receiving the old age pension since she was 84, when by age was vouched for by friends.

Since the day before her 107th celebration, reporters were told, although Miss Clarke now is not quite clear which her age is, she claims she feels about 72.

All this occurs years ago, when her health began to fail, she had not been attended by a doctor. Despite her years, Miss Clarke retains a youthful outlook on keeping young. She is up almost every night until ten or eleven o'clock and rises again early in the morning.

Yesterday a group of friends helped her observe her auspicious birthday by calling upon her during the day.

There are 1,128,498 Canadian children enrolled in the Junior Red Cross. They are organized in 37,644 classroom branches.

Canadian Foreign Policy Outlined to Kiwanis Club

The Western powers must be prepared for "long and serious competition" with Communist countries in the economic affairs of the Near and Middle East, Leon Crestin, parliamentary assistant to External Affairs Minister Lester Pearson, said here yesterday.

Describing the recent Soviet bids to gain goodwill in the East as "something new and ominous", Mr. Crestin warned that West be prepared to do much more than we have considered doing in the past for Eastern nations if the Soviet play for prestige is to be countered.

Speaking to the Kiwanis and here Mr. Cardin said the Russians already had scored a propaganda victory in the East "on the basis of a few promises, and not very much else" "made in the billions of dollars poured into undeveloped lands by the Western powers.

"I am absolutely convinced of our propaganda machine," he said.

It is high time, he continued, we evident that they (the Russians) are prepared to stir up any sort of trouble in the Middle East will bring trouble to the Western allies in the Near East.

"We must remain strong, and probably we must be prepared to do more than we have been doing in areas of the world which have long been neglected because of fear and ignorance as their normal lot."

"It is quite certain that they are prepared to see their colonial empire no longer, and that whether on a basis of humanity or kindness or on one of enlightened self-interest, or on both, we must be prepared to do much more than we have considered doing in the past."

Mr. Cardin said the role of the East's economic picture may be expected to continue and provide opportunities for expansion of trade in the West.

Canadian leaders are quite prepared to make uneconomic agreements for the sake a gaining political advantage, he said, by providing technical assistance on a "very great scale" to the underdeveloped countries.

NO POLITICAL STRINGS

He added that we could "It is our conviction that we can provide the necessary assistance more effectively if we do so on a basis without attaching political strings."

Mention of the Soviet manoeuvrings in the East was part of his address on the Near and Middle East from a Canadian point of view. In speech, Mr. Cardin gave the club an overall picture of current Eastern affairs "which we consider of importance in relationship to the problems arising out of them."

"Our membership in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and in the United Nations believes it to be the cornerstone of our foreign policy and therefore, because of our own community of safety and of interests with our allies, but also duties which we cannot shirk.

"The Western powers . . . have decided that collective security is a community enterprise and that none of us can be secure without the others. We believe it to follow that the interests of the United Kingdom and France are partly ours, or even largely so, and that a threat to any of our allies becomes partly a threat to ourselves.

"Anything which weakens NATO is a direct menace to Canada," he said.

In his initiative France has had to move temporarily from Europe some of its military forces to deal with disorders in North Africa, while the Cyprus dispute has involved members of NATO in unfortunate disagreements", he said.

On the Arab-Israel dispute Mr. Cardin also took note of the Canadian appreciation of the problem and quoted at length from a recent statement made to the House by Mr. Pearson.

"The disorders in predominately Moslem North Africa have also brought of in the light of the emergence of independence of so many Moslems in other countries," he said.

OVER-INDULGENCE

But also most of the newly-independent countries are overpopulated in relation to their resources because of poor exercising of assistance through United Nations bodies, Mr. Cardin reminded the club.

Finally, there is the emergence of Russia on the scene, prepared to exploit the long existing sentiments of anti-colonialism and the very great need for technical assistance.

"We should . . . try to consider these problems as one whole and the reserves of these problems is what we are going to do when faced, as we are now, with this intense Soviet competition for the goodwill of peoples which we would like to have and whom we need as allies.

"I do not think that anyone, whether in Ottawa, or in Washington, or London, or in Paris, has a ready-made answer to this problem.

"It seems evident that we must be prepared for long and serious competition with the Russians, and it must be admitted that they have many immediate advantages in their use of many resources; which can be used precisely as they choose politically, and a hungry one-third of the world which may not be sufficiently mature to

IN MEMORIAM

MOORE. — In loving memory of a dear husband, Peter Moore, who passed away March 28th, 1954.

We thought our sorrow day by day, It caused us bitter grief,
To see him suffer day by day And could not get relief.
God saw him getting weary
Then did what He thought best.
He closed his eyes and smiled
When there was no rest.
Our love for him will still be great
Though never clasp away.
So we laid our hearts
Beside him here ago today.
—Sadly missed by wife and sons.

BAUGHMAN. — In loving memory of my dear husband, David John Baughman, who passed away March 28th, 1934.
Not even beneath the grasses,
Not closed walls within the tomb,
Is there a place where memory
Cannot find room.

Community Centre Committee Holds Meeting With Council

TRENTON. (Special.) — The Trenton Community Centre is another step closer to becoming a reality as a result of the general committee meeting with council last night. The general committee with better than $52,000 collected of their $70,000 objective wants to go ahead and let the contract for the building. It was explained that the contractor's price will be increased by three per cent after April 1.

In the municipal election two years ago voters favored providing $100,000 by sale of debentures when the committee had raised $70,000 by public subscription. The final decision regarding sale of debentures is in the hands of the Municipal Board.

Opposition to the committee's proposal last night felt that the committee should have their objective before the Municipal Board is asked for approval. They cautioned against going ahead with the contract when there was a possibility, although remote, that the Board would veto the request.

Cliff Baker, chairman of the Community Centre Committee, informed council had two things to do. One: To approve calling for tenders. Two: Setting up a committee to do just that.

Across the table discussion see-sawed back and forth until Mayor Ross Burtt called for recess and a decision to finalize the matter.

The consensus was for the finance committee of both council and the community centre to get their heads together and arrive at a policy for presentation to council this coming Tuesday.

66-Mill Rate To Be Required For Town Budget

TRENTON. (Special) — At a special meeting last night finance chairman George Brown brought down the 1956 budget asking council for a tax levy of 66 mills, a six-point hike above last year's rate. His figures showed that increasing education costs were responsible for 2.4 of the 11½ noticeably lower than tentative figures first indicated.

Town clerk-treasurer O. W. Larry looked over the Board of Education's budget and said the school board was to be commended for striving to lighten the taxpayers' burden. He pointed out that the board had included in their budget an item of $10,000 to purchase a school site so that the town will not be called on to sell debentures to pay for it.

Operation of High and Public schools require 29.16 of the town's budget, general expenditures 29.54 and debt charges 6.70 an analysis of the breakdown shows.

Total assessment for Trenton nears $11,000,000.

The council budget earmarked $2,000 for the Chamber of Commerce and a similar sum for the local Planning Board.

TO BE SPEAKER

The Hon. W. A. Goodfellow, Minister of Municipal Affairs, will be the guest speaker at the annual Trenton Chamber of Commerce dinner to be held in the Quennawy Hotel, Monday, April 16.

Piranha Said Fiercest Fish In World

The fiercest fish in the world is the piranha.

Piranha would eat sharks alive if they ever met. A barracuda, if it met a school of piranha, would be interesting skeletons in about three minutes.

Adult piranha, when hungry, even eat smaller piranha. That is, if the small ones don't eat them first.

Adult piranha rarely grow longer than ten inches. But, as meat eaters, the bigger the beast the better the meal.

Don Foster, local aquarist, has imported some of these diminutive killers from South America and has them on display in a tank in the window of Paul Mercier's jewellery store on Front Street.

These fish have large, razor-sharp, triangular teeth that interlock between upper and lower jaws. They bite chunks of flesh from their victims and swallow mouthfuls whole. They can cut nets and lines with ease. A school of piranha can strip the carcass of a cow to the bones in five minutes.

The fish are found in tributaries of the upper Amazon and in the Plate river of South America. Mr. Foster's little monsters were air shipped to an importer in Toronto and transferred to Belleville in a water-filled plastic bag in a cardboard box.

Handling the fish is no problem if one uses a net. Trying to catch them bare-handed, a-la-goldfish style, is likely to result in a chewed finger or fingers.

Mr. Foster's fighting fish are about two inches in length. He has placed two of them in the same tank and they maintain the respectful distance one cannibal accords another. He feels, however, that by the time they are full grown it may be necessary to separate them by a glass plate. In the same tank two piranha have a nasty habit of ending up as one full piranha.

Feeding them is no problem as long as the meat lasts.

They feed on worms, raw meat, silver, fish and certain kinds of tropical fish foods.

William Stovin Says Radio Has Too Many Taboos

TORONTO (CP)—Ideas for radio - TV competition were exchanged Tuesday at the annual convention of the Canadian Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters.

Robert Burton of New York, vice-president of Broadcast Music Inc., told a panel of the CARTE's radio section that radio is the greatest medium for the transmission of ideas ever developed.

But, he said, many radio broadcasters will be going out of business through competition with television as the result of their own smugness and failure to keep pace with developments.

Mr. Burton said he thinks radio stations vastly under-estimate the intelligence of their audiences. They could use more classical and cultural programs. Programs aimed at the farm audience should be improved.

W. H. Slovin of CJBQ, Belleville, said radio in Canada has much re-thinking to do to match TV.

"I think radio now is a little too hidebound and has too many taboos," he said. Radio should find out what jobs it can do best in relation to television competition.

F. B. Richard of CHNO Sudbury was chairman for the afternoon session of the radio broadcasters.

THE BLACK ART

Sunday Reynolds News says that "black magic" rites are rife in Britain. Many British newspapers deal in sensationalism to a degree which is practically unknown in Canada, but it appears that this report has some substance in fact, for Canon Bryan Green, rector of Birmingham, issued a warning against black magic in his parish bulletin.

These reports practically make a liar out of the Encyclopedia Americana, which says that magic, or the Black Art, was formerly used to produce supernatural effects with the assistance of evil spirits. Magic, though, has a more respectable ancestry than one might imagine, being but another of the religions of the Middle East in ancient times.

"Medies, Persia and the neighboring countries, famous for their knowledge of astronomy and astrology, are described as the chief seats of the ancient Magi, whose doctrine seems to be, in part, of great antiquity," says the Encyclopedia Americana. "This doctrine," it continues, "represented opposition or strife as the parent and original cause of all things. After the opposition between light and darkness, Ormuzd and Ahriman, was established, the whole series of finite beings, the whole sensual world, proceeded from the constant struggle of light and darkness, good and evil. The change of day and night, light and darkness, the whole series of ages, time itself, is only a consequence of this struggle in which sometimes light, sometimes darkness, appears victorious, until finally light shall conquer for ever."

Much the same theme can be recognized in many other religions.

Magic, however, degenerated. "If all finite things stand under the influence of preserving and destroying powers in nature, it is clear that he who could master these powers would dispose of all the finite things subject to them," says the Encyclopedia. "The doctrine of the Magians," it continues, "was that by prayer and a true knowledge of God, by which love takes the place of hatred, light and darkness, such power could be obtained; and that thus also it was possible to pry into futurity."

But the lust for power obscured the ancient doctrine and those who practised magic were looked on with horror at last "only evil-disposed sorcerers. One important branch of the art was now the excitement of love by potions and enchantments. . . . Their knowledge of poisons and the ingredients which are still known to the physicians as stimulants, partly of parts of animals who had died longing for food or air, or the relative of hungry dogs and other still more disgusting substances."

The Encyclopedia says, though, that at one time "it can hardly be doubted that the art of ancient magicians was founded to a considerable degree upon a knowledge of the powers of nature superior to that of the general public." At one time magic was studied in Europe and "many distinguished names are found amongst its students and professors," including that of Roger Bacon.

FRANCE'S WISE DECISION

The announcement that the French National Assembly had granted Premier Guy Mollet and his government wide powers to make political and administrative changes in French West Africa, French Central Africa and Madagascar almost certainly came as a surprise to many Canadians.

The wire services have carried thousands of words about France's troubles with nationalists in Tunisia, Morocco and Algeria, but there had been hardly a hint that Mollet was planning to act to prevent similar occurrences in other French-ruled territories in Africa.

France has been under stiff criticism of late for its failure to bring the war in Algeria to a close. It is not over, are certainly numbered. Her critics have suggested that the reforms which she offered to make, first in Indo-China and more recently in Tunisia and Morocco, were another case of the sad story "too little, too late." If this were true, the French seem to have learned their lesson. The government now has power to act in other territories in Africa before the situation becomes critical. This is good news—not only for the inhabitants of these areas and for the French, but also for the world, which in general needs a strong, stable France not plagued by turmoil in its overseas territories.

The Assembly's bill gives the government almost a free hand to act in the fields of political and civic affairs between the European and native populations. At present local assemblies are split into European and native sections. Termination of that system appears probable. It will be interesting to note what representation, if any, this has in South Africa, where the government is pledged to a policy of continued segregation of the races.

The French Assembly's decision is in keeping with France's past record on the color question.

According to Ripley, a gentleman by the name of F. Gladden Searle won a 7-card stud poker game in which other players held four aces, four kings and four queens. There was no wild cards. But there were at least three wild players. Searle was gladdened. His opponents were surly. Searle had a straight flush.

TROUBLE IN THE SOUTH

Upon the beach is Florida
little girl's at play
And those who've come down there to rest had better move away.
She thinks those sturdy legs of hers were never meant to walk
And grown up men and ladies every minute ought to talk.

She'll quickly turn a somersault and stretch herself out flat,
Then with it grin she'll come to you and ask: "Can you do that?"

Upon a beach in Florida our little girl's at play
And, oh, the hazard is very still With Marjorie away!

It never once occurs to her that fat men cannot run
Or that a man whose hair is gray with acrobats is done.

And we can rest and we can read, we can enjoy a spring
How do the grownups get along with Marjorie nearby?

Holiday In Mexico

By C. A. Morton

One of our fellow travellers on the flight south was Tom Young, a young lawyer in Toronto and a friend of Tom Mulock. He was escorting two Mexican boys home to their parents from Toronto where they had been attending Upper Canada College for three months. He, too, was staying at the Cortez and on the way leaving to go out to dinner on the night of our arrival we saw Terry with a very handsome man who turned out to be the father of the boys. On introduction we agreed on a good restaurant and he (Miguel Quintero) suggested the Quid and asked us to go along.

The place was crowded and while waiting for table we were entertained by an excellent woman singer and a male pianist. It was all very pleasant, but I was busily thinking about what a remarkable world we live in. The night before we were in Toronto and cold weather and the next night here we were in a beautiful restaurant in Mexico City 8,800 miles away with the weather a balmy 80 in June night. It was unbelievable.

The food was every bit as good as we had been told it would be. Most of us selected lobster cocktail, French onion soup and filet mignon which must have weighed almost a pound each and for dessert, fresh cantaloupe. The lobster served in the south is nearly always frozen but this was not the case and we were at the Nova Scotia market a few days ago. The sauce served with it was quite the most delectable we have ever had. The filet mignon was served over a charcoal grill separated from the dining area by a glass door and counter, but which made it possible for the diners to see their meat being cooked and yet not be bothered by fumes of cooking.

THE SOCCER GAME

Senor Quintero, when he learned none of us had tasted tequila which is to Mexico what Scotch is to Scotland, ordered a serving for all of us. It is served in a small glass tumbler, mixed with lime juice with half of a fresh lime and a sprinkling of salt. The correct method of drinking tequila is to sip some of the juice from the lime, shake a little salt on the back of the hand, touch this with the tongue and then lick the salt off the hand, sip or if brandy and is not as fiery as we feared it might be. However, the tequila had a kick and after a couple of times we dispensed with the ceremonies and just had a shot. A bottle of this liquor which we were assured was pure, which was surrounded by a wall. While we were in Acapulco he sent an invitation to us to spend the Saturday night before we left at his place in a suburb of the city and south of the Capital. He was having a large party and he hoped we would enjoy meeting his family and friends. We had to refuse regretfully because it meant too much of a rush Sunday morning connections to leave and having to be at the airport by 11 a.m. We learned from Terry that his friend owned a 2,500 acre ranch on which he raises beef cattle. His wife is Mexican but fully at ease at all times so that all he has to do when he feels he has been away a bit might add that at his home in Cuernavaca he has a fine outdoor swimming pool. He is also interested by a special furnace. Mr. Quintero is the owner of the Super Canada College, Toronto, possibly about twenty years ago.

Next year we will go south.

The next morning a car and an English speaking driver took us to Teotihuacan, about 30 miles out of the city to view the pyramids at Teotihuacan, known as the "Ancient Gods Are Made" or "Place of the Gods." According to the guide handed the attendant, he introduced the structures is pre-historic and that no one knows. No written chronicles of it, but there are many legendry stories about it. Even the actual name of the place and who were the builders of the pyramids seems to be unknown and that includes their language. It is thought that the ancient people dwelt at the site 500 B.C. until the 8th or 9th century A.D. when a period came when the conquest and burning of the city and flight of its people to other places.

There are three main features of attraction, the Pyramid of the Sun; Pyramid of the Moon and the Citadel with the Temple of Quetzalcoatl. These are massive structures on a par with Egyptian pyramids. There is no point in giving any detailed description of the ruins other than a few observations for they have to be seen to be appreciated. Particularly that were built for ceremonial use and not for tombs.

SOLID CONSTRUCTION

Both pyramids are of solid construction with the inner portions made up of adobe bricks with an outer facing of stone. The Temple of the Sun is 210 ft. high and the base each side is 735 feet, containing over a million and a half cubic yards of material making it greater in volume than the largest Egyptian pyramids. Both of the pyramids were bases for temples. The day of our visit was very warm, yet several cadet bearers had climbed the pyramid in the hot sun when all we wanted to do was to find a shady place and sit down.

The Temple of the Moon is a smaller structure 138 feet high and is rectangular in shape being 490 by 390 feet. The Citadel is an enormous walled rectangle about a quarter mile on each side with a high walls which are crowned with pinnacles. The west wall only has a stairway leading to the enclosure. At the east end of the enclosure is a pyramid built in terraces, the top terrace has a broad flat surface. Historians believe that the Citadel and its pyramid temple (Quetzalcoatl) were the scenes of large and spectacular religious ceremonies.

Finder Worthy Of His Reward

(Montreal Gazette)

If the laborer is worthy of his hire, surely the finder is also worthy of his reward. Yet many persons in this city who have found large sums of money, or valuable articles, and have left the trouble to return them to their owners, have been cheated with a reward so small as to be an insult.

Perhaps not many persons have had such experiences of mean ingratitude as one Montrealer. A few days ago he found $2,000 in cash and spending $2,000 in certified cheques which he returned then to the owners. His reward was $5.

But this was not the first time he had had such an experience. Three years ago he found $25,000 in certified cheques on the west end. He returned the cheques and was offered a reward of $2.00. Such incidents have been again and again in this city. Sometimes the discovery of the valuables is made by a taxi driver, sometimes by a messenger boy. But when they are returned to the owners, the reward shows a miserable sense of generosity.

It seems also that some regulation might be established to govern the rewards given for finds. Surely the City of London has established the practice that all lost articles are to be returned to a central police station. There they are evaluated by the police, before claiming these sums of money, or lost articles, according to the value and of or lost their value. The police department charges a nominal percentage of the value of the goods and the rest goes as a reward to the finder.

No doubt honesty is its own reward. Valuables, most certainly, ought to be returned to their rightful owners. Yet it would seem that those who have been honest, and who are really ready to take advantage of the honesty of others, ought to be required to do, by law, what they too often fail to do by choice.

Nickel Cigar Comes Back

(Wall Street Journal)

The nickel smoke went into economic eclipse along with the five-cent cup of coffee, telephone calls and streetcar rides. But improved rolling manufacturing techniques, heavy promotion and lower prices for cigar makers, and impressive popularity of the smaller, cigarillo-size stogie are reviving the five-cent cigar.

Rise of the five-center is more pronounced than the slow, steady climb of the cigar industry from the year 1930 when Internal Revenue figures aren't in, but Clarence M. Webster, president of the Cigar Manufacturers Association, estimates that 1,150,000,000 nickel cigars were sold in 1955. This was 8% above the 1954 sales total, and up 34% since 1950. The 1955 figures more than 6.1 billion cigars of all denominations were sold, up 1% to 3% from the previous years and more than in any year since 1929.

The five-center's comeback, of course, is based on more than mere emotion and the interest of some big companies. A major factor, and one that somehow escaped notice, will revive their entire industry, is a new technique called the inner wrapping of a cigar, are made of cigar leaves that have been pulverized then put back together, like paper, in thin sheets. The sheets are cut into ribbonlike rolls approximately as wide as a cigar is long. These rolls are fed automatically from a spool into the cigar making machine.

Such reconstituted binders require less labor, and less tobacco, than natural leaf binders. Conventional natural leaf inner wrappers require hand sorting, stripping, die-cutting and hand feeding into the machines that squeeze filler tobaccos and bind into a long, finished cigar ready for the natural leaf outer wrap.

Eskimos Take to Ice

(Sudbury Star)

If one of those men from Mars ever does get down to the earth, he might logically suppose that Eskimos, the Canadian natives, were bequeathed the fine old game of curling by the Eskimoo. Such, of course, is not the case. Canada's two original sets of residents, the Indians passed along the fundamentals of present-day lacrosse, but the more remote Eskimos have never heard of the sport. Survival is the "sport" where the Eskimos live.

But now it appears that another fraternal bond between the new Canadian is emerging for about 14,000,000 of us and the Eskimos has been established — and very appropriately, on ice.

A rink from Churchill, on which there are no Eskimos, has entered the world's biggest session of the Canadian game, the Manitoba Curling Association's annual bonspiel. They'll be curling on artificial ice, of course, but if curling has become refined it at least can be said to occupy the same place played on frozen lakes and rivers. In his keen and unrivalling natural surroundings, the Eskimo would be hard pressed to find enough smooth ice for the game, unless he'd be the inclination.

But in the curling man's world of Churchill some of them at least have come into contact with a refreshing, if not always neat civilization on ice, and they have liked it. They have bonds they established at Winnipeg grow ever firmer — always providing the "piping on the ice," with which most big bonspiels open, does not cool off their ardor at the outset.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

It's Hard to Teach Teachers to Teach

A recent two-page special article in a popular magazine purported to inform readers on the progress of the campaign to drive against "the common cold" — which, though to most diseases has been positively identified, costs so many man-hours and so many millions or billions of dollars annually.

The article, as scientific as all get out, cited half a dozen doctors, with biographical data, who severally declared the "problem," etc., etc. Scientists, the writer of the article observed, know with exactness that the human thermostat, regulator of body heat, is located in the hypothalamus.

While the reader is wondering diffidently what the heck the hypothalamus is, he is very well aware that my teachings about "the common cold" irk the public health authorities and scientists who participate in these panel discussions of the "problem."

I believe and teach, for instance, that there is no illness that a reputable physician cannot positively recognize, identify, or diagnose as "the common cold" or just "a cold" without reserving the right to revise the diagnosis if some other illness turns out to be something serious.

Similar, of research investigator tell me — or, if that would be beneath his dignity, tell the world at large, benefit to public health or personal health, what preventive measure or what remedy for "the common cold," or for so-called "colds," has come from the past fifty years of research and "scientific" investigation? I do not expect an answer to this challenge, for the simple reason that there isn't any.

The medical and health authorities in America have no more scientific standing than the authorities in Britain. But, oddly enough, the conclusions reached by the British Medical Research Council's investigators, in as thorough and carefully controlled tests as any that have been made in this country, have been studiously ignored by our leaders. The British findings confirm the truth of the teaching that exposure to cold, damp, draft, sudden change of weather, wet feet, insufficient clothing etc., has no appreciable effect on a person's susceptibility to respiratory infections.

Pray, whose teaching is this?

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

During the war, Sir Winston Churchill grew very impatient with the long - winded communications of his advisers and with him. So when he was requesting information, he would write a brief memo with: "Please give me, on one sheet of paper . . ."

You can think a brain-wave acute as this would have taken a permanent place in history. Then business and professional world, and a new era of brevity in sheets of paper. The sentence is typed fair in the middle of the sheet, lonely, but significant.

If there are twelve sentences in the pitch, there are not twelve sheets of paper, with maybe a few empty sheets of paper before the first, and there are bound together with staples, and a cool, reasonable cover of blue paper enfolds the whole.

It is brief, of course. But the reverence for brevity is vastly enhanced by these isolated sentences that are forced to stand on a limb, with no verbiage above or below to discourage the poor victim, or deprive it of support. A shrub set-up.

All in all, however, it is a sad reflection that in my lifetime, personal letters have grown shorter and shorter, while business communications have grown longer and longer.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ON BEING RELATED

None of us like to feel alone. None of us like to feel that we are of little account. It isn't that we want people to pat us on the back, or tell us how wonderful we think we are. This is what we want to feel—that we are a part, even though small, of the great machinery of the world, that we help to run it, and contribute to it.

It's doing something interesting and useful that makes us feel proud and happy. People like to tell of their blood relationship to great men and women, and, of course, the better and more practical is to be related to great deeds. It is natural for the common man's world of Churchill some of them at least have come into contact with a refreshing, if not always neat civilization on ice, and they have liked it. They have bonds they established at Winnipeg grow ever firmer — always providing the "piping on the ice," with which most big bonspiels open, does not cool off their ardor at the outset.

try to make my relationship worthy and true.

But there are related to people, but to everything in this world that is beautiful, inspiring and useful. How wonderful is this world. How full of wonder. Nothing is a part, important like love. There is the story of God in the tiniest flower, and in the mightiest oak, and in the life of a little child. He is related to every flower, mountain and star. It is a fact that if we are related to any of these, we are therefore related to God.

How distinguished, within our reach, are we if we are related! So much do I love my books and my friends that I feel a personal relationship to both of them. How great is the opportunity for happiness and usefulness. We can even become related to the stars in the sky. Emerson said to look our wagon to one of them. I would rather hitch my love and heart to them which gives light to the world!

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

WEDNESDAY OF HOLY WEEK

Wednesday of Holy Week was a day of silence in our Lord's life. There is no record of any event transpiring that day. He probably spent the day quietly in the home of Lazarus and His sisters in Bethany.

Yet the fact that He did nothing on that day teaches us a great lesson. Knowing all that was ahead of Him, knowing that a very horrifying form of death was only two days in the distance, he must—judging from his experience later in Gethsemane—have spent much of the day in earnest prayer. He loved the members of the Bethany household and no doubt enjoyed a quiet and satisfying fellowship with them. But best of all, He sought fellowship with God and the calming of one's spirit which comes from quiet meditation and reflection.

We live in an age so unusually keyed up that half of our hospital beds are occupied by nervous and mental patients. The psychiatrist has come to occupy a position of shocking prominence in the lives of modern men and women and he is said with the utmost anxiety, in the lives even of children a and young people.

"He still and know that I am God." If we believe in the Lord in the whirlwind that God spoke to the prophet. The still small voice of God is the sentence.

Out of the Word of God comes this admonition: "Study to be quiet" (I Thess. 4:11).

Stories from Life of Jesus

THE TRIAL OF JESUS

XXXVIII

The captain of the guard stood at attention.

"Lord Annas," he said, "The prisoner—Jesus of Nazareth!"

Rough hands shoved Jesus into the room.

Annas straightened his withered old body.

"Jesus, You are called a blasphemer!"

Jesus smiled calmly. "I have spoken openly to the world. Why ask Me?"

"Jesus of Nazareth, I hold You for trial. The charge, blasphemy. The punishment—death."

They led Jesus to the home of high priest Caiphus. Outside the door they waited for orders.

Around Jesus surged an evil-faced mob, hired by Caiphas. Jesus stood, unmoving between His guards. Hidden in the crowd was Peter, warming his hands nervously over a fire.

A young woman stopped suddenly before him, and studied Peter's face.

"You!" she said. "You were with Jesus!"

"I don't know what you are saying," lied Peter uneasily.

"You were with Him," she insisted.

"Woman, I know Him not," said Peter.

But before he could go another maid said "Surely he is one of them!"

Peter swore: "I do not know this Man!"

COCK CROWED

The third lie had just left his lips when the cock crowed.

Peter looked at Jesus across the room. And the Lord's eyes were filled with compassion.

Jesus loved him still! Peter wept.

The Prisoner was kept waiting outside the Hall of Judgment.

Most of the seventy judges were already in their places, learned men and wise, they took their role as judges seriously. They understood their sacred duty to judge honorably, and mercifully. Now they asked each other what emergency had led Caiphas to call them at this hour. It was almost midnight! They had heard of Jesus, of course, though few had bothered to go to hear Him. They thought Him harmless. What crime of His could summon them from their beds? They did not know that Annas and Caiphas, whom they trusted were planning to stampede them into condemning the most innocent of men.

ACCUSED OF BLASPHEMY

Annas took his seat. Caiphas, in official robes, strode forward. The trial could begin. Caiphas called out:

"Jesus of Nazareth, stand forth!"

Jesus stepped into the courtroom with His guards.

"Let all know that Jesus of Nazareth is accused of blasphemy," said Caiphas.

But the witnesses were most unimpressive and they did not even agree.

On their embroidered cushions the judges grew restless. Now Jesus had two friends in this court. One, Nicodemus, suddenly rose:

"Lord Caiphas—this is ridiculous! Our witnesses do not agree. And if they did, nothing they say means Jesus should be put to death. Let us go home and set Jesus free!"

The others nodded.

Then Joseph of Arimathea arose. "It insults the dignity of this court to try convicting an Innocent Man!"

Caiphas rose with a crafty smile.

You do not believe Jesus is a blasphemer? he seemed to say. Let Him convict Himself!

SON OF GOD

"Jesus of Nazareth," cried Caiphas. "I adjure You by the Living God, tell us if You be the Christ, the Son of God."

Jesus's reply rang clear: "You say I am!"

And in the language of those times, Jesus meant: Yes!

"Jesus of Nazareth, I adjure You tell us if You are the Christ."

Again: "You have said!"

And, all knew, Jesus was replying simply: Yes!

"I am!"

Caiphas wheeled to face the judges: "What think you?"

From most of them came a shout:

"He is guilty—and must die!"

MEETING WITH PILATE

The Prisoner was at the gate. Pontius Pilate went to the balcony. Below on the steps waited Annas, Caiphas, and Jesus.

The Prisoner's face was blotched and bruised. Around Him stood the hired mob, muttering villains paid by Caiphas to frighten Pilate.

Pilate roared: "Are You the King of the Jews?"

Jesus answered: "You say it."

Pilate carefully searched Jesus face. And Pilate knew that unusual as it was, he must speak with Jesus alone. Brusquely he ordered Him inside.

He gave the Prisoner a chair. "Are You really—the King of the Jews?"

"My kingdom is not of this world."

"But—have You a kingdom?... You say that I am a King?" smiled Jesus. "I came into the world to bear witness to the truth. Everyone that is of truth hears My voice."

Pilate whispered: "What is the truth?" And he read the answer in Jesus' eyes.

Pilate leaped to his feet. "Don't You know I have the power to crucify You—or set You free?"

Jesus answered: "You should have no power against Me unless it were given you from above. He that delivered Me to you has the greater sin."

TRY TO SAVE HIM

Pilate's eyes gleamed. This Man understood! Even forgave! Pilate would do anything for a Man like that! He would try to save Him.

Back they marched, Pilate and Jesus, to face the high priests and the crowd. Defiantly, Pilate announced:

"I find no evil in this Man! Set Him free!

The crowd, Caiphas had hired to demand Jesus' death, went wild.

"He is dangerous—He stirs up people in Galilee," gasped Caiphas.

"In Galilee?" Pilate grinned. "If He is from Galilee I cannot judge Him. . . Take Him to Herod, ruler of Galilee!"

Pilate closed his gates, glad to be rid of the problem of Jesus.

He was not rid of it long.

They took Jesus to Herod. This Herod, the same who had beheaded John the Baptist, was indeed ruler of Galilee, but tonight he was too drunk to understand.

"King of the Jews He says He is!" giggled Herod. "Then dress Him as a king!"

A fine white robe Herod put on Jesus. But judge Him? Never!

"Take Him back to Pilate!" roared Herod.

And Jesus was led out in the white robe of mockery, the drunken jest of a worthless king against the King of Kings.

BACK TO PILATE

Back to Pilate's castle they led Jesus. Whatever crimes He had committed were done in Jerusalem—and Pilate must judge.

I find Him innocent. I will chastise Him, yes—but then release Him."

Release Him! The crowd yawped in fury. Caiphas spoke two words to the hired leader of these cutthroats, and there rose a sudden piercing cry:

"Crucify Him!"

Pilate shuddered. He rose and spoke to the people.

Jerusalem had a custom, that on Passover the Governor could release one prisoner. Now, said Pilate, we have another prisoner, Barabbas, a murderer.

"Whom shall I release — Barabbas, or Jesus?"

Caiphas signalled. The crowd screamed:

Set Barabbas free!"

Pilate raised his hand furiously. "What evil has this Man done?"

"Crucify Him!"

And Pilate, defeated and afraid, screamed back: "Take Him, you and exactly Him. I find no evil in Him."

He called for a golden bowl of water. Before them all, he washed his hands. And the crowd cried out for all to hear:

"I am innocent of the blood of this just Man."

BOY SCOUT ACTIVITIES

(By C. F. LEGGAT)

The 11th Belleville Group, sponsored by Bridge St. United Church, held its Father and Son banquet on March 8th.

This report is compiled from notes taken by their secretary, Mr. W. T. Simpson.

Among the head table guests were: Mr. P. L. Allcorn, ADC, Cubs; Mr. O. C. Owen, District Commissioner; Mr. Chris Leggat, A secretary; Mr. A. D. Banting, supt. Bridge St. United Church Sunday School; Rev. H. M. Davis, minister Bridge St. United Church and Mr. A. S. Robb, chairman, who introduced the guests.

Bridge St. is a small group, just a Cub pack, but that didn't show in the dinner provided by the Cub mothers. The tables looked beautiful, tastefully decorated with the Pack colors and tall candles to match. These ladies spared no effort and the dinner exceeded expectations.

Cubmaster W. Kellett briefly outlined the activities of the Pack, indicating that the 11th is going ahead and is very enthusiastic. He presented several well-earned badges to the Cubs.

Mr. Phil Allcorn spoke on Cubbing generally. He told of the many benefits which are available to all boys who participate in the Cub movement. Fathers can be of great assistance and will get a lot of real enjoyment and satisfaction, knowing their own sons better through Cubbing.

Cubs whose dads take an active interest in the work which is being carried out for their boys in the Pack are the healthiest groups, and it also develops a closer relationships between the boy and his dad.

COLORED SLIDES SHOWN

The main portion of the program consisted of the showing of many colored slides covering the 8th World Jamboree, with a running commentary worthy of special mention. Many a radio announcer would like to have Mr. Banting's ability for his smooth humorous and wholly enjoyable manner of speaking. He was subtly funny and very interesting. Everybody enjoyed this presentation.

The group committee expressed its pleasure at the good turnout, despite the inclement weather. A very pleasant and successful evening, well planned and well conducted. It is a doubtful point whether the Cubs of their dads enjoyed this banquet more, particularly the dinner so lavishly and carefully prepared by the ladies.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

IF YOU FIGHT ALL THE TIME, YOU'RE BETTER APART

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

There is a boy I have been going steady with for nearly a year, but our trouble is that while we like each other very much, we somehow are always fighting.

We had our last big fight three weeks ago and I told him we were through. I was so mad at the time that I didn't realize what I was saying, and now I'm sorry I said it. Since then we haven't spoken to each other.

Now he has asked another girl to go to a dance with him and she is going. I know he doesn't really care anything about her or she him, and she's not the kind of a girl to stick with one boy anyway.

Please tell me what to do. We are both 16 years old. — Honey

Dear Honey:

You're something like the famous "dog in the manger," aren't you? You didn't think you wanted this boy yourself, but you don't want anyone else to have him either. What happened, of course, was that you didn't expect him to take you at your word when you said you were through with him and you're terribly miffed that he did.

Now you want this boy back-partly to salve your wounded pride and partly to show this other girl that you have some first with this boy and he just took up with her because he couldn't get you.

Well, since you and this boy fight all the time, I certainly see no sense in your trying to get him back. The smart thing for you to do is to go out with other boys and let this one alone to do as he pleases.

Don't keep up this childish business of not speaking to him when you happen to meet, either. Be friendly and natural and pleasant, but don't act as though you're carrying a torch for him. If he wants to come back, let him make that clear—unless you feel you owe him an apology, in which case, write him a little note and tell him you're sorry if you were in the wrong and let it go at that. Don't hash it all over and don't say anything that would make it obvious you want him back. Your apology would indicate that you're leaving the door open a crack for him in case he cares to come in. If he doesn't come, just let the door quietly close.

In the natural course of things, another boy will eventually come along whom you'll like just as much. I advise you, in the meantime, however, to work on yourself a little so that you'll neither be constantly fighting with any new boy friend, nor, if you do have an occasional argument, get an foolishly angry that you lose all control of yourself and say things you don't mean.

STRAIN WAS TOO MUCH

SAN LEANDRO, Calif. (AP) — Twelve-year-old Robert Daily collapsed and died as he crossed the plate Monday after homering in a school baseball game. Deputy coroner Guy Robinson said the boy apparently suffered a heart attack induced by strain and excitement.

BEAUTY

By MME. QUI VIVE

CLEANLINESS A LUXURY THAT EVERYONE CAN AFFORD

Soap and water—the secret of a lady's loveliness.

It sounds delightfully quaint read in Godey's Lady's Book, of almost a hundred years ago, that "decent" man was expected to take a bath once a week. The commentary on bathing that appeared in that famous magazine, around about 1860, stated the matter like this: "Once a week is often enough for a decent man to wash himself all over and, whether in summer or winter, that ought to be done with soap, warm water, and a hot hair brush."

Well, the hog hair brush sounds kind of tough on the skin. However, the idea was sound! When you consider how much trouble and labor it was in those days to "wash all over" with warm water, you can't wonder that once a week seemed often enough to make a person socially acceptable! Heating enough water, carrying it to the tub, heating the kitchen or wherever the bath was being taken, carrying out the bath water afterward—it all sounds distressingly difficult.

When you compare that sort of laborious bath with the kind we can take today—all a moment's notice—you feel like hopping right into the tub and turning on the faucets immediately! With our glamorous shower curtains, the showerheads that regulate not only the temperature of the bath water but the force with which it peppers us, the wonderful bath mitts and brushes, the fragrant soaps, the luscious big bath towels—well, even a woman on the skimpiest budget in the world can afford this kind of luxury! No wonder that lovely ladies have become accustomed to the idea that a daily bath, instead of a weekly one, is the order of the day!

As a model for the really fastidious bath, you couldn't do better than to look to the procedure the baby in the household is accustomed to. You don't just slop the baby into the tub. After all, that bath water must be sweet and clean enough to use on baby's face. So baby gets a preparatory swabbing first—cracker crumbs and assorted grime are washed of, the diaper area soaped and rinsed. When baby goes into the tub, he's all set to "bathe cleanly." Why we dispense with this dainty pre-washing before a tub bath after we grow up, goodness knows. It's a sane and healthful procedure and one to which we'd do well to revert. As a matter of fact, in some European countries where the bath assumes the proportions of a religious rite, a cleansing shower is invariably the prelude to a sit-down in the liquid bath.

Thorough rinsing is more important than is usually considered. After all, the job of soapsuds is to wash away the dirt. And bathing cleaning means rinsing off that lather. If you prefer a tub bath to a shower, be sure to rinse the body well, one way or another. An easy way is to reserve a clean washcloth for rinsing. As the tub water is allowed to run out, soak the cloth under the faucet and wring it out over your body, repeating the rinse till all the lather is washed away. The shower bather, of course, finds thorough rinsing no problem. But a shower bath calls for more vigorous scrubbing with soap and brush, since there's no soaking period to loosen grime from the skin.

INCREASE IN FARES

BOSTON (AP) — The National Fire Protection Association reports that the United States and Canada suffered 316 big fires in 1955, more than in any previous year. The blazes whose causing damage of $225,000 or more—cost the two countries $267,704,500 in property damage. Canada had 22 of the large blazes.

QUESTION:

This is my second correspondence with you. . . you have caused me some disquiet and rightfully so with your nutrition campaign. I have three little boys 6, 4 and 3. When they were babies I was very nutrition-conscious. I used all available articles, sent away for booklets, etc., consequently had extremely healthy children—but it was expensive. . . you will perhaps think I was unnecessarily extravagant. . . because of a financial setback I don't do it. . . the boys are very healthy—above average some people think. . . through your persuasions I have come to realize I have to settle down to business on this score and make the most of my limited dollars, which involves much more planning and food preparation . . . however I am willing and eager and finally aware of the haphazardness of my meals . . . meal-planning has suddenly become of paramount importance . . . there are lots of foods my husband didn't like . . . the children are beginning to follow his eating habits . . . and I'm afraid I'm preparing them for other disappointed wives (mealwise) of future years . . . but nutrition is the most immediate consideration . . . I'm perfect bait for your nutrition campaign . . . here are my questions: (1) What is the cheapest form in which I can buy cod liver oil? (2) What is the most economical way to provide Vitamin C? —fresh oranges? canned orange juice? How much does an apple a day constitute? What about vitaminized apple juice? (3) I note one woman uses whole wheat flour for nearly everything. I am willing to try it if I can

Thanks for a splendid letter which I hope will jar some of our readers into more careful nutrition habits. It does not cost any more—and eliminates doctors' bills.

ANSWER:

That's music to my ears and I hope it is true. (1) Liquid cod liver oil is more economical but you should check them for A and D, vitamin potency on label, and figure from that the value. If one shows 500 units of A and 1000 of D, another might show 2 1-2 to 3 times as much and while it would be more expensive it would be better. They are always tested and assayed for potency. (2) One whole apple and one whole orange, all things considered, are best. (3) Try adding 1-2 and 1-3 whole wheat and white flour instead of all white flour in your present baking. Sift it three times

'New Canadians' Theme Study At Mt. Pleasant-Rawdon W.M.S.

RAWDON — Mrs. James Hoard was hostess on March 21st for the regular meeting of Mount Pleasant, Rawdon, Woman's Missionary Society. There were 13 members and five adult visitors in attendance.

Mrs. Kenneth Weaver played quiet music.

The president, Mrs. Milford Wrightman, read part of a hymn "God of All Whose Love Surrounds Us," and all sang John Oxenham's famous missionary hymn followed by prayer for the missionary.

Gordon Hoard gathered the offering, which Mrs. Herbert Smith dedicated, and read an appropriate poem, "How Much Shall I Give?"

Mrs. W. G. Fletcher read a letter from Mrs. Coulter, Presbyterial Stewardship secretary, stating that the 1956 allocation would be $440. Mrs. Ross Jeffs reported $9.50 for February.

Mrs. Frank Jeffs, Christian Citizenship secretary, read an article from the March "Missionary Monthly" entitled "The Newcomer as a Citizen."

Mrs. Will Potts recorded almost 50 home and hospital calls for two months.

The Baby Band realized $10.00 from their recent candy sale.

PRESBYTERIAL REPORTS

Reports of two sessions of the recent Belleville Presbyterial were given by two of the delegates: Mrs. Percy MacMullen for the morning session and Mrs. Frank Jeffs the afternoon.

It was suggested that the president and past president be a committee to decide a suitable place for the library of missionary books.

The afternoon program was arranged by Mrs. Percy MacMullen who gave a synopsis of Chapter II of the study book, entitled "Entering Our Gates." She reviewed Chapter I which was given last October and then told how the church greets the newcomers at ports of landing.

Each guest is given a leaflet in his or her own language which reads in part: "The United Church of Canada welcomes you to this new land and wishes for you here a life both useful and happy. We hope that we, or some other branch of the Christian church may help you to make this vision come true. We hope that you will continue in the faith and worship that made the Old Country great."

The average immigrant wants freedom to worship in the church of his choice; opportunity to build a home of his own and freedom to live like the average Canadian.

There were several stories which told how appreciative these people are for various kindnesses shown to them.

LANGUAGE PROBLEM

The language problem is another handicap, and so it is necessary for port workers to command several languages. Dr. A. S. Murray, as chaplain, and Miss Louisa Mayova, as deaconess, say to these people in their language, "The United Church of Canada welcomes you and here you may live your life far from near and distant. You have much to bring to the new homeland and we hope some branch of the Christian church may be able to help you to make your life here useful and happy."

Printed forms are mailed to ministers and WMS secretaries and these folk visit the newcomers who have arrived in their particular church community.

Immigrants are a great potential asset and much is being done in the line of Christian neighborliness to help these people become good citizens.

At the Presbyterial last week the theme hymn was printed on the program. This is one of five new hymns copyrighted in the United States in 1955 and the Presbytery used it by special permission.

Mrs. Marguerite McMullen sang this lovely hymn, which all enjoyed.

Miss Doris Sine read "My Greatest Adventure," from Home Mission Digest No. 3. This was the story of Miss Louise Mayova telling of her invitation inviting her to come to Canada and serve at the port of entry.

The devotional was in charge of Mrs. Roy Thrasher and was based on Service VI, "The Call to the Mission of the Church Through Evangelism and Missions," as outlined in the February Missionary Monthly."

The service opened with "O Word of God," and all read in unison. The General Thanksgiving.

Miss Ruth Linn read the Bible lesson and Mrs. Thrasher gave an inspirational paper on the theme. She said it was the duty of every missionary woman to see that the church of Jesus "constant does remain," as outlined in the old hymn which she repeated.

EVANGELISTS

She also gave a graphic picture of the evangelism of such folk as Billy Graham, and quoted that lovely poem "Prepare Ye the Way." She stressed pray, study, give and go and hoped that some day Mount Pleasant-Rawdon might have a missionary of its own. A church not missionary minded is in danger of becoming a dead church. Mrs. Thrasher eulogized the work of the medical missions and the value of overseas students and then gave a brief Easter message, closing with "From Ocean to Ocean."

The convener of the program voiced a sincere thank-you to those who had assisted during the afternoon.

The president also voiced thanks for hospitality and provisions to be forwarded quarterly to the Presbyterial treasurer.

Mrs. Young gave the chapter "Family Night" from "The Boy with the Busy Walk", after a short quiz.

Uniondale W.I. Selects 1956 Slate of Officers

The March meeting of Uniondale Women's Institute was held at the schoolhouse of S.S. No. 12, Brooklake in the form of a "Family Night" with a large crowd in attendance.

Secretary, Mrs. George Striker, read the correspondence which consisted of an appeal from the Red Cross for funds. It was decided to donate $15. Thank-you notes from Mrs. Howard Dafoe, Mrs. Carl Rose and girls, Mrs. Bert Bush and Mrs. Clayton Appleby were read.

A member from each concession was named to form a slate of officers for next meeting. These were, Mrs. M. Grills (4th); Mrs. H. Frost (5th); Mrs. M. Sine (6th).

The program consisted of a piano solo by Marylin Phillips and readings by Jean Anderson and Marylin Phillips. These were given by the school children.

Mrs. Morley Sine, convener for the March meeting planned a film put on by Mr. Meyers of the Truck and Farm Supply, this being a project being carried out in British Columbia. "A man with a thousand hands," which was educational and could hardly be imagined although each step was on the film strip.

In the absence of the song-leader, Mrs. M. Grills, the Rev. E. G. Dovey led in two selections "O Canada", and "John Brown's Body," and a short selection for the smaller children with motions.

Mr. Meyers gave each person present a ticket which entitled the holder to a lucky draw from his hat. These were won by Mr. Ross Dafoe (3 cans of Separator oil); Howard Frost, (1 gallon of anti-freeze); Mrs. G. Herrington (Sunnerie); Gordon Striker and Judy Hatfield, (children—toy tractors).

The meeting closed with "thank you" to all who helped to make the evening a success. Refreshments consisting of ice cream, coffee, sandwiches and cake were served by the March lunch committee.

Last Tuesday night at the home of Mrs. Merley Sne, the committee met to plan the slate of officers for 1956. All was planned that could be ascertained without a special meeting of all members.

Last Saturday at the home of Mrs. Gerald Herrington, a meeting was held to plan the material for the conveners for 1955 reports from the minute book. These are to be read at the District Annual.

The April meeting will be held as an annual meeting at the home of Mrs. H. Richards, 4th concession of Sidney.

Refreshments by Mesdames R. Dafoe, G. Burkith, J. Morris, A. Martyn, M. Grills and W. Rose.

Vota Vita M.C. Enjoys Talk on Emerald Isle

The monthly meeting of the Vota Vita M.C., of Victoria Avenue Baptist church, was held in the church parlor with the president, Mrs. T. Stovell, in the chair.

The "Lighthouse Flashes" which comprises news of missionaries, was given by Mrs. K. Hales assisted by Mrs. A. Halliwell. Mrs. S. Campbell read a letter from Dr. A. Vining in India acknowledging a parcel which was sent her. Mrs. Max Lush also read a letter of appreciation from Toronto, for a box of clothing which was sent for the work among the new Canadians.

The president explained about Hobby Night which is to be held in April.

The remainder of the meeting, which took on an Irish air was in charge of Miss N. Hales' group, with Miss Hales as chairman.

A devotional was based on "Friendship" and led by Mrs. E. Demorest and Miss Dawn Grenke favored with a vocal solo.

The speaker of the evening, one of the members, Mrs. I. Bowerman, brought an interesting talk on the Emerald Isle, supplemented with pictures and pamphlets.

Miss Hales expressed her appreciation to Mrs. Bowerman.

A social hour followed after which Mrs. L. K. Daniel closed the evening with prayer.

Announcement

THE RAWSON BUS CO. LTD.

ANNOUNCES

The Following Change In Its Bus Service Commencing The 1st Day Of April 1956

1. SUNDAY SERVICE WILL BE DISCONTINUED
2. THERE WILL BE NO BUS SERVICE ON STATUTORY HOLIDAYS AND ON ANY DAY PROCLAIMED BY THE MAYOR TO BE A HOLIDAY
3. ON MONDAY, TUESDAY AND WEDNESDAY EVENING SERVICE WILL BE REDUCED FROM FIFTEEN MINUTE SERVICE TO ONE-HALF HOUR SERVICE FROM 6.00 O'CLOCK p.m. UNTIL MIDNIGHT ON BOTH THE EAST AND WEST HILLS

THE COMPANY WOULD LIKE TO POINT OUT THAT IT HAS AN UNSURPASSED RECORD OF NEVER HAVING MISSED A SINGLE DAY'S OPERATION IN OVER 30 YEARS, DESPITE DEPRESSION, WARS OR STRIKES, AND HAS ONLY RAISED ITS RATES ONCE IN THAT TIME. HOWEVER, THE INCREASE IN THE NUMBER OF PRIVATE MOTOR VEHICLES, AND THE INCREASING NUMBER OF TELEVISION SETS HAVE RESULTED IN A DECREASE IN THE NUMBER OF PASSENGERS CARRIED, AND THE COST OF THE OPERATION IS CONTINUALLY RISING.

THE COMPANY SINCERELY REGRETS THE INCONVENIENCE TO ITS CUSTOMERS THAT WILL BE CAUSED BY THE CURTAILMENT OF SERVICE, BUT FEELS THAT UNLESS THE SERVICE IS CURTAILED FARES WILL HAVE TO BE INCREASED. MOST PEOPLE ARE AWARE OF THE INCREASING DIFFICULTY FACING MUNICIPALITIES IN PROVIDING AN ADEQUATE BUS SERVICE FOR ITS CITIZENS, AND MANY MUNICIPALITIES HAVE BEEN FORCED TO OPERATE THE BUS SERVICE THEMSELVES, OR TO SUBSIDIZE PRIVATE OPERATORS. AT THE END OF THE NEXT FIVE YEARS, THE CITY OF BELLEVILLE MIGHT WELL BE FACED WITH A SIMILAR SITUATION.

THE COMPANY APPRECIATES THE FACT THAT IT DEPENDS UPON THE GOOD WILL AND PATRONAGE OF THE PEOPLE OF THE CITY OF BELLEVILLE, AND THE COMPANY WILL CONTINUE TO ENDEAVOR TO PROVIDE ITS PASSENGERS WITH THE MAXIMUM AMOUNT OF SERVICE CONSISTENT WITH THE ECONOMIC OPERATION OF THE COMPANY.

Blind Institute For Hastings County Meets

Mr. T. J. Flurey was chairman for the meeting of the Hastings County Advisory Board for the Blind at his home on Monday evening with 15 present.

A six months' report of expenses for services to the blind was given by the treasurer, Miss E. Rollins, which showed that in that period a total of $1,032.02 was spent. Mr. R. J. Fuke read the result of the fall campaign and tag days with Hastings County rating a total of $9,571.78, an increase from the previous year of $1,063.06. Of this amount Belleville contributed $4,524.63.

After the reading of the minutes by the secretary, J. L. Lambert, a report from the sale of Blindcraft products held in December at the Public Utilities office was presented by George Wishart at which $340.80 was realized.

Mrs. R. Rollins reported for the admissions committee to the Quinte-St. Lawrence residence in Kingston. At present there are five from this county and a monthly supplement of $125 is paid by the Board.

NEEDS CARED FOR

Assistant field secretary, Bob Padden, gave a detailed report of his visits to individual members of the C.N.I.B. in the county. Particular needs were cared for and in some cases supplementary help of clothing, radio batteries, fuel and cash was given.

Field secretary, F. L. Timmins, stated that there were 126 blind persons in the county ranging in ages from babies to those over 90. Some had personal problems, which were solved wherever possible and requests for glasses, remedial treatment, and lessons in typing had been granted.

Messrs. T. J. Flurey, G. Wishart and J. Boorne were appointed to the Board of Governors and Mrs. R. Rollins to the Admissions committee. Tag days were set for September 14 and 15 to be convened by Mrs. G. Wishart, and Mrs. M. Ward. A nominating committee of Mrs. A. D. Archibald, Mr. G. Wishart and Mrs. R. Lennox was appointed.

Delegates to the Canadian Council of the Blind in Oshawa, for a three-day convention are Mrs. Burrows with associate delegate Flight Sgt. A. Davies.

The hostess, Mrs. Flurey, served refreshments after the business meeting was finished.

Current films are shown regularly to hospitalized veterans through the film service of the Canadian Red Cross.

Jack Shuler Addresses Y.F.C. Rally

The Saturday night Youth for Christ rally was held in College Hill United church, under the leadership of the area director, Mr. Jim Blackwood.

Mr. Ernie Belch led the congregation in several well known hymns and action choruses. Mrs. Beverley Foster presided at the organ.

One of the major highlights of the service was the appearance of Mr. Josh Maffi of Toronto, an accomplished saxophonist, who was accompanied by his wife at the organ. They rendered "We'll Talk It Over", "He", and "No Name Has Meant So Much To Me."

Mr. Maffi also gave a short synopsis of his recent trip to San Paulo, Brazil. He told the audience that this city is ultra modern, neither Canadian nor U.S. cities can compete with its beauty, which has skyscrapers ranging from 30 to 50 stories high. Although the beauty of the city was impressive, it could not compare with the impreminence of the three million hungry souls who inhabit it. Gatherings at each meeting numbered from 12 to 13 hundred persons, and from night to night as many as 140 people would walk forward to accept Jack as Saviour.

A film entitled "The Hutchison Crusade" was shown which included a choir of 1,000 voices, led by Mr. Don DeVoss, Mr. Bob Anderson playing a Hammond electric organ and a grand piano at the same time, and Mr. Sammy Aubrich and Mr. Don DeVoss singing that triumphant song "It Took a Miracle".

Mr. Jack Shuler, a famous evangelist, chose for his text, Proverbs 29:1 "He that being often reproved hardeneth his neck, shall suddenly be destroyed and that without remedy." This verse of Scripture has a profound warning to those who spurn the offers of God's mercy; he likened his message to two well known Bible characters—Lot and Judas.

"Lot chose to settle in Sodom, and because of his choice, his wife and family were completely destroyed along with the city. He could have chosen Bethel as Abraham did. No doubt Lot said many times "Oh! If I could only relive my life again what a different choice I would make." But what has been done, has been done and nothing could alter those years.

"Judas, betrayer of Christ, sold his Master, the Son of God, for 30 pieces of silver. He received the money but didn't spend it. Instead he took his own life by hanging himself. If we were to ask Judas today if he would like to return to Gethsemane and relive his life I'm sure he would answer "yes"—but what has been done, has been done and today some 2,000 years later he is still crying from the pit of Hell "If I had only listened to what Christ told me, and asked His forgiveness, I would be spending eternity in heaven.'

"Young man, young woman, are you too refusing to accept Christ as your Saviour? If so, you too will find your place in a lost eternity. Jesus said in John 11:25 "I am the resurrection and the life: He that believeth in Me, though he were dead, yet shall he live, and whosoever liveth and believeth in Me shall never die. Believest thou this?"

The Bible competition quiz resulted in a 130 to 120 win for Stirling over Quinte High.

SAHARA OIL RUSH

PARIS (Reuters)—An oil rush in the Sahara desert may lead to United Nations action in defining the frontier between Algeria and Libya. Since the Sahara's first oil well went into production last Wednesday on the Algerian side of the border, there has been application for oil concessions covering about 50,000 square miles of western Libya.

FORGOT LICENCE

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP)—Italian actress Marisa Pavan married French actor Jean Pierre Aumont Tuesday in such a romantic flurry that they forgot to bring along the licence. As they faced Judge Frank P. Kearney for the ceremony, someone asked "Where's the licence." It had been left at the licence bureau, and court clerk Jack Lewis hustled to get it.

PRIME OBJECTIVE

Prime Minister St. Laurent and Rufe Cortines were reported to have expressed approval of the U.S. action in submitting the Arab-Israeli dispute to the United Nations Security Council. Eisenhower told the visiting government leaders that the United States does not believe "for one instant" that the Communists have given up their plans or ideas of world domination. The formal, session was followed by separate meetings by Eisenhower with the Canadian leader and Ruiz Cortines.

The prime minister later told reporters that his one-hour talk with the president covered Canadian-American problems of trade, use of boundary waters and a proposed 20-per-cent Canadian tax on the revenue of foreign magazines with Canadian editions and Canadian advertising.

The prime minister said he reminded Eisenhower that Canada continues to suffer a deficit in trade with the United States and added that he felt there was an "honest" effort by both countries to do all they could to facilitate trade.

He and Eisenhower also discussed the need for ensuring that the best possible use be made of boundary waters. The Columbia river, which flows from British Columbia into the state of Washington, now is the subject of a dispute arising from rival Canadian and American plans for harnessing its waters for power production. Both sides, the prime minister reported, felt there were some "gaps" that needed to be filled in the 1909 Canada-U. S. boundary waters treaty which guides the International Joint Commission in the settlement of boundary water disagreements. The subject would require "serious consideration."

Eisenhower and Dulles both questioned the Canadian about the "motives" behind the Canadian budget proposal to tax revenues from Canadian advertising in the Canadian editions of American magazines. They were glad to know that no attempt was being made to prevent the free flow of ideas across the border," the prime minister said.

The prime minister was believed to have told them the tax was designed to protect the interests of Canadian magazines which compete with foreign magazines having special Canadian editions.

Wellman's R.B.P. Entertains At Oyster Supper

RAWDON — On Friday evening, the members of Wellman's Royal Black Preceptory lodge, No. 747, entertained their wives and families in Wellman's Orange lodge rooms and all enjoyed a delightful oyster supper. There were other viands for the few who do not relish sea food and for dessert there was pie in abundance. Mrs. Carl Clancy supervised the cooking of the oysters and they were delicious.

Sir Knight Stan Royle was the master of ceremonies and expressed a welcome to all.

Mrs. Lindsay Tanner led a singsong of old favorites. The pianist for the evening was Mrs. Elizabeth Telford, of Peterborough.

Sir Knight Stewart Brady spoke briefly and Mrs. Percy MacMullen, Mount Pleasant, contributed four readings which included "How Pat Saved His Bacon" and "Pat's Letter to Mary."

Mr. Ed. Payne, Peterborough, delighted with four vocal selections of Irish vintage.

Wor. Bro. Fred Bateman, past Grand Master of Ontario East, spoke briefly and said he would gladly welcome the opportunity to give an address on "Protestantism" to non-lodge members, as many people do not value the freedom to use their franchise and to worship in the church of their choice and yet they belong to so-called Protestant churches.

Mrs. Ed Payne and Mrs. Ruby Payne of Peterborough, were also in attendance at the supper.

The evening was a decided success.

LAUNCH REBEL ATTACK

PARIS (Reuters) — South Viet Nam government forces have launched a combined army-navy-air force attack west of Saigon against the remaining Indochina rebel forces of General Baoti, leader of the Hoa Hao sect, according to reports reaching here from Seagon.

WELLINGTON

W.I. Favored With Program By C.G.I.T.

WELLINGTON — The regular meeting of the Wellington Women's Institute was held recently in the town hall. Mrs. Ralph Ellis, the president, called the meeting to order and opened it in the usual manner.

There were 28 members, many visitors, the CGIT, and their leaders, Mrs. Bryant, Mrs. McKenzie and Mrs. East, making 74 present.

The secretary read correspondence which included letters of appreciation for cards and fruit from Mr. and Mrs. G. Parks, Mrs. Lila Murphy, Mrs. Helen Walmsley (re convas for blind), the Homemakers' Club Achievement Day, April 14, 9.30 to 4.30, held in Picton, and the Ontario Department of Agriculture homeserve extension service.

A donation of $10 was received with thanks from Miss Gladys Lumb.

Mrs. Laura Wight thanked the members for kindness during her recent illness.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Ross also sent thanks for card received while they were both ill.

The executive of the W.W.I. will attend a special meeting this Saturday in Picton to plan for the annual country district convention to be held in Wellington May 31st. It was decided to send six dozen eggs to the hospital for Easter; to have sandwiches for all occasions and a demonstration meeting later in the spring.

Wellington W.I. will have a tag day for the Blind some Saturday in May. The CGIT will tag for the W.I.

Mrs. Jackson and Mrs. Tripp were appointed a nominating committee to bring in a slate of officers for the April meeting.

Six members contributed to the birthday box.

The collection was $5.40. Will the members please bring in their "Thrifty Savers' Book of Dimes", to the April meeting for the hospital fund.

The hostesses were Mrs. Yount and Mrs. Charles Broadbridge.

Mrs. McKenzie thanked the Institute for inviting the CGIT to be their guests.

The program, given by the CGIT girls with their "Purpose" and the singing of the CGIT hymn. Everyone enjoyed a piano solo by Lynda McKenzie; Lois Wasmunda gave a humorous reading, "A Friendly Game of Checkers"; Marilyn Brinley delighted all by singing "Galway Bay," accompanied by her grandmother, Mrs. Frank Brinley Sr.; Lynda Taylor played a lovely solo on the piano, "Look for the Silver Lining" was sung by Karen Alyea and Rhonda Cleave, accompanied by Lynda McKenzie. "The Irish" was well read by Margaret Kanahan. A duet by Betty Faye Smith and Calla Hills, "When Irish Eyes are Smiling" was enjoyed, with Carol Marvin at the piano.

Mrs. Bryan spoke briefly about the works of the CGIT and their achievements last winter.

Were the only CGIT in Ontario who had three groups granted a "chevron" certificate. This was not easy, as each girl had much to do to win the marks necessary to win these awards.

Leaders are needed! Will you be a leader or help a leader?

Mrs. Stoneburg voiced the appreciation of the WWI for the splendid work the workers are doing for the girls.

The girls formed a circle and sang their "Taps", to bring to a close a most enjoyable evening.

Mrs. Tuttle held the lucky ticket and was presented with a mystery parcel. It contained a novelty pot holder.

Refreshments were served by the committee in charge.

U.S. Daily Worker Is Padlocked For Tax Arrears

NEW YORK (AP) — The Daily Worker, voice of United States communism, vowed today to go on publishing despite government seizure of the newspaper on back-tax claims.

In sudden raids Tuesday, Internal revenue agents snapped padlocks on the newspaper and Communist party offices in five cities. The government said the party owed $389,265 in income taxes for 1951 and the Daily Worker $46,049 for 1951-53.

The party took the position that it was tax-exempt. The Daily Worker claimed that the government move was an effort to force the paper to disclose names of its financial backers.

Though its editorial offices were locked, the Worker was able to print an estimated 14,000 copies off the presses today because the paper's typesetting and press work are handled by a private firm.

WON'T INTERFERE

The Daily Worker's lawyer, Harry Sacher, said Internal revenue officials had assured him that no effort would be made to interfere with actual publication of the paper.

The government crackdown also hit The Worker's regional office in Chicago, and party headquarters here and in Philadelphia, San Francisco and Los Angeles.

The swift raids caught Red leaders by surprise. They quickly protested them as "outrageous . . . Gestapo-like . . . lawless . . . infamous."

Eugene Dennis, general secretary of the U. S. Communist party, sent a telegram to President Eisenhower saying the raids were a "lawless attempt to muzzle political opponents by police force."

JUST THE SAME

The action was ordered by the New York district revenue director, Donald Moyscy, "We're not picking on anybody," he said. "They're just the same as all taxpayers."

Liberal Member Says Harris Will Hit Homer Next Year When Budget Is Presented

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Harris didn't hit a home run with his budget this year, but he will next year, Niagara Falls Liberal William L. Houck said Tuesday.

Mr. Houck, speaking in the Commons budget debate, said that when Mr. Harris came to bat on budget night last Tuesday he had the bases loaded. He knocked the ball against the fence and although it didn't go over the bases were cleared.

"Next year he'll hit a home run" Mr. Houck said.

Donald Fleming (PC—Toronto Eglinton) replied that many members wondered what Mr. Harris was doing on budget night. Now they knew he was playing baseball.

"He certainly wasn't presenting a budget," Mr. Fleming said.

MOTHER METAPHOR

Mr. Houck used another metaphor to describe the budget. It was a "don't - rock - the - boat budget." There had been no public outcry against its absence of tax reductions.

There was no need for sweeping tax changes when productivity, business earnings and wages were at record levels.

"Why fiddle when Rome is not burning?"

However, Mr. Houck urged consideration of removal of the 10-per-cent excise tax on new automobiles. Reduction of the tax last year had increased car sales and thus the tax revenue. However, the tax was unfair, unjust and economically unsound. If it were removed altogether, maintenance of production and employment levels in the auto industry would be ensured.

RE MUNICIPAL TAXES

Mr. Houck said last year's broadening of the basis for federal grants in lieu of municipal taxes on its property recognized the principle that such taxes should be paid.

The government should go all the way, instead of paying grants only when its property exceeds two per cent of total municipal assessment.

He added that the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission should follow the same principle. Niagara Falls lost almost $250,000 a year because of tax-free commission property there.

DELAYED ACTION

Michael Starr (PC—Ontario) described the budget as a delayed action one, paving the way for next year's election-year budget.

It had become taken for granted that government strategy was to manipulate taxes to suit its political purposes. There was evidence in the budget that "there is being deliberately built up this year a surplus of revenues for the political purposes of the party in power."

Mr. Starr said that if Mr. Harris wants a tested formula for appealing to voters next year he could cut income taxes 15 per cent in the lower and middle brackets, boost basic tax exemptions, lift the 10-per-cent luxury tax on automobiles and other goods, slash the cigaret tax and permit taxpayers to count all medical expenses as deductible costs for income tax purposes.

Calls Eisenhower 'A Spent Man'—

LONDON (Reuters) — A mass-circulation daily describes President Eisenhower as "a spent man" and pleads with him not to seek re-election.

In a story splashed across its front page, the Daily Mirror calls Eisenhower's announcement that he plans to run again the decision most damaging to the Western powers in 1956" and declares that he made the move "to oblige his friends of the Republican party."

Two Opposition Motions Defeated In Legislature

TORONTO (CP)—Two opposition party motions, criticising the Ontario government's policies on municipal affairs and reform institutions were defeated Tuesday night in the Ontario legislature.

One motion, presented by Liberal leader Farquhar Oliver, called for a select committee to study the municipal and assessment acts to "bring them up to date."

The other, moved by Peter Manley (L—Stormont), asked the government to establish a central psychiatric and treatment centre at which all persons convicted of first offences could be sent.

The centre could discover their problems and point to a cure, Mr. Manley said. At present, first offenders were sent to ordinary institutions, where they mixed with hardened criminals, making their rehabilitation more difficult.

The motion was strongly supported by CCF leader Donald C. MacDonald who has criticized the reforms institutions department all during the session.

Premier Frost said he agreed first offenders should be separated whenever possible from repeating offenders, but the reforms department is working toward that end already.

The federal government should take more repeaters into federal penitentiaries, freeing reform institutions for the job they were intended to do in the first place—rehabilitate prisoners, not lock up socially unacceptable persons.

Mr. Oliver said in the debate of his motion that an advisory board set up to help the Ontario municipal board 'falls far short" of what is needed.

The Municipal Act was "more patches than whole cloth," and should be entirely revised.

Premier Frost said revision of the acts is an important matter, but he feels it can best be done slowly, over a period of years. The acts were so complex it would be difficult for a select committee to deal thoroughly with them.

Justice Gale Approves Sale At $365,700

TORONTO (CP)—A court decision has earned a Polish widow an additional $150,000 profit on the sale of her 135-acre farm. The Supreme Court of Ontario Tuesday ruled Mrs. Teodozia Sambroski may sell the property for $365,700.

Two months ago she was denied permission to sell it for $216,000. So badly did she need the money that she couldn't even take time off from her job as a factory hand to attend the hearings.

Mr. Justice C. A. Gale Tuesday approved the sale of the farm between nearby Oakville and Bronte, for 20 times its value five years ago.

J. M. Baird, acting for the Official Guardian's Office, intervened in the original court action. He said the land had a steadily increasing value and wanted the widow and her three children to receive the highest possible price for it. Princeton Construction, Ltd. made the $365,700 bid. Mrs. Sambroski is to retain three acres, on which her house and barn are located.

Put on Probation

TORONTO (CP)—Reginald Cook of Oshawa, charged with threatening to stab his estranged wife, Tuesday was placed on probation for two years and forbidden to speak to his wife.

Cook said his wife would not let him see their young daughter. Mrs. Cook said her husband followed her constantly and caused disturbances at the store where she works.

"Jest a Second"

"Of course the neckline isn't too low, Daddy. After all, it's me he's coming to see — not the dress."

May Streamline Legal Processes

TORONTO (CP) — A Liberal member of the Ontario legislature's legal bills committee tried Tuesday to introduce a measure aimed at streamlining legal processes.

The move by John J. Wintermeyer, Waterloo North, was rejected because he is not a government member but drew sympathetic nods from lawyers representing all parties.

Mr. Wintermeyer said lawyers taking appeals to court from decisions reached by boards and commissions have several courses of action open and often take the wrong one. His bill would allow the lawyer simply to file notice of intention to appeal and allow the court to decide what form the appeal should take.

Although Mr. Wintermeyer got nowhere, Attorney-General Roberts said the government might bring in the same bill next year.

This fund was established through the donations of citizens of the town of Campbellford. Mr. Barrow appointed Mrs. Zillis to serve on this committee.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mr. Barrow introduced the guest speaker, Mr. D. W. Coughlan, director of probationary services in the attorney-general's department. Mr. Coughlan was ordained as an Anglican minister. He has served as probation officer and now directs the probation services.

Mr. Coughlan, who spoke on one of the blacker subjects, "Crime," gave a revealing account of prisons and reforms in Canada. He said it is startling to find Canada so progressive in most things, and yet is 50 years behind the times in the treatment of criminals. Probation is the American system of letting young offenders against the law, or first offenders, go free without receiving punishment for which they are sentenced. For those with sentences of 90 days and under, they are bound over to the probation officer to report weekly for a period of up to two years.

In the probation system, the prisoner is kept in the home, is reclaimed by society, allowed to work and is ridding the country of the cost of keeping him in prison and supporting his family while he is there.

To keep a criminal in prison a year costs $1760. Seventy-six per cent of every one who goes to prison has been there before; four out of every five are going to offend seriously enough to go back.

PROBATION IN ENGLAND

Mr. Coughlan went on to say that 99.1 per cent of the 150,000 Canadians who go to prison must come out and be better citizens.

As the result of 50 years of probation in Great Britain, over half the prisons are closed. Figures show four times as many Canadians as British are criminals. In 1953, $53,000 was paid to Toronto families of criminals who were sentenced to 90 days. Mothers' Allowance cost $75,000 in Ontario for prisoners in a year or more; 60 per cent of 120,000 were sentenced to 90 days or less. Probation costs $55. Through probation you get at least 70 per cent reclaimed citizens — persons who, given a chance, do not wish to commit a second offence.

PAROLE VS. PROBATION

Mr. Coughlan distinguished between parole and probation, pointing out that parole follows a prison sentence. He said that this would be his 897th public address in four years to groups who are interested, as the public is generally ignorant in the field of penology. To study the science of penology, one must leave Canada as "here are no universities in Canada where one can study it and there is no Canadian literature and not one Canadian book written on the subject.

The penalty should be devised to fit the character of the criminal, not less than the character of the crime, the speaker said.

The group took advantage of the opportunity to ask questions of Mr. Coughlan, following which the school principal, Mr. William Rothwell, expressed his thanks to him on behalf of the group.

Roll call was taken and Mrs. Anne Bennett's class won the attendance prize.

After the meeting closed refreshments were served by Mrs. M. Kellogg and Mrs. Lila Hoard.

Grace Kelly Renounces Film Career to Marry Prince

EDITOR'S NOTE: To many a girl, the height of accomplishment would be marrying a prince or becoming a movie star. And she's a girl who is renouncing both to do the other. This is the second of four stories on next month's marriage in Monaco.

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
Associated Press Staff Writer

There are some cynics who have suggested that the grandstark romance of Grace Patricia Kelly of Philadelphia and Rainier III, sovereign prince of Monaco, is another chapter in a book which might have been titled Jack Kelly's revenge.

Miss Kelly, an Oscar - winning actress and a top movie star at the box office by vote of film exhibitors, is giving up Hollywood next month to become Her Serene Highness, Princess Gracia of Monaco. Whether the parting will be permanent is not yet clear. The prince says it will, but his bride pointed out on her way to the wedding that she still has a contract with four years to run.

Be that as it may, when the vows are pronounced April 18 and 19, the lovely Miss Kelly will become consort to one of the world's few remaining reigning monarchs, and will accumulate 23 other titles, ranging from duchess to baroness. All of this, the cynics maintain, can be taken as a method of showing the world how much a Kelly can accomplish—even without ever breaking into Philadelphia's social register.

RULED BY HEART

Friends of the well - mannered, cooly-poised Miss Kelly scoff at this, however. They say she is a young lady who knows her own mind, who is ruled in this case by her heart and who is genuinely in love with her prince.

The story of Jack Kelly's revenge begins more than 30 years ago when handsome, strapping John B. Kelly was collecting trophies as a champion sculler—a sport in which one man rows one small boat as fast as he can.

As an American champion, Kelly sought to race at famed Henley Regatta in England, but because he had once "worked with his hands" as a bricklayer, he was ruled ineligible for this "gentleman's" race. Kelly later was picked for the U.S. Olympic team, met and vanquished the Henley winner.

That was not the end. When B. Kelley Jr. came along, his father coached him, too, to championship status. In 1947, young "Kell" went to Henley, qualified, and beat all comers.

THEATRICAL UNCLES

Meanwhile, the one-time bricklayer had built a borrowed $7,000 into one of the biggest brickwork construction companies. Two of his brothers went into the theatre. One, George Kelly, wrote plays. Another Walter, was vaudeville's perennial favorite, "the Virginia Judge."

Big Jack married Grace Major, once a model and later a director of physical education at the University of Pennsylvania. They had four children: John B. Jr., Peggy, Grace and Lizanne. Grace was the shy quiet one in an outgoing, athletic family.

The family grew up in a big house—well of the social main line —were marched with equal regularity off to the nearby Roman Catholic church on Sundays and the Penn Athletic Club for exercise.

Kelly has done well. He is reported to be worth several million dollars today. Is a big wheel in Philadelphia's Democratic party politics. Once attended a convent school, went on to Stevens in Germantown and, unable to go on to Bennington College because she failed in mathematics, enrolled in the American Academy of Dramatic Arts in New York.

TV ROLES

She took on modeling jobs and made a nice income with her blonde, clean beauty. She also did some television commercials amid making the rounds looking for an acting role. Before she was swept up by Hollywood she was playing leading roles in some of the top live shows broadcast from New York, including Studio One and Philco Playhouse.

Hollywood was interested in the pretty girl, but Grace, well supplied with eating money, wasn't interested until a role she liked came along. Then she played Gary Cooper's wife in High Noon, where her Southampton drawl seemed a little out of place, amid the "he went that-away" accents.

But after that came a $750-a-week contract with Metro-Goldwyn Mayer and a role in Mogambo, where she lost Clark Gable to Ava Gardner.

Dial M for Murder and Rear Window followed, and Miss Kelly's star became a comet. Finally Country Girl won her an Oscar.

Still she refused to conform to the Hollywood lores. Interviewers could not seem to penetrate her natural reserve. She insisted on keeping her private life private. She never departed from being a lady. Her fondness for white gloves became, without any help from her, her symbol.

STARS CHARMED

Her cool beauty, which somehow subtly suggested hidden fire, led one after another of Hollywood's most important male stars to try to court her. But apparently none of the romances ever reached the serious stage.

With daddy's millions behind her, Grace found the usual trappings of movie success unnecessary to her self-assurance or her career. She didn't have to be "seen" in fashionable spots. She could live simply in a furnished two-room apartment where she was working, then head back to her New York flat between pictures. Apparently the one serious romance in her life until Rainier was a Philadelphia boy who died.

Her mother once reported that she had received at least 30 proposals of marriage, but on occasion her father and brother have been quoted as saying they wished to goodness she'd go out with more muscular types.

The family seems perfectly content with Prince Rainier, who properly came a-calling and a-courting at the bride's Philadelphia home on Christmas Day.

At the moment, things look as though Hollywood is definitely losing one of its brightest stars, and not—as it undoubtedly hoped—gaining a real-life prince. Rainier has repeatedly stated his wife-to-be is giving up her acting career for marriage and the honorary chairmanship of the Monaco Red Cross.

U.S. Sergeant Said Unfit To Stand Trial

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — A charge of abduction against Master Sergeant Howard M. Pruitt, 36, of the United States Air Force at Selfridge field, Mich., was withdrawn Tues. when psychiatric evidence was presented.

Pruitt had been charged with the abduction of 29-year-old schoolteacher Norah Hurst of nearby Grimsby Beach, formerly of England. Pruitt had met her while serving overseas.

A letter from the hospital at Samson air force base, Geneva, N. Y., read in court, said a sanity board had been convened March 20 to consider Pruitt's legal sanity.

The board said Pruitt "is not at the present time so far free from mental defect, disease or derangement as to be able to distinguish right from wrong."

Crown attorney Lloyd Goodwin said the crown would therefore offer no evidence. He understood Pruitt would require psychiatric treatment for two or three years.

Pruitt was alleged to have driven off with Miss Hurst early last month after arranging to meet her in a restaurant.

They had been engaged and he paid the expenses of her trip from England to the United States. The engagement was broken off shortly after her arrival, however, and Miss Hurst moved to Grimsby to live with relatives.

Amazing Exploits of Mantle Bludgeon Seen as Herald of Super-Star Year

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—Mickey Mantle, prepping for his sixth season in the major leagues, appears ready to reach the superstardom predicted for him since he joined New York Yankees at 19.

Unless his amazing exploits during the spring exhibitions are mere illusions, the Oklahoma strongboy ought to bear the American League apart this summer with his bludgeoning bat.

The way he's sizzling now it would be no surprise if Mickey captured the triple crown consisting of the batting, home run and runs-batted-in titles as well as the league's most valuable player honor.

Not since Babe Ruth trained here more than 30 years ago have local fans been as excited over a player as they have been over Mantle this spring.

Buddy Lewis, former catcher with Boston Braves, after watching Mantle for the first time, could hardly believe some of the drives Mickey hit.

"He ought to be the greatest player who ever lived," Lewis uttered in amazement.

Terry Moore, for years regarded as the top centre-fielder in the National League when he was with St. Louis Cardinals, waxes enthusiastic every time somebody mention's Mantle's name.

"Mantle has more power than anybody I've ever seen," said Moore, "and that includes Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig. I played against Ruth and Gehrig and I never saw either of them hit a ball as hard as Mickey has hit this spring. . . .

"Hitting with power isn't the only thing he can do. He beats you four ways . . . hitting, fielding, running, throwing. He's just the best, that's all."

BRITISH GIRL WINS

CANNES, France (AP)—Shirley Bloomer of Great Britain Tuesday defeated Edda Budding of Argentina 6-4, 4-6, 6-3 to take the women's singles title of the Cannes international lawn tennis club tournament.

Spring Training Notes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Considering that Pittsburgh Pirates put together the best record among major league teams last spring, there's no reason for the St. Louis Cardinals to rejoice because they're making a juicy showing in the Grapefruit League.

But the fact is that the Cards, woefully weak in pitching the last few years, are getting loads of good elbow work in the exhibition games. They've won 11 and lost 7 for the best spring mark among National League teams.

Louis Arroyo and Tom Poholsky each have picked up two victories. Arroyo got the win Tuesday as the Cards nipped Milwaukee Braves 3-1; Braves got only two hits.

Chicago White Sox dropped a 7-2 decision to Boston Red Sox Tuesday. Jim Piersall paced a late Boston rally, driving in three runs.

BEAT PHILLIES

In other games Brooklyn Dodgers beat Philadelphia Phillies 4-2, the Pirates downed Cincinnati Redlegs 5-4, Chicago Cubs outslugged New York Giants 13-10, Kansas City Athletics dumped Detroit Tigers 7-3 and Cleveland Indians nipped Baltimore Orioles 8-7.

The beaning of Willie Jones, Phils third baseman, by Don Newcombe marked the Brooklyn game. Jones was felled in the fifth inning when he was hit on the back of the left ear. X-rays showed no fracture but Jones still was bleeding slightly around the ear early today.

Carl Furillo was the big gun for the Dodgers with a double and two singles.

Leafs Launch Desperate Bid For Survival; Hab-Propelled Blues 'Fini'

Sport Slices

Kare, Medium, Well-Done

By GEO. H. CARVEN, Sports Editor

MICHAEL AT THE MIKE

(With apologies to "Casey at the Bat," or how Michael J. Rodden would have paraphrased the immortal "pome" after the Kingston 6-2 victory over Whitby.)

The outlook wasn't brilliant for the Dunlop squad that night,
The score stood Kingston four to one with the Goodies full of fight.
And as the seconds ticked away the Blairmen's bid for fame.
A sickly silence fell upon the patrons of the game.

A struggling few got up to go in deep despair. The rest
Clung to the hope which springs eternal in the human breast.
They thought if only Gagnon, Treen, or Etcher made the play
Bob Attersley could do the rest and salt the win away.

But the Douglasmen defenders handed every hope a jolt
And behind 'em was Devaney, Cornwall's stout puck-stopping colt.
Just a John-who-cometh-lately, Jerry swore none would get in.
And he stopped the flying rubber with his dandruff, ears and chin.

So upon that stricken multitude grim melancholy sat,
While Blair in mental anguish wished to gosh he'd worn a hat.
He moaned, he groaned, "All season long we've licked 'em without miss
Now with Buckland's eyes upon us has it got to come to this?"

Then some 1900 tonsils burst into a lusty yell
It echoed in the valley and it rattled in the dell.
They heard it up in Stratford and in Windsor far away
It seemed to say "We're coming, bubs, make room in Senior "A".

For Bonello, lusty fellow in a desp'rate derring-do
Ripping wide the Goodies' bulwarks, screwed a shot that beat them to two.
High rose the hopes of hundreds, this the form they knew so well,
When the Dunnies swept aside the rest, like daisies in a dell.

But they reckoned not the Goodies, counted naught their need to win,
This Devaney could be beaten, sure as chewing gum's a sin,
Had they seen his face grow stern and cold, his muscles tense with strain
They'd have known that Jerry wouldn't let that puck go by again.

Up and down the icy surface surged the battle grim and tense,
With the Dunnies shock troops bouncing off a stubborn defence.
Ah, 'twas history in the making—song and story for a bard
As the faithful moaned in sorrow: "Beaten in our own backyard."

But the Dunnies, desp'rate, fighting did not let their efforts lag
Till the Goodies' Toppazzini scored to "put it in the bag."
Five to two the scorer noted, as the clock the seconds ticks
Then the crafty Samolenko dunked the puck to make it six.

The clarion roars of Kingston were echoed in the glen,
The doughty Whitby lien had been bearded in his den.
While Wren, the Blair, calm in defeat, soilliquized, he Said: "Mebbe senior "A" too tough, we'd better stick to "B".

Oh somewhere in this favored land the sun is shining bright,
The band is playing somewhere, and somewhere hearts are light,
And somewhere men are laughing, and somewhere children shout,
But there'll be no joy in Blairville if the Dunlops are put out.

* * * *

EVEN STEPHEN

One rather odd feature of the deathor-glory series between the Kingston Goodyears and Whitby Dunlops is that each team has won the victory on "foreign" ice.

Generally speaking, a win away usually gives a club a big edge in any series. That probably accounts for the ultra-optimistic attitude of the Goodyears' faithful after Mike Rodden's beloved "defending champions" met the Dunnies back on their heels in the opening encounter.

But the Dunnies were not to be denied. They roared back with a duplicate feat in the second tilt—and now it is a new series. Tonight the teams clash in Whitby in what might be the key game of the finals classic.

The Dunlops, claimed by their dynamic manager Wren Blair, to be "off color" in their defeat, have apparently struck their stride. They will be tough to beat in their own backyard, especially after their initial setback and tonight's battle should be a hum-dinger.

Enter Hoop Finals

OTTAWA (CP) — Saint John Atlantics entered the Canadian senior EB basketball final Tuesday night when they edged Ottawa's Rockcliffe Rockets 69-65.

The win gave the Maritime champions the two-game, total-point series 129-123 by virtue of their close 63-63 win in the opening game Monday night and sent them into the final against Sudbury.

The winners broke into a quick lead just as in the first game and held it throughout the first half which ended 32-28 in their favor.

Ed Leggett and Elder Sheet were top scorers for the winners with 12 and 11 points respectively while rangy Bill Harnioh was tops for Rockets with 16 points followed by Ace Wolfe with 15.

Hang 2-0 Collar on Detroit; Rocket Ties Assist Record In 7-0 Victory Over Rangers

By JIM BASTABLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — A desperate bid for survival has propelled Toronto Maple Leafs into a fifth game of the Stanley Cup semi-finals.

They dumped the tough Detroit Red Wings on their padded pants Tuesday night with a 2-0 victory that prevented Wings from enjoying the best-of-seven series in four games.

The fifth engagement is scheduled for Detroit Thursday night. The Wings still are hot favorites to wrap it up, thus getting the dubious privilege of meeting Montreal Canadiens for the Stanley Cup.

Everything was against Leafs tonight. They had to win or get clobbered for another year. They had to buck Detroit's uncanny late game bursts that beat them in the first three games. They also had to reckon with Glenn Hall, a rookie who promises to become one of Wings' greatest goaltenders.

TEAM EFFORT

Leafs beat them all. It was largest of a team production. But there was one outstanding man, astonishing 41-y-o Jim Thomson who turned back with the Wings with unbelievable stops, handling a total of 33 drives.

Rookie centre Billy Harris, who graduated from the Canadian junior champion Toronto Marlboros this season, scored the first goal at 10:58 of the second period. He picked up Earl Balfour's rebound off the two backhanders and rammed a short shot behind Hall. It was his first Stanley Cup playoff goal.

The 12,918 customers, many of whom had seen Wings edge Leafs 5-4 in overtime in the third game last Saturday, were in a frenzy sensing it was Leafs' night.

They were right. Team captain Sid Smith, 30-year-old left winger who deteriorated into a so-so forward during season and all-all star rating in 1954-55, scored the clincher at 3:15 of the third period.

GRABBED A PASS

He did it with the old Smith flair. Stepping from the Toronto bench to take a regular turn, he grabbed a pass from right winger Ron Stewart, and closed in on Hall. He forced Hall to make a move before he flipped the puck into the net.

Hall had no chance on either goal. On the first, his vision was obscured by Detroit centre Alex Delvecchio, who was parked in front of the net. He was at the mercy of Smith on the second goal. All told, Hall made 30 saves.

There was little sign of the illfeeling that showed in earlier games. Referee Frank Udvari called 11 penalties, six to Leafs. None figured in the scoring.

Lumley, 29-year-old goalkeeper, who bore the brunt of customers' criticism after a jittery performance in the third game, made dramatic stops on such Detroit stars as Gordie Howe, Ted Lindsay, Earl Reibel, Red Kelly and Metro Prystai.

"Wasn't Lumley terrific," asked Leaf general manager Hap Day after the game.

"He sure was," replied coach King Clancy.

Big Lum, however, declined comment after the game.

"I'd appreciate it if you wouldn't ask me any questions," Harry said. Reporters obliged.

Lumley's reluctance to talk apparently arises from rumors that he's in hot water with Leafs. Although there is nothing official, rumors have it that Lumley will be traded as Leafs can bring up 22-year-old Ed Chadwick from Winnipeg Warriors of the Western Hockey League. Chadwick played five outstanding games when Lumley was hurt during the regular season.

Conn Smythe, president of Maple Leaf Gardens Ltd., and former Leaf general manager, beamed broadly.

Hab-Propelled Blues 'Fini'

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens whisked New York Rangers out of the Stanley Cup playoffs Tuesday night with a whopping 7-0 shutout and a record-equalling performance by the redoubtable Maurice (Rocket) Richard.

Accustomed to electrifying hockey fans with his goal-scoring wizardry, the 34-year-old Rocket starred in a new role in the game that ended the series 4-1 in Canadiens' favor.

Richard had a hand in five of the goals, and the five assists tied a playoff record, for a single game, of 12 years' standing.

On March 23, 1944, the Rocket scored five goals—a record in itself and all his team collected—in Canadiens' 5-1 win of a playoff game over Toronto Maple Leafs. Ive Blake, now Canadiens coach assisted on every goal.

WOULD HAVE SETTLED

"If I had realized the Rocket was going to tie my record I would have quit when his team was game after the fourth assist," said Blake jokingly after the game.

In squelching the Rangers Tuesday night, Canadiens' management gathered in a trophy and plaudits. Henri (Pocket Rocket) Richard, Dickie Moore and defenceman Doug Harvey collected two each and Jean Beliveau scored one.

Harvey's goals came on power plays and marked the first time he has scored in any one series. It was his 32rd playoff game.

Coach Phil Watson tried to bring a measure of luck back to his faltering Rangers by again reshuffling his forward lines and sending Gordie Bell into the New York nets. It was Bell who had a hand in stopping Canadiens when Rangers won their only game here, a 4-2 victory last Thursday. Lorne Worsley again sat on the bench in street clothes.

HEAVY SHELLING

This time the spare goalie, rolled up for the series with Toronto Hiviers Lions of the Quebec Hockey League, was subjected to a far more effective bombardment as Canadiens' awesome display of power finally got rolling in the second period.

The 13,778 happy fans soon realized it was a night of how high the score would go.

Plante had 22 shots to handle. A good part of the 36 shots poured at Bell came from well inside the New York blue line.

Jack Evans of the Rangers was serving a penalty when Harvey drove into the only goal of the opening period, a screened shot that had Bell beaten all the way.

The goal rush got going early in the second period, and four more were whipped past Bell. Moore rammed in Henri Richard's rebound at 3:1. Three minutes later the little Rocket took his brother's rebound off the back boards, feinted Bell and flipped the puck in. Then Harvey made the big Rocket's blue-line pass and drilled another past Bell.

Beliveau counted on spectacular play by stealing the puck cleanly from Dean Prentice as the New York forward cut across his own goalmouth and snapped a bullet shot into the net.

The Pocket Rocket, teamed with his brother, counted past defenceman Ivan Irwin to score with a low 20-footer in the third period and Moore finished off the scoring, firing through a maze of legs.

Smythe said a few days ago he'd be extremely unhappy if Leafs went out in four straight, as they did against the Wings in last year's semi-final. He wanted at least one win. This is the team he expects will go places in a year or so when the rookies pick up more experience.

The victory ended a string of 13 straight victories by Wings over Leafs in NHL playoffs during the last three seasons.

Promoter's Wife Supports McCoy In Fight Probe

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Matchmaker Babe McCoy, so-called czar of boxing in southern California and a target for much of the testimony to date, found a champion today as the governor's committee resumed its investigation of the sport in the state.

McCoy, of the Olympic Auditorium, was not expected to resume his appearance on the witness stand until later this week because of poor health. But chief investigator James J. Cox summoned Willie Glusterg, another "key man" for the portly matchmaker.

McCoy's champion came from Mrs. Aileen Eaton, manager of the Olympic and wife of the promoter, Cal Eaton, for whom McCoy works.

Mrs. Eaton, in a voluntary appearance at the hearing late Tuesday, declared McCoy could not possibly have been involved in a series of alleged fixed fights, most of which were held far east of this state, in New York or Philadelphia or some other odd place."

She testified under oath after Eaton, whose son is married to Gov. Knight's daughter, pleaded that she be given a chance to refute testimony given the day before by a former heavyweight, Walton Jones.

Jones testified he had been in four "tank fights" and he involved McCoy in three of them. During the course of his testimony he observed that he had been "robbed" by both Mrs. Eaton and McCoy of purse money.

Heatedly, Mrs. Eaton denied the accusation and declared that 'by conservative estimate, Mr. Eaton and I have given Walton Jones at least $1,000 since he quit fighting."

She told the committee that only last week Jones had telephoned and told her he had been threatened with jail unless he "said some bad things about Babe McCoy."

Jones, she continued, told her two "policemen" had taken him to his job to "scare the state building" and "tried to force him to testify against McCoy."

Wolves Rip Home-Team Myth In 3-3 Stalemate With Maroons

CHATHAM (CP) — The all-Ontario senior ice hockey finals are so tight that neither team is ahead after four games. It was another nice-it-3—Tuesday night between Chatham Maroons and Sudbury Wolves.

The series was originally scheduled as a best-of-seven affair but the way the clubs have been playing, it could go well beyond seven games. One battle is tough enough to wipe out any advantage home ice offers.

Each team has one win with two ties. Maroons gave the impression that they were going to walk away with the series by winning the first game 3-1 at Sudbury. But Wolves held Maroons in check during the second game, also at Sudbury, to end up in a 3-3 tie.

Wolves paid no attention to the unwritten theory that home teams have a little advantage when they pummelled Maroons 4-1 here Monday. Fifth game is scheduled for Thursday here. A sixth engagement will take place at Sudbury Saturday, and a seventh, if necessary, will be played there Monday.

TWO-GOAL JOBS

Both teams were sparked by two-goal performances by one of their players. Jimmy Connelly fired a pair for Maroons and Maund Kaupp and Gus Mortson for Wolves. McLellan was the other Wolves' marksman while Lloyd Ferguson counted the third Chatham goal.

There were seven minor penalties and two 10-minute misconduct penalty handed out during the game. Maroons took four of the minors and the misconduct.

Wolves jumped into a 2-0 lead in the first period on goals by Kaupp and McLellan, who scored while Maroons' Al Zeiter was serving an interference penalty.

Connelly fired the only two goals of the second period to put the teams on even terms. Ferguson gave Maroons a 3-2 lead in favor of the third frame but Kaupp again deadlocked the score 23 seconds later.

In the 10-minute overtime session, Chatham coach Murph Chamberlain was ejected from the game for protesting a misconduct penalty to Maroons' Eddie Busch. That incident took place 37 seconds before the game ended.

Army Boxers Will Enter Olympic Trials

KINGSTON (CP)—Canada's 1956 Olympic hopes got a boost Tuesday with an army announcement that 90 soldiers are being groomed to belt their way into boxing trials for the summer Olympics in Australia this year.

For the first time in army history a countrywide boxing championship will be staged in Kingston April 4, 5 and 6.

The army said it hopes to produce some soldier-boxers of championship calibre in the meet. Open class winners will be concentrated for training and instruction during the definite Olympics material by the time the trials are held," the army statement said.

COME NEXT WEEK

Maroons' coach, Murph Chamberlain, from Canada's five army commands, converge on Kingston, headquarters for the athletics in the meet. Opens next week.

The Olympic hopefuls were chosen in area and command eliminations in the western, prairie, Ontario, Quebec and eastern commands.

Command entrants will receive final warm-up training at Picton, while eastern, Quebec, prairie and western finals will locate in Kingston.

The boxers will compete in nine classes by Olympic weights. They will also be separated into novice and open groups.

Eliminations are scheduled at Vimy Barracks in Kingston April 4 and 5.

After approximately 171 rounds of boxing, 18 finalists will move to the finals Friday night in the 4,000-seat Kingston community centre.

Maritime Entry Will Play in Allan Cup Series

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — City council decided Tuesday to underwrite $2,500 raised by the Citizens' Hockey Club to put Saint John Beavers on the Allan Cup trail.

A 4 to 3 vote authorizing this also included the club must agree to have its books audited to give council a clear picture of the club's finances. It owes the city $1,300 in rent on the Forum.

Beavers hope to play Chatham Maroons or Sudbury Wolves in the Canadian semi-final and are trying to get two of the games here although hockey officials have said all must be played in Ontario.

Beavers have been playing a seven-game exhibition series with Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League to keep in condition. Tuesday night, at Moncton, Boston shot six goals in the third period for a 9-4 victory.

In the Dressing Rooms

BY JIM BASTABLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—Coach Toe Blake walked around the dressing room Tuesday night and shook hands with each of his Montreal Canadiens after their 7-0 defeat of the New York Rangers—to defeat Detroit Canadiens into the Stanley Cup final.

"One more series to go," said Blake. "We played a good game tonight and Rangers didn't. You'll find it usually happens that way after two games like we played in New York Saturday and Sunday.

"One team suffers a let-down. This time it wasn't our team, and we would have beaten them to-night even if they had used Lorne (Gump) instead of Gordie Bell, in the nets."

FIRST GOALS

Defenceman Doug Harvey whose two goals were his first in 73 games of cup play said: "It's funny how things go. I didn't realize it at the time that I had scored my first playoff goals."

Managing director Frank Selke of Canadiens said he thought it just as well that Rangers were knocked out of the playoffs here in Montreal. "It would have been a shame if they had been eliminated by such a big score in New York," he said.

Mayor Jean Drapeau came into the room, entered his congratulations to all and shook hands with coach Blake. The mayor said there will be some sort of celebration for the team after the playoff final.

The Rangers dressed quickly and left their room. Coach Phil Watson said Canadiens have "a great team and it's hard to stop them, with all their scoring."

"We should have won the Saturday game in New York," said Watson. "That's the one that killed us. Our boys weren't quitting tonight. They gave it a real try. Bell wasn't to blame for the loss. I thought he played pretty well."

SET GAVILAN FIGHT

PARIS (AP) — The twice-postponed match between Kid Gavilan, former welterweight champion, Chilean, and French fighter Germinal Ballarin will be fought Thursday night in the Palais des Sports. The fight, scheduled for Feb. 21 and then for March 8, was postponed because of Gavilan's heavy cold.

William H. Cane Harness Racing Notable Dies

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—William Henry Cane, known as "Mr. Trotting" through his sponsorship of the world famous Hambletonian Stake and his work in harness racing, died Tuesday. He was 81.

The retired New York construction executive had been admitted to hospital March 13 for treatment of a heart and liver condition.

Active in sports all of his life, Cane devoted much of the last 35 years to breeding and owning harness horses, plus the operation of trotting tracks.

Cane built up the Hambletonian to become the first $100,000 harness race, with the value rising to $117,117 in 1953. Cane was president of Yonkers raceway, Good Time Park, and chairman of the board of Harmonds raceway, trotting track at Louisville, Ky.

BRED STAKES WINNERS

Cane, who was born in Jersey City April 6, 1874, bred and owned Walter Dear, who won the 1929 Hambletonian at Lexington. He also bred McLin, the 1938 favorite. The day before the race he sold him to Lawrence D. Shepard, Hanover, Pa., breeder, for $30,000 and the honor to run the Hambletonian as McLin Honover.

He bought Scotswood at Penticton Va. when they won the world hockey title for Canada last year, breaks a 1-1 tie and the American Hockey League champions coasted to victory thereafter.

Jim Bartlett matched goals with Buffalo's Sam Bettio earlier in the period. Allan Stanley, Andy Bathgate and Bruce Cline poured in the other Providence markers.

The second game will be played here Thursday night.

Ports Take Lead In Junior Series

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—St. Boniface Canadiens turned on an impressive display of power Tuesday night to score a hard-earned 4-2 decision victory over Port Arthur North Stars and send the best-of-seven Manitoba-Thunder Bay junior hockey playoffs into a sixth game.

Port Arthur Leads the series 3-2. The next game will be played here Thursday.

Bill Masterton was the big gun for St. Boniface as he fired two goals. Gerry Brisson and Ray Brunel provided the others.

For North Stars it was Stuart McNeill and Albert Whitney.

Providence Wins Over Bisons For Game Lead

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (CP)—Defenceman George McAvoy's 35-foot drive in the final minute of the opening period started Providence Reds to a 5-4 victory over Buffalo Bisons Tuesday night in the second game of their best-of-five Calder Cup semi-final.

McAvoy, captain of Penticton Va. when they won the world hockey title for Canada last year, breaks a 1-1 tie and the American Hockey League champions coasted to victory thereafter.

Jim Bartlett matched goals with Buffalo's Sam Bettio earlier in the period. Allan Stanley, Andy Bathgate and Bruce Cline poured in the other Providence markers.

The second game will be played here Thursday night.

Alberta Whips BC Totems 59-55 To Square Series

VANCOUVER (CP) — Alberta Totems Hallers Tuesday night threw up a solid zone around their key to hold back the pressing British Columbia Totems 59-55 and tie up the Olympic basketball trials before 4,225 fans.

The upset, sparked by six-foot-seven centre Ed Locher with 23 points, gives Alberta another chance at the Canadian basketball crown and the right to represent Canada at the Olympic games in Melbourne.

The teams, each with one loss and three wins, meet Wednesday night in a sudden-death final.

They raced to a thrilling finish in the fourth round of the trials here Tuesday night, Alberta leading 36-35 in the last 17 seconds and controlling the ball. Eagerness of the Totems gave Alberta four foul shots and they sank three. They led 28-20 at the half.

Besides Locher, standouts for the winners were Don MacIntosh, with 12 points, Tom Kerres, with 11 and guard Bill Price who called the signals and hit for nine points. For B.C., lanky guard John McLeod led with 13 points, followed by 6'on Blezett with 12 and centre Bob Pickel with 10.

BEAT HIM BEFORE

CLEVELAND (AP) — Ludwig Lighthorn, fifth-ranked lightweight contender, is a 2-to-1 favorite to defeat unranked L. C. Morgan in a 10-round bout here tonight in a televised bout. Lighthorn, from British Honduras, won a decision over Morgan, from Youngstown, Ohio, here last September.

Both fighters are 21 years old, both are former Golden Gloves champs.

OMHA, Toronto Hockey League Blast Rough Play, National League Control

TORINTO (CP) — The Ontario Minor Hockey Association and the Toronto Hockey League Tuesday protested the lolling style of hockey now prevalent in the National Hockey League.

The organizations also took Jack Adams, general manager of Detroit Red Wings to task for suggesting in a recent interview that amateur hockey in Canada should be controlled by the NHL.

The OMHA said in a press statement:

"We don't think the people of Canada . . . will ever submit to any change that will enable professional hockey interests to take our children and teach them the ways of professional hockey as exemplified by games like those recently published.

"Look at the reports of the recent game in Detroit between Toronto Maple Leafs and Mr. Adams' Red Wings.

"Look at the pictures of players with blood streaming from their faces and reports of being out for the balance of the season with bone broken bones and slashed faces.

"Is this the kind of leadership Mr. Adams would provide"

The Toronto league said it is then "traditional" to suggest the NHL of six teams should seek to control hockey playing of 40,000 amateur players.

"What we saw portrayed on the TV screens after the second Detroit-Maple Leaf game is certainly not our idea of the type of sportsmanship or clean play we are trying to instil into our youngsters."

SLOAN WAS HURT

Ted Sloan, high-scoring forward for Toronto, suffered a shoulder separation in Thursday's game at Detroit.

The OMHA said amateur officials should not have to submit to NHL leadership. It quoted Phil Watson, coach of New York Rangers as saying "You gotta hate your opponents."

Dick Irvin, Chicago Black Hawks coach, was said to have written in Sports Illustrated magazine: "Hockey is a game of aggression and bitterness, where there is no such thing as a friendly relationship."

The organizations said they consider ideals of 'playing the game' ahead of winning championships.

SEXAS BEATS BEDARD

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP)—Vic Seixas' United States Davis Cup-per, breezed past Bob Bedard, Canada's leading player from Sherbrooke, Que., 6-1 Tuesday as the favored Philadelphian advanced through the second round of the Caribbean lawn tennis championships.

Will Probe Figure Skating 'Fix' Charges

TORONTO (CP)—Donald Crispo, president of the Canadian Figure Skating Association, said Tuesday he is awaiting a report from the International Skating Union on judging in world skating events last Monday.

Commenting on weekend statements by Frances Dafoe and Norris Bowden, former world pairs champions, that the world events were fixed, Crispo said the CFSA asked the Swiss organization to "take steps to inquire what happened."

"We have not received a reply from the ISU as yet."

He said 20 countries are members of the Skating Union. The CFSA could only complain about judging at the events. Any censure of judges or move to ban them from international events would have to be from the international organization, in which Canada had one vote.

Miss Dafoe and Bowden were second in the world title event this year. Several European newspapers said the Canadian couple were robbed of the title by the judging.

Crispo said the CFSA executive had access only to general reports of judging at the event.

"The hope of a talent error was made in judging, or it was obvious gate crashing, a full inquiry will be made."

Ralph McCreath of Toronto, Canadian judge at the world championships, said Tuesday that reports that he had called Miss Dafoe and Bowden "cry-babies" are untrue.

"I wouldn't say that to any newspaper even if I thought they were."

McCreath said five of the nine judges had voted for the Austrian pairs entry. He placed the Dafoe-Bowden team first in the world title event.

TRY OUT LEGS

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—Outfielder Irv Noren and shortstop Billy Hunter tried out their legs Tuesday in a New York Yankee intrasquad game. Hunter, who suffered a broken left ankle last August at Denver, moved sprylyy but Noren, who underwent cartilage-removal operations on both knees in November, ran slowly.

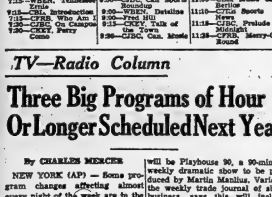
Three Big Programs of Hour Or Longer Scheduled Next Year

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — Some program changes affecting almost every night of the week are in the works for next season on CBS-TV.

Trade reports indicate that three are big programs of an hour or longer. But most are half-hour shows in film, the creations of Hollywood.



The most ambitious undertaking will be Playhouse 90, a 90-minute weekly dramatic show to be produced by Martin Manulis. Variety, the weekly trade journal of show business, says this will include eight film entries to be made by Columbia Pictures. CBS has not commented on details.

One of the hour shows will be called The Big Record, with format, time and other details a big secret. Actually the idea for this program was given a show-casing several weeks ago when Shower of Stars presented The Golden Record, a program in which stars who had sold more than a million recordings of specific items did their stuff. The public liked it—and so, apparently, does CBS.

FRIDAY BRIGHTENER

The other weekly hour program announced previously will be a Herb Shriner variety show. This may move into a Friday night spot, with the hope of giving that currently rather dead evening a shot in the arm.

Here are some of the half-hour

Borgnine Never Gave Thought To Acting Until 30 Years Old

Editor's note: This is the second of three articles on Oscar winner Ernest Borgnine.

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Except for the workings of fate, Ernest Borgnine might today be a navy pensioner, an air - conditioning worker or an electrical equipment salesman.

Instead, he's the king of Hollywood, having won Filmland's top prize, the Academy Award.

Ernie never gave a thought to acting until he was almost 30 years old. His first career was the navy. He enlisted in 1935, when the depression still made jobs scarce.

He went in the navy at 18, weighing 135 pounds. When he came out 10 years later he was exactly 100 pounds heavier.

"If I had stayed in the navy I would have gotten out on a pension a few months ago," he observes. "I might have stayed in, too, if it hadn't been for the war. By 1945, I had enough war, and water and 'yes, sir' and 'no, sir.' So I got out."

Ernie thought he would go into air conditioning, in which he had dabbled during a two-month period between navy hitches.

Largely on his mother's insistence, he tried acting. His only formal training was four months at the Randall School of Dramatic Arts in Hartford, Conn. He got his seasoning at the famed Barter Theatre in Abingdon, Va.

He toured as a hospital attendant in Harvey, did summer stock, played a small part in the film Whistle at Eaton Falls in New England and portrayed the villain Nargala in TV's Captain Video.

But there were long lapses between jobs, and Ernie almost despaired. His low point came after he had returned to New York from a Hollywood film The Mob, with Broderick Crawford.

"It was in 1951," he recalls, "I was walking down Broadway and I met a guy I had worked with in Whistle at Eaton Falls. He said he had been looking for me; that he was now in the electrical business and doing great. He offered me a job starting at $6,000."

Ernie, who had earned $2,500 from acting that year, said, "this is for me!" He stood by for the job to begin, turning down a stage offer and a TV job. But he never saw the friend again, and he had to return to acting.

His career began to improve. He did some important things in TV, then came to Hollywood to play the sadistic Fatso Judson in From Here to Eternity. Then came a stream of film heavies. Once director Nick Ray warned him: "Get out of this racket in two years or you will be typed forever."

Ernie often thought about the admonition. Two years later, almost to the day, he won the role of Marty, the tender, love-starved butcher.

74 Peewee Teams Enter Goderich Hockey Tourney

GODERICH (CP)—A record 74 entries will stretch the all-Canada pee wee hockey tourney to eight days this year in this resort town on the shores of Lake Huron.

Officials said Tuesday they were forced to start the "Young Canada Hockey Week" program on Good Friday in order to finish it April 7.

Local sportsmen launched the tourney six years ago with 12 western Ontario entries. This time there are entries from many western Ontario centres and three other provinces, Manitoba, Quebec and Newfoundland.

The Newfoundland entry is from St. John's and is coached by Lorne Wakelin, former Goderich Areas manager who helped spark the first tourney back in 1951.

The young players are being billeted in private homes, with some householders taking in an entire team for two nights.

film programs reported in the works:

A series on air power, a weekly color cartoon series, a series about helicopter pilots, one on the use of medicine in solving crimes, a Perry Mason series based on the Erle Stanley Gardner mystery stories, a cavalry series, one on scientific detection and one dealing with international crime.

All of these series will be filmed abroad and will originate in Hollywood.

Moore Romps To Easy Win Over King

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—Howard King will agree that Archie Moore is a world's champ.

The Ring heavyweight, for the second time in a month, has come it on the chin, chest and every other legal spot for 10 rounds Tuesday night in a non-title fight that hardly had Moore, the lightheavy king, sweating at the end. Archie was given a unanimous decision.

The champ, preparing for a June 15 London title defence against Yolande Pompey, weighed in at 191, three pounds heavier than King. The light heavy limit is 175.

At The Capitol

Prize-Winning "Great Adventure" to Open at Capitol Theatre on Thursday.

Many of the secrets of the vast Swedish forests and their wildlife have been dramatically caught by the camera of Arne Sucksdorff, ace Swedish director-photographer, in his first full-length picture, "The Great Adventure", which after a Cannes Festival award and highly-successful engagement in England and France, as well as in Sweden is now to be shown in Canada.

The film, sponsored by Louis de Rochemont, will open at the Capitol Theatre on Thursday for three days.

Sucksdorff, internationally known for many earlier short subjects, foremost among them the Academy Award-winning "Symphony of a City", worked on the current picture for two and one-half years, shooting 250,000 feet of film. Of this raw material he used only three percent in the finished product. Over forty-two hours of natural sound were recorded for the film.

The film treats of a farm on the edge of a forest in Central Sweden, the first half dealing with the farm's inhabitants as seen through the eyes of the animals while the latter part is devoted to two young boys, and the utter they rescue and keep as a pet all one winter. Leading roles are portrayed by Sucksdorff and his 6-year-old son Kjell, as well as by friends and neighbors of the director-photographer.

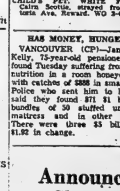
Announce New Way To Shrink Painful Piles

Science Finds Healing Substance That Does Both—Relieves Pain—Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont., (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain. Thousands have been relieved—without resort to surgery.

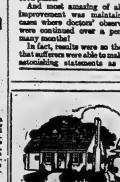
In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.



Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And this new healing substance is a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 30 years' standing.



All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®)—the discovery of a famous scientific institute. Now in Preparation H® Ointment and Suppositories. Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form, called Preparation H®. Ask for individually sealed ointment-suppositories. Or ointment alone. Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at leading stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

Two Men Killed As Car Plunges Into Showroom

AYLMER, Ont. (CP)—A car's wild plunge off a highway that sent it crashing into the showroom of a garage in eastern outskirts of this Elgin county town Wednesday night killed two men and injured two others.

All were riding in the auto.

John Wilson, 22, of Aylmer, was dead on arrival at St. Thomas General Hospital 12 miles away, while Harry Player, 26, of R.R. 2, Aylmer, died a few minutes after being admitted.

Wilson's brother, Robert, 19, and Roy Killough, 22, both of Aylmer, are in hospital with head injuries and cuts. Neither was believed in serious condition.

The westbound auto missed a curve on Highway 3 as it enters Aylmer, police said at 11 p.m. then jumped a curb, continued about 375 feet, bowled over a gasoline pump and smashed through a showroom window of the Anderson garage on Talbot street east.

The impact stopped the auto, and the wreck landed on the showroom floor. Earlier in the day the room had been emptied of other vehicles for cleaning.

Find 736 Toronto Rooming Houses Below Standards

TORONTO (CP) — A building committee inspection of a 25-city block area in east-central Toronto found 736 rooming houses below required standards, it was reported Wednesday.

F. E. Wellwood, acting commissioner of buildings, told board of control that half of 1,375 buildings inspected in an area bounded by Gerrard, Parliament, Queen and Jarvis streets, did not meet fire and sanitation requirements.

He added, however, that progress is being made in remedying the situation. Since owners were informed of by-law infractions the city had received 367 applications for permits to make repairs or changes.7 Twenty - one buildings have been vacated, 11 owners have been convicted for failing to comply, and many of the affected properties were being sold.

WILL BRING WAR

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Arab hatred will bring war to the Middle East unless the Western powers give Israel all-out support, an Anglican bishop predicted here Wednesday. He said Israel suffered from a 3½-month tour of the powder-keg states. Right Rev. George N. Luxton, Bishop of Huron said that Israel must have military strength 'equal to her Arab neighbors.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO. (CP) — Synopsis: The storm which stalled over Wisconsin Wednesday is moving slowly eastward and will be centred over the northern Georgian bay region by Friday afternoon. FIVE CHILDREN BURNED TO DEATH AT CASSELMAN

House Levelled Before Mother's Horrified Eyes

CASSELMAN, Ont. (CP) — Five young children died Wednesday when fire destroyed a farm home near this village about 35 miles southeast of Ottawa. It was the Ottawa district's 15th fatal fire since last Nov. 17.

Only one of the six children of George Medd of Casselman survived the twilight blaze that levelled their home before the horrified eyes of the 25-year-old mother.

The victims were Helen, 5, Jean-guy, 4, Claude 2 and Francois and Francoise, five-month old boy-and-girl twins.

Their death raised to 46 the number of persons killed by district fires this winter. Wednesday's was the third in which five children died.

WITH MOTHER

The surviving child, three-year-old Lorraine, told Provincial Police she was in the barn only a short distance away when the blaze broke out in the two storey frame dwelling on a county road about 15 miles east of here.

Neighbors said she saw smoke pouring from her home as she left the barn. She rushed to the house but the flames drove her back. She raised a ladder to an upstairs window but was driven back by flames.

When the volunteer fire brigade from the nearby village of St. Isidore de Prescott arrived the house was beyond to the ground.

FATHER AT WORK

The children's 25-year-old father, who was at work in a general store in St. Isidore de Prescott, was notified of the fire by phone.

Cause of the fire was unknown. The house was heated by a wood stove. Police said the bodies of the children found lying on a bedspring indicated they had been asleep upstairs.

Britain Will Withdraw Third Of Kenya Troops

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuters) — Britain announced today she is withdrawing about one-third of her military forces engaged in the war against Mau Mau terrorists in Kenya.

Lt.-Gen. Gerald Lathbury, commander-in-chief in East Africa, at a press conference "the time is not far distant when the rounding up of remaining fugitives from justice may be left largely in the hands of police."

By the end of June, he said, 2,200 of the 6,500 British and African troops fighting the terrorists would be withdrawn. This follows the withdrawal of three battalions and an air force bomber squadron last December.

Lathbury said that despite the withdrawals, "relentless pressure" will be maintained until the final surrender of the terrorists who have sought in 3½ years of jungle warfare to drive the British out of this East African colony.

The military situation, he said, had "appreciably improved." In the last seven months, nearly 1,000 terrorists have been killed, captured or had surrendered. Fewer than 1,200 Mau Mau remain at large. There now are only 13 terrorist leaders at large compared with 21 a year ago.

Three London Doctors Ask Court To Rule Fee-Splitting Ban Invalid

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Prominent counsel were to continue argument in Supreme Court today on the controversial practice of fee-splitting among members of the medical profession.

In what is believed to be the first case of its kind in western Ontario, three local doctors ask the Victoria Public Hospital's "Code of Ethics" by-law be declared invalid. It prohibits division of fees among the hospital's medical and surgical staff.

Fee-splitting is a practice where a consultant or surgeon pays part of his fees to the patient's referring physician.

The "Columbus plan" derives its name from a medical group in Columbus, Ohio, which moved to curb fee-splitting back in 1945.

Other hospital by-laws defining rules and regulations for its staff are challenged as "discriminatory" by Doctors Harold Henderson, J. H. Spence and Donald B. Ferguson.

W. B. Williston, QC of Toronto Wednesday called the "Columbus plan" by-law "a model of ethics as to what should be the doctors relationship to the hospital." He is chief counsel for the three appellant doctors.

John J. Robinette, QC of Toronto is chief counsel for Victoria's board of trustees and Dr. David Johnston, president of the medical staff.

If the hospital lost its "official accreditation" through fee-splitting, the University of Western Ontario would withdraw its medical students and use other teaching facilities, said UWO president Dr. G. E. Hall.

"We must assume," he said, "that members of the medical staff adhere to the hospital's bylaws. It is a matter of great importance to the university that we be positively interested in an issue of moral concern."

JULIEN FAMILY

This is George Julien, his wife and five surviving children who figure in conflicting reports of the rescue role played by Edward Chipman, Verdun, Que., milkman. Mr. Chipman was awarded the George Medal for entering a burning home in the Quebec Indian village of Caughnawaga in 1954 and saving three Julien children, two of whom died later. He had denied published reports that his rescue role was not substantially in accordance with the citation. (CP Photo.)

Russians Embrace Basic Idea Of 'Open Sky' Arms Inspection

LONDON (AP) — The Russians for the first time have embraced the basic idea of President Eisenhower's "open sky" arms inspection system, an American source said Wednesday night.

But the Soviet proposal was described as qualified and incomplete.

It was brought before the five-nation disarmament conference meeting here under United Nations auspices, and discussed for a half-hour and 15-minute session today.

Despite the qualifications, diplomatic sources said they thought the Russians had advanced closer to the Western position on the inspection problem than ever before. They said the plan had a gen-uine ring and represented some-thing more than a mere propaganda move.

Details of the Russian plan have not yet been announced. The American informant said, however, that it switched the emphasis from nuclear to conventional weapons.

Under the Eisenhower proposal the major powers would give each other the right to conduct aerial inspections to satisfy itself that there was no breaking disarmament promises or massing for a sneak attack.

During Wednesday's conference session—the longest during the current series of London meetings—the Canadian, British, American and French delegations brought a more detailed definition of the Soviet plan.

Philadelphia Granary Blast Cuts 10-Block Swath, 3 Dead

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A devastating explosion reduced a four-story granary to flaming rubble Wednesday night and cut a 10-block swath of damage through Philadelphia's busy midtown section.

The earth-rocking blast left at least three missing and feared dead, with four on the critical list. Scores of others—some of them lacerated by shapers headed home—were treated for injuries of varying degree.

Not until the cold morning air cleared away the pall of black smoke was the extent of the destruction fully revealed. As far as the eye could see there were broken windows, smashed automobiles and scattered debris.

The scene of the explosion was at 30th and Market streets, two blocks west of the Schuylkill river which separates the downtown portion of the city from west Philadelphia.

Across the street from the blasted building—the milling plant of the Tidewater Mill and Elevator Co.—the new Philadelphia Bulletin newspaper plant took the fury of the blast.

Window glass reduced to glass powder, ceilings fell, partitions were hammered out of shape and office furniture was overturned.

The force of the blast tore down communications lines on Market street, blasted away electric signs on nearby buildings and showered the area with fragments of metal and wood.

The explosion was felt 25 miles away. The city hall switchboard said an estimated 25,000 telephone calls were received in a four-hour period.

Workmen in the demolished plant's warehouse said they were alive "by a miracle." An employee of a nearby business place said "it seemed as if a train roared at us and then burst with hellish fury."

There was an instant of brutal shock, then long moments of horror and tension. Firemen and police searching the red-hot debris for dead and injured worked under strain, well aware of the chance that another blast might occur.

The explosion was blamed by the milling company's night superintendent on collected dust.

Thomas Purdy said he was attempting to light a pilot light in a drying unit when the blast was touched off. The building collapsed almost immediately, and burst into soaring flames.

Purdy and three of four other employees of the milling firm escaped with injuries. Two of four drivers for a grain-hauling concern were listed as missing.

James Pierce, who was in the granary's front office when the blast came, was driven listed as missing, said he emerged from the blast alive "by the sheer accident of fate."

"There was a sudden flash, and it was blown under the desk. It sounded like two locomotives striking each other. The blast blew my shoes off. Only the desk saved me. I escaped through the window, leaving to the other guys. But there was no answer. It was pitch black. I was scared. I got the hell out of there."

There was an explosion such as the city had never experienced before. Pedestrians 10 blocks from the blasted area were bowled over.

Scarcely a building within a 16-block radius escaped damage.

National China observes the anniversary as a holiday.

PEARSON SEEKS STALEMATE END IN INDOCHINA

Canada Is Pushing For Talks on Elections

WASHINGTON (AP)—Canada is seeking to push the Indochina stalemate off deal centre far enough to hold talks about unify-ing elections—if not the elections themselves.

External Affairs Minister Pearson is understood to be doing most of the pushing. He dined here Wednesday night with State Secretary Dulles and then arranged to confer in New York Friday with India's V. K. Krishna Menon.

Canada and India are members of the international truce commission in Indochina. Communist Poland is the third member.

As things now stand, the biggest Indochina stake is Viet Nam, is divided between the Communists in the north and the West-backed government of Premier Ngo Dinh Diem in the south.

GROWN IN STRENGTH

Diem's strength has grown from rebel-haddered shakiness to strength which routed its peak with election this month of a controversially one-man rubber stamp assembly packed with his supporters hold most of the seats. It is expected to draw up a new constitution giving Diem much power.

Diem is strongly opposed to holding unification elections this year. Under the Indochina truce of 1954, such elections were to be held in July of this year to permit all the people of Viet Nam to vote on whether they would be Communists or Diem's government to rule the whole country.

Diem argues that his government is not bound by the 1954 truce since South Viet Nam did not sign it. The French, who formerly controlled Indochina, did.

Canada's interest springs from its reluctance to be drawn into a new shooting war in Indochina.

The United States and South Viet Nam have also accused the Communists of violating truce restrictions on arms and military forces, but the Canadians are understood to feel that their efforts have been useful in preventing border skirmishes.

Shepherd Killed Tending Flocks In Gaza Strip

JERUSALEM (Reuters) — An Egyptian shepherd was killed and another hurt on the Gaza border Wednesday after the shepherds crossed into Israel in the Gaza Israel side of the border, an Israeli military spokesman said today.

The spokesman said the shepherds crossed the boundary to Israeli settlements. Israeli patrols intercepted them and, when they ran army positions across the border opened machine-gun fire, the spokesman said. He said during a exchange of shots, the spokesman said.

Eskimos in Canadian Arctic Find Radar Good Substitute for Caribou

By DAVE McINTOSH

ON THE DEW LINE (CP) — There now are some 200 Eskimos working on the DEW (Distant Early Warning) radar line in Canada's Arctic, 60 of them at Fro-bisher bay on Baffin island.

They are paid the same wages as white men doing the same work, which means they can make between $4,165 and $5,000 a year for driving tractors, loading and unloading aircraft and the like.

This kind of money for men who formerly eked out an existence by hunting and trapping has brought big changes in their lives but not as big as those the white man's ways have.

Many government plans to make Frobisher an Eskimo centre for education, vocational training, recreation and medical care for the north have yet to be carried out.

Officials said it is fortunate from the standpoint of the Eskimos that the DEW line is being built. It is providing employment for Eskimos who have been left stranded by the growing scarcity of game. In the Keewatin district, for instance, the number of caribou has decreased from 600,000 to 300,000 in the last six years.

Algerian Fighting Gains In Ferocity; Death Toll Under 160

200,000 French Troops Considerably Reinforced

ALGIERS (AP) — Fighting in Algeria between French troops and nationalist rebels appeared to be gaining in ferocity today, with unofficial estimates of the dead in the last 24 hours reaching as high as 160.

At the same time the French were reinforcing the more than 200,000 troops now scattered over the vast North African territory.

The estimated number of dead included an officer and seven soldiers killed in an ambush near Guelma, between Constantine and the Tunisian frontier. At least 10 civilians, French and Moslem, were reported killed by the rebels. Some 140 rebels were said to have been killed in a series of engagements.

In the two protectorates of French North Africa, events were more neatly in hand. Habib Bourguiba, top nationalist leader in Tunisia, said in a radio interview that armed Tunisians would cooperate with the French in suppressing rebels in the southern part of the country.

In Morocco a leaflet signed by the "Army of Liberation" announced the "provisional cessation of hostilities" against the French, it was not entirely clear to what extent they could control all guerrillas rebelling against the authority of the French and of Sultan Mohammed Ben Youssef, who is negotiating with France.

Many Flights Cancelled Due To Bad Weather

TORONTO (CP)—Trans-Canada Air Lines today said all flights both into and out of Toronto's Malton airport were cancelled this morning because of fog.

"Operations this afternoon appear to be normal," it said, "although weather may affect some routes this evening."

The Ontario department of highways said snow is falling in eastern Lake Ontario and Ottawa regions and highways there are snow surfaced. Other southern Ontario highways were generally bare with occasional slush patches.

In northern Ontario roads were bare but the Blind River area and Highway 11 from Mattice to Longlac 24 is snow surfaced with slush sections.

Day of Prayer For Deliverance Held by Negroes

NEW YORK (AP)—A number of communities across the United States took part Wednesday in a "national deliverance day of prayer" in support of Negroes boycotting the bus lines of Montgomery, Ala.

The day of prayer, by Negroes and white sympathizers, was organized by Representative Adam Clayton Powell, Democratic congressman from New York, and by clergymen in local areas scattered throughout the country.

A crowd of 5,000 turned out in New York City to hear Powell suggest that clergymen hold their own conference on racial issues if President Eisenhower does not call one. Powell's organization suggested "massive passive resistance" led by clergy "to be used only when absolutely necessary" in combatting racial bias.

In Hartford, Roman Catholic Archbishop Henry J. O'Brien told a prayer day meeting:

"It must be remembered that the causes of racial tensions and conflicts are to be found within all men, and no one group of people or section of the country is solely guilty or guiltless."

Two Men Killed As Car Plunges Into Showroom

AYLMER, Ont. (CP)—A car's wild plunge off a highway that sent it crashing into the showroom of a garage on the eastern outskirts of this Elgin county town Wednesday night killed two men and injured two others.

All were riding in the auto.

John Wilson, 22, of Aylmer, was dead on arrival at St. Thomas General Hospital 12 miles away, while Harry Player, 26, of RR 5, Aylmer, died a few minutes after being admitted.

Wilson's brother, Robert, 19, and Roy Killough, 22, both of Aylmer, are in hospital with head injuries and cuts. Neither was believed in serious condition.

The westbound auto missed a curve on Highway 3 as it enters Aylmer. Police said it then jumped a curb, continued about 215 feet, bowled over a gasoline pump and smashed through a showroom window of the Anderson garage on Talbot street east.

The impact stopped the auto, and the wreck landed on the showroom floor. Earlier in the day the room had been emptied of other vehicles for cleaning.

PROGRESO, Mexico (AP) — Port officials said today all the passengers and crew aboard the Mexican motor vessel Matul had been rescued. The ship burned and sank in the Gulf of Campeche Wednesday night.

Joselin Heredia Cobas, a port authority official, said 21 passengers and a crew of 14 were rescued by a Mexican coastguard boat Virgilio Uribe and an amphibian plane.

They were taken to Campeche on the west coast of the Yucatan peninsula. Among them was the Matul's captain, Ignacio Ferreira.

The 300-ton Matul sank late Wednesday about 80 miles north-northwest of Campeche following a fire that started with an engine room explosion.

The Matul left Campeche at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday for Vera Cruz. The fire broke out about 9 a. m. Wednesday.

Distress calls sent out during the day were picked up by the Virgilio Uribe on patrol duty. The Mexican coast guard vessel sped to the scene and also asked help of an amphibian plane.

Earlier reports were erroneous a report that a U. S. patrol bomber had crashed while looking for survivors.

A report from New Orleans said that a Mexican patrol bomber had crashed while on a search for survivors.

Britain Will Withdraw Third Of Kenya Troops

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuters) — Britain announced today she is withdrawing about one-third of her military forces engaged in the war against Mau Mau terrorists in Kenya.

Lt.-Gen. Gerald Lathbury, commander-in-chief of the East African forces conference "the time is not far distant when the rounding up of remaining fugitives from nature may be left largely in the hands of police."

By the end of June, he said, 2,200 of the 6,500 British and African troops fighting Mau Mau guerrillas would be withdrawn. This follows withdrawals of three battalions and an air force bomber squadron last December.

Lathbury said that despite the withdrawals, "relentless pressure" will be maintained until the final surrender of the terrorists who have sought in 3½ years of jungle warfare to drive the British out of this East African colony.

The military situation, he said, had "appreciably improved." In the last seven months, nearly 1,500 terrorists have been killed, captured or had surrendered. Fewer than 1,500 Mau Mau remain at large. There now are only 13 terrorist leaders at large compared with 31 a year ago.

Find 736 Toronto Rooming Houses Below Standards

TORONTO (CP) — A building commission inspection of a 25-block area in east-central Toronto found 736 rooming houses below required standards, it was reported Wednesday.

F. E. Swallwood, acting commissioner of buildings, told board of control the half of 1,375 buildings inspected in an area bounded by Gerrard, Parliament, Queen and Jarvis streets, did not meet fire and sanitation requirements.

He added, however, that progress is being made in remedying the situation. Since owners were informed of by-law infractions the city had received 367 applications for permits to make required changes. Twenty-one buildings have been vacated, 11 owners have been convicted for failing to comply, and many of the affected properties were being sold.

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Arab hatred will bring war in the Middle East unless the Western powers give them almost support, an Anglican bishop predicted here Wednesday. FIVE CHILDREN BURNED TO DEATH AT CASSELMAN

House Levelled Before Mother's Horrified Eyes

CASSELMAN, Ont. (CP) — Five young children died Wednesday when fire destroyed a farm home near this village about 35 miles southeast of Ottawa. It was the Ottawa district's 15th fatal fire since last Nov. 17.

Only one of the six children of Mr. and Mrs. Adelie Quesnel survived the twilight blaze that levelled their home before the horrified eyes of the 25-year-old mother.

The victims were Helen, 5, Jeanguy, 4, Claude 2 and Francois and Francoise, five-month old boy-and-girl twins.

Their death raised to 46 the number of persons killed by district fires this winter. Wednesday's was the third in which five children died.

WITH MOTHER

The surviving child, three-year-old Lorraine, was with his mother who police said, was in the barn only a short distance away when the blaze broke out in the two-storey frame dwelling on a country road 15 miles east of here.

Neighbors said she saw smoke pouring from her home as she left the barn. She rushed to the house but was driven back by the heat and smoke.

Two men from a neighboring home rushed to the scene. They raised a ladder to an upstairs bedroom window but were driven back by flames.

Among the volunteer fire brigade from the nearby village of St. Isidore de Prescott arrived the house was burned to the ground.

FATHER AT WORK

The children's 25-year-old father, who was at work in a general store in St. Isidore de Prescott, was notified of the fire by phone.

Cause of the fire was unknown. The house was heated by a wood stove. Police said the parents left children found lying on a bedspring indicated they had been asleep upstairs.

JULIEN FAMILY

This is George Julien, his wife and five surviving children who figure in conflicting reports of the rescue role played by Edward Chipman, Verdun, Que., milkman. Mr. Chipman was awarded the George Medal for entering a burning home in the Quebec Indian village of Caughnawaga in 1954 and saving three Julien children, one of whom died later. He has denied published reports that his rescue role was not substantially in accordance with the citation. (CP Photo.)

Russians Embrace Basic Idea Of 'Open Sky' Arms Inspection

LONDON (AP) — The Russians for the first time have embraced the basic idea of President Eisenhower's "open sky" arms inspection system, an American source said Wednesday night.

But the Soviet proposal was described as qualified and incomplete.

It was brought before the five-nation disarmament conference meeting here under United Nations auspices, and discussed at a two-hour and 15-minute session today.

Despite the qualifications, diplomatic sources said they thought the Russians had advanced closer to the Western position on the inspection problem than ever before. They said the plan had a gen-uine ring and represented some-thing more than a mere propaganda move.

Details of the Russian plan have not yet been announced. The American informant said, however, that it switched the emphasis from nuclear to conventional weapons.

Under the Eisenhower proposal the major powers would give each other the right to conduct aerial inspections to satisfy itself that no rival was breaking disarmament promises or massing for a sneak attack.

During Wednesday's confer-ence session—the longest during the current series of London meetings—the Canadian, British, American and French delegations presented a more detailed definition of the Soviet plan.

Philadelphia Granary Blast Cuts 10-Block Swath, 3 Dead

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A devastating explosion reduced a four-storey granary to flaming rubble Wednesday night and cut a 10-block swath of damage through Philadelphia's busy midtown section.

The earth-rocking blast left at least three missing and claimed dead, with four on the critical list. Scores of others—some of them unwitting shoppers headed home—were treated for injuries of varying degree.

Mud until the cold morning air cleared away the pall of black smoke was the extent of the destruction fully revealed. As far as the eye could see there were broken windows, smashed automobiles and scattered debris.

The scene of the explosion was at 20th and Market streets, two blocks west of the Schuylkill river which separates the downtown portion of the city from west Philadelphia.

Across the street from the blasted building—the milling plant of the Tidewater Mill and Elevator Co.—the new Philadelphia Bulletin Monastery Tower bore the full fury of the blast.

Window panels reduced to glass powder, ceiling fell, partitions were hammered out of shape and office furniture was overturned.

The force of the blast tore down communications lines. A nearby street, blasted away electric signs on nearby buildings and showered the area with fragments of metal and wood.

Purdy and three of four other employees of the milling firm escaped with injuries. Two of four drivers for a grain-hauling concern also were listed as missing.

"There was a sudden flash, and I was blown under the desk. It sounded like two locomotives striking each other. The blast blew my shoes off. Only the desk saved me," he said in describing debris collecting to the other guys. But there was no answer. It was pitch black. I was scared. I got the hell out of there."

There was an explosion such as the city had never experienced before. Pedestrians 10 blocks from the blast area were bowled over.

Scorecely a building within a 10-block radius escaped damage.

PEARSON SEEKS STALEMATE END IN INDOCHINA

Canada Is Pushing For Talks on Elections

External Affairs Minister Pearson is understood to be doing most of the pushing. He dined here Wednesday night with State Secretary Dulles and arranged to confer in New York Friday with India's V. K. Krishna Menon.

Canada and India are members of the international truce commission in Indochina. Communist Poland is the third member.

Canada's interest springs from its reluctance to be frozen into a long stay in Indochina.

The United States and South Viet Nam have often accused the Communists of violating truce restrictions on Army and civilian forces, but the Canadians are understood to feel that their efforts have been useful in preventing border skirmishes.

Eskimos in Canadian Arctic Find Radar Good Substitute for Caribou

By DAVE McINTOSH

ON THE DEW LINE (CP)—There now are some 200 Eskimos working on the Dew line (Distant Early Warning) radar line in Canada's Arctic, 40 of them at Frobisher bay on Baffin island.

They are paid the same wages as white men similar work, which means they can make between $1.65 and $2.65 an hour for driving tractors, loading and unloading aircraft and other jobs.

Their kind of money for men who formerly eked out an existence by hunting and trapping has brought big changes in their lives but not all of them think change is good.

R. D. Van Norman, 28, of Edmonton, northern services officer at the Frobisher bay base, says the Eskimos have opened savings accounts with the Hudson's Bay Company. They send money home and buy good clothes. Many are saving to buy motorboats and other fishing gear.

Van Norman—he is known throughout the eastern Arctic as Van—says there has not been a single instance of drunkenness among Eskimos at the Frobisher base. Alcohol is not available and permits to drink in the canteens—the ration is four pints a day—not one Eskimo has applied for one.

"I guess they've seen what beer can do to the white man," says Van-noon to the northern affairs department from the RCMP, Van has been there eight years in the North and speaks Eskimo fluently.

Northern affairs officials say this is remarkable the way the white men working on the DEW line have taken an interest in the Eskimos. It is not unusual for Eskimos and whites to work together in construction tents.

Now the government service officers working in the Arctic or sub-Arctic, says the Eskimos are "just like you and me, white man's ways."

The government plans to make Frobisher an Eskimo centre for education, vocational training, recreation and medical care. It will be five or six years before the job is completed.

Officials said it is fortunate from the standpoint of the Eskimos that the DEW line is being built. It is providing employment for Eskimos who have been left stranded by the growing scarcity of game. In the Keewatin district, for instance, the number of caribou has decreased from 600,000 to 200,000 in the last six years.

Three London Doctors Ask Court To Rule Fee-Splitting Ban Invalid

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Prominent counsel were to continue argument in Supreme Court today on the controversial practice of fee-splitting among the medical profession.

In what is believed to be the first case of its kind in western Ontario, three local doctors ask the Victoria Public Hospital's "Conditions of Practice" by-law be declared invalid. It prohibits division of fees among the hospital's medical and surgical staff.

Fee-splitting is a practice where a consultant or surgeon pays part of his fees to the patient's referring physician.

The "Columbus plan" derives its name from a medical group in Columbus, Ohio, which moved to curb fee-splitting back in 1945.

Other hospital by-laws defining rules and regulations for its staff are challenged as "discriminatory" by Doctors Harold Henderson, J. H. Spence and Donald B. Ferguson.

W. B. Williston, QC of Toronto Wednesday called the "Columbus plan" an attempt to force a code of ethics as to what should be done by doctors outside the hospital." He is chief counsel for the three appellant doctors.

John J. Robinette, QC of Toronto is chief counsel for Victoria's hospital board. Dr. David A. Johnston, president of the medical staff.

If the hospital lost its "official accreditation" through fee-splitting, the University of Western Ontario would withdraw its medical students and use other teaching facilities, said UWO president Dr. G. E. Hall.

"We must assume," he said, "that members of the medical staff adhere to the hospital's by-laws. It is a matter of great importance to the university that we be temporarily interested in an issue of moral concern."

New Brick-Making Company Now Manufacturing in City

A new industry of particular interest to construction and prospective builders, commenced operation in Belleville this week.

It is the Belleville Brick Company Ltd., 88 Cannifton Road, manufacturers of concrete brick. Production will be geared to supplying the brick requirements in the Bay of Quinte district.

The firm manufactures concrete brick in both eight and double-length 16-inch sizes and in ten different colors. The company is a three-way partnership with members being all Belleville men: Pat F. Halloran, Ed Branton and Angus McFee.

Site of the new brick plant, which has a present potential of close to 25,000 brick per eight-hour day, is the former Halloran Garage on Cannifton Road. Two Dunbrick machines have been installed, each with a capacity of about 13,000 eight-inch bricks per day; a German make mixer has been installed, and a steam brick kiln has been constructed.

Re-vamping of the building has been going on since the new year with actual brick making commencing this week.

Use of concrete brick has made tremendous advances in the post-war years, according to McFee, one of the firm's three partners. Previously such brick has been supplied from Peterborough. There are two reasons for the popularity of concrete brick. One is less cost and the other greater strength as compared with the ordinary clay brick.

They can be had in any one of ten different colors with red and yellow being the most popular for residential construction.

From a hrief visit to the new brick manufacturing plant yesterday it was learned that production line methods have done much to speed up the age old art of brick making. The actual forming of the bricks is done automatically on a special brick-making machine. The bricks are then allowed to set in a steam kiln for 12 hours and then are open air cured for another 10 or 12 days before delivery.

Cost of the brick is determined by the size (regular or double length), color, and whether or not they are dedusted, and how far.

Screened, water washed sand is trucked from Brighton. The materials are placed in a skip hoist and elevated to the mixer when they are mixed dry before the proper amount of water is sprayed in.

From the mixer the concrete batch is fed to the brick machines, the individual bricks being formed on special pallets set on an endless belt. One operator sets empty pallets in at one end and at the other end the pallets, each holding three moist bricks, are lifted off and set on racks.

An electrically operated hoist truck is used to move the racks of bricks to the kiln where they remain for 12 hours.

The present capacity of 20,000 bricks, is now in operation, while another is expected to be added shortly as production demands.

The firm is presently employing 12 men but as the summer draws near, the more production the payroll is expected to increase to about 24, if double shift operations is required.

Kinsmen Show Will Feature Carlo the Magician

Magirama of 1956, America's top magic show featuring Carlo the magician and a big cast of magic people has been booked by the Kinsmen Club for a one night engagement at the Collegiate Auditorium on April 4th. Hundreds of people who seldom enter the theatre for entertainment never miss a magician, while at the same time practically every theatre produces never missed a magician either. Accordingly, that means that there is universal popularity to the art of magic, an art that is very, very old and during the past century has been practiced in America by such masters as Houdini, Thurston, Kellar and others. Magirama has earned the title of "the wonder show of the century" features Carlo, who is really one of the masters of the art. His show is one for the entire family and is as pleasing for the older folks as it is for the children. The performance bubbles over with new and sensational illusions and startling feats following so swiftly one after the other that it leave the audience gasping. Several of the illusions performed by Carlo are new versions of "floating a beautiful girl high above the head of the audience", "saving a woman in half", "pluckling real live gold fish out of the air and a breath - taking mind mystery". These are only a few of the illusions that will really goose-pimple the audience. All in all Carlo will perform over twenty illusions during the show. Be sure to bring grandma, she will enjoy it the same as the children. Tickets proceeds from the show will be used by the Kinsmen Club in their sight conservation and hearing projects. Tickets are on sale now and may be purchased from Ed Thomas', Bill Curtis', Lewis Wilson's and Penglis' Fish and Chips stores. A limited number of children's tickets is available at these stores for free.

MIAMI, Okla. (AP)—W. H. Darnell of Miami used a service station owner for $20,089 for injuries he said he received when he stepped from his car and landed on his head. Darnell said he did not know the car had been elevated on a grease rack.

Dr. W. S. Turner, Former Principal Of BCI, Becomes District Inspector

Dr. William S. Turner, former principal of the Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School and for the past 11 years at Brantford, will become resident high school inspector for the Belleville district, it has been announced.

Dr. Turner this week tendered his resignation as superintendent of education for Brantford public and high school to join the inspection staff of the department of education.

Coming to Belleville as high school teacher in 1941, Dr. Turner taught for one year and then was named principal on the retirement of the late P. C. Macllaurin. He remained as principal for three years and went to Brantford in 1945 as principal of the collegiate there.

Mr. Turner was well liked in Belleville both as high school principal and as a citizen, taking an active part in community work.

He will assume his new duties as resident high school inspector for the Bay of Quinte district in September of this year. The district includes the counties of Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington, Northumberland and Durham, Peterborough, Victoria and Haliburton. He will take over the residence in Belleville and have his office here.

Present policy of the Department of Education has been for high school inspectors to come in from Toronto with as many as four inspectors arriving for a three-day visit. In addition each visits in to Belleville in high schools might be made as the need arose.

RCEME 27 Squadron Holds Driving Rodeo

Sunday morning, saw members of the 27 Technical Squadron, RCEME, Base Borden train hard to compete in the unit vehicle driving rodeo. Competitions were held in the circle of the old parade, 3 ton stake trucks, and the wreckers. The course was laid out with obstacles and barriers and members of the unit in turn put their driving skills to the necessary manoeuvres while being timed by officials in charge. The occasional barricade was toppled by an over anxious driver but in most cases the efforts by the men were most commendable.

The winning crew of the competition were, Craftsmen Corsline, Hayward, Lake and Tugnette. These men will compete with the winners of other units of 13 Militia Group in the group competitions to be held at Mountain View in April. Good luck boys!

Following in the footsteps of the winning crew, members of the vehicle troop under Lt. R. J. Willcocks and W/@ I. K. Smith went on a convoy drive to Actinolite. The return trip to Belleville was by way of back roads, which in many cases were hazardous due to the snow, ice and mud conditions. The trip was made without mishap, however, which gives further credit to the members of the "Wheels" troop.

While the convoy drive was on the 27th Troop and the Headquarters Troop made the best of the afternoon installing additional lighting and servicing cars caught up on administration work.

The orderly room and shops of the Squadron will be open on the public on the Victoria Day Fair, April 4, 5 and 6. The public is invited to take the opportunity to vie withe training facilities of the squadron and signs will be posted at location in the east end of the armouries.

Fifty Curlers Of Quinte Club Enjoy Evening

What a wonderful night! Fifty prospective, would-be, and curlers of long standing, journeyed to Consecon on Wednesday evening to enjoy the hospitality of the Kingston Curling Club and introduce a number to the art of curling. The trip was arranged by the energetic president of the Quinte Curling Club, William Carnahan and his committee with Bruce Matthews, president of the Kingston body, and Brodie Hess, former president of the Ontario Curling Association.

The trip was made in the commodious bus of the Rawson Bus Lines and the good-natured banter that ensued up and down the aisle brought back many memories of the older curlers of trips made in the past years and which again will become a reality when the new Curling rink is opened for use this sixty next fall. Upon arrival at Kingston, they were met by the officials of the Kingston Club and told the club was ready for the evening's fun. Fun it was, home and among friends on ice and in the curling rink.

After curling togs were donned the newest curlers were taken in tow by the older curlers and instruction continued for nearly an hour. The prospectives were taught how to stand in the hack, how to hold the broom without losing it to the ice and made acquainted with the turns used to give the stones in the curl the proper speed down the ice, which incidentally was in perfect condition. The committee then arranged pick-up rinks with the experienced curlers mixed with the new and eight-ends games were played.

ENJOYED THE GAMES

It was surprising the progress that was made in the short period of instruction and the curlers enjoyed to the utmost the recreation and relaxation curling affords. The games did not count and though they were kept to show the new members how to score, no count and procedure is carried out.

At the conclusion of the games a surprise was awaiting the visitors. Ushered to the upper floor of the clubhouse a delightful buffet luncheon was spread before the visitors, the compliments of the host club.

Ample justice was done to the good things provided, after which Bruce Matthews, as president of the Kingston club, officially welcomed the visitors and hoped with the opening of the new rink in Belleville many more of the two clubs would be more frequent. "It is a great pleasure to welcome you here tonight and I hope we do hope you have had an enjoyable time," the speaker said.

Bill Gault, the president of the Quinte Club, thanked the Kingston Club for their hospitality and stated the members would be glad to contribute more of their time and ability before the Belleville rink is opened and they are looking to the Kingston Club to help us over the rough spots in forming our rink and I know the information will be gladly given," said Mr. Gault.

A social half hour was passed and the homeward journey was made with everyone singing the praise of the Kingston club and eagerly looking forward to the opening of the Belleville rink. The scores and players follow.

Refining oils led industrials upward while most of the traded banks and papers scored gains. Gains were small, ranging to $1 by Price Brothers, Bank of Nova Scotia added $1 points at a year's high of $67, Powell River also firmed 87 cents.

Among the coppers, Lake Dufault, at $2, lost 40 cents of Wednesday's close. Steels Dovan dipped 17 cents at $2.18, Opemiska continued strong with a 75-cent advance to $14.

Uraniums showed little change. Pacific Peto gained 10 cents at $17.50 to lead western oils forward. Peace River advanced 45 cents at $9.70. Great Plains slipped a point at $44.

Weekly Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP) — Cattle prices were uneven, calves were uneven, and hogs were steady on the Toronto livestock market this week. Sheep and lambs were higher.

Receipts at Lake Shore were 1,700 head less than last week and about 1,100 less than the same week in 1955. Receipts from western Canada were 903 head as compared with 306 head last week. In addition to western cattle, stock calves totalled 120 head. Shipments to eastern Canadian slaughterers were about half of last week at 12 loads. There were no exports to the U.S.

Sharply lower receipts plus improved quality were the reasons for price gains and the active trading. Top grades of steers sold fully 50 cents a hundredweight higher with the lower grades clearing at fully steady rates. Good heifers were steady with the in-between kind gaining 25 cents a hundredweight.

Fed yearlings offered were fewer resulting in this class holding steady for the first time in three weeks. Cows lost 50 cents a hundredweight in response to good demand. About 100 head of cattle will be unsold at the close, mostly stockers.

Prices

Choice Steers $18-18.75, some sales to an extreme top of $19; good steers $17-18; mediums $15-17; commons $12-15; good heifers $15-15.50; few choice offered selling at $16 a hundredweight, mediums $13.50-14.50; commons $12-13.50; booner steers and heifers $8-12; choice fed yearlings sold $18-18.50; good fed yearlings $17-18; mediums $15-17; good cows sold $12-12.50, some good light heifery cows selling up to $13.

Canner and cutter cows sold down to $7; good heavy bologna bulls were $13-14; some sales $14.25; common and medium light bulls sold down to $9.

Replacement Cattle: Demand for this class continued to improve with stockers selling 50 cents a hundredweight higher; good stockers were $16.50-17.50, some lots to $17.75; stock calves sold in the same price range; medium stockers were $14-16; commons $12-14.

Veal Calves demand was erratic, resulting in wide price fluctuations. Price losses were as much as $2, a hundredweight through the week; light closing receipts strengthened this class in within 50 cents a hundredweight of last week's level. Good vealers were $25-27 choice selling to $28.50; mediums $17-23; commons $12-17; grass calves sold for slaughter were $9-12.

Hog prices were unchanged with grade A selling at $23.50 a hundredweight; sows were $18 a hundredweight dressed and stags were $13 a hundredweight dressed. Sheep and lambs were higher.

Included two double decks of western lambs. Lamb prices were $2 cents a hundredweight higher with the two western feeder lambs selling at $22.50 a hundredweight; spring lambs sold at $35-40, a hundredweight according to weight and quality; medium native lambs sold at $16-20 a hundredweight; good sheep sold up to $10 a hundredweight with cull sheep selling down to $4.

Many Canadians To Spend Easter In New York

TORONTO. — "New York at Easter" are magic words for hundreds of Torontonians who will head that way on Thursday evening on Canadian National trains. Other cities across the border—Washington, Detroit and Chicago—are also popular spots this year for Easter weekend visits.

"Despite an early Easter," said Allan Griffin, CNR general passenger agent, "advance reservations for sleeping and parlor car space indicate travel will be up to expected levels. All regular trains will have extra equipment and a number of extra sections will be operated on Thursday to handle the rush."

Tour groups totalling 600 people will be boarding CNR trains on Thursday night for New York, and 200 Torontonians will spend the long weekend in Washington. Railway-sponsored package tours will take 125 people to Detroit and 60 to Chicago.

This side of the border, Montreal is the popular spot. The fast afternoon train on Thursday will leave in three sections—two to Montreal and one to Ottawa. The overnight Maple Leaf will have seven sleeping cars added to its regular consist.

NICOSIA, Cyprus (Reuters) — British authorities today cancelled a £1,500 fine imposed on Frenaros village for the terrorist killing of two British soldiers there.

No reason was given for the cancellation, but it was generally believed the villagers had given authorities information on the terrorists.

School Is Out, Students Start Easter Vacation

School is out!

Easter vacation for approximately 8,500 elementary and secondary school students in the city's public and separate schools began this afternoon.

Easter examinations completed, in some cases marked and returned, are over. Books will be stowed away. Until Monday, April 9th, it is holiday time for students.

For many of the teachers, however, the Easter vacation merely brings a change of venue in their round of professional duties.

The annual meeting of the Ontario Education Association, is being held, as usual, in Toronto next week and 10 BCIVS teachers, seven from Quinte Secondary School and 10 from the public schools will attend the meeting.

Easter vacation is also spring cleaning time at all the schools. Special project this year will be the painting of Queen Alexandra School on Dundas St. E.

When classes are called April 9th, seven new Quinte School will be filled with live wires.

Industrial Plan Is Arranged

A comprehensive program for the Lake Ontario Development Association last night was drawn up at the organization's annual directors' meeting in Peterborough.

Much of the work scheduled will involve the association's manager, Don Kingdon, and its committees in promotional activities and a meticulous survey of the area's industrial facilities available in the various participating municipalities.

The association intends publishing its first industrial survey map which will detail the features of the area to serve as a potential industrial district for industrial settlement.

The association also will investigate the production of industrial buildings for new industry and will assist local participating municipalities in reiting up corporations to finance buildings for industry.

Information on all municipalities in the association will also be set up.

Brazilian Again Flies to U.S. In Wheel Rocket

NEW YORK (AP) — Wanderley da Cunha Camargo, the barefoot boy from Brazil, was back again.

For the second time in two months Wanderley travelled to the United States in the cramping and cramped nosewheel compartment of an international airliner.

Police found him Wednesday, cold, hungry and barefoot, wandering near a fence at Idlewild airport.

Wanderley was deported to Brazil last Feb. 15 after he flew 5,182 miles from San Paulo crouched in the nose wheel compartment of a Pan American World Airways airliner.

This time the slim, 20-year-old Brazilian stowaway decided to try a British airliner, a BOAC de Havilland Comet, for the trip to Rio de Janeiro.

And again the wonder was that he was alive after the flight.

Theft of $12 from a cash box at the Kingsway Lumber Company office was reported to city police yesterday. The money was believed taken from the box while the store attendant was in the warehouse.

A car radio was reported stolen by Mrs. J. Rogers, 18 Isobel street. The radio was missing from the car after it was parked in a garage at the above address. Neither the car nor the garage had been locked, it was stated.

A breakin at the Aluminum Star Products office on College street was reported. It was thought entry had been gained through a door which had been sprung but otherwise showed no violence. Desk drawers were found turned out but nothing was reported missing.

Finally police took a 17-year-old Montreal youth from the C.N.R. train following a telephone call from that city indicating the lad had run away from home. The lad's father will pick him up and return him home.

Oil Painting By Leona Riggs Given First Place

"Bait Shack", an oil painting by Belleville's Leona Riggs, netted the artist $50 and first prize in the 22nd annual members' show of the Florida Gulf Coast Art Centre held recently in Clearwater, Fla.

In his comments on the awards judge Arthur Covey, National Academy member, said he based his selection on the merits of the entry as a work of art without regard to the type of art medium employed.

Miss Riggs also won honorable mention this winter in the St. Petersburg Art Club show for an oil painting entitled "Florida Recreation."

Miss Riggs, better known locally as a musician, began painting seriously as a hobby six years ago. Until taking up winter residence in St. Petersburg this year she had never placed her pictures in competition.

BELLEVILLE HAS GROWN

Cities, like people, grow and change. Belleville is no exception.

What is Belleville like today?

The Ontario Intelligencer, in preparing a pamphlet to be presented to a select list of national advertisers being offered the opportunity to display their wares in the rich and growing territory of which Belleville is the hub, has discovered that the Friendly City is growing rapidly.

The population of greater Belleville, which includes the suburban growth beyond the municipal limits, is 25,300. Within a radius of the main intersection at Bridge and Front Streets live 101,210 people.

In 1939 Belleville's population was 14,678. The city assessor says that the population was 20,823 on December 31st, 1955.

Several new industries have come to Belleville since the end of the war and many longtime established industries have expanded. Front Street has been almost entirely remodelled by new and established tenants. According to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics the value of goods produced in Belleville in 1952 was 245.9 per cent higher than the value of goods produced in 1946.

Annexation has failed to keep pace with this steady growth, explaining, in part, the difference between the assessors' official population figures and the real size of the city.

Belleville has 37 manufacturers; 8,404 wage and salary earners; 3,611 one-family dwellings, 724 two-family dwellings, 144 three-family dwellings and 808 apartments for the 7,615 families in the greater city zone.

Some 3,925 dwellings or 52 per cent are occupied by their owners.

Gross value of production, according to 1951 figures which are now quite out of date, was $34,375,000.

In 1955 building clearances totalled $13,952,932.50. Permits were issued for $2,094,901 worth of new construction; 68,991,680 kilowatt hours of electricity were consumed by commercial, industrial and residential users; the city processed 1,361,814,000 gallons of water. Customs and excise collections for 1955 were $10,851,446.73. Bellevillians talked on 11.594 phones. Total sales in the city topped $45,000,000.

Within 25 miles of Belleville is one of the major garden areas of Canada. In 1955, canning factories in this area canned a total of 3,000,000 cases of vegetables and fruit, furnished 4,000,000 pounds of peas, tomatoes, corn, pumpkin, asparagus, apples, beans, plums, cherries, strawberries and raspberries for the frozen food industry.

The same area produced 5,950,00 pounds of cheddar cheese and 3,660,000 pounds of butter.

Only a few miles beyond our 25-mile limit to the north is the growing and prosperous uranium community of the Bancroft area.

These are some of the statistics that measure the evident growth and development of Belleville and district during the past 15 years. There seems to be every good reason to expect continuing growth and vitality.

MOIRA UNREASONABLY QUIET

This is the time for torrents so it comes somewhat as a surprise that the Moira River so far this spring does not have enough water to flush away winter's debris.

Usually at this time of year the Moira is a frothy, tumbling torrent, swollen by spring rains and melting snows, surging towards the Bay with the turbulent energy characteristic of the spring runoff. Belleville residents, as befits riverside dwellers, customarily give thanks that the city has been spared another flood.

Only two weeks ago, in the column about the happenings of bygone years that occupies the space adjacent to this editorial, were accounts of the great flood of 1936 which turned the downtown business district into an icechoked lake for several days.

What is the scene today?

From the editorial window the Moira is as placid as a mill pond and only slightly more than a trickle is wading pool. Great areas of ice are mounted in mid-river on sandbars and there is too little water to float them free. Warm sunshine and the attrition of an unseen current are melting at their undersides and edges.

The stone wall across the way, which acts as our rudimentary depth gauge, is showing its foundation stones, a sight not common usually until late July or early August.

Last Fall, when more than eight inches of rain fell in three days, the river rose three feet overnight and raged like a spring torrent for a week or more. Now, in spring, when torrents are anticipated, the river has shrunk to the dimensions of a summer's drought.

April showers, no doubt, will fill the river and wash away the cobble-fingers of winter clutching at the river banks and at the tendrils of spring. Until then the river, following the dictates of sun and rain, will present this unaccustomed face for our wonder.

In Boise, Idaho, recently thieves made off with a $,000-pound bronze bell which was to be installed in the tower of the First Baptist Church, but left the clapper behind. Obviously the thieves sought no applause.

JUST FOLKS

He never complained.
Fancied that he
Was just as well off as a mortal could be.
"I've noticed," he said, "that some I've won just as many, I'd say, rich folks get ill
As often as poor folk do.
And while life goes on I am sure that they will.
Yes, the ailments and the pains that I suffer are bad,
But my share of good health I have certainly had."

He took his misfortunes like rainfall and snow.
He would say: "Every will happen wherever you go.
It makes little difference what

The fact still remains that you can't always win.
It seems down the years, of the battles I've fought,
I've won just as many, I'd say, as I ought.

Holiday in Mexico

By C. A. Morton

Mexico City is blessed with many excellent parks and in the more important ones large fountains are in operation all day and until late at night. At numerous water pumps are used to create the pressure instead of depending on the municipal service. Fountains are also seen along some of the boulevards and this adds greatly to the enjoyment of a walk.

Chapultepec Park in the southern section of the city takes in three hundred acres including small lakes and a large one with its fountain and many small islands. There are bridle paths, a zoo and lovely lawns on the rolling among the large trees and shrubbery. Some trees were in bloom and most in full leaf at the time of our visit.

Dominating the park is a good-sized hill on which is Emperor Maximilian's Castle and from which a wonderful view of the city is obtained.

Alameda Park is in the business district and would fill a city block area equivalent in Belleville from Front to Church streets and from Bridge almost to the square bridge. The park has many beautiful trees in full leaf, at least five fountains, numerous flower beds that were being planted into two weeks ago and lots of benches placed along the wide pathways. The guide book says that the grass areas but must keep to the paths. There is a band stand and bandsmen play on Sunday afternoons. One of the finest monuments in the country stands in the street a short distance from the Del Prado hotel. Its current title is Juarez and the viewer of beautiful Greek artistry of ancient days.

When the Spaniards first came the Alameda was a market which was the city's source of food supply for the city then ruled by Montezuma. Later it was the headquarters of the Inquisition which turned part of the park into the "Burning Place" where hundreds of persons were burned or strangled to death because they were supposed to be in the power of the devil.

PLEASANT PEOPLE

We enjoyed the park because it was quite at hand and gave us an opportunity to observe Mexican people. There is a humble circumstances, while they were in a relaxed mood. Children were found, are a friendly, good humored people, pleasant to deal with and polite. We do not recall meeting one who was surly or had a frowning face. Even the attempts at Spanish used invariably greetings met a smiling response and the usual "Buenos dias" or "Good day." We particularly liked the sound of the Spanish word for it seems to have a musical quality about it that is not found in English. When three or four Mexicans get together in animated discussion it is a matter of astonishment to us how they ever understand one another so fast all the flood of sound spill over.

During the centuries since the Conquest there has been a gradual intermingling of Spanish and Indian blood in all classes of society. This is more apparent in some districts and provinces than others. That was the information given to us by a resident of Mexico City when talking about the subject and both men agreed that the new Indian blood the same as everyone else and we think it has contributed much to the pleasant qualities of our forebears for which we are grateful."

While on this subject it may be said that we saw practically all the people in Mexico or elsewhere although around Acapulco on the west coast we thought there was some indication of Negro blood in some individuals. Occasionally Indian. This, one man explained, came about when the Spanish slave trade was thriving. A boat-load of Negro slaves was wrecked on the coast or headed for shore, escaped and took refuge with the Indians. This may have been true of some people but could be a logical explanation. Sometimes if you ask a silly question you get a silly answer.

Maximilian's Castle

But back to reality! One afternoon we visited the Maximilian's Castle in Chapultepec Park. Here our guide was unexpected but as our time was limited we hurried through the interesting rooms with their many relics of the Maximilian and Juarez period, especially the bed of Carlotta and Washington of his day so far as Mexico is concerned. There are many splendid paintings of the two men and Empress Carlota and a more grim exhibit, a case holding the six rifles used to execute Emperor Maximilian in 1868.

The castle itself is rather a unique structure being built around the peak of the hill. The lower terrace on which open the living rooms and conference rooms of the royal couple is particularly interesting. The original furnishings are still in plate and their magnificence is beyond compare. Furniture of rare woods inlaid in all kinds of delicate designs, French tapestries and porcelains, pelt point rugs and walls covered in gilt damask are but a part of the treasures to be seen. The backs of these rooms are against the hill. The view from the terrace, as mentioned earlier, is magnificent and permits the visitor to look straight down that noble avenue—the Paseo de la Reforma — as well as over much of the northern part of the city.

Going to the top floor we saw the rooms which were used by state purposes and some of these look out not only on the city but on a formal garden as well that was made by levelling off the top of the hill. Here are lovely flowers in bloom, clipped hedges and

Home Truths From Teachers

(Timmins Daily Press)

The most recent issue of The Bulletin, a publication of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation, has an article titled "Schools Through the Pupils'," which reads as follows:

"We are accused, and sometimes, too often, I fear, with justice, of guilty, of frightening prospective teachers away from the profession by our own vocal attitude towards it. We find no complaint about the difficulties of our work, the insolence, stupidity and laziness of our pupils, the heaviness of our occasional duties, the load of our working conditions and the inadequacy of our salaries as compared to the other learned professions wherewith we can get anybody to listen.

"If we are sincere about winning good people in our ranks we must at least try to do so on the merits of the picture of the advantages and satisfactions in the teaching career which many of us have. Frustrations and the heartaches or we ourselves would quickly vitiate the conclusion. We do not suggest that we should propagandize or overpaint the rosy aspects of the profession but that we should refrain from petty griping and so objectify about our situation as we can when discussing it and that we might try to give a fair but favorable look to the brighter side. Mind you we are quite willing to admit that we often started off in the complaining vein by those bright souls who bring up the old sad stories about the short hours and long holidays enjoyed by teachers. We must learn to ignore such petty annoyances."

Not only is there constructive advice in the foregoing lines, but there are also some home truths that might well be considered by people in other spheres. If those who are notorious for the bickering, complaining, and being shoved off petty grievances, would spend just half the time trying to be objective about their jobs and brighter side, this old planet would be an infinitely more pleasant dwelling place.

Sugar Making Now Science

(Ottawa Journal)

Maple sugaring is an exact scientific process these days. There are plastic pails instead of wooden ones, or modern metal spiles, portable gasoline engine hoses the holes for the buckets. Sugar men use expensive thermometers to guarantee a topflight product to pour over a man's buckwheat cake for breakfast.

Time was a half century ago that a 14-year-old boy was entrusted with sugaring season. In a rush period of frosty nights and sunny days, that boy was allowed to stay home from school a day or two to help with the sugaring. It was work, for it was a boy's job to keep the fire going beneath the long evaporator.

The evening was usually fun, for the neighbors dropped in ostensibly on occasion of sugarin' off party. On an old cozy wood stove they boiled down a kettle of syrup, and the neighbors from up and down the road gathered for the party. It was fun to stir hot heavy syrup down to a light-colored sugar to eat while raised doughnuts.

But night boiling was more than just the party and a good time. There is the memory of the darkness in the sugarbush, the remembrance of the old sap house, the clouds of steam, the fragrance of sap changing to sweetness, the heat of the crackling fire. Today old-fired boilers do much of the work in the big operations; pipe lines bring the sap to the central collecting place. But there are still farms where men and boys tap trees and store up memories of night boiling.

pathways. A fountain also lends its beauty to the setting. The terrace along the side of the castle is roofed over. It is difficult to conceive a more beautiful situation or location for leisurely living than here. It was here that Montezuma or Moctezuma, it seems to be spelled both ways, had his summer palace. He was followed in time by the Spanish Viceroys and boys knew a good thing when they saw it.

Paris' fair Foster Ward. From our file copy at this time in 1896: The adjourned sale of city lands for taxes was held and a few lots were sold at fair prices. A lot on South John street was knocked down to Ald. N. B. Falkner at a low figure and he stated that if he could get the two lots next to the one he bought at the same time, he would present them to Foster Ward to be used as a park. No one opposed the purchase and now the banner ward will have the distinction of having the first park in the city.

Sterile Steel For A Felon

A run-around is annoying. It may even make you say cuss! It is a supurating (mattering) infection of the skin at the edge of the nail. Good treatment: Paint the entire end of the finger or thumb with mild tincture of Iodine and then soak the finger or thumb for ten or fifteen minutes in water as hot as bearable, a tablespoon of table salt to a half-pint of water, and then apply a poultice—gauze wet with the same hot salt solution—and keep the wet dressing hot or at least as warm as possible for several hours or until well overnight. Only occasionally is it necessary to open or lance run-arounds when pus formation is evident and does not drain under wet dressing.

Medical term for run-around is paronychia.

A felon or whitlow is a painful, throbbing infection deep in the pocket of the bone of the thumb or finger (periosteum). It supporates (mattering) if not promptly incised, and because of the toughness of the periosteum, the infection may quickly spread to the palm and thence up the arm.

There is only one safe treatment for felon—sterile steel to the pus. Of course, under anesthesia. To temporize with any kind of pain-killer, poultice, hot or cold applications or even an antibiotic or other miracle weapon is dangerous—until free drainage is established, there's always the possibility of septicemia (general blood poisoning).

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Jokes about people who stammer or who have other burdens of impediment or defect are going out of fashion. I used to hear them on radio or TV, though forty years ago, in the homes and in the schools, houses, they were supposed to be killer-diller. It may be as well that we are growing more civilized.

But in the smoking compartment of the sleeping car from Toronto, seven of us were taking our ease while the porter got the berths made up, and there was a storyteller amongst us. After a couple of successful stories, told by a man who stammered. And his imitation of a stammerer was very realistic.

This led to another stammering man and in the middle of it, I recalled the man sitting next the window, a man at most forty, who neither laughing nor smiling. He was staring out the dark window, and his face was white.

I tried to divert the entertainer from that man, but he stuck to the same lines. I attempted to catch his eye. But he was away to the other end, telling himself a story. The next story was not only cruel. It was dirty. And when the stammer died, the man at the window knocked the ashes off his cigar, leaned forward and said: "I'll give up to catch our attention."

"I might tell you," he said, "that I was born with a stammer, and had it until I was twenty-seven years of age. It would be useless to try to enlighten you as to the distress, and sometimes the tragedy of that impediment."

"Good, I'm sorry," cut in the story teller, flushed.

"Good," said the man with the cigar, angrily, looking him in the face. "I assure you there is nothing funny about it." He looked at your labors as a child, in school, and in your relations with other children. Not a day passes without some measure of cruelty, intentional or otherwise. Then you become a young man, you are handicapped in your career, in your friendships, in your courting. It is not funny, from any aspect."

"I am sorry," said the story teller, as if to hurry the other so that he could get on with another story.

"I have a son who inherits my stammer," said the man, angrily rising, and tossing his cigar into the ashtray, "I would like to inform you, sir, that I am a sorcerer. I now put a curse on you. You will be cursed, you and your children."

He went through the curtain. We sat looking at one another for an instant, and then we stood up and quickly left the smoking compartment, the story teller last, with a funny look on his face.

No Human Interest

(New Leader)

Nowhere in the entire multimillion Soviet press does one find a human interest story, a column, some piece of human fortune or misfortune.

The local incident, the human being is nowhere to be seen; at most, one reads of some decision to invite setting a production record, or else a carefully selected complaint about the poor performance of some bureau or factory.

The skyscrapers, the construction work, the collective organization are overpowering: the human being is nobody. He doesn't count. He doesn't appear.

Strength for The Day
DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THURSDAY OF HOLY WEEK

Thursday of Holy Week is distinguished because on that night Jesus instituted the Lord's Supper. He commanded his disciples to observe it through the ages in remembrance of Him. In this Holy Sacrament, believers find entrance into the heart of the Lord, and the Lord into the heart of believers, in a way which the holy elements symbolically set forth. This sacrament has been observed in the Church continuously from the night of its institution until now.

On that night, also, Jesus washed the disciples' feet, declaring that He had thus given them an example, for the servant is not greater than his Lord, neither is one that is sent greater than he that sent him.

Then came the agony in Gethsemane—the human Jesus praying God to deliver him from the horror of crucifixion, yet His divine nature leading Him at last to accept the Father's will. Then He appeared with soldiers, and the most heartless and blood-stained pages of history have constituted an epilogue to that unthinkable rejection.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

LITTLE THINGS

We never grow too old, too busy, or too important not to be ready to do a kindness or some simple service that may be the means of lessening the burden of others' sorrow. Little things do far better than imagined big things.

Plato once said: "A little thing is a little thing, but faithfulness in a little thing becomes a great thing." And Wordsworth said: "That best portion of a good man's life, His little, nameless, unremembered acts of kindness and of love."

There are more little things to do in this life than big things, therefore the opportunity to take advantage of this fact, and do the helpful little things, is open to all. They cost nothing to do, nothing but the desire.

There is a little thing, but it has its commercial value as well, People go into a big store and hunt out the clerk "who was so kind to us" before. There is the big apartment store in St. Louis where they celebrate one day each year as "Forgotten Man Day." Floral carnations and an atmosphere of cheer will be given to every customer. An idea worth spreading!

In a hospital how greatly do the little things count. The attentive nurse is the nurse who remembers to do the little things that interest nurses. How often a life is saved, or made new, by such acts as kindness and consideration. Many a wounded soldier can testify that he was walked upon by an angel.

A seed is a little thing but it gives growth to our great trees, which later feed thousands of our cities and homes. Faith is a single thing, but it becomes a stimulus to life out, giving it hope, purpose and confidence.

Stories from Life of Jesus

By April Oursler Armstrong

THE CRUCIFIXION

There was no true dawn that Friday, only a pale yellow creeping into the east.

From the guardroom of Pilate's castle, Jesus descended the stairs.

At the bottom the cross was waiting, a crude thing of blackened wood, smelling of creosote and tar, the crosspiece large as a small mast, and the horizontal bar of a long beam split in half, fixed with two iron clamps.

At the soldiers' orders, Jesus knelt. Part of the crossbar was hooked over His shoulder. He must stand with the weight of the cross on His back, and drag it Himself to the place of execution. He was not alone in punishment. Two thieves carried their crosses in the same death march, strange company for One Who took nothing but gave all.

Suddenly, in a narrow part of the street, Jesus swayed, and fell, weak from the scourging, but the soldiers forced Him on.

He was about to fall again. The guards murmured. Without help this Man would never reach the hill of crucifixion. But it was not for soldiers to carry a cross. Nearby stood a man named Simon, a pilgrim from Cyrene in Africa. Suddenly a guard snarled,

"You - there! Carry that Man's cross!"

ONLY SIMON HELPED

Simon bent to help Jesus carry His cross. He had done no crime. It was an aching nuisance to take such a load. But because of that half hour's toil, the world has never forgotten him. Simon, a stranger, and Simon alone, helped Jesus, when all His friends had run away.

Now the noise of the crowd took a different note. The city was awakening. News of what had happened flew along the domed rooftops. The women heard first, and came running to see if it were true.

Through the gate Jesus passed into open country, within view of the gloomy hill. The women of Jerusalem surged into the road, elbowing aside the savage crew that followed the cross. Unafraid, these housewives, daughters, and widows, fought their way to the Master, weeping.

Jesus' face took new strength as He called:

"Daughters of Jerusalem! Weep not over Me, but for yourselves and your children." With panting breath He warned of the misery and destruction that would come to the city, before long.

Then, exhausted, even with Simon's help, He fell. For the third time the soldiers drove Him to His feet. The end was at hand. He had only to carry the cross up that final stretch of hill.

Calvary, that hill; Golgotha, meaning the place of the skull.

NAILED TO THE CROSS

It was noon as the three prisoners stood together — Dysmas and Gestas, the two thieves — and Jesus.

High noon, and the sun shone brightly, but on the four edges of the world clouds gathered.

The guards stretched Jesus on the cross. They hammered spikes through His palms to the crosspiece — then nailed His feet to the main piece. Then they hoisted the cross high.

There, Jesus was crucified between the two thieves. The three giant crosses stood against the paling sky.

Over Jesus' head, at Pilate's orders, they nailed a sign in Latin, Greek, and Aramaic, the language of Jerusalem:

"Jesus of Nazareth, the King of the Jews!"

On Calvary the crowd grew minute by minute. The soldiers were there, and the ruffians, noisy and careless. The women were there, faces pale with horror, and the men, eyes full of question. If the court, and Pilate, had condemned Him, who were they to challenge it? They dared not look on His face.

JESUS FORGIVES ALL

Jesus murmured:

"Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do."

Forgive them? All? Where were His friends? Where are you, Peter? Where is John, the well - beloved now? And Judas! Judas is in the potter's field, after hanging from a tree.

And the others, where are they? Why did you run away, James and Thomas and the rest of you? Are your lives you ran, in the dark of Gethsemane. Why did you forsake Me? You were afraid. But the day comes - when you will have such faith that fear will no longer matter.

"I thirst," said Jesus.

The soldiers grinned. They made Him a drink — a cup of wine mixed with myrrh and gall and bile. He would not drink it. His last cup on earth was the chalice of the Last Supper.

Below His cross the Roman guards threw dice for His robe. They had divided His garments among them. But that beautiful seamless robe they did not tear. They reserved for it, instead.

BENEATH THE CROSS

Then Jesus saw moving slowly to the cross the women — three Marys close at hand. Mary, His mother at the foot of the cross. And Mary, wife of Cleophas, His mother's sister beside her. Mary of Magdalen lay prostrate on the earth.

And who stood beside His mother? John!

Jesus cried:

"Woman, behold your Son!"

Turning to John, sweat glistening on His head, He said:

"Behold your mother!" And John would be like another son to Mary. But his love symbolized greater service, for Jesus had spoken to mankind, had showed all living the glory of her motherhood.

The sky was darkening, slowly. The high priests came to mock:

"He saved others. Let Him save Himself if He is Christ. Save Yourself! Come down from the cross!"

DARKNESS DEEPENED

They soon noticed that as the darkness deepened a light shone behind His head.

One thief, Gestas, took up the cry: "If You be the Christ, save Yourself — and us!"

But Dysmas, the other thief called back: "We are justly punished. But this Man has done no evil."

Then to the Master, Dysmas said, humbly, remember me when You come into Your Kingdom."

Through the blood and sweat Jesus spoke in His old clear, strong voice:

"I say to you — this day you shall be with Me in Paradise."

The storm was gathering its darkness now. Thunder swelled over the heads of the people. And they began to fear.

It was close upon three o'clock, when Jesus spoke again:

"My God, My God, why have You forsaken Me?"

Caiphas chuckled hoarsely.

"Hear that, Lord Annas? First He says He is God — then He asks why He has forsaken Himself? That proves He's not God!"

Annas' voice was low, and sad. "Do you not know your Scriptures? The Twenty-Second Psalm, have you not read it? It begins with those words. And it tells what happened here today — every bit of it. King David wrote that psalm, predicting exactly this moment."

Jesus let them pour vinegar from a sponge down His parched throat. Then He spoke again:

"It is consummated."

And even Caiphas knew what that meant. Everything the prophets had said had been fulfilled. Jesus was in truth the Messiah!

Then Jesus spoke out softly, as Mary remembered Him speak as a boy, falling off to sleep — softly, with surrender:

"Father, into Your hands I commend My spirit."

And bowing His head, He died.

Strange things happened then. The earth trembled. Rocks crashed from the hillsides. Graves burst open. And the veil in the Temple ripped from top to bottom, although no man's hand touched it.

And the Roman Officer who had given the orders for His executed fell on his knees and gasped:

"Indeed this Man was the Son of God."

FINDS GIANT TOOTH

LINDON (Reuter)—A Chinese expedition has discovered a giant tooth four times the size of a man's, indicating that a huge spelike creature lived in southern China hundreds of thousands of years ago, the New China news agency reported today. The find was made in a cave by an expedition headed by Dr. Pei Wen Chung, of the Chinese Academy of Scientists, who discovered the "Peking man."

The Bible Today

The first full-size book in the Ngambal language recently arrived in French Equatorial Africa, according to two Toronto missionaries working at Koutou.

"The Ngambal New Testament is here!"

"These exclamation marks mean we lack words to express the ecstacy of our joy," wrote Frances and Victor Veary. This was the reaction of the missionaries. The natives were equally ecstatic when one Christian, Zachary Yangar by name, was given a copy, he took it, hasdled it with awe, slowly turned it over and over, peeked inside as if afraid of what he might see, shook his head incredulously and said, "Is this it? Am I really holding it?"

"The reaction of the people was remarkable," wrote the Vearys. "A naturally boisterous people whose feeling of joy and anger often run away with them, we expected them to get excited.

Some could not keep back the tears, others fondled the Book affectionately."

The British and Foreign Bible Society's printers achieved an exquisite piece of craftsmanship in the Ngambal New Testament. It is bound in three colors, black, royal blue and red. The title on the front cover is in gilt letters to make the books more attractive. The large, clear type on the thin but strong white paper inside, intrigued the natives. "The words jump out of the 'so white' page to be read," they said. "So white" in the Ngambal language is "Wda Kelu-Kelu."

The missionaries were reminded of their search for the 5,000 words of which the New Testament in Ngambal consists when the books were delivered. For months and years they had gone from one native to another with the questions, "What is this? What is that?" This digging for Ngambal words they likened to the search for diamonds in the mines nearby. It was often very difficult to secure the right one to express the proper Scriptural meaning.

A near tragedy occurred when the new book was being discussed at the Bebalam Bible Institute. One word puzzled one of the students. The teacher wrote the word on the blackboard. When reaching for the cloth used to erase the writing he caught only the tip of it between his fingers. As he raised it from the floor, to their horror the class saw a deadly snake curled up beneath it. They arose quickly and pounded the viper to death.

"The people of Bebalam, Koutou and Moundou," write the Vearys, are going about with a new greeting. Instead of saying 'Good morning,' or as the early Christians after the resurrection, "The Lord is risen,' they are saying 'The Ngambal New Testament is here!'"

St. Joseph's C.W.L. Plans Easter Bazaar

The regular monthly meeting of St. Joseph's C.W.L. was held last Monday evening in the school hall with an attendance of 35. The president, Mrs. H. Carr-Brant, presided. The Rev. J. J. Buckley opened the meeting.

The first vice-president reported a membership of 87 to date. Details of the Easter bazaar to be held the early part of April were discussed and the councillors were asked to have their lists called during this week.

A euchre, the first since the Lenten season, will be held next week in the school classrooms under the convenership of Mrs. K. Hopkins.

A motion was made that a donation be sent to the Sisters of Service and also that an annual donation be presented to the Grade 8 student excelling in spelling and handwriting.

A cheque was presented to Father Buckley by the president to pay for the lovely new communion rail in the church for which Father Buckley thanked all the members and congratulated them on their continuous good work.

A motion was then made that a plaque be placed on the communion rail commemorating the presentation by the C.W.L. . . . . .

Mrs. J. Hanley, chairman of the nominating committee distributed nomination forms to the members and asked that they be returned by April 9th.

The business meeting was adjourned and followed by the popular "Question Box" period with Father Buckley answering the various questions submitted which were enlightening to all.

Tea was served by Mrs. C. Murphy and her committee.

Sacred Heart Priests Honored By Parishioners

The Madoc parishioners of Sacred Heart of Mary, gathered at the rectory recently to honor the Rev. F. D. Hyland and the Rev. J. Hanley.

Father Hyland, pastor of Madoc since April 1937, has been in failing health for the past few years. He will take up residence at St. Mary's-on-the-Lake Hospital.

Under Father Hyland a completely remodelled church has been fashioned in Madoc. In 1946 the new cemetery situated on No. 7 highway, was surveyed and purchased. A few years ago he inaugurated an annual pilgrimage to the Shrine of Our Lady of Fatima in the parish church, which attracted many from this section of the diocese.

In declining health during the last few years, however, Father Hyland had found it increasingly difficult to carry on the work of the parish. Last summer the Rev. M. Hanley, recently ordained, was sent as assistant and he has now received his appointment to Gananoque parish to become effective May 1st.

On behalf of the members of the parish, Mr. Robert O'Riordon, Sr., read an address to Father Hyland and Mr. Francis Tobin presented him with a substantial purse. He replied with sincere thanks to his people and the co-operation he had received during his 19 years in Madoc. He also expressed the kindness he had received from his assistant priest.

Mr. Dorian Stewart expressed the accomplishments of Rev. J. Hanley during his short term here and extended to him many sincere blessings in his new parish.

Mr. Edward Meraw on behalf of the congregation presented Father Hanley with a purse.

A social hour followed with the ladies serving refreshments.

Need A Good Foundation Spring's Sleek Fashions

By JEANNE D'ARCY

There are any number of things in this world requiring a good foundation. One of them, unlady, is your figure. If you've previewed any of the new spring styles, you know this statement was never truer!

A SLIM ORDER

The fashion line is sleek, with the waist low, hips flat, bust high. It sounds like an order only a fashion model could fill, but not so! According to the experts, it's becoming to everyone, from size 8 to 18 plus, providing curves are under control.

What we advise is buying the proper girdle before going out on your spring suit-shopping spree. A good foundation, your figure will be ready to take on the new styles.

LATEX GIRDLE

Some women we know say there's nothing like a latex girdle. It does have advantages, especially in slim styles, because it's not bulky and has no boning to show up in dresses that fit like a coat of paint.

There's a new version of the latex girdle around that's interesting. It has a non-roll top to shuttle down the waist. As a design note, the top is scalloped, and the latex itself is flower-patterned, making a much prettier garment. Ideal for the full figure, this girdle has finger panels which support and smooth the tummy.

Another advantage to the latex garment is this: it doesn't take figure-prints. This is to say, it keeps its own shape rather than stretching to yours.

Non-bulky, minus boning, a latex girdle makes a smooth foundation for spring suit styles.

Quinte Craftsmen Close Classes Till Fall

On Tuesday evening, at the home of Mrs. Charles Ling, West Bridge Street, the Quinte Craftsmen, after a most interesting season, closed their leathercraft classes until the fall, when they will again resume their handicraft work.

Many small, as well as large items of leather goods, including tooled handbags, key cases; wallets in many styles and colors, and filigree and tooled purses were on display.

During the evening music was provided by Mrs. Ling's little grandsons, Roger and Stephen Ling, which was greatly appreciated.

As a token of esteem, and in appreciation of her fine assistance in the leathercraft, Mrs. Ling was presented with a beautiful rhinestone maple leaf lapel pin by the class members, for which she was most grateful.

At the close of the evening, Miss Muriel Thain showed some lovely colored views of her recent trip through Canada and the United States.

Refreshments were served by the hostess.

Rt. Rev. K. Evans Presides at Rite Of Confirmation

On Sunday evening, the rite of confirmation was held in Christ church with the Rt. Rev. K. Evans, M.A., D.D., Bishop of Ontario, presiding.

Following the service, a reception was held in the parish hall by the Contact club for the 101 confirmees their relatives and friends. It was convened by Marjorie Bunnett's group, and pouring tea at the beautifully appointed tables were the club's four group leaders, Marjorie Bunnett, Marg. Wiggins, Ev. Clarke, and Phyllis Hume, representing Marg. Shannon's group.

On Monday evening the members of the Contact club attended the Lenten service in the church, and met later for a short business meeting. Both Archdeacon J. B. Creegan and president, Catherine Boulet, thanked the club members for their wholehearted co-operation in making the confirmation reception a success.

Candy was packed for Carson Elliott in order that the Easter Bunny might send to more important matters pertaining to his arrival in the city on Saturday.

Carson Elliott extended his thanks and the evening ended with refreshments served by Marjorie Bunnett and Phyllis Hume.

Easter Sunday Early This Year, Will Be Earlier

By CARROLL ARMOND

Associated Press Staff Writer

Easter Sunday is early this year—April 1—but it has been, and will be, earlier.

In 1913, for instance, it was on March 23, the earliest in the 20th century. The next time it will fall so early is the year 2008, if you care to make a note of it.

Unlike Christmas, which always falls on Dec. 25, Easter is a moveable religious feast day that can occur on any date between March 22 and April 25.

The date changes because it is tied into the timetable of the lunar year and the vernal equinox, the official first day of spring. The method of choosing it was worked out in the early days of Christianity so that pilgrims from far-flung religious shrines would have the aid of moonlight on their travels.

EASTERS TO COME

The last time Easter fell on its earliest date, March 22, was in 1818. It will be on that date next in 2285.

The last time it occurred on its latest possible date, April 25, was in 1943. It will return to that date for the first time in 2038.

Some early Easters to come include March 26 in 1967, 1978 and 1989; March 29 in 1959, 1964 and 1970, and March 30 in 1976, 1986 and 1997.

Some late ones are April 21 in 1957; April 22 in 1962, 1973 and 1984, and April 23 in 2000.

Attempts have been made to stabilize Easter on a certain date or to reduce the range of its moveability from the present 35 days' span. But little progress has been achieved in lack of agreement among peoples and nations.

The moveability of Easter is of concern to merchandisers. When the holiday is early the weather in North America frequently is unsuited to bright Easter fashions. When it is late, stocks of Easter apparel are on the racks when dealers are moving in their summer wear.

LIKES NIAGARA WORK

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—The control work being constructed by the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission in the upper Niagara river was described Tuesday as a beautiful job by Brig. Gen. Paul D. Berrigan, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Chicago, and chairman of the United States section of the international Niagara board of control. He made the inspection before his semi-annual report to the International Joint commission.

Sunday School Lesson

He Opened Their Minds

By ROY L. SMITH

There is an extremely brilliant phrase in this week's Sunday school lesson which deserves far more attention than it has had at the hands of the average Christian. In speaking of those days immediately following the resurrection when Jesus was in such a new and intimate relation to His disciples, it was said of Him that "He opened their minds." This ought to be the function of good religion in every age.

SIN OF CLOSED MINDS

If there is any one basic proposition to which all Christians are supposed to subscribe it is this — that they worship a God of truth. In other words, if anything is true, it is true because God made it so. There can be no truth outside of God. To discover a bit of truth, therefore, is to discover a bit of God.

By the same logic, to close one's mind against truth is to close one's mind against God. The Ecclesiastics who tried to silence Galileo were perfectly honest in believing that they were defending the faith—showing themselves friends of God—when they tried to silence the great scientist. Those who heaped abuse upon Copernicus were sincere in their belief that in doing so they were protecting something sacred. But in both instances a sin was committed against truth and against a man whose chief concern was making known the truth.

STILL OPENING CLOSED MINDS

The charge is often made against the Christian Church that it is opposed to truth, that it is not open-minded, and that it is more concerned with dogma than with facts.

It is unfortunately true that individuals, in their devotion to the faith, have closed their minds against new revelations of the truth. But the long look proves that the Christian Church has been the best friend that truth has had.

> The Uniform Sunday School lesson for April 1: "The Meaning of the Resurrection," Luke 24:1-53.

If anyone wants a spectacular demonstration of the way Christ is still opening minds, let him go to the mission fields and watch Christian doctors as they battle with disease. A visit to the great hospital in Africa over which Albert Schweitzer presides, would be an excellent illustration. An entire area of the land and of the human mind has been opened up as a result of this great modern saint. An entirely new concept of the nature of disease is filtering through into darkened minds.

GOD HAS NOTHING TO FEAR

The basic meaning of the resurrection is a very simple fact. God has nothing to fear, for He is eternal and everything true is His ally.

The death of Jesus was one of the crises in the lives of Pilate, Herod, Annas, and Caiaphas, but to Jesus it was but an incident. For the politicians it meant doom; for Jesus it meant no more than a few hours delay in the eventual and inevitable triumph.

All this means that the man who puts his faith in a risen Christ has taken on some of the quality of eternity. The power that was at the disposal of Jesus comes to be at his disposal.

Let any man meditate on the fact of the resurrection of Jesus, and the victory that was achieved thereby, and he will have the experience of feeling his own mind being opened. No man can think of eternity, righteousness, and of God in the form of a man revealing truth, and ever be as small again as he was before he began thinking.

REJECT LOBSTER BILL

BOSTON (AP) — The Massachusetts Senate Tuesday rejected a bill to establish a double standard for lobsters—limiting maximum as well as minimum sizes for legal fishing. At present the state forbids catching lobsters of less than 3 3-16 inches long on top of the fixed shell. Tuesday's vote turned down a proposal to set the top limit at five inches.

Announcement!

THE RAWSON BUS CO. LTD.

announces the following change in its bus service

COMMENCING

THE 1st of APRIL, 1956

1. SUNDAY SERVICE WILL BE DISCONTINUED.
2. THERE WILL BE NO BUS SERVICE ON STATUTORY HOLIDAYS AND ON ANY DAY PROCLAIMED BY THE MAYOR TO BE A HOLIDAY.
3. ON MONDAY, TUESDAY AND WEDNESDAY EVENING SERVICE WILL BE REDUCED FROM FIFTEEN MINUTE SERVICE TO ONE-HALF HOUR SERVICE FROM 6.00 O'CLOCK P.M. UNTIL MIDNIGHT ON BOTH THE EAST AND WEST HILLS.

The company would like to point out that it has an unsurpassed record of never having missed a single day's operation in over thirty years, despite depression, war strikes and has only raised its rates once in the time. However, the increase in the number of private motor vehicles, and the increasing number of television sets has resulted in a decrease in the number of passengers carried, and the cost of the operation is continually rising.

The company sincerely regrets the inconvenience to its customers, that will be caused by the curtailment of service, but feels that unless the service is curtailed fares will have to be increased. Most people are aware of the increasing difficulty facing municipalities in providing an adequate bus service for its citizens, and many municipalities have been forced to operate the bus service themselves, or to subsidize private operators. At the end of the next five years, the City of Belleville might well be faced with a similar situation.

The company appreciates the fact that it depends upon the good will and patronage of the people of the City of Belleville, and the Company will continue to endeavor to provide its passengers with the maximum amount of service consistent with the economic operation of the Company.

Purchase of Easter Seals Helps to Send Handicapped to Camp

For many handicapped children in Eastern Ontario Merrywood means all the name implies.

Merrywood, situated near Rideau Lake between Perth and Smiths Falls, is a camp for crippled children, where for four months of the year, handicapped small fry from this part of the province are handed time out for a holiday away from the discomforts of their complaints which can impose dreariness on their lives in the city.

Merrywood has several links tangible and otherwise with Belleville and district. Handicapped children from this area are regular holidayers at the site, while Belleville Rotary Club has recently subscribed to one of its latest projects.

But more important is the link forged between the camp and Quinte residents by the Easter Seals, which help support Merrywood and several other camps similar to it scattered through the province.

The seals now are being sold in this district by Belleville Rotary. Most of the returns go to the Ontario Society for Crippled Children which operates Merrywood and its sister camps in Ontario, and part of them are received into the Crippled Children's Fund of the Rotary Club.

Every year groups of handicapped are sent from this district to the camp under the auspices of Rotary. Last year some twelve children, including six from the city itself, were able to take a holiday at the camp in this fashion.

The summer months are divided into four periods, each one being specially laid aside for housing different age groups at the camp. The last camp, in September is reserved for adult handicapped.

The camp can house nearly 70 young holidayers at a time and here for about three weeks of the year they become imbued with gay recreational spirit, as each day finds something new and different to be done. Organized games, craftwork, hikes and parties are the order of the day for many days.

The camp has been in operation for nearly 10 years and during all that time Rotary of Belleville has been intimately associated with it. Some of its more auspicious contributions to the camp happened recently when, together with the Rotary Club of Ottawa, the Rotarians here subscribed toward the building of a $5,000 change house for the camp's swimming pool. The house not only is an up-to-date one but also integrated into swim suits but also is equipped with showers and a flat roof for observation and sun-bathing.

Probably among the most important features of Merrywood are its counsellors, who look after the children. On them rests the final responsibility as to whether the holiday will be an enjoyable one for the camp.

They are well qualified for their task, most of them being university students in subjects that have a direct or indirect bearing on the problems of the handicapped child, such as medicine and psychology.

The camp opens toward the end of June and closes in September.

Record Budget for Ontario Accepted by Booming Vote

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government Wednesday marched a record budget through the legislature by a booming 79 to 14 vote and by the same margin rejected an opposition motion calling for the setting up of a select committee to investigate the provincial economy.

The voting was almost an anticlimax to a three-hour debate between Opposition Leader Farquhar Oliver and Premier Frost, which revolved mainly around the "question of hospital insurance.

During the debate, however, CCF leader Donald MacDonald was told by the Speaker to refrain from interrupting the speakers, under threat of ejection from the assembly.

Premier Frost, reviewing a stand he emphasized several times in the legislature's health committee when it was studying the question, said he will not allow his government to be stampeded into setting up hospital-insurance premiums.

Until a sound, practical plan had been worked out, no amount of opposition pressure was going to make him introduce legislation to set up a provincial insurance plan.

"Hospital insurance can be introduced tomorrow . . . (but) I have no intention of plunging into some scheme of the magnitude of hospital insurance unless I can reasonably see the end result.

"I am not going to gamble with Ontario's future or with the happiness of her people."

Mr. Oliver, who included the government's policies on agriculture, social welfare and labor in his criticisms, said the premier has "beclouded, camouflaged and misrepresented" figures on the cost of a plan.

The premier had said the province could not go ahead without federal aid, and Ottawa had offered to help defray the cost of hospitalization and some diagnostic services.

These, then were the only issues before parliament, Mr. Oliver continues the premier wanted to bring to the public to do with the question, said Mr. Oliver.

Iceland Parliament Requests All NATO Forces Leave Isle

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — Iceland's Parliament has called on United States forces to quit this North Atlantic defence post. The move would leave the strategic island—a NATO member almost midway between Moscow and New York—with no military force.

The Communist-supported resolution was adopted 31 to 18 Wednesday night over Conservative opposition. It asked that all NATO forces be pulled out "in view of the altered situation" since 1951, At that time the U. S. and Iceland agreed on the stationing of American naval and air force units here under NATO command.

The defence department in Washington said the U. S. has on the island a "small army force of aviation also," an air force fighter interceptor squadron several "supporting units" and the joint defence force. It refused on security grounds to specify the number of troops involved.

The resolution said the defence treaty should be revised so that Icelanders—who have no army or navy at present—would take over their own defences.

The declaration added that Iceland would continue to co-operate with NATO—of which she was a founding member — and would maintain friendly relations with her neighbors.

Iceland's President Asgeir Asgeirsson has set new parliamentary elections for June 24 following the resignation Tuesday of Premier Olafur Thorain's Conservative government. Thorain and his ministers will continue to serve as a caretaker government until after the vote.

Just south of the Arctic circle Greenland and Scotland, Iceland is a refuelling and repair stop for both commercial and military flights between Europe and North America. Under the 1951 pact, the U. S. has agreed to maintain a defence force of 4,000 men in military construction and defence projects on the island. They include an airfield at Keflavik and three radar stations.

Radio Station CJBQ Requests Power Boost

OTTAWA (CP)—The CBC board of governors may announce today its recommendations on various applications.

A 10,000-watt daytime station at 1320 on the dial is sought by D. B. Williamson of Burlington, Ont., near Hamilton. W. D. Whitaker, commercial manager of Hamilton radio station CHML, did not oppose the motion but said the governors should not allow station CJET to enter his service and market area.

Mr. Whitaker said station CJET has broken an earlier pledge to "stay out of the Belleville market and has solicited business there. Mr. Pellie replied that the amount of business he has received from Brockville totals $162, most of it coming from unsolicited sources. The Smiths Falls station has been on the air since last fall.

Radio station CJBQ of Belleville applied for a power boost to 1,000 watts from 250 watts and a frequency change to 800 on the dial from 1230. Station manager Bill Stovin said there is growing interference with the CJBQ signal from unknown sources. The increase would eliminate the interference but would not extend the station's coverage.

Quiet but Busy Second Session Ontario Legislature Closed by Lieut.-Governor

TORONTO (CP)—A tired group of law-makers trooped happily from the Ontario Legislature Wednesday, marking the end of the quiet but busy second session of the 25th provincial government.

Most of the members moved quickly from the red - carpeted chamber where they had sat for the last nine weeks, debating, listening and passing bills, after Lieutenant - Governor Breithaupt read the prorogation speech.

It was expected, however, they will be back fairly soon. A special session to consider farm marketing legislation is expected in the early summer, possibly in June.

The session passed 143 bills. Setting up of two commissions—one on water resources, the other on hospital services—ranked as some of the most important business of the government, sitting for its first full meeting since it was elected last June 9.

DIRECT SPENDING

The two commissions will probably direct the spending of several billion dollars during the next two decades.

The water resources commission, which will operate along the same lines as the Hydro-Electric Power Commission, was given authority to develop water supplies and to look after the province's water supply and sewage disposal systems.

It will start work almost immediately, surveying water shortage problems in southwestern Ontario. During the next 20 years, Premier Frost has earmarked $2,500,000,000 for its operations.

A. M. Snider, Kitchener businessman, has been suggested as chairman of the new commission.

The hospital services commission would be responsible for administering any provincial hospital-insurance plan which may be set up in Ontario.

The more immediate task is to integrate hospital services throughout Ontario, providing a basic and efficient pattern.

PIPELINE STEP

The session also saw a concrete step toward a trans-Canada natural gas pipeline, when a bill was passed to loan $35,000,000 to a crown company as Ontario's share of building a 675-mile line from the Manitoba border across Northern Ontario.

The federal government will share in the scheme.

The members voted themselves increased indemnities and expenses, and also approved an expanded government program for education, hospitals, highways, buildings, conservation works and other purposes.

Few real issues rose during the session. Premier Frost's request provided the only real spark that would not die out under the choking pressure of more business.

Several bitter disputes arose, both in the chamber and in committee, over the question, with opposition members charging the government is stalling, and Premier Frost saying the federal government is not giving enough to defray provinces' costs.

WON ATTENTION

Three of the new members—J. J. Wintermeyer (L—Waterloo North), Ross Whicher (L—Bruce) and CCF leader MacDonald—won the careful attention of the government.

Mr. Wintermeyer took over as financial critic for the opposition, and won plaudits from Premier Frost for a carefully - reasoned budget rebuttal.

Mr. Whicher and Mr. MacDonald, especially Mr. MacDonald, roused more ire from government benches with a fairly constant stream of heckling and charges.

At one time, Labor Minister Daley challenged the CCF leader, a much younger man, to a fight after Mr. MacDonald accused the labor minister of giving his son-in-law special favors within the department.

The session set up the Lakehead college of arts, science and technology, considered a new experiment in junior colleges to service areas far from universities.

A record highways spending program, $235,000,000 with municipal participation, highlighted provincial treasurer Porter's first budget. He took over the post from Premier Frost in a cabinet change last summer.

The budget, for a record $438,000,000, was approved finally Wednesday, minutes before prorogation.

Three select committees, on toll roads, air pollution and vehicle registration, tabled reports. The first two on toll roads and pollution committees were reconstituted to continue their research.

No Irregularity Concerning Girl Says Minister

TORONTO (CP)—Reforms Minister Foote of Ontario said Wednesday there was no irregularity in his department concerning a 14-year - old St. Catharines girl whose school principal said she was unfairly committed to a provincial reform school.

Principal Leslie Austin of St. Catharines made an appeale to the minister to secure the girl's release had been interviewed and opposition members of the legislature would be asked to take up the case.

Mr. Foote said:

"As far as the department is concerned there is nothing irregular about her situation. She was committed to the school by the court, over which we have no control."

WOULD BE RELEASED

If a suitable home was available she would be released on placement as soon as the school and the advisory board were convinced she would make a success of it.

"In the girl's case I think it will be soon." The matter was being investigated.

Mr. Austin said neither he nor any of the girl's friends knew she was appearing in court. Teachers and neighbors gave evidence that the girl was not running wild, as the court told the juvenile court.

He said the girl, whose name was not revealed, was taken to the juvenile court by her aunt and charged with being incorrigible.

HAD TO RUN AFAIR

The girl had been afraid of telling her parents she had been beaten because she would have been unable to keep the money she earned.

Snowmobile Will Be Used to Visit Reindeer Herd

By JOE MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TUKTOYAKTUK, N. W. T. (CP) Governor-General Massey today gets a wide-eye view of this Arctic land of reindeer when he visits the herd of Jimmie Komiak.

Mr. Massey, past the midway mark in his 17-day tour of the Arctic, when the snowmobile to reach the reindeer herd near the Eskimo settlement of 300 on the Mackenzie river delta.

The 69-year-old governor-general arrived here Wednesday after a 600-mile flight from Cambridge Bay, Victoria island.

Mr. Massey's RCAF plane, which will have logged about 10,000 miles when tour is over, flew past "smoking mountains," where luminous shale burns under certain conditions, giving up clouds of steam and smoke that caused scientists to believe spirits lived there.

SCHEDULE CHANGED

On his arrival at Tuktoyaktuk, Mr. Massey visited homes in the settlement. He had been scheduled to visit a public school and attend a public reception but an epidemic of whooping cough in the far north forced cancellation of the engagements.

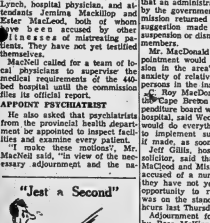
Next stop on Mr. Massey's tour will be at Aklavik, about 100 miles southwest of here, where he will fly Friday aboard a ski-equipped plane for the shortest hop of his trip.

WASHINGTON (AP)—A special report prepared for the joint congressional Atomic Energy Committee says Russia now has more engineers and scientists than the United States. The figures are produced by these specialists at such a rapid rate, the report said, that they foresee a continued advantage which the United States and the countries of western Europe now hold is being threatened."

No Action Taken to Change Administration of Hospital; Hearing Adjourned to Apr 16

SYDNEY, N. S. (CP)—A royal commission investigating charges of mistreatment at the Cape Breton county mental hospital adjourned for an Easter recess Wednesday without action on a lawyer's motion calling for a temporary revamping of the institution's administration.

Exchequer Court Judge Vincent Pottier adjourned the commission until April 16 after Donald MacNeil, solicitor for five former employees whose complaints touched off the investigation, made the motion.



Mr. MacNeil called for temporary suspension of Dr. J. G. S. Lynch, hospital physician, and attendants Jemima Mackillop and Ester MacLeod, both of whom have been accused by other witnesses of mistreatment of patients. They have not yet testified themselves.

MacNeil called for a team of local physicians to supervise the medical requirements of the 1,600 bed hospital until the commission files its official report.

APPOINT PSYCHIATRIST

He also asked that psychiatrists from the provincial health department be appointed to inspect facilities and examine every patient.

He make these motions", Mr. MacNeil said, "in view of the necessary adjournment and the nature of evidence presented to date." Judge Pottier reserved decision.

Mr. MacNeil's motion drew a protest from Dr. Lynch's solicitor, Simon Khatter, who said "no bond support to the motion would mean a finding of the commission that the witness (Dr. Lynch) had neglected his duties."

He said such a finding would give any person in the institution who failed to receive medical attention grounds for a libel action for damages. There is no evidence that Dr. Lynch failed to attend any call, he said.

WANTS ADMINISTRATOR

CCF leader Michael McDonald in the legislature Wednesday urged that an administrator be appointed by the government until the commission returned its findings. His suggestion made no reference to suspension of any member of any staff members.

Mr. MacDonald said such an appointment would "relieve the tension in the area" and ease "the anxiety of relatives and friends of persons in the institution."

C. Roy MacDonald, solicitor for the Cape Breton county joint executive board which operates the hospital, said Wednesday the board would do everything in its power to implement such recommendations made, as soon as possible.

Jeff Gillis, hospital commission solicitor, said that although Miss MacLeod and Miss MacKillop were accused of a number of incidents they have not yet been given an opportunity to reply. Dr. Lynch was on the stand more than five hours last Thursday.

Adjournment followed testimony by Rose McKinnon, a former attendant and one of the five complainants, and Mrs. Dolena Shaw, a hospital attendant. Both testified that hospital patients had been brutally mistreated.

DONATES BLOOMS

PICTOU, N.S. (CP)—Four thousand Bermuda lilies are being unpacked here to decorate First Presbyterian church for Easter services. They came by air from a plantation at Shelly Bay, Bermuda. Rev. W. L. Young said the donor wishes to remain anonymous. This is the third year he has provided the flowers.

Legislatures Roll Swiftly Toward Prorogation

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Provincial legislatures across Canada today rolled swiftly toward prorogation amid a flurry of last-minute business.

The Ontario House was prorogued Wednesday after a nine-week session which saw 141 bills passed. Premier Frost, Edward Nova Scotia and New Brunswick assemblies were expected to follow suit today.

Manitoba's Liberal-Progressive government was expected to face a non-confidence motion criticizing the way it has declined as regards use of "public funds for the distribution of Liberal-Progressive party propaganda." The vote was 33 to 16.

Stanley Roblin, Progressive Conservative Opposition leader, said radio addresses by certain cabinet ministers were designed as summaries of government policy by Premier Douglas Campbell and others.

Saskatchewan legislators were asked to decide whether they prefer to continue sitting over the Easter weekend or go home and return next week. Premier Douglas said he thought the House might adjourn tonight and return Monday or Tuesday.

A. L. S. Brown, CCF government member, said Wednesday many farmers need cash advances on farm-stored grain to help them finance seeding. He said three in every five farmers will face a major cash shortage unless there is more than a one-bushel grain delivery quota by spring.

The Alberta Social Credit government dropped a proposal to have political parties register before an election. Opposition members said the proposal would give provincial party headquarters too great a hold over constituency groups.

The Nova Scotia legislature gave final approval to a Social Assistance Act providing benefits to deserted families and those in which the chief wage earner is serving a prison term of two years or more.

REPORTS ARMS BUYING

TOKYO (AP)—The newspaper Yomiuri reported today a private business group from Syria is in Japan trying to buy arms and other goods. Syria is a leader of the Arab opposition to Israel.

'Rehabilitate' Hungarian Red Hanged in 1947

VIENNA (AP)—Hungary's Communist government announced today that it is "rehabilitating" its former foreign minister Laszlo Rajk, hanged in 1949 on charges of plotting with Yugoslav President Tito and the United States to overthrow his country's Red regime.

The announcement was made in a speech by Communist party chief, Matyas Rakosi, broadcast by Radio Budapest.

Rakosi said Rajk's "innocent co-defendants" also are being rehabilitated. This is the term the Soviet Union has been using for victims of Stalinist purges who now are being declared guiltless.

Rajk is associated with other Hungarian officials and a renegade Yugoslav diplomat. Rajk and four others were hanged, two were given life imprisonment and one got nine years.

Sees Beer Sale Way To Aid Corner Stores

OSHAWA (CP) — Stanley Daly, president of the Ontario Retail Grocers' Association, said Wednesday eight 10,000 grocery stores in Ontario went out of business during the last 10 years due mainly to chain stores opening up.

Mr. Daly suggested that selling canned beer in grocery stores was a mission for which the association intends to petition the provincial legislature next session, would speed the corner store's return to popularity.

Conservation Authority Work Outlined to Study Guild

An enlightening talk on the operation of the Moira River Conservation Authority was given the members of the Women's Study Guild at their March meeting held Monday evening at the collegiate institute.

Mr. Michael Chubb, the Authority field officer, showed movie and slides and spoke of the conservation work being done in the Moira watershed.

After a short business session conducted by the president, Mrs. Hi. Seldon, the worship service was led by Mrs. Buchanan. She read a meditation on the religious attitude of stewardship in the conservation of natural resources and concluded with a prayer.

Mrs. Rizzo introduced the guest speaker, Mr. Chubb. Mr. Chubb, who was born and educated in England, is a forestry graduate of the University of Toronto and has recently returned from a tour of India and Pakistan. At present he is the Moira River Conservation Authority field officer stationed at Stirling.

Mr. Chubb showed two motion picture films, one on conservation problems on the island of Cyprus and one on forestry in Canada. Following these movies he described, with the aid of color slides, the work of the Moira Authority.

19 AUTHORITIES ACTIVE

There are 19 Authorities in existence in Ontario of which the Moira is one of the largest. The Authority, organized when areas-sored citizens petitioned the Department of Public Works, is composed of representatives of the 17 municipalities in the Moira watershed. Fifty per cent of the cost of operation is borne by the municipalities and the remainder is covered by government grants.

As the result of a survey made in 1947 it was determined that the greatest problem in this community was the increasing demand being put on its water supply by the growing population. Recommendations regarding dam construction, reforestation of head lands and the elimination of water pollution were made and are gradually being carried out.

ADVISES ON PROBLEMS

The Authority also advises on problems of forest management and conservation practices in agriculture. Reforestation of depleted land is carried out and the construction of farm ponds is encouraged. A demonstration woodlot and pasture are planned for the future. Parks, both historical and recreational, are being developed.

Mr. Chubb concluded his talk by saying that interested citizens could further the work of the Authority by supporting its activities, studying its problems and by participating in conservation days whenever possible.

Mrs. Goetz thanked the speaker. At the conclusion of the meeting refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Blain, Mrs. Lambert and Mrs. William-

Spring Weather Being Delayed By Snowflurries

Unpredictable as a woman in a hat shoppe, this morning's March weather was enough to cause apprehension among many a likely man who already has chosen her Easter bonnet.

What with snow to left and right and the promise of more up above, much thought on the daily afft side in Belleville household probably centred round the possibility of the weather continuing thoughtlessly through Sunday and Easter parade-time in the same shameful fashion.

As yet, there is no indication from the weatherman as to what the skies hold for the weekend, but snowflurries are promised for tomorrow while the low tonight in the Quinte district likely will drop to 32 degrees or thereabouts.

First indication that Spring this year might not turn out all it's cracked up to be came last night, when temperatures took a sudden dip toward the latter end of the evening.

Then at 8.25 a.m., the first flurry of snow fell on the city and district. By the time office workers were setling out for their desks downtown, an uncomfortable layer of heavy, wet snow was covering city streets.

Some minor accidents were reported to city police as ruffled motorists found the going on city streets roughened by the fall.

Gabby White's Goal in Dying Seconds Gives Kingston 2-1 Win Over Whitby

"Gabby White's bullet drive off Joe Levandoski's rebound in the last minute of overtime gave the Kingston Goodyears with a thrilling 2-1 victory over Wren Blair's Whitby Dunlops in Whitby last night.

Kingston now holds a two-games-to-one lead over the Dunlops in their best-of-seven OHA Eastern Ontario Senior "B" group finals with the fourth game in Kingston Friday night at 8.30. Action resumes in Whitby on Saturday night.

1,000 witnessed one of the keenest battles of the season with Gerry Devaney in the Goodyear nets rising to dizzy heights against the powerful Dunlops. Neither team scored on the first period but the homesters peppered Devaney with 16 shots to Kingston's five.

In the second period Whitby grabbed a 1-0 lead at the 12.30 mark, Doug Williams finally denting Devaney's armor but the lead was short-lived. One minute and six seconds later, Kingston defence star Joe Levandoski set Don Murray up for the tying goal. Neither team could break the tie as Kingston jested Jack Dooley with 11 shots to Whitby's nine.

Both teams fought tooth and nail to break the deadlock in the third, Whitby having a territorial edge while outshooting the visitors 12-4 but Devaney remained unbeatable.

With overtime almost upon them, Murray started Levandoski on a rush for Kingston, the drive bounced off Donlevy's chest and the flying "Gabby" White drilled the rebound home, the clock reading 19.35, to climax the torried battle.

Kingston, who were unable to defeat Whitby at home all season, have captured both games played to date, while dropping a close 4-3 decision in the Kingston Community Centre.

Sandy Air was not dressed for Whitby, junior star Ed Tovey taking his place in the lineup.

Teacher-Pupil Dispute Rages At Brighton Secondary School

TRENTON (Special) — As result of an alleged chalk throwing incident said to have taken place during the 33-minute absence of a class teacher, eight male students of the East Northumberland District High School at Brighton have been away from school for a week.

The eight teen-aged boys said suspended from the high school are: Michael Rouse, Bill Wilson, Douglas and Keith Hough, Jack Brown, Don Aitkin, Peter McConnell and Ed. Butler, all of the Brighton district.

Reports are that school principal A. M. Fulton suspended the boys after they were picked out as the ring leaders in the chalk throwing episode and wrote their parents charging that the students had demonstrated against authority and with damaging school property.

Yesterday, it was reported, that the boys returned to school but were told by Mr. Fulton to go home.

Last night, however, in a brief conversation with a reporter from this newspaper, Mr. Fulton denied that any pupils had been suspended from his school and also said that no letter had been written.

This was in direct contradiction to the statement of Jack Brown, R.R. 4, Brighton, father of one of the students sent from school. Mr. Brown said the children were "not getting a square deal," and reported that as a result of a meeting held between the parents concerned the children were being advised not to return to school until an apology was forthcoming.

SAYS LETTER RECEIVED

He said that a letter had been received from the school principal.

It is reported that the incensed parents have contacted the department of Education in Toronto about the matter and also Hon. A. Goodfellow, minister of welfare, who is said to have advised sending the children back to school and forgetting the incident.

Last night Mr. Brown said "something was pending," and when pressed for details said the children would not return to school "until this thing is straightened out."

First rumor about Brighton last week following the classroom incident was that the classroom had been left in a shambles. Later reports, however, indicate that the actual damage amounted only to about $16 and that each boy concerned will be charged $2 each to eliminate the chalk marks on the school walls.

The East Northumberland District High School is a new building while it was opened for business for the first time last September. Students from the entire Brighton area are transported to classes in buses.

Mr. Fulton, named high school principal at the opening of the school last September, came to Brighton from Warkworth.

"APRE VOUS"

The Alphonse-Gaston spirit is still apparent in the Whitby-Kingston senior "B" bonspiel. In the first game the Goodyears whipped the Dunlops 6-3 on Whitby ice. The second tilt saw the Dunnies emerge victorious in the Keddesville rink by a 4-3 count. Last night in Whitby, the Eldridge faithful got their second "stanning" of the series when the Goodies came out on the long end of a 2-1 score.

So far the second time in the tournament the Goodyears take a psychological as well as games edge, if there is anything to this home-game theory.

Anyway, the boys who do business in the back rooms and laid the lettuce on the Casterton crew are hand-rubbing again. The squads go at each other's figurative throats in the fourth game in Kingston tomorrow night and a Goodyears' win will put them in the well-known driver's seat.

It seems the Goodies are hot and the Dunnies bothered. The Keddesville tennies are living up to their "not-assuming" reputation of being a "chips down" team and flashing their best potential when something besides two points in the win column is at stake. It goes without saying that they are playing their best hockey of the season, and their win last night pushes that group little sum a little further up on the horizon.

Friday night's battle in Kingston should be a honey. The Blairmen realize the importance of the tilt and will throw all their heavy artillery into the fray in what could be a desperation effort to square the series. If they fail, their backs will be against that well-known wall and their all-seasons hopes of a group crown and provincial title will be fading.

SOFTBALL!

The Ontario Amateur Softball Association which gets together at the annual cowlab in the King Edward Hotel tonight and Friday, has yielded one of its stalwarts to the Ontario Minor Hockey Association. Guy McLeod, who has been secretary and president of the Toronto Softball Association, will succeed Jack Christie, OMHA secretary since way back when.

Gary was slated, or at least nominated, to succeed Frank Feaver, OASA secretary, who is retiring this year after thirteen years of highly efficient service at the association's secretarial desk. However, the OMHA apparently beat the softballers to the punch. This was heralded a few weeks ago when McLeod was appointed to the executive of the OMHA.

Both the OASA and the OMHA are losing stellar executives. Feaver and Christie can retire with well-deserved accolades and the satisfaction of a job done nobly and well. Their tireless efforts in an attimes thankless job have been some of the main reasons for the expansion and increasing success of their respective associations. Their chairs will indeed be hard to fill.

Some 300 delegates are expected to check in at the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, this afternoon, for the OASA confab which officially starts tonight. It is by far the most important convention in the history of the organization which recorded a record-breaking season last year. Rules changes which take soteriking from the baseball book of words will be presented to the delegates, and some lively argument should take place. The upping of affiliation fees will also come in for a stiff argumentative going-over since two different suggestions will be aired.

The election of officers scheduled for tomorrow morning's session might see some changes in the executive, and some spirited lobbying will be done tonight and early tomorrow.

Popular John Brady of Oshawa, will serve another term in the top presidential chair, but there should be some lively battling for the first vice-president's job. Nominated are J. C. Brewe, London; J. E. Brush, Barnia; W. C. Perkin, Simcoe and F. E. Stewart. The same gentlemen have been nominated for the second vice's position.

A real down-to-earth fight should feature the election of the third vice-prexy. Beside the four nominated above, Don Lee, of Belleville; H. F. Downer, Peterborough, and J. E. Gibbs, North York, have tossed their hats into the nominational ring.

Lee, who is running again for an executive position, having served three terms on that body will make a strong bid for the chair. The fight may simmer down to a battle between the Eastern Ontario representatives, but it has been rumored Dorner may withdraw if Lee stands.

Bill Berschi, vice-president of the Belleville District Softball League, has been nominated for an auditor's position. Bill has had plenty of experience along this line since he was associated with the Hamilton Softball Association in a secretarial capacity for a number of years, and the unforgetting Hamilton contingent will probably line itself behind the Belleville executive.

It is stated that a strong Eastern Ontario contingent will attend the convention. Among them will be the Belleville delegates, President Cy Barriage of the BDSL; vice-prexy Berschi and Mack "Red" Carson.

The Metropolitan Toronto Softball Association is looking after the social side of the convention and an exciting program has been arranged by pal Bunny Morganson of the Telegram and his amiable co-workers of the league. Bunny will chair the convention banquet tomorrow noon.

WILL FIGHT WRESTLER

BALTIMORE (AP)—Jersey Joe Walcott, taking a cue from Joe Louis, will fight a wrestler in a new twist to '56 trade.

Both Walcott and Cowboy Rocky Lee will wear boxing gloves and fight two-minute rounds up to a scheduled 10 in the Coliseum next Tuesday, it was announced Wednesday by promoter Ed Contos.

The barehanded Louis took on Lee March 16 in Washington and after 10 minutes the former boxing champ let loose with a right forearm that knocked Lee out of the ring.

If Apple-Cheeks Stays Mad Series Could Be Prolonged; No Mule Tactics for Skinner

DETROIT (CP) — Detroit Red Wings have Terrible Tempered Marlboros backed to the wall, but the Wings want to borrow some Leaf tactics to wrap up the Stanley Cup semi-finals tonight.

Leading 3-1 in the best-of-seven series, the Detroiters figure a little pressure is the right place will send them into the showdown championship final against Montreal Canadiens.

Detroit coach Jimmy Skinner believes in sure way to get the fourth and deciding win is to score the first goal when the two teams meet tonight at the Olympia.

AFTER DEFEAT

He said Wednesday after he brought Wings home from a 2-0 defeat in Toronto:

"For eight games now, including the playoffs, we've lagged behind and let the other guys get that first goal when it counted most. We were able to come back most of the time, three times against these fellows. But the pressure is on Toronto, more than on us. If we can get that first score, the pressure will be even greater and I'm sure we can go on from there."

Skinner is scramble from behind to take the first three games.

"That game was a complete turnabout," Skinner added. "Up to then, the puck had been rolling for Toronto in the early stages. But Tuesday night it rolled for us for about 30 minutes—and we weren't able to do anything about it. We'll have to take advantage of the first thing that comes along."

Skinner served some optimism. Just in case Leafs send the series into a sixth or seventh game.

"We feel that it's just a matter of time," he said.

COST THEM A REST

Wings' failure to sweep the set in four games cost them at least two days' rest before the expected final series against Montreal. The Canadiens got the job done against New York Rangers in five games, winding it up Tuesday night with a 7-0 shutout.

Skinner said:

"We might have been a little ahead of ourselves in Toronto looking past the series at hand and into the next round. But not now. We have to win this one and we know it. And if we win it, and we're hot, we'll be ready for whatever follows."

Skinner also hopes Toronto netminder Harry Lumley doesn't stay mad.

Big Lum took a roasting in his hometown when his club was beaten by Detroit last Saturday. He kept Leafs in the series with the 3-0 shutout Tuesday.

Totems Win Basketball Crown In History-Making Tourney

By LARRY STANWOOD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canadian basketball history was made here several ways Wednesday night when the British Columbia Totems ran away to a 62-42 victory over Alberta Towne Hallers to become 1956 champions and Canada's Olympic entry.

It is the first time B.C. has won the right to represent this country in Olympics basketball. It was the first time an all-Canada most valuable player was named and Totems' John McLeod won the award.

It was the first time a Canadian basketball championship was decided in a tournament of nine winners across the country. And it was the first time that the Canadian amateur basketball rule book was challenged so strongly in a single game that it may be rewritten.

FROZE THE BALL

The challenge came in the first minute of the Olympic trials final game when Totems scored a field goal for two points, then froze the ball without a move from Alberta for more than 12 minutes.

More than 4,000 fans who jammed the University of B.C. gymnasium hooted, stomped and jeered the teams until officials finally prevailed on the two coaches to resume play.

Then B.C. opened all its guns. So effective was Totems' attack that it crumbled the Alberta zone defence while their own man-to-man defence stifled the Hallers' high scorers.

B.C. led 11-7 in the first quarter, swept to a 28-1 lead at half time and midway through the final frame had racked up a 21-point lead.

On top of it all was John McLeod, six-footer from Victoria and ex-eager with the University of B.C. for a good many years. He engineered the victory, driving for a game-high total of 17 points.

His standout performance through the four - team double knockout series in which B.C. gained a 4-1 win-loss record won him the most valuable player award.

Ron Bissett in centre, veteran Bob Picked and stalwart guards Ed Wild and Bob Burtwell made up the B.C. line.

TOOK DIM VIEW

Officials, however, took a dim view of the frozen ball tactics which they said, came close to smearing an otherwise highly successful tournament.

Al Erwin of Montreal, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Amateur Basketball Association, admitted there was no rule to compel a team in control of the ball to force the play, nor was there any rule to force the defensive team out of its zone in a counter-attack.

He recommended a second look at the rule book and a study of time limit on holding the ball.

After the game, both coaches stood their ground.

Said Alberta coach Dr. Maury van Vliet:

"It was up to the other team. They had the ball and if they wanted to go to our basket you had to come through our zone."

Lance Hudson, B.C. coach said: "The onus was on them. We had already cracked their defence and they should have played man to man or forfeit the game."

Morgan Wins Over Lightburn

CLEVELAND (AP) — Uranked L. C. Morgan of Youngstown, Ohio, floored Ludwig Lightburn with a hard right cross in the first round and went on to win an upset and unanimous decision over the British Honduras fighter in a lively 10-rounder at the Cleveland Arena Wednesday night.

Outweighed by a pound, L. C. Morgan, 136, made his powerful right a threat throughout the almost clinch-free battle.

In the ninth Lightburn landed a clean right-cross that dropped the Ohioan, but Morgan came up and drove across the ring scoring a strong offensive flurry. The victory for Morgan avenged his loss of a split decision to Lightburn here last September.

CARPENTIER WEDS

PARIS (AP) — Former world light heavyweight champion Georges Carpentier, the "Orchid Man" who fought Jack Dempsey in the first $1,000,000 gate, announced Wednesday he was married last month.

Carpentier, 63, but still trim and fit, took as his bride fashion mannequin Brigette Massis, a pretty blonde about half his age.

Junior Habs Put Aside Ottawa Club

OTTAWA (CP) — Montreal junior Canadiens reached the eastern Canada Memorial Cup hockey finals Wednesday night trimming Ottawa Shamrocks 6-2 before about 1,200 fans.

The win gave the Canadiens the best-of-three semi-final series in two straight games and sent them against the winner of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A.

Both teams had been in favor of extending the series to a best-of-five round because the winners would have a long lay-off before their next game. But Canadian Amateur Hockey Association officials decided to leave the series at the smaller number of games.

STARTED SLOWLY

The junior Habitants, winners of the Laurier Cup in competition from Ont. OHA teams, started slowly in the first period before they solved the losers' pass patterns.

Defenseman Claude Ruel opened the scoring at 14:29, drilling a knee-high slap shot past Roy Houlahan in the Shamrocks goal.

Ralph Backstrom and Gerry Willhelm raised the Canadiens' lead to 3-0 in the middle stanza. In the final period the winners upped their lead to 4-0 at 2:05 when Gerry Wilson took Bob Boucher's pass at centre ice and outskated his way through three Ottawa players to score.

Boucher and Forbes Kennedy shared the evening. Kennedy on a rink-length play with 55 seconds remaining.

The Montreal team held a distinct advantage in the shooting department as they peppered Houlahan with 34 shots, more than double the number Shamrocks had on Johnston.

Regina Loses To Flin Flon

FLIN FLON, Man. (CP)—Flin Flon Bombers upended Regina Pats a 1-0 first-period lead Wednesday night, then coasted to the premiership to whip the defending western junior hockey champions 5-2 and even their best-of-seven western Canada Memorial Cup semi-final at three games each.

Seventh and deciding game in the series will be played here tonight. Walt Tkaczuk, with two goals, Gordie Redahl, Bob Kortje and Ted Hampson were the Bomber marksmen. Bill Hicke and Bryan Whittal scored for the Pats.

Blues Need Little For Improvement Next Season

NEW YORK (CP)—Despite the 7-0 drubbing by Montreal Canadiens that knocked New York Rangers out of the National Hockey League playoff picture Tuesday night, general manager Muzz Patrick feels his club needs only a minor rebuilding job to improve next season.

"Right now I'd say we need a good, tough, digging centre and one or two good defencemen," Patrick said as the Rangers returned from Montreal after dropping their Stanley Cup semi-final series in five games. As an afterthought, he added a two-way right winger to the list.

Patrick admitted it would help a lot if one of the defencemen turned out to be "someone like Harvey." Doug Harvey seemed to be barring the way to the Canadien goal almost every time a Ranger wanted to take a shot at it during the series.

Patrick and coach Phil Watson said they had no serious complaint against Lorne Worsley's goaltending but agreed that they would like to find someone better.

Asked by a reporter if he would try to land Harry Lumley if Toronto Maple Leafs decided to replace him next season, Patrick replied: "You bet I'd take him."

Ranger officials conceded that they would have to trade for most of the material they need next season. The farm system isn't overstocked with promising defencemen.

Brilliant Rocket Rides High Each Point, Four New Records

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — Maurice (Rocket) Richard, who holds the record for most goals in a Stanley Cup game and has just tied the record for assists, adds to his store of his records every time he favours in a scoring play.

Two of these continuing records are Montreal Canadiens' brilliant right wing's share in playoff games alone; two are for regular-season plus playoffs.

Richard's five goals in a single cup game have stood as a record since March 23, 1944, when he scored all Montreal goals in a 5-1 defeat of Toronto Maple Leafs.

Toe Blake, now Canadiens' coach assisted on each goal for a record five assists. Tuesday night, when Canadiens defeated New York Rangers 5-4 and took the semi-final series four games to one, Richard equalled the assist mark.

IN STANLEY CUP

The Rocket now has scored 80 goals in Stanley Cup competition. He added three in the series with New 37 Get to be record-a record already held. He has played in 11 cup series in his 14 seasons of campaigning.

With 10 points—on three goals and seven assists—against the Rangers, Richard has run his record string of total points to 82, made up of 60 goals and 22 assists.

Starting this season, Richard had amassed 479 points—a record in regular-season games and playoffs. He scored 33 goals in the NHL campaign and three against Rangers, bringing his grand total to 520.

In the same way, he has pushed his total points to 82 from the former record of 80?. He had 71 points in the playoff season, on 38 goals and 33 assists, and 10 more in the Ranger series.

The Rocket is within shooting distance of two more records. In the five playoff games against Rangers, Richard's 10 points put him exactly halfway to the record 20 made by Gordie Howe of Detroit in 11 games in 1955.

With assists, Richard is even closer to another record. Elmer Lach, Richard's former linemate and now coach of Montreal Royals of the Quebec Hockey League, and Ted Lindsay of Detroit Red Wings jointly hold the record of 12 assists in playoff competition.

Spring Training Notes

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bob Porterfield is confident he is going to come up with a whale of a year and put Boston Red Sox in the thick of the American League pennant race.

Porterfield, obtained from Washington last November, has been great in exhibition games. He has won three, lost one and put together a 1.30 earned-run average, giving up only two walks and three earned runs in 18 innings. And with Ted Williams, Jackie Jensen and Sammy White on his side, there is little reason to doubt that Bob will improve on his 10-17 pitching record of last season.

The rub, however, is that he will have to steer clear of injuries. He managed to stay qualify for the title of the "unluckiest player in the majors" it is Mr. Porterfield.

Bob, now 31, came up to New York Yankees in 1946 with a fine reputation. The following year, Casey Stengel was ready to make him one of his frontline hurlers.

"But there was always something [illegible]," complained Casey, "sore arms, sore legs, sore head, always something sore."

OTHER SIDE

After that Porterfield came up with another fine season, including a fractured jaw and a concussion.

Last year with Senators he still was sore. But his new field manager Charley Dressen, who he claimed tried to change his pitching delivery. His performance with Boston so far, though, makes it appear that he's psychologically as well as physically sound.

Wednesday, Porterfield gave up only three hits and one run in six innings as Red Sox downed Washington 7-2. Jackie Jenson slammed his first homer of the season.

Injuries struck four players in the Yankees - Washington game, won 6-4 by Senators. This is the list:

Yankees—Mickey Mantle, pulled leg muscle; Billy Martin, bruised knee; Senators — Pete Runnels, bruised hand, Hal Griggs, bruised ankle. Bob Turley's pride was hurt too. He took the mound Wednesday of the Grapefruit League season, giving up all six Washington runs in six frames.

SIX HITS

Detroit Tigers, with rookie infielder Buddy Hicks getting six hits in six at-bats, defeated Philadelphia Phillies 15-5.

Stan Musial got three hits as St. Louis Cards shellacked Cincinnati Redlegs 13-4. Cards counted single tallies in each inning.

In other games, Pittsburgh Pirates pulled a "triple play' and got three runs batted in from Frank Thomson in beating Brooklyn Dodgers 5-2. Milwaukee Braves pounded Billy Pierce for four runs in the first inning and coasted to a 7-4 decision over Chicago White Sox. A grand-slam homer by Stu Locklin and a shut-out relief by Al Rosen enabled Cleveland Indians to nip Chicago Cubs 5-4. And homers by Dusty Rhodes and Willie Mays helped New York Giants to a 9-3 victory over Baltimore Orioles.

HONOR HOPMAN

MELBOURNE (AP) — Harry Hopman, captain-manager of the Australian Davis Cup team, was given a check for $7,000 ($15,750) Wednesday from tennis admirers in Australia.

The money was collected by the Harry Hopman Testimonial Fund in appreciation for Hopman's work in helping win back the Davis Cup from the United States.

Says Newcombe Threw 'Bean Ball' On Purpose

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP)—Willie Jones of Philadelphia Phillies charged Wednesday that Brooklyn pitcher Don Newcombe "deliberately" threw at him Tuesday when the third baseman was hit in the head by a pitched ball.

Jones, up and about though detained in hospital for further x-ray study, told baseball writer Frank Yeutter of the Philadelphia Bulletin "that big guy deliberately threw at me. He did it my first time up." Jones walked in the second after ducking two close pitches.

In the fifth, Jones was hit behind the left ear. He crumpled at the plate, bleeding from the ear. Newcombe shouted at the time, "Look out Willie," But Jones couldn't get out of the way. The Brooklyn pitcher said he threw a fast ball that slipped out of his fingers.

THREW CLOSE

Jones said Wednesday that in his first time at bat, "Newcombe threw close. Didn't knock me down but threw close enough to make me move out. He does it all the time during the regular season."

Dr. Raymond Lockwood issued this report on the infielder's condition:

"Jones' condition continues to improve and can be termed as generally satisfactory. He has a perforated eardrum which may have been caused yesterday or may be an old injury."

Blake Confident Habs Will Take Stanley Cup

MONTREAL (CP) — Coach Toe Blake of Montreal Canadiens feels confident his National Hockey League champions will add the Stanley Cup to their 1955-56 collection of silverware.

"The next series will be tougher" Blake said, "but I believe the Canadiens have a very good chance to take it."

The Canadiens will hold their first practice today in preparation for the Stanley Cup finals. They await the winner of the Detroit-Toronto semi-final.

The Canadiens came out of the Rangers series without an injury.

Student Skip Beats Veteran

MIDLAND (CP)—A young high school student skipped his mother, his dad, a friend and a lawyer to victory Wednesday in the main event of the Midland Curling Club bonspiel.

John Scott of Midland defeated veteran Curtis Perdue of Penetanguishene Falls to take the Orr Trophy in the mixed tournament. On his rink with Scott were Mrs. Marie Laliberte and Doug Haig.

OFFERED WIFU CONTRACT

VANCOUVER (CP) — George Wifu, Ontario Northern basketball team eliminated from the Olympic trials here, was offered a professional football contract when he left for his Toronto home.

Phil Webb, general manager of the British Columbia Lions, said Wednesday Stulac gave no indication whether he will accept the offer of the Western Interprovincial Football Union club.

Fixed Fight Score Now Stands at 16 Following Sensational Disclosures

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The boxing probe, which already has produced a fair amount of sensation, was due for further eruptions today with the scheduled appearance of matchmaker Babe McCoy before Gov. Knight's special investigating committee.

McCoy, reputed boss man of the game in this section, with connections all over the nation, has been confined to his apartment by illness since he appeared in a stormy session last week.

Chief investigator James Cox has centred his probe on McCoy, seeking to prove him the silent manager of a host of fighters along with his matchmaking duties at the Olympic auditorium.

He has been accused of arranging fixed fights and associating with known gamblers.

The alleged fixed fight score, not necessarily involving McCoy stood at around 16 today following new disclosures Wednesday.

Veteran Carlos Chavez led off Wednesday as a reluctant witness, finally admitting he had been personally took a dive in the first round of a bout with Art Aragon at the Olympic in November 1950.

Carlos claimed he was too "sick" to fight that night and there was no intimation that Aragon was in any way involved.

Later a second heavyweight, young Harry Wills, a voluntary witness, told the committee he threw a bout in Baltimore Jan. 22, 1951, on Jimmy Bivins. He said he repeated the act against Harry (Kid) Matthews at Spokane, Wash., Nov. 12, 1952.

Wills said his troubles really began in Baltimore Nov. 19, 1950, when he crossed up the fix-fight boys and outpointed Freddie Beshore, then hoping for a title shot.

Wills said Harry (Champ) Sebo of New York was Beshore's manage; and that it was Segal who approached him in Sullman's gym in New York and told him he could make "$4,000 or $5,000" if he went into the Baltimore fight.

Wills said, in effect, that people compared him and Beshore in Sullman's gymnasium and he decided not to lose the fight. From then on, Wills said, he had trouble getting fights.

Baseball Twins May Be Parted

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP)—Johnny and Eddie O'Brien, the Pittsburgh Pirate twins who form the only set-up combination in the major leagues, may be separated within a few months for the first time in their athletic careers.

Eddie admitted today that he can see the handwriting on the wall, but he said he does not mind going to the minors if he can play regularly. He and brother Johnny picked up an estimated $40,000 apiece for signing with the Pirates in March of 1953.

Under the major league bonus rule, the 26-year-old twins have to stay with the club two years. That period, with time out for the period spent in military service, expires in mid-summer.

Johnny is the better hitter of the twins. He had a .299 average last year to lead all the Pirates, playing 84 games at second base. At the moment he's fighting hard for the regular second base job.

Quebec Aces Edge Royals 2-1

QUEBEC (CP)—Quebec Aces, scoring twice in the opening period, went on to defeat Montreal Royals 2-1 Wednesday night and take a 3-1 stranglehold in their best - of - seven Quebec Hockey League semi-final. The Aces can wrap up the series tonight at Montreal.

Orval Tessier and Ludger Tremblay got the Quebec goals. Tremblay scored what proved to be the winner at 19:21 of the first on a breakaway while his club was shorthanded. Al Millar, acquired by the Aces from Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., of Northern Ontario Hockey Association, shone in the nets as Royals pressed in for the count. The goalie turned aside 31 drives in the second third while Gerry McNeil stopped five for the Royals. Each turned away 24 shots.

HOGAN ENTERS

FORT WORTH, TEX. (AP)—Ben Hogan Wednesday accepted his bid to play in the Colonial National invitation golf tournament here May 2-6. Hogan has won four of the previous Colonial events—in 1946, 1947, 1953 and 1953.

GLASGOW (Reuters)—Glasgow Rangers, Scottish League division A leaders, drew 3-3 with the Yugoslavian side, Dynamo, in a soccer match played here Wednesday night under lights. Dynamo led 2-1 at halftime.

Manager Takes Sock at Scribe

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Voluble Harvey Knox, manager of Art Aragon, observed the boxer's first win under his management by popping a suspension on the jaw.

It happened Tuesday night in the dressing room at Legion Stadium after Aragon knocked out Brooklyn's Sonny Giovanelli.

On the receiving end of the straight right was Bud Furillo of The Evening Herald-Express. He didn't swing back.

Other reporters present said the two exchanged words before Knox let fly. Furillo wasn't noticeably damaged and others stepped between the pair quickly. Knox later apologized.

Knox reportedly has been miffed at Furillo since the football season over stories the reporter wrote about him.

Combines Team Gets Support

KITCHENER (CP)—A proposal that senior baseball in Kitchener and Waterloo be reorganized on a 'Twin-city' basis found strong support at a meeting of local baseball officials Tuesday night.

Members of the Kitchener League branch baseball committee met with Ernie Gopman, manager of the old Waterloo Tigers in the Senior Intercounty Baseball League. Gopman is urging formation of a new Kitchener-Waterloo club.

The league committee said further meetings will be called before any decision is made. The committee said one stumbling block would be the necessity of paying off debts incurred by last year's club.

Canadian Juniors Whip Americans In Bird Tourney

TORONTO (CP) — An eastern Canada team Wednesday night defeated an American United States squad 11-8 in the first international junior badminton invitation tournament since 1932.

The teams were tied at seven each as they entered the night's final round but victories in four of five mixed doubles pets gave the Canadians the winning margin.

Both won their titles last Monday in Detroit.

Miss Stuart, a pretty, red-haired 17-year-old, easily won her set, trimming Ontario champion Jackie Stevens of Toronto 11-5, 11-3. McFarlane, however, was defeated 13-11, 15-8 by Harold Moodey of Montreal, twice winner of the Canadian championship.

Other results:

Borgnine, Suddenly a Big Star, Refuses to Act Like One

Editor's note: This is the last of three articles on Oscar winner Ernest Borgnine.

By BOB THOMAS

The actor lives with his wife Rhoda, her mother and his daughter Nancy, 3, in a middle-class neighborhood. He paid $23,500 for the seven-room San Fernando valley home. Although he can afford it now, he scoffed at the suggestion of moving to swanky Bel-Air.

"I don't like hills; that's why I moved out here," he laughed. "Besides, we just got this place last summer. I'm not moving anywhere."

When he isn't working, Ernie mows the lawn and cares for his rose bushes.

At night he can be found in front of the TV set—"I watch everything from w r e s t l i n g on up." Sometimes he goes out to a movie. But he has never been to Ciro's or Mocambo. His idea of a big evening is to go out to dinner with another couple or two and then dance to Freddy Martin's music at the Cocoanut Grove—"We do about every two or three months."

NO NITTY PARTIES

He has attended only one movie premiere, The Man with the Golden Arm, a movie never seen at the big Hollywood parties. A few personal friends are actors—Sterling Hayden, Jim Davis, Edward Franz. But most of his friends come from other walks of life.

Classy cars have long been the symbol of stardom in Hollywood. There again, Ernie refuses to conform. He drives a 1949 Pontiac and a 1951 Cadillac. He is somewhat apologetic about the latter, explaining that he picked it up second-hand at a terrific bargain.

The Borgnines have striven to keep the glamor of Hollywood away from their daughter. Judging from her reaction to the Oscar telecast, they have succeeded. When asked about it, she replied, "Oh, yes, I saw Mommy and Daddy on television," and changed the subject.

TESTING PENS?

"We have tried to explain to her that Daddy makes motion pictures and that's all there is to it," Ernie remarked. "Only once was she impressed to the fan routine. Once we were waiting between trains at Grand Central Station when we were going to visit my family in Connecticut.

"Some people came around and started asking for my autograph. Nancy didn't understand. She asked my wife, 'Is Daddy testing their pens for them?' "

Ernie hopes that not only his daughter but his friends as well are unaffected by his success.

"It's just a job," he reasoned. "When I'm not out in public, I want to be known as just one of the guys."

"Great Adventure" Highly Praised for Realism; Family Audiences

It is rare in the present era of motion pictures to find a film which can be classified as good family fare. Indeed, it is almost an unusual phenomenon when a picture meets the test of providing entertainment which is free from violence and yet is filled with action and healthy beauty.

Arne Sucksdorff's latest film, "The Great Adventure," which opens here at the Capitol Theatre tonight for a three-day engagement has been classified as just such entertainment by critics, educators, press groups and women's organizations across the country.

Written, produced, directed and photographed by the famed Swedish film-maker, Arne Sucksdorff "The Great Adventure" tells the story of his childhood on a Swedish farm and his first awakening to nature and the world around him.

So enthusiastically have mothers and women in general reacted to the film's constructive approach to nature, which Parents Magazine described as "forming a background of beauty for learning a year's allotment of life's lessons," that "The Great Adventure" was selected to be shown at the National Convention in Philadelphia of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

The PTA response is exemplified by the words of Mrs. Louis Buckland, Motion Picture Editor of the National Parent Teacher Magazine, who states: "The wonder which a great artist feels before nature is here translated into scenes of exquisite and unforgettable beauty . . . it is highly recommended for family audiences."

The second family attraction in technicolor "The Private War of Major Benson" stars Charlton Heston and Julie Adams. Special matinee Good Friday at 2.00 p.m.

BOYS FOUND GUILTY

TORONTO (CP)—Four 13-year-old boys who told a juvenile court they spent $1,300 in a three-week spree, Wednesday were found guilty of 12 break-ins and placed on probation. Their parents testified restitution of the $1,300 had been made.

AT THE CAPITOL — It's tough when a tough guy gets soft. Charlton Heston plays an ex-tough Hollywood actor, but that's Charlton Heston's tough situation in Soon (title The Savage in Universal-International's heart-warming Technicolor comedy, "The Private War of Major Benson," opening today at the Capitol Theatre. The action begins at top-speed. On the same program "The Great Adventure" featuring an all star cast. Special matinee Good Friday at 2.00 p.m.

AT THE BELLE — Soul Mates — Lana Turner and Richard Burton find a strange affinity, but "The Rains of Ranchipur" have yet to speak. Co-starred in the CinemaScope color drama now at the Belle are Fred MacMurray, Michael Rennie and Joan Caulfield.

AT THE McCARTHY — Marjorie Main realizes that her husband's brother, Arthur Hunnicutt, has some of the traits of Pa Kettle in this scene from "The Kettles in the Ozarks", latest in the series of Universal-International comedies, in which Miss Main has co-star, Opens today at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — There must be play as well as work, you know. And by play we mean healthy recreation, exercise and diversion to relax mind and nerves (never to waste time or energy). Logic!

August 24 to September 23 — (Virgo) — Influences generous. Both personal and business undertakings cast make appreciable headway. Sound investments, industry and government dealings have a fine outlook.

November 23 to December 11 — (Sagittarius) — There will be less to work over than appears at first glance. Once you have determined your course carefully, you can move ahead steadily and with little opposition.

December 22 to January 20 — (Capricorn) — Why should you discuss anything personal with anyone but those directly and properly involved? Don't be coerced into unwise commitments or plans, either. Tact and strict honesty needed.

February 20 to March 20 — (Pisces) — How many times have you said, "I meant to get this or that done!" Today begin with the will to do today what should be done today, and keep things in the order your true nature desires.

You born today are of the Sign Aries, the Ram. You have a gift for public matters, politics. Women of this Sign are usually romantic, enthusiastic, sometimes quite unexpectedly, the centre of "storms" men have equal enthusiasm, but of somewhat different character. By birth you are pioneers, leaders, magnanimous, not inclined to waste time with petty thoughts, though you can prove supersensitive at times. Don't let your fine courage ever become bravado, or your initiative overaggressiveness. Pray daily for tranquility, patience. Birthdate of: Paul Verlaine, French poet.

Doubtful Cardiograph Ends Colorful Flying Career

By WALTER GRAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP)—Roy Brown had piled up 15,000 flying hours before his doctor grounded him 18 months ago. Now he's a Liberal-Progressive member of the Manitoba legislature, speaking for his friends along the northern bush routes he once knew.

A doubtful cardiograph ended a colorful flying career for one of western Canada's aviation pioneers.

Today his mind is on things political but flying is still in his heart. Settled in an easy chair in a corner of his favorite club, he will take his listener on the first air mail delivery flights over the Prairies, on a freight run to a new mining discovery deep in the bush country, or over the windy barrens on a mercy mission.

Names that created air legends—Hollick-Kenyon, Dickins, Bishop—creep into his reminiscences. They were his flying buddies.

YOUNG BIKE RACER

He was born on a farm at Stockton, Man., in 1896. His family moved to Winnipeg 10 years later. Roy and his bicycle soon became a familiar sight around town. He won the western Canada championship two years later in 1914.

"I still have a racing bike parked in the hangar at Stevenson field." he said. "The tires are all pumped up and ready to go." During the summer months he can be seen pedalling leisurely around the airfield.

The First World War broke out and Roy, just a month short of his 18th birthday, enlisted in the cycle corps.

He served for 30 months in France, was wounded as an infantryman in 1916. The following year he was sent back to England and joined the Royal Flying Corps. After six weeks' instruction—the only air instruction he ever took—he returned to France and fought the war behind the stick of a Camel fighter.

DINNED IN BELGIUM

In Sept. 28, 1918, he was on patrol over Belgium when German anti-aircraft opened fire.

"They sprinkled me a little," he grinned.

The fighter plane dropped on the lip of a Belgian trench. Some Belgian artillery men extricated him from the wreckage and put him in an ambulance with a minor shrapnel wound in the leg.

Brown was sent back to England where he was finally discharged in 1919. For four years he worked with the civil service—"I'd just as soon forget that part of my life"—and married Edith Peverette. They sailed for Canada in April, 1923, shortly after their marriage.

They have two daughters, Mrs. Nola McDonald, 28, and Georgia, 21, both living in Winnipeg.

Brown brought some confusion with him. He was always being mistaken for the late Roy Brown of Carleton Place, Ont., the Canadian fighter ace who shot down the German aviator Baron von Richthofen.

BECAME BUSH PILOT

On his return to Winnipeg Mr. Brown got a job with the Canadian National Railways as a switchman and for another four years he stayed on the ground. But the taste for flying remained and in 1927 he signed as a bush pilot with Western Canada Airways.

He spent two years flying out of The Pas and Flin Flon, working the Fokker Standard, a single-engine plane with open cockpit and enclosed cabin for four in front. Those were the first boom years for northern Manitoba with the Sherridon and Flin Flon mining developments.

Then in 1929 Roy was one of a group of pilots who became famous. The late Col. C. D. H. Mac-Alpine and seven members of a mining party that set out to explore the Arctic coast were missing for 24 days.

The ensuing successful search attracted world - wide attention. Eight bush pilots, including Brown, C. H. (Punch) Dickins, H. Hollick-Kenyon and A. D. (Andy) Cruikshank, took part in the hunt over northern Manitoba and Saskatchewan and the North West Territories.

HARDENED IN NORTH

The pilot flew over uncharted country, guided mainly by instinct and trusting to luck. Roy's luck was bad. He smashed a wing and sat for 15 days on Aylmer lake just below the Arctic circle before he and the two mechanics with him were picked up by another plane.

That same year, Winnipeg stockbroker James Richardson absorbed Western Canada Airways into his newly-formed Canadian Airways. Mr. Richardson was awarded the first air mail contract for western Canada and for the next two years Roy flew the mail route from Winnipeg to Regina, Medicine Hat, Saskatoon, Edmonton and Calgary.

The pilots flew through all kinds of weather without the aid of radio or navigational aids.

"Oh, we had the odd beacon spotted here and there, but that was about it."

The mail contract ran out in 1932 and Roy was transferred to Lac du Bonnet, 60 miles north of Winnipeg.

SERVED LONELY AREAS

In July, 1934, Brown and three friends—Milt Astley, Ted Stull and Jack Moar—decided to go into the flying business for themselves and formed Wings Limited.

From Lac du Bonnet, Wings Limited fanned its operations over northwestern Ontario and northern Manitoba, and for seven years the company's planes provided the lifeline to civilization for thousands of trappers, fishermen, hunters and miners.

Wings Limited was bought by the CPR in 1941 to become part of Canadian Pacific Airlines. Ashton and Brown remained under a five-year contract with CPA in an executive capacity but Roy took leave of absence to become a test pilot at Stevenson field.

As the only civilian test pilot in Winnipeg during the Second World War, Roy tested 2,475 planes during a four-year period, flying everything from a Tiger Moth to a Hurricane.

He reported back to CPA in 1945 to complete his contract. Then he embarked on a new venture. He and Ashton, along with D. L. (Tubby) Ormond and George Sellers formed Central Northern Airways, operating over the same territory as Wings Limited did earlier. Roy was vice president in charge of operations and continued to fly until 1954 when a medical checkup showed a weakening heart.

ENTERED POLITICS

For years his friends in the north country had suggested he run for a legislature seat but it wasn't until 1953 that he decided to give politics a whirl.

He ran as a Liberal-Progressive in the 1953 Manitoba election and was elected member for Rupert's Land. The riding, second largest in the province, stretches 600 miles from Lake Winnipeg to Hudson Bay.

His speeches in the House are like a tourist's guide to the north country. He speaks of his metis and Indian friends, the trappers and the traders, the potential resources of his virgin constituency.

But once in a while he'll slip out of the legislative buildings to the airfield and get one of the younger fellows to take him up for a spin, just for the memory of it all.

FOOD SHORTAGE REPORTED

WINNIPEG (CP) — Officials of the Manitoba health and welfare department and the Red Cross announced Wednesday they will investigate reports that about 60 families at Duck Bay, Man., were short of food and other vital supplies. The reports followed a fire Monday that destroyed a general store at the Lake Winnipegosis village. Store-owner Abe Sanofsky had supplied food and supplies on credit.

REUTHER COMMENTS

NEW YORK (AP)—Walter P. Reuther, president of the United Automobile Workers, Wednesday called efforts of present Russian leaders to disown the Stalin regime "one of the cleverest maneuvres in the history of world politics." "I don't think it will fool a press conference.

Moscow Radio Says Russia Accepts U.S. 'Sky' Plan

Soviet Proposes 3-Months Arms Freeze, Cuts in Armies

LONDON (AP) — Moscow radio said today that Russia has accepted the basic idea of the American "open skies" aerial inspection plan, and has proposed a three-months arms freeze to be followed by all-round cuts in conventional arms and armies.

Meanwhile, all hydrogen-weapon tests would be banned.

The Russian proposal, as outlined by the official Soviet news agency, Tass, calls for immediate agreement on reducing conventional armaments. Moscow says this step "will facilitate agreement on prohibition of atomic and thermonuclear weapons and their removal from national armaments."

Russia made its proposal at the five-power United Nations disarmament talks in London, now closing their second week. The United States, British, France and Canada also are represented.

GIVES DETAILS

The news agency gave these details:

A three-months freeze on arms and armaments at the Dec. 31, 1955, level.

After three months, the U. S., Russia and Red China would begin cutting their armed forces to a level of 1,000,000 to 1,500,000 men each, British and France to 650,000 each. The reductions would be completed in 1958.

Corresponding reductions in conventional armaments and military appropriations.

Creation of an international control agency to check on "fulfillment of obligations" of the troop and airfields, army bases and depots and munitions factories. The agency could make recommendations to the UN Security Council on the measures of preventing and stopping the actions of violators of the agreement."

BUFFER ZONE

An immediate ban on thermonuclear tests.

A ban on atomic weapons in Germany.

Creation of a "zone of limitation" in a section of Europe including East and West Germany. Big Four powers to agree on how many troops they could station "on territories of the other states in this zone."

Non-interference to settle the question of Red China's armed forces, with Communist China a participant.

Tass quoted the Russian plan on controls:

"When confidence between the states-in-this connection considered, the countries concerned will examine the possibility of using aerial photography on the basis of principles of control."

It is proposed that funds released as a result of these measures should be used both for raising the standard of the people of the aforesaid states and for rendering assistance to economically undeveloped countries for which purpose a special fund is to be created under the control of the United Nations," Tass said.

FIRST JOINT PARADE

BONN (Reuters) — British and German troops will march to the Rhine on what is believed to be their first joint parade since 1902, for a North Atlantic treaty corps which they next Wednesday in which Canadian units will take part. A German band and a handful of officers will take part in the parade, one of a series of NATO's northern army group at Duesseldorf to celebrate the seventh anniversary of the foundation of the alliance.

CANADIANS TOLD RECOGNITION OF RED CHINA OUT

Eisenhower Emphatic In Talk With P.M.

By GEORGE KITCHEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (CP)—President Eisenhower is reported to have stated—in emphatic terms—to Canadian leaders that American public opinion will not permit either recognition of Red China or its admission to the United Nations.

Diplomatic sources said Friday night that the Red Chinese question arose at a meeting at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Tuesday between Eisenhower and Prime Minister St. Laurent and their foreign ministers—Dulles for Secretary Dulles and External Affairs Minister Pearson.

Pearson was understood to have told Eisenhower and Dulles that he did not believe Canadian public thinking was quite along the same lines.

(In Ottawa Friday night, Pearson declined comment on the Washington report, which had said in addition that he had told Eisenhower and Dulles that Canadian public opinion was becoming impatient with the present state of affairs.)

FIRMLY OPPOSED

(He did say, however, that recognition of Red China had been discussed at the White Sulphur Springs meeting, but that each country's position on recognition remained unchanged.)

Informants here emphasized that the discussion was friendly, with each side explaining its stand on the issue.

Eisenhower said many American people "are disgusted by recognition of a government whose hands are dripping with the blood of Americans killed in Korea."

Further indications here are that Eisenhower was stating not necessarily his own view, but that of the American public.

ASSURANCES GIVEN

The Canadians are reported to have assured the American leaders that Canada does not plan any change in its policies of opposing Communist China.

Pearson's visit to Washington was the first of a succession of visits by Canadian leaders to the United States.

Retired Minister Leaves Estate Of $74,537

NAPANEE (CP)—A retired Anglican minister who died here two years ago left an estate of $74,537, his will showed when filed for probate Thursday.

Rev. Preston Scott spent most of his active career in the Algoma district, 70 miles west of Sault Ste. Marie, before retiring to this city, 25 miles west of Kingston.

Most of the estate was in bonds and debentures. More than $40,000 of it is to be divided equally between the Anglican missions at Amherst Island, Mr. Scott's birthplace, and Bath, in Lennox county.

10-Year-Old Boy Tries For $20,000 On Big Surprise

(By CHARLES MERCER)

NEW YORK (AP) — Friends and associates of Leonard Ross back home in California will be interested in knowing he's conducting himself with dignity during his New York stay, winning impressing officials with his wide knowledge of investments and amazing employees with his ability to read ticker symbols for scores of stocks.

His suggestions on what to buy and what to sell are so persuasive that it probably would be unfair to the market equilibrium to report them. But the most persuasive thing about him is that he is 10 years old and hasn't the slightest intention of ever becoming a broker.

Leonard is angling for a job as a newspaper columnist.

"It's simply an interest," he says. "I've been interested in investments since I was 7. My father is an accountant and has a few small investments. Listening to him talk, I became interested and began following the market."

If not high finance, what does he think a column some day?

"I'd like to go into politics," Leonard said.

Having skipped three grades thus far, Leonard finds himself in upper seventh in junior high school. His favorite subject here is math. His greatest aversion is the gymnasium.

Leonard's mother, Mrs. William Ross, a fashion consultant, accompanied him to New York. His school principal said he was sure Leonard wouldn't have any trouble making up lost school time.

Today's Chuckle

The little boy peered over the edge of the stationery counter in the dime store, and asked hopefully: "Have you got any black report cards?"

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis: It is still cool in Ontario this morning and much of the time skies are cloudy with occasional light snowflurries. Temperatures today will be much the same as yesterday reaching the high 30s in the afternoon in southern Ontario and a little below freezing in the north.

There seems no prospect of any balmy air arriving for Easter. Temperatures may be a little higher on Sunday but as the day proceeds sunshine will give way to cloud. By evening there is the threat of rain or snow reaching the southern areas as a low pressure area develops in Kansas or Missouri.

Maritimes In For More Snow Easter Sunday

HALIFAX (CP) — Maritimers were promised snowflurries for Easter Sunday as they continued to shovel snow from the Good Friday storm which brought the 30-inch snowfall to within a fraction of the all-time record.

A storm accompanied by 35-mile-an-hour winds dumped ice pellets, sometimes mixed with rain, on inches of snow on parts of Nova Scotia Friday.

Halifax had 130.1 inches of snow this winter, just 1-10th of an inch short of the record 130.2 set in 1917-18. The fall in an average winter is 70 inches.

The storm, 20th of the season, brought traffic over glazed highways to a crawl, delayed trains and cancelled airline flights in Nova Scotia. New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island missed most of it.

New French 'Get to Grips' Tactics Result in Heavy Losses for Rebels

ALGIERS (Reuters) — French over rebel-ridden areas near Oran, forces killed 137 rebels and captured 40 during Friday in some of the bloodiest fighting since the rebellion first flared up in Algeria in November, 1954, according to reports reaching here today.

The new "get to grips" tactics ordered by the French high command brought into action helicopter-borne commandos, light infantry columns with devastating fire power, artillery directed by spotter aircraft, and close-support strafing by fighter planes.

Glorious Pageantry Marks Easter Throughout the World

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Christian world is waiting for Sunday's dawn as a symbol of Christ's resurrection from the dead on Easter morning.

Easter, for Christians the world over, is a season of joy after the days of Lenten fasting, a day of light and triumph after the darkness of sorrow of Calvary, a day to rid statues of their sombre purple shrouds and proclaim Christ's majesty in glorious pageantry.

From Jerusalem to Rome, from New York's Fifth avenue to the Grand Canyon and Hollywood Bowl, from Radio Free Europe transmitters to remote regions behind the Iron Curtain, Easter will be celebrated with sunrise services, solemn high masses, triumphant music, colorful processions and inspiring ritual.

For the world of children, it is a day of chocolate eggs, of Easter bunnies and gaily decorated baskets, of rolling and coloring eggs.

And for the world of fashion, it is the day of the famed Easter parade, a parade that has no bands but is loud with the flamboyance of style.

Roman Catholic and some Protestant denominations will herald the Easter season with special Holy Saturday services based on the vigil before the tomb and the triumph of light over darkness, another symbol of the resurrection.

Roman Catholic services will be held in the evening, for the first time since the Middle Ages, and begin in a darkened church with-the celebrant lighting the new fire and blessing the huge Easter candle, which is from the fire.

The services were switched from morning to evening by a recent Vatican decree ordering a return to the ancient ritual as a convenience to absent worshippers.

Pilgrims will travel by plane and train, car and foot—even by skilifts—to mountain tops for Easter sunrise services.

The ski lift will transport worshippers to sunrise services atop Aspen peak in Colorado. Other sunrise ceremonies will be held on the rim of the Grand canyon in Arizona, atop Pike's peak near Denver, Colo., in a wooden grove near natural bridge, Va., and at the Orange Bowl in Miami, the Hollywood Bowl in Los Angeles and in hundreds of other stadiums and auditoriums throughout the United States.

The 900 villagers of Gandenhuten, Ohio, will greet the dawn to the music of a trombone choir caroling through the village by ancient Moravian Church sunrise ceremonies. Young married couples will serve the traditional free breakfast of Moravian sugar cakes and coffee. The service dates back to 1732, when newly Christianized Indians were invited to participate in an Easter celebration.

Easter fires will leap in the hills around Fredericksburg, Texas, marking an a century-old tradition that began when early German immigrants built fires to commemorate a peace treaty with the Indians.

Authorities Fear 'Dangerous Trouble' in Detroit Milk Strike

DETROIT (AP) — New and possibly dangerous trouble appeared brewing Friday in Michigan's week-old milk strike, which has cut deeply into supplies of this city of more than 2,000,000.

Governor G. Mennen Williams took cognizance of the situation in a warning that "no group of private citizens has any right to interfere with the free use of the roads or to constitute themselves into a private police force to enforce their use of the roads."

The governor's warning followed reports that non-striking farmers were contemplating moving milk trucks by force to Detroit processing plants.

Strikers insisted they would keep up their picketing squeeze to force the farmer's price of milk from $4.41 to $6.50 a hundredweight, come what may. Standard milk now retails in Detroit at 22 cents a quart in stores and 23 cents delivered.

Both strikers and non-strikers are members of the Michigan Milk Producers Association. The-court strikers, however, recently formed themselves into the Fair Farm Bargaining Association, expressing dissatisfaction with the association's bargaining, but not withdrawing.

Both groups agree that farmers aren't getting enough for milk in relation to work and production costs involved.

The new association began picketing two Detroit creameries on Monday to support price demands.

Williams, told of the situation, said he would call out state police if necessary to keep the highways open for milk deliveries, but added that "they will not be used as strike-breakers, and they will not take sides in the dispute."

Some milk trucks moved down Detroit streets under police escort Friday.

Crowds Crying Name of Stalin Block Main Street of Tiflis

HELSINKI (Reuters) — Crowds crying the name of Stalin blocked the main street of Tiflis, capital of the Georgian republic, when a Finnish concern performers said Friday on their return from Russia.

But they said the crowds were good-natured and there were no clashes with police or riots.

Mailo Kuusola, Finnish opera singer, said she arrived in Tiflis on March 6 with two of her countrymen, Finnish pianist Teppo Valota and his brother, Cellist Aako Valota, to give a concert. This was shortly after Stalin had been denounced at the Soviet party's 20th congress in Moscow.

The Georgian republic was Stalin's birthplace.

Tepani Valota said "When we got back to Moscow on our way home we heard that there had been clashes and riots in Tiflis, but we saw none whatsoever and only saw thousands of cheering demonstrators moving freely through the streets.

"They gathered in columns of about 200 and marched one after another through the streets. Even though they stopped the traffic, the authorities did not intervene in any way."

DEPT. RELEASES GIRL 14, FROM TRAINING SCHOOL

Had Been Confined For Incorrigibility

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Shirley Uzelac of St. Catharines, 14-year-old Yugoslavian girl, was released Friday night from the Galt training school where she has been detained as an incorrigible since last November.

Mr. and Mrs. Austin drove to Galt to pick up Shirley and then took her to their home here, where she will stay.

THEY WANT HER

"She'll be one of the family, and we'll be sort of to have her just as long as she wants to stay with us," he said. "If necessary, we'll fight to keep her."

The girl—arrived from Yugoslavia a few with an aunt two years ago. She was committed to the training school by a court last November when her aunt charged her with incorrigibility.

Minister of Reform Institutions Foote of Ontario ordered the girl's release following a protests by schoolteachers and friends here.

Until Shirley is 18 or the school decides otherwise, she will remain a ward of the school — a form of probation.

Leslie Austin, principal of Edith Cavell school, said Ruth Bentley, superintendent of the training school, notified him at 5 p. m. that Shirley would be released to leave immediately.

Mr. Austin said he was satisfied justice had been done in Shirley's case.

"I'm glad she's been given the chance to grow up to be the kind of Canadian we think she will be.

"But we do hope that in future, parents will help with the task of looking after the children who can't look after themselves and will face up to their responsibilities and make sure this kind of thing doesn't happen again."

GIRL SURPRISED

Shirley had no knowledge of the decision, Mrs. Austin and Madge Hannahson, assistant principal, were making to have her case reviewed until Friday afternoon when she was called to the superintendent's office.

There, Miss Bentley told her of Mr. Foote's decision and asked her if she would be happy to go with Mr. Austin.

"I said that was OK by me," she smiled.

Three hours later, in a new dress given by the Ontario government, Shirley had her first meal outside the school since she was committed.

British Throw Cordon Around Cyprus Monastery

NICOSIA (AP) — British troops today threw a cordon around a monastery outside this Cyprus capital and began a hunt for arms, which authorities say has been concealed as soldiers searched building by building.

The Greek Orthodox Church building, known as the Kykko monastery, is the headquarters of Archbishop Makarios, the acting ethnarch of Cyprus, Bishop Athinos. He is under house arrest after the British authorities called Archbishop Makarios in a move against the Cyprus campaign to unite this east Mediterranean island Greece.

Bishop Antimos conducted a Lenten service on Friday night and prepared the present situation on Cyprus with "the heroic days of the Greek struggle of the Greeks against the Turks."

Rumored Stalin Shot and Killed Second Wife, Nadia

British Foreign Office Spokesman Releases Story

LONDON (Reuters) — Rumors that Joseph Stalin shot and killed his second wife, Nadia, have reached the British foreign office from Moscow, a foreign office spokesman said today.

The spokesman was commenting on reports that Soviet authorities are alleging Stalin was responsible for the death of Nadia in 1932. Her death was hitherto attributed to suicide or illness.

The statement that Stalin killed Nadia is said to be contained in a long letter from the central committee of the Soviet Communist party on the current Kremlin campaign denouncing Stalin's dictatorial rule.

This letter, the reports state, now is being read to party meetings throughout the Soviet Union.

EARLY MARRIAGE

Stalin married his second wife, whose full name was Nadezhda Alliluyeva, during the Russian civil war which followed the 1917 revolution. She was then said to be 19 and he 40.

She died in November, 1932, after a rumored quarrel with Stalin on matters of Soviet policy. The central committee letter to local party meetings — said to take three hours to read — follows the reported attack on Stalin by Communist party leader Nikita Khrushchev during the recent 20th party congress meeting in Moscow last month.

Stalin's first wife was Katerina Svandize, who died after bearing him one son, Jacob. Jacob was said to have never got on well with his father and his fate since the war has been shrouded in mystery. One report said he died as a German prisoner.

Stalin has two children by Nadia —Vassili, now nearing 40, a wartime air force colonel, and Svetlana, a buxom redhead said to have been her father's favorite. Until this year it was reported she was teaching at Moscow University. Little has been heard of Vassili since his father's death in 1953.

Britain May Gain France As Ally in Arms Deal

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Times says the United States will raise no objection if Britain joins in a France deal to arm Israel.

In a dispatch from Washington, the Times says Britain now is "disenchanted" with Egyptian Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser, and fears he may use his military power to start a war in the Middle East.

From the British point of view, the Times says, the sale of arms to Israel makes sense as a means of restoring the balance in that tense area. Egypt began receiving Soviet-bloc arms last summer.

The Times says Washington is becoming increasingly skeptical of Nasser's motives but is not ready to go as far as Britain. However, the state department would not oppose sales to Israel by Britain, France or Italy.

Reliable sources in Paris reported Friday that France has begun the delivery of 12 Mystere jet interceptor planes to Israel with tacit American consent.

All But Four Houses Have Been Prorogued

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canada's provincial legislatures today joined other citizens in a well-earned rest. All but four houses have been prorogued.

Only the Newfoundland, Nova Scotia, Manitoba and Saskatchewan legislatures remain in session, all recessed for the weekend. Saskatchewan members return to their desks Monday, the rest Tuesday.

Three houses—Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick and Alberta—were prorogued Thursday. The Ontario session ended Tuesday, British Columbia March 3 and Quebec several weeks ago.

Both New Brunswick and Quebec now anticipate provincial elections in June.

Premier Flemming declined to name an election date before the New Brunswick house was prorogued but said it will be called before the next few months. Observers predicted a late June date.

The Quebec election is expected about the same time.

AGREE ON PLAN

COPENHAGEN (AP) — Union delegates have employers agreed Friday on a compromise plan for settlement of a strike of 70,000 Danish workers.

The strike began March 19 with a walkout by metal, transport and building workers and quickly spread among other industries. The strikers demanded general wage increases and a reduction of the work week from 48 to 44 hrs. Government estimates said the strike meant a loss of 120,000,000 kroner ($1,900,000) daily in industrial income.

Cost Accountants Hold Meeting

Members of the Bay of Quinte Chapter of the Society of Industrial and Cost Accountants held their annual meeting at the Queens Hotel. Members were present from Belleville, Trenton, Belawa and Deloro.

Guest speaker for the evening was Harry A. Brown, of R. L. Crane Ltd., Ottawa, who explained the "Integrated Data Processing" procedure of office operation. A short business session was conducted by Chairman L. G. Lennox of Stewart Warner Corporation. The speaker was introduced by W. A. Lockley of Deloro.

30 Rebel Chiefs Pledge to Obey Sultan's Order

RABAT, Morocco (Reuters) — Thirty Berber rebel chiefs, all heavily armed, knelt before Sultan Mohammed Ben Youssef Friday and pledged to obey his order for Moroccan peace.

The dramatic scene in the imperial palace here foreshadowed the end of the rebellion in this North African territory which in the last three years has seen greater outbreaks of violence than in either of the neighboring French lands of Algeria and Tunisia.

Dressed in flowing robes held in by thick leather belts, the 30 rebel leaders came in from the mountains. They had sent word ahead that their hit-and-run war against French forces since last October was at an end, thanks to a French promise of Moroccan independence.

Some of the chieftains clutched sub-machine-guns. Others had revolvers swinging from their belts. Upon being received by the sultan, they formed a semi-circle around him and fell to their knees in homage.

An enormous crowd outside the palace gates lined the route which the sultan takes to Friday prayers at a nearby mosque. They were unaware of the peace scene proceeding inside. After the audience, the 30 chiefs were ushered out a side door as a precaution against demonstrations.

Dutch Immigrant Gives Self Up After Hitting Pedestrian

TRENTON (Special) — Object of a country-wide police hunt Dutch immigrant, Antone Dykstra, 36, of Stirling, father of three children, gave himself up to Trenton police yesterday 12 hours after Lewis Stewart, 54, of Frankford, suffered a leg broken in two places, multiple cuts and bruises, when he was struck by a car while walking on Highway No. 33 at the southern limits of Frankford early Saturday night. Dykstra is being held in the local cellblock with bail set at $500.

Stewart, walking south, was thrown through the air and apparently his head hit the post at the left side of the windshield. The impact smashed the left headlight and crumpled the fender.

Police said Dykstra, charged with failing to remain at the scene of an accident, admitted he was afraid to stop because he didn't want his wife to know anything had happened. He was driving to Trenton with his family and a neighbor woman in the car.

Stewart, out of work, was on the highway headed for Batawa to visit his son-in-law. He said he was wearing dark clothes. It was misty at the time and the roadway was dark, they reported.

Frankford police constable Ed. McGeschy, making the investigation, found shattered glass on the road and set off a widespread search for a car with a broken headlight.

Stewart was treated at the scene by Dr. D. McMullen, then rushed to Trenton Memorial Hospital by Weaver's Ambulance. Last night the hospital reported his condition unchanged.

Dykstra came to Canada three years ago. He works at Springbrook north of Stirling.

Easter Bunny Given Royal Welcome by 3,000 Children

After today Belleville can go on record as the first city in the Dominion to brought the yearly flood of children's fantasy up to date by projecting it into the air age.

This morning the city's Easter Bunny arrived by air.

The traditional part of the Easter holiday setting for the city, the Easter Bunny, who is brought to town annually by Carson Elliott, local businessman, has been arriving annually by conventional railroad train.

Shortly after 10 a.m. this morning a large crowd of children of all ages, gathered under bright, chilly skies at the grounds.

Out of the sky and down toward the crowd a passenger swiftly dropped. Within a moment it had touched down on the Collegiate grounds and waddled to a stop beside the crowd of excited, cheering suspects, counting their necks and the better to see as the door in the side of the plane opened.

Out jumped the Bunny, climaxing for many of the children a lengthy hour wait on the grounds.

An estimated crowd of 3,000 children, not counting adults, flocked to the Collegiate grounds for the event.

A large area in the centre was roped off for the helicopter's landing. Members of the Belleville fire department, who helped police the grounds had their hands full keeping the crowd clear of the small fry impatiently waited for the hour to arrive.

During the wait the crowd was entertained by the Quinte Highland Band and the antics of several clowns scattered through the crowd.

The helicopter appeared from the northwest end of the city shortly after 10 a.m. The pointing finger of Carson Elliott on the school steps sparked a new uproar from the moppets as the craft came into sight.

It passed overhead in evernarrowing circles until it was over the southeast corner of the school, then, dropped gently down. Piloted by Paul Ostrander of Toronto, the craft touched earth without a tremor.

An official welcoming party led by Mayor Forrester, and including Mr. Elliott, police inspector J. C. Hayes, fire chief Gerald Vance, went forward to meet the Bunny. The party was escorted by a special guard of honor, colorfully dressed in bright scarlet tunics with polished Sam Browne belts and swords.

An official greeting was extended the Bunny by the mayor immediately he stepped from the cockpit.

With the Bunny was 10-year-old Sharon Hayes, a pretty little handicapped Belleville girl who has been associated with the Easter Seals drive in this area for a number of years.

After the welcome ceremony over, the Bunny was escorted to a specially decorated buggy at the edge of the grounds and prepared to be escorted through the streets. Led by the pipers the buggy was followed by guardsmen and an open convertible containing Mayor Forrester and Sharon.

The parade wended its way down Church Street, Victoria Avenue and onto Front Street to Mr. Elliott's store. There, for hundreds of small fry, came the climax to the entire morning with the Bunny's arrival on the scene by the rabbit.

Aiding Mr. Elliott in the Bunny's visit this year were: John H. Bush Ambulance Service, Emerald Keet, reveller; the Belmont Restaurant and Elliott Motors Convex.

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters) — More than 100 persons were injured and 12 children trampled underfoot by spectators who panicked at the Sydney Royal Easter show today when a steer ran wild. The frightened animal had managed to jump over a safety fence and careened into the crowd of about eight minutes before being recaptured and returned to the ring.

He who has drunk his cup of sorrow shall drink the wine.
Still he lingers about our world, Unseen, to speak,
Smiling happily all the while,
At the wisdom of the meek.
—Sleeping in the dust of the earth all this glorious Easter morning.
1st Corinthians, 15:20-22:

CATCHING WORMS

Catching earthworms is quite an art. Have you ever watched a robin at it, or tried to do it yourself?

Once patches of lawn show between mounds of snow, these birds return to Canada, for they know that this is a sure sign that food awaits them. They are much more expert than most fishermen, though whose fingers worms slide and neatly vanish into the earth. With head cocked sideways so that a tiny ear hole is near the ground, the robin listens for the stirring of a worm deep down, and as soon as it appears above the surface a long, yellow bill grabs it, and yanks it out.

At this season robins need to be proficient at this game, because there is little else but worms for them to eat before insects and fruits are available. Their nestlings also are fed worms when ever the supply is sufficient, and one family is able to make away with a careful in no time.

Many kinds of birds like worms, but perhaps the most appreciative species is the woodcock. Although a few crows, grosbeakers and so on are occasionally added for variety, the chief diet is worms of various types, with the earthworm given precedence.

Besides locating their prey by hearing, woodcocks seem to feel the worms under their feet.

They make their home where the soft, damp soil is found, suitable for worms; and their very long, compressed bills are especially designed for probing into moist earth to a depth of three inches.

These bills are unique, the lower section being shorter than the upper, into which it fits at the tip. The upper half also is peculiar, because it can be flexed like one of our fingers. Sometimes the presence of woodcocks in a district is given away by the many little round holes made by their bills. Although classed as a shore bird, a woodcock cannot live on shores where the ground is not porous enough for earthworms.

The eyes of a woodcock are placed in a unusual position—far farther back and higher in the head than the eyes of other birds. Mother Nature arranged this so that it would be possible to poke the ground simultaneously with watch out for the approach of a possible enemy. Somebody jokingly gave the reason for this oddity as "so as not to get mud in them!"

Woodcocks generally migrate as individuals rather than in flocks. They travel by night, flying very low. When the earth has thawed out enough for them to dig, they get back here, and soon start housekeeping—often before the end of March.

WHO WAS THIS?

By A. A. M.

To whom did God give the benedictions:

"The Lord bless you and keep you:

The Lord make his face to shine upon you,

And be gracious to you;

The Lord lift up his countenance upon you, and give you peace."

This blessing comes at the conclusion of a chapter in the Old Testament describing how a Nazarite should live. The Nazarite was to separate himself from others and live holy unto the Lord. He was to refrain from wine or strong drink and not cut his hair. Directions were given as to offerings and gifts to the Lord in the temple.

But his blessing, which has been repeated countless times in churches throughout the whole world, was not just for the Nazarites. God said after he had given this benediction, "So shall my name be put upon the people of Israel, and I will bless them."

You will find this man's name to whom God Spoke and read about the Nazarite in the Sixth Chapter of Numbers.

A Lift for Living

Easter Confirms Faith

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

On Easter morning some of my friends use their radios to follow the sunrise religious services across the continent. Beginning with the Atlantic seaboard, they listen to the Easter music and messages as the dawn moves westward across the Mississippi and the Rockies to the Pacific. The experience must be richly rewarding.

In a way, too, it is deeply symbolic, for since World War I men have spoken of death as "going west." When a soldier was cut down on the fighting fields of France, his comrades would say, "He went west." In no other words has death been expressed more poetically or imaginatively. The west means the land of the setting sun, but the sun sinks below one horizon only to rise above another.

Now we cannot change the thought of death from sunset to sunrise by the turn of a poetic phrase, nor can we gain the radiant awareness of eternal life by tuning in on an Easter religious service. But one thing we can do. We can be introduced here and now to the Eternal Comrade of that westward road, the One of who Clement of Alexandria said, "Christ changes all our sunsets into dawns."

If we cultivate the comradeship of the Christ, if we try to follow His teachings, if we learn to like the things He liked, we shall feel towards Him as did the author of the Epistle to the Hebrews, when in his seventh chapter he calls Christ a "priest made . . . after the power of an endless life."

In Christ we see the kind of life which frees us from the limitations of time. Jesus seems so independent of time. When we listen to His words, we never think whether He was 30 or 60, whether He lived in the first century, or the twentieth. He was not dated by the calendar or timed by the clock.

Some time ago I was called to conduct a funeral service in an undertaking establishment on a very busy street of my city. All the proceedings were timed with clock-like precision. Everything had to click because the room had to be cleared for the next service. Outside could be heard the roar of traffic, as people hurried to keep appointments.

But all had some experiences so engrossing that we became oblivious to time? Have we not discovered that hours spent with loved ones flash by with never a look at the clock, while hours spent in a hospital corridor awaiting the outcome of a serious operation drag by on leaden feet?

NEARNESS OF HEAVEN

Yes, there is a quality of life which is independent of its quantity. And that quality which lifts us above the limitations of time and lessens the fear of death, which makes us feel the nearness of heaven and nearness of eternity—that is what Christ imparts to those who cultivate His company.

Also, life can lift us beyond the limits of the body. On the first day of my birth I was flesh of my mother's flesh. Now I have used up several bodies of my own, since, as we are told, our bodily tissues are completely renewed every seven years. Yet I feel that there is more of my mother in me than ever before. Her spirit lives on in me.

When I left Ohio at 21, my father said, "I will be with you in spirit." I believe he was. I often felt him with me, although he left Ohio for the life beyond many years ago.

Therefore my Easter faith is that life is too strong for death, and love can never lose its own.

MIKOYAN RAISES A QUESTION

In New Delhi, India, on Tuesday A. I. Mikoyan, deputy premier of the Soviet Union, asserted that criticism of the Stalin regime, of the "personality cult", of one-man rule, was an internal issue in the Soviet Union, a question which had no relation to other countries.

Whenever one of the Russian leaders makes a statement, the world immediately wonders whether it may not be the direct opposite of the truth.

Indeed, there are already two distinct interpretations of the present regime's criticism of Stalin. One of these interpretations views the campaign against Stalin as aimed primarily at pacifying the Russian people, at convincing them that Stalin, and Stalin alone, was responsible for the oppression extending over three decades, that the new rulers desire to relax restrictions. The other interpretation is that the anti-Stalin talk is aimed primarily at the outside world, that it is just a change of tactics designed to convince the world that the men now in the Kremlin are "good fellows," reasonable men, in order that vigilance against further Communist expansion may be relaxed.

Firstly we should perhaps note that we do not appear to have any assurance that our reports on the campaign against Stalin are complete and accurate. U.S. News and World Report, a usually well-informed magazine says that Khrushchev, in his now-famous speech to the Communist Party congress, said that Stalin was insane, that he suffered from an acute persecution complex and from delusions of grandeur, that he was a murderer who "framed" his associates, that he was a traitor who weakened the army by purges, that he was a physical and a coward. Most commentators, convinced that most, at least, of these charges were true, appear to have taken it for granted that the charges were actually made by Khrushchev. Of this there seems some doubt. Mikoyan, at New Delhi, said that there had been "no defence of Stalin because there are no attacks on him—just criticism." The average reader will be puzzled as to just where Mikoyan would draw the line between "attacks" and "criticism"—certainly Stalin himself would have been unable to appreciate the difference. Nevertheless, the fact remains that the Kremlin leaders, according to some observers, do not appear set on blackening all of Stalin's works, but only some of them. Specifically, the attack appears aimed primarily at dictatorship.

That the criticism should be directed most intensively at one-man rule is significant, but before we consider its possible meaning and implications, we might in passing consider whether all the charges against Stalin are true. The charge which will strike many as the most dubious is that he was a coward. This did not show during the Second World War. The charge that he weakened the Red Army by purges is also open to question. W. R. Plewman, the Toronto Star military expert whose analysis of events during the war was considered by many to be one of the most reliable of its kind, says that Stalin was warned of pro-German elements in the pre-war Red Army by none other than Benes, former Benes of ill-fated Czechoslovakia, certainly no lover of dictators.

It is evident that the present rulers of Russia have also decided to publicly abhor dictatorship? Why? U.S. News and World Report says that in fact it is considered that they are trying to reassure each other that none of them is after Stalin's or job. That suggestion is inconvincing. We are expected to believe that they suspect each other of coveting the role of a dictator, yet are ready to trust each other's denials that this is their objective? The startling suggestion in viewing the changed policy from the angle of domestic politics is that the present rulers are trying to rid themselves of the ghosts of Stalin's dastardly deeds, to convince the Russian people that the time is different, that they can safely support the regime this theory in reports, from at least two different sources, that for a couple of years or more conditions at slave labor camps have been improved and political prisoners released.

If we accept the changed policy as a genuine regret and as producing a change in the international climate, there are two distinct fields to be considered. Amongst the democracies it may be hoped that the disavowal of dictatorship will promote a willingness to accept "co-existence." But surely, if this is to be achieved, words will have to be matched by deeds. Amongst the satellite nations, an immediate problem is certain to arise. The men whom Stalin picked as puppets are, in many instances, still in "power." Khrushchev and company can hardly assail the "cult of personality" in Russia while supporting it in East Germany, in Poland, in Hungary, in Romania. (U.S. News says Mao Tse-tung is a one-man ruler in China "who intends to stay." But this statement is open to serious question; China has long since shown signs of being under collective leadership and of being much more than a mere satellite of the USSR.)

The world may well watch with interest to discover what changes, if any, the new assault on the cult of personality will bring to the satellite nations. It is there, more than any other area, that the Kremlin will have to match words with deeds if it expects to convince the world that anything really important has been changed.

Nikita Krushchev's recent denunciation of Stalin and re-emphasis on "collective leadership" is being echoed by the Communist press around the world. Could the toppling of the Stalin idol be a crew shove to nix it and quit stallin' on Stalin? (Office boy's note: If you get this, you'll see Red.)

Holiday in Mexico

By C. A. Morton

Any attempt to describe ruins of ancient civilizations or even some prize specimens of archaeology will cause many readers to say, "Aw, heck," and turn to the comic page or something more enlightening. However, there are a few more items, some as a guy, we wish to tell of before progressing to more modern matters.

The Mexican National Museum of Archaeology while it is not large has many outstanding exhibits and we were fortunate in having as guide Felix Fernandez, a Mexican gentleman of exceptional ability in his chosen work. He has done some excavating in the Yucatan and has a great knowledge of the subject. Anyone going to Mexico and visiting the museum should keep his name in mind.

The highlight of the exhibits were the Aztec Calendar, the Jaguar, Stone of Tizoc, a drawing of the ancient Aztec city of Tenochtitlan, a masterpiece of carving the Obsidian Vessel, and the reproduction of tomb found in Yucatan which contained the body of a high priest in tiny complete with a face mask of jade and a breast plate of jade beads two inches long and one third to a half inch in diameter. This personage belonged to the Mayan nation of Indians who dwelt in the southern part of Mexico in the Golden Age. Many new excavations are being carried on to unearth more historical information.

AZTEC CALENDAR.

The Aztec Calender: The Aztecs were more dominate race when Cortes first landed in 1519 and occupied the area where Mexico City now stands. In fact the square now between the Zocalo and where in the large cathedral is located was the site of Tenochtitlan the ancient Mexican city also known as Montezuma's capital. These people we believed to have come from the lake district in western Mexico around 1168. They were a highly intelligent and also had considerable flair for astronomy and mathematics. They noted that the passage of time they started to carve their calendar in 1479, 52 years completed it in 1479, 52 years altogether, it is twelve feet in diameter and twenty - eight tons. They divided the year into 18 months of 20 days each and the five days left were known as sacrificial days or days of evil omen and were dedicated to appease the wrath of the gods. These five days preceded the new year which fell on 11th.

The great mass of rock was brought many miles from a quarry south of Mexico and ordinary primitive methods. It must have taken the difficulty of hewing it from the face of the rock and hollowing it by means of rollers and rope, across land and water to its destination.

The Spaniards attempted to smash it but were not equipped with some damage to the carving and it was by them buried in front the defeat of Montezuma and it was lost for 250 years. It was discovered by accident December of 1790. There is much more to the Aztec Calendar but I think it would be quite useless to go into it in detail under present circumstances.

The Jaguar: This is a large stone done to represent an animal common in Mexico and in its back is a receptacle for the heart of the victim which the hearts of human victims used to be buried in the belief that would have a capacity of several gallons.

Stone of Tizoc: This is a huge round block of carved stone commemorating the life of the chief in the centre of the upper surface which was supposed to be the blood of the sacrificial victims. The carving on the stone is beautiful and the Mexican experts, however, think the stone served another purpose according to the inscriptions.

Picture of Tenochtitlan: The city is shown as a beautiful place judging by the painting. It is built on an island in a lake and consisted of a pyramid temple, the palace of Montezuma which occupied four huge squares and where he was attended by 1,000 servants and 300 soldiers. soldiers reported the city had 60,000 houses and 200,000 population. The king changed his dress four times a day and never put the same dress on the second time, but gave it away to attendants.

After a long battle against the Spaniards and their Indian allies the city surrendered August 13, 1521. Cortes reported to the king of Spain that the dead numbered over 250,000. The city was later completely demolished and the rubble used to form the foundation of the most important square in today's city known as the Zocalo.

It might be well to mention here that the Aztecs were sun worshippers and were constantly offering up human sacrifice as atonement for their sins of omission, to seek favor for success in battles, for good crops and many other reasons. Human victims were preferred so prisoners captured in battle were the logical choice. As for a supply of prisoners, wars were waged against other tribes and on occasion the Aztecs often had thousands of prisoners as reserve. So large was this that on the day of dedication the Aztecs killed 20,000 prisoners in sacrifice.

Of course this built up great resentment so when Cortes sought allies in his campaign against Montezuma he was able to get many thousands to join him, the reason for the huge total of dead after the battle mentioned above. The Spaniards only lost about 400 men altogether with a few squibbles and a stone imprisonment.

The victim to be sacrificed was held by the arms and legs, bent backward over a stone form then a tribal priest opened the chest, chest, reached in and tore out the beating heart which was then burned. One of the original knives used for this purpose is now in a museum in Mexico City having been sent back home by Cortes. The knife is of stone with the blade of a dark glistening stone, possibly obsidian, or volcanic rock, was chipped into a two-edged form about seven inches long and mounted in a curved handle beautifully wrought into a material which we could not identify but appeared to be partly metal such as silver.

CARVED MASTERPIECE

Obsidian Vessel: This is a real masterpiece of carving. It is made of obsidian a very hard and brittle substance. The figure represents a monkey making an effigy of a god. The monkey is also its body. The carving is beautifully done and the work symmetrical and the black substance glistens like polished glass. The fact that the Aztecs were able to fashion this exquisite piece of workmanship is a remarkable skill of carving.

Tomb Reproduction: Installation of this exhibit has not been completed and now is one of the numerous chief attractions. The interior of the sepulchre chamber is shown as found at the burial site. An effigy representing the deceased king lies in the stone vault, part of the body is cut away so that it may be seen. It is quite impressive. In an adjoining room are shown the jade and ornaments as mentioned earlier in this article. The mask and the breast plate covering the face is masterfully made by representing the characteristic features of the personage. The parts are fitted together in such a way as to be practically invisible joining.

It might be mentioned that the hierarchy of the Mayans practised head binding on very young children for the purpose of making the face elongate the bridge of the nose up to the forehead, instead of the nose beginning from between the eyes, a narrow ridge of cartilage was put on to the forehead making the nose at least one-third longer than normal—a super Roman nose in other words. Monday a more pleasant subject.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

TO TRAVEL HOPEFULLY

Every time anger, bitterness or is nothing. rage possesses you, just remember that every time any of these is in control it's the wrong thing to act out of the bank that you have been saving for such a happy occasion. You have lost, not saved.

To travel hopefully in life you must daily try to build up hope and faith. They are your invisible provisions. Robert Louis Stevenson once wrote that to travel hopefully means to enjoy not only the know your destiny, but we can know today. Living it out hopefully is to assure us that the morrow shall be at least be secure.

With a song in our heart we can escape every thrust of fate, and know that all is well. Just to be kind is to enact the spirit of Good Samaritan as told in t h e parable. To have more money and no friends is to travel miserably. Where money is everything, there is easy, and my burden is light.

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

March 31, 1936.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Delaney and Miss Marjorie Danford, spent the weekend in Toronto and took in the big hockey match.

Mr. J. H. Savage and Miss Hilda Savage were home from Toronto to spend the week-end with their mother, Mrs. E. Savage, Wellington Street.

Miss Hazel Halpin spent the week-end in Toronto.

Mrs. Horton Hammecker, of Turin, N.Y., is visiting her mother, Mrs. E. Jackson, Ann Street.

Mr. L. Merritt spent the week-end in Toronto.

Mr. Frank Hitchon spent the weekend in Toronto.

Zwicky Adams is here to spend a few days at his home on Chatham Street.

Miss Mildred Adams, which is called by some of the aldermen "the muddling month" of the year, probably remain as it is for some time; no plans have been considered as to what the city should do with it. Speaking about the island Harry Hill said today: "If we had lots of money perhaps we might be able to do something to make a park out of it or a playground or something, but as it is we will just have to let it go." Last year the winter hundreds of unemployed were given work on the island; high water levelled and a level space made on one side of the island. Exhibition plans have been formulated by local service clubs and the city to landscape the location and create a restful park for the benefit of all citizens. Owing to the high cost, however, the project has been abandoned for the present. The gravel beach has for the past few years been popular in the summer for bathers in spite of the dangerous deep holes at certain locations of which bathers are warned.

Miss Ella Bleecker has returned to her home here after spending the winter in Toronto.

30 YEARS AGO

March 31, 1926.

The Rev. J. P. Wilson left today to visit his daughter, Mrs. Harry Frost and Mrs. Frost, Fishbrook in Frontenac, Ohio.

The Belleville Golf Club officers for the year are as follows: Hon. president, Dr. J. C. Deenis; vice president, John J. Kelly; secretary-treasurer, Col. J. Carnegie; directors, the officers and Mrs. A. J. Reid, Mrs. Ben Robinson and Mrs. Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Murray Denike of Chicago, Ill., are visiting the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. Ed. Ketcheson, Bridge Street East.

The members of Minerva Chapter No. 203 Order of the Eastern Star, entertain this afternoon at the home of Miss Ella Bleecker, Moira Street East.

40 YEARS AGO

March 31, 1916.

A meeting of the officers of the 155th Battalion was held yesterday afternoon at the armouries for the purpose of appointing a mess committee and the following officers were appointed: Major Wallbridge, Capt. Bleecker and Lieut. Wallace.

The band of the 155th Battalion went to Deseronto today. The Deseronto Speedway Spring is now here and, with the good roads, many automobiles are appearing on the streets. Front Street has been put in excellent condition for travelling and automobiles are being driven over the pavement in many cases at excessive speed. The police should be on the alert for these speeders and put a stop to them except during the parading of automobiles on Front Street is for too common.

The city clock is to be repaired by Jack Rohlin for which he will receive the sum of $5.

Carters to be Given Other Stands. After today, March 31, the city will cancel the arrangement with the Walker Foundry whereby the carters use space in front of the foundry as a stand and for which the city paid. Arrangements are being made for the carters to use the southeast corner of the market and also along the roadway near the stone wall by the upper bridge.

Mr. Snowdon of Perth has been appointed acting collector of Inland Revenue here to replace Mr. Cook, who has enlisted with the 155th Battalion for overseas service.

The Rev. Father John J. O'Connor, curate at St. Michael's Church, has gone to Hospital at Brockville. He was born in Ireland thirty-three years ago. For four years he was curate at Brockville under the Very Rev. John Murray and a year ago he came to Belleville to serve as curate under the Rev. Father Killeen. He was highly thought of by the parishioners of St. Michael's and his death has brought to them sincere feelings of regret. Interment will take place here under the auspices of the Knights of Columbus.

50 YEARS AGO

March 31, 1906.

It is announced that the drill shed will not be built here this year. The decision has also been made to lay the foundation of the new Bridge Street Methodist Church, Toronto, early next year.

Lieut.-Col. J. Earl Hallwell presided at the annual meeting of the Loyal Rifles on 15th Battalion. Only routine business was transacted.

A Masonic smoker by the members of Camp Rob Roy, Sons of Scotland, was a most enjoyable affair. The chief officers present were Chief Ranger Dr. W. J. Campbell and Secretary Forester. The following took part in the programme: Dr. Campbell, Harry McMechan, John McIntosh, Sr., and John Mitchell, Jr. W. J. Campbell gave an excellent address on Scotland and Scotsmen.

Hoped Wet Linoleum Would Speed Up Drying

(St. Thomas Times-Journal)

Last Tuesday a resident of the suburbs of town went out on the ice and in doing so broke a bottle of liquor. He went back to claim for compensation to the township clerk for the loss of the whisky and the cost of repairing his clothes.

This reminds us of the story about Jock McTavish who was making an irregular line home wards with a half-bottle of whisky in his hip pocket.

Suddenly he sat down hard. A look of horror crossed his face. He fumbled around with his hip pocket, but it felt some wet he said in an awe-struck voice: "I hope that's only blood."

Personal Health Talks

When It's Cold and Damp

"I work in a steel warehouse, and it is usually cold and damp there. I am 58 years old. For the past several months my knees, elbows, and wrists have been aching. It seems to be in the bones. During the day my joints creak but at night my knee aches like toothache." (C.C.)

Doctor Osler would have understood your case, young man. The famous Dr. William Osler, later Sir William, made the textbook Practice of Medicine, published in 1892, went through many editions before Osler left this country to join the medical faculty at Oxford.

The Practice was everywhere recognized as the No. 1 textbook of medicine, and it became a literary classic while Osler rounded out his American career as Professor of Medicine at Johns Hopkins.

At least nine other textbooks on Practice have been published since Osler's time; but a library without one or more editions of Osler is not much of a library, and a doctor who hasn't worn out at least one copy of Osler hasn't really studied medicine.

The only difference between Dr. Osler's view of chronic joint disability and the view of recognized medical authorities of today is in the label. What Osler called chronic rheumatism the present authorities call chronic arthritis.

Rheumatism doesn't mean anything in particular. The word formerly meant catarrh, discharge etc., and how it got associated with joint disability is anybody's surmise.

Arthritis means joint inflammation. But in most instances of joint disability labelled chonic arthritis, arthritis is a misnomer, for there is no sign of inflammation at any stage of the trouble, except from incidental injury or strain.

But between the lines (quoted) Dr. Osler tells a good deal about chronic joint disability. It develops insidiously in persons past the acme, the pinnacle or peak of growth, development. Past the physiological age (never mind chronological age) is, say, 37 years, after which there's nowhere to go but downhill. Decline is one name for it. Degeneration is another, physical degeneration. In order to get a wholesome idea of physical degeneration you should consult Osler for the medical definition of the term.

DAY OF WAITING

Yesterday we asked ourselves what could be done about Good Friday. Yet down the ages men have been calling the day of our Lord's death so.

Two friends took Him down from the cross and laid Him in a new sepulcher which Joseph of Arimathea had prepared for himself and his family. Then followed thirty-six hours of the most hopeless despair humanity has experienced in its history. The best Man who only perfected of all men's human race—had been slain, and for no other reason than for His goodness. The hatefulness of men had done its worst. If God could not have prevented this, was He all-powerful? If He could-have prevented it and did not, was He all-loving?

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

One of the small, exciting things going on around us here in Canada is little or no awareness is the routine research being done by foresters. Recently I read a special news letter from the forestry district of Kapuskasing, Ontario, where there is given the detail with regard to a hemlock tree which was cut with two inches of stump to allow the forestry boys. They like the numbermen to leave as small a stump as if it were pages of history. By counting the rings of the rings of growth in the log, they can count every year of a tree's life. But even that, they can, from the outside size of those rings, tell the years of favorable and unfavorable to a tree's life.

The hemlock tree they took for their examination was born from the seed in the year 1746. This tree was felled when it was 210 years old the butt in 1956. When it was born, George Second was on the throne and Bonny Prince Charlie had been defeated at Culloden only one year before. Now the very tree that the hemlock seed fell into the ground. The great battles that had not occurred, neither had the American. This hemlock, little more than a foot through, was 210 years old.

But here is w hat the foresters read.

In the hundred years from 1746 to 1846, the tree grew only to a size of two and a half inches at the butt, just a slender tall pole of a hemlock; but a century old. The city clock is to be repaired by Jack Rohlin for which he will receive the sum of $5.

Hoped Wet Linoleum Would Speed Up Drying

(St. Thomas Times-Journal)

Last Tuesday a resident of the suburbs of town went out on the ice and in doing so broke a bottle of liquor. He went back to claim for compensation to the township clerk for the loss of the whisky and the cost of repairing his clothes.

This reminds us of the story about Jock McTavish who was making an irregular line home wards with a half-bottle of whisky in his hip pocket.

Suddenly he sat down hard. A look of horror crossed his face. He fumbled around with his hip pocket, but it felt some wet he said in an awe-struck voice: "I hope that's only blood."

When It's Cold and Damp

"I work in a steel warehouse, and it is usually cold and damp there. I am 58 years old. For the past several months my knees, elbows, and wrists have been aching. It seems to be in the bones. During the day my joints creak but at night my knee aches like toothache." (C.C.)

Doctor Osler would have understood your case, young man. The famous Dr. William Osler, later Sir William, made the textbook Practice of Medicine, published in 1892, went through many editions before Osler left this country to join the medical faculty at Oxford.

The Practice was everywhere recognized as the No. 1 textbook of medicine, and it became a literary classic while Osler rounded out his American career as Professor of Medicine at Johns Hopkins.

At least nine other textbooks on Practice have been published since Osler's time; but a library without one or more editions of Osler is not much of a library, and a doctor who hasn't worn out at least one copy of Osler hasn't really studied medicine.

The only difference between Dr. Osler's view of chronic joint disability and the view of recognized medical authorities of today is in the label. What Osler called chronic rheumatism the present authorities call chronic arthritis.

Rheumatism doesn't mean anything in particular. The word formerly meant catarrh, discharge etc., and how it got associated with joint disability is anybody's surmise.

Arthritis means joint inflammation. But in most instances of joint disability labelled chonic arthritis, arthritis is a misnomer, for there is no sign of inflammation at any stage of the trouble, except from incidental injury or strain.

But between the lines (quoted) Dr. Osler tells a good deal about chronic joint disability. It develops insidiously in persons past the acme, the pinnacle or peak of growth, development. Past the physiological age (never mind chronological age) is, say, 37 years, after which there's nowhere to go but downhill. Decline is one name for it. Degeneration is another, physical degeneration. In order to get a wholesome idea of physical degeneration you should consult Osler for the medical definition of the term.

DAY OF WAITING

Yesterday we asked ourselves what could be done about Good Friday. Yet down the ages men have been calling the day of our Lord's death so.

Two friends took Him down from the cross and laid Him in a new sepulcher which Joseph of Arimathea had prepared for himself and his family. Then followed thirty-six hours of the most hopeless despair humanity has experienced in its history. The best Man who only perfected of all men's human race—had been slain, and for no other reason than for His goodness. The hatefulness of men had done its worst. If God could not have prevented this, was He all-powerful? If He could-have prevented it and did not, was He all-loving?

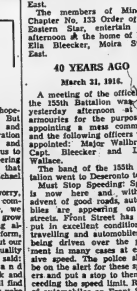
THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

One of the small, exciting things going on around us here in Canada is little or no awareness is the routine research being done by foresters. Recently I read a special news letter from the forestry district of Kapuskasing, Ontario, where there is given the detail with regard to a hemlock tree which was cut with two inches of stump to allow the forestry boys. They like the numbermen to leave as small a stump as if it were pages of history. By counting the rings of the rings of growth in the log, they can count every year of a tree's life. But even that, they can, from the outside size of those rings, tell the years of favorable and unfavorable to a tree's life.

The hemlock tree they took for their examination was born from the seed in the year 1746. This tree was felled when it was 210 years old the butt in 1956. When it was born, George Second was on the throne and Bonny Prince Charlie had been defeated at Culloden only one year before. Now the very tree that the hemlock seed fell into the ground. The great battles that had not occurred, neither had the American. This hemlock, little more than a foot through, was 210 years old.

But here is w hat the foresters read.



In the hundred years from 1746 to 1846, the tree grew only to a size of two and a half inches at the butt, just a slender tall pole of a hemlock; but a century old. The

Stories from Life of Jesus

By April Oursler Armstrong

THE RESURRECTION

They buried Jesus that same Cleophas, her sister, and Mary Magdalen, and John, and the two good Judges of the Sanhedrin who had voted to free Jesus — Nicodemus and Joseph of Arimathea — were there. They buried Him in a tomb in the garden of Joseph of Arimathea's house, a tomb the Judge had built for the day of his own death.

While the women wept, and prayed, they laid Jesus in the grave. And they sealed the opening of that tomb with a great white boulder, rolling it into place, firmly closing the tomb. They thought they had closed it forever.

Then, silent, and aching-hearted they went to the upper room, the room where only twenty-four hours before Jesus had shared the Last Supper with His apostles.

They were all there that Friday night — except Judas. They sat around the oaken table wearily staring at the stone walls and the high-barred cedar ling, remembering.

REMEMBERING CHRIST

They remembered every moment of the three years they had spent with Him. The way He had called them to follow Him. The first miracle, the wine at the wedding feast in Cana. The man at the well in Samaria, and Jacob, the man's dog who He healed. The Sermon on the Mount, those blessed words. The little daughter of Jairus, and the boy, Seth, with the loaves and fishes. The way the power of the Master was transfigured, and the night He walked on the stormy sea like the wind. He called Lazarus back from the dead . . .

Miracles, and the words of truth floated through their minds, the uncounted healing of His hands, the infinite power of love in His eyes.

And remembering, they wept. Why should it end in this way? they whispered. What are we to do now? We are afraid to go out, afraid we too will be murdered. And Jesus is dead. We have no Leader. It is over. It is all over.

The apostles sat in the rain-lashed darkness of that night, lonely, fearful, and discouraged, more than once in their lives since.

Jesus was dead. They could think no further than that. They could not seem to remember the promise He had made to them, so often, so clearly.

He had told them He would die — yes! But He had told them more than that, had told them the secret of all time. How could they know?

APOSTLES WERE AFRAID

Through the darkness of Friday night, and through Saturday and that night, they stayed in the upper room. This was the Jewish Sabbath, the day when no one could work, or journey far distances. They had to be kept holy for the Lord. But it was not simply because of the Sabbath that they stayed. They were afraid.

Only Mary, His mother, seemed undisturbed. Apart from the others, she prayed day and night and her face was calm.

But the apostles, disconsolate, forlorn — they were a sorry lot.

Meanwhile, in those bleak hours, others were busy in Jerusalem. From the castle of Pontius Pilate soldiers marched, out to the garden of Joseph of Arimathea, out to the sealed tomb.

Caiphas had gone to Pilate, Caiphas who remembered though the apostles had forgotten.

"Sir!" said High Priest Caiphas to Pilate, "we have remembered that Jesus said while He was still alive: 'After three days, I will rise again.' Will you, therefore, command that His tomb be guarded till the third day — just to be certain this can never happen!"

GUARDS AT TOMB

And Pilate had sent Roman soldiers to the grave, had themselves set the firmness of the stone, and commanded them to guard the tomb with their lives.

Through the dark watches of Holy Saturday night, eleven men of them Galilee, apostles without a Master, and four faithful women, prayed and wondered and wept.

But just before dawn, one person left that room, a woman who loved her Lord, Mary Magdalen. She wrapped her veil and mantle close to her and stepped noiselessly out the door, and sped on tiptoe through the city.

She was the first to reach the tomb.

Breathless she entered Joseph of Arimathea's garden, and what she saw there in the dim light filled her with awe and dread.

The stone had been rolled away. And the tomb — was empty.

Easter morning had dawned at last.

JESUS HAD RISEN

Jesus was risen, risen from the dead. He had died and death could not hold Him. He had triumphed over death, resurrected His wa, risen and shining.

The first Easter — a morning of wonder and of glory, of angels gleaming on the rolled-back stone proclaiming the message:

"He is not here! Christ the Lord is risen!"

And Mary Magdalen, alone in the darkness, saw Jesus and talked with Him, saw Him all alive, and scrambling, ran back around His face and form, and tenderness in His voice.

Soon all were to see Him, and talk with Him, to eat with Him and know Him for their own. Thomas, doubting Thomas, would feel the wounds in Jesus' hands, and be convinced that this indeed was the same Jesus who had died on the cross.

Forty days He would spend on the earth, a man's span of days of blessing, and final preparation. Then from the Mount of Olives, before their eyes He would ascend into heaven, vanishing into the azure as a cloud.

HOLY GHOST COMING

Soon too, the Holy Ghost would come upon these first Christians in tongues of fire on Pentecost, and then they would go forth into the whole world, as He had commanded, teaching all nations. And the men and women whom Jesus had loved, would teach others, and the truth would pass through the years unchanged, from those same apostles to you and to me would come the greatest story ever told about the greatest life ever lived — the story of Jesus Christ.

But all that was still in the future that first Easter Sunday morning.

Then the apostles knew only one thing: the stone was rolled back. The tomb was empty. And Jesus, Son of Man, Son of God, was risen, risen from the dead.

The words of the angels on that morning of sunburst echoed in their hearts, the never-to-be-forgotten answer to the blackness of Good Friday:

"Christ is risen!"

BOY SCOUT ACTIVITIES

(By C. F. LEGGAT)

Over a hundred people were present at the Father and Son Banquet of the 6th Belleville (Wilson) group, with the chairman, Mr. W. Riley, welcoming the assembly and introducing the guests at the head table: District Commissioner O. G. Owens, Q.M.S. corn, A.D.C. Wolf Cubs; D. D. B. Allan, ADC Scouts; Chris Legge, A.D.C. secretary; Scoutmaster Betty Smith, 1st Belleville; Mr. D. Drysdale, president Kiwanis Club; Cubmaster Norman Gerow, Mr. Bell-Irving; Asst. Cubmaster Earl Beverley; Mr. W. L. McDougall, group committee, and D.S.M. John Townsend; Mr. R. D. Arnott, president local association, sat with his son, Richard.

Boy Scout banquets follow certain set lines but each has individual differences. The ladies of Kiwanis must have spent many hours of patient and careful work preparing this dinner. The food and the conservation theme for the table decorations. Small Indian tents were dotted around the ceiling and cacti were among the wooden knives. Scouts made the tables, a real credit to their craftsmanship. Conservation was certainly not in the ladies' minds when planning the dinner. The quality and quantity were of the very best. Quantity is important because Scouts of all ages are always ready to eat.

Jerome McDougall expressed the sentiments of all in his thanks to the ladies. Group Committee; tea was poured by Don Allan, Jr., and Mrs. C. Secretary and himself; the others had coffee.

Scout David James gave the toast to the Scout. "Scouts' success best pal—his dad", Mr. L. Drysdale replied, adding that the members had every confidence in the workers. John Townsend led the community singing with "Auld Lang Syne" followed by Phil Allcorn's rendition of "Alouette" a top favorite when Phil sings it.

Mr. Allcorn said that Scouting is the greatest movement in the world for youth training. He regards it as a privilege to be connected with this organization. The A.D.C., added that no group is complete without the fathers. The success of the banquet augurs well for the coming year, but don't help is necessary. Enthusiasm displayed tonight promises good results for the future of the Wilson group.

The chairman thanked Mr. Allcorn saying that the A.D.C. is an inspiration to Scouting and Cubbing in particular.

Akela Norm Gerow presented the following awards: 1st Aid and Gulder to Senior Sixer Gary Conway; orders to Cub Jack Adams; team player to Cub Ken Rydman; swimmer, toymaker and artist to Sixer Bill Gerow; Cub orderly to Sixer Nelson Kincaid; swimmer, team player and cooks tor to Cub Harold Bolton; swimmer to Cub Scott Jamieson; collector to Cub Douglas Parker; team player to Cub Jackie McNabb. 1st Class awards were to Cubs Bobby Boyle and Jimmy Woodcock. They pass 21 tests to get this.

Mr. Arnott brought greetings from the local association and emphasized the importance of an active group committee, and representation on the L.A. He said that the film, to be shown later, depicted how Scouting overcomes cold wars, etc.

The District Commissioner presented P.L. Bill Eakin and P.L. Peter Kapas with their 1st class Scout badges and Scout Jim Potts with a swimmer's badge. Congratulating the boys on their achievement, he added that the success of Scouting is proved by its growth in the past fifty years. The first Scout camp consisted of 20 boys and the Chief; today there are 8,500,000 Scouts in the movement.

The spirit of Scouting is catching, Don Allan said. The very best investment we can make is in youth. He then presented Senior Sixer Gary Mooney with a Totem pole for the Pack. It was carved by Don, a beautiful piece of work.

Mr. Riley, in closing, remarked that the success of the boys' get in Scouting is invaluable and quoted the twig is bent, so grows the tree".

The showing of the "9th World Jamboree of New Horizons" donated by Eaton's of Canada, was a fitting climax to an enjoyable and instructive evening. The 4th Belwanis are to be congratulated on the good time they put on and the enthusiasm shown by everybody there. "Good Scouting, 4th".

THE WINDS of EASTER

The welcome winds of Easter
Waft from the ages past—
The hallowed, blessed story
That life for aye shall last;
That Christ the Lord is risen,
That death has lost its sting—
This sweet and wondrous story
The winds of Easter bring.

All nature hears the message,
The old earth springs to life.
The robins sing a carol
The world with joy is rife;
Oh! That the Easter story
To each and heart would bring
The living Christ, whose message
The winds of Easter sing.
—Mitch B. Anderson.

WELLINGTON — Easter ushers in the season of life and re-birth —and life alone in the world of nature but life in the spirit as we rely on the divine words: "Because I live, ye shall live also. "Christmas is a time of rejoicing and promise and Easter with its triumph over death, its fulfillment.

The Face on The Stamp

By Nicholas Mika

THE GREATEST MARCH KING

Everybody loves band music, the sound of trumpets and cymbals and the tingling rhythms of a march. It stirs the blood and lifts it cheers the heart and quickens the step. Who does not know the thrilling music of the Liberty Bell March or the Gladiators. They belong to America's favorites. But the man who composed them was not only famous in his homeland. His band played on the concert stages of Europe and wherever he went a cheering crowd welcomed him. He toured the African continent and when he left the natives played his tunes. In the cities of Australia he and his bandsmen were led in a spectacular parade through the streets accompanied by the local bands who came to greet the master of them all.

He wrote over one hundred marches, many of them in the flash of a moment. At first he sold them for thirty-five dollars apiece and did not care that the publishers made a fortune. Later he wanted was a name that would not be forgotten.

HIS GREATEST MARCH

His greatest march he composed as a boat while sailing home from Europe. Standing on the deck his eyes wandered across the grey sky and the grey sea water. He was homesick for America. While he composed a hurried home long before the boat docked the grave, a cheerful melody was welling up in his heart, a rhythm full of confidence and power. In the midst of the ocean he saw the flag of his country waving in the wind and welcoming him home. When the boat landed he wrote down the notes of his dream. The trumpets were composed, The Stars and Stripes Forever. It became the glorious song of a magnificent country and so he honored his country and the world with his inspiring marches. He died when he was seventy eight as the beloved March King of America — John Philip Sousa.

He was born in Washington, D.C., where he lead the Marine Band during the time of many different presidents. At thirteen he was already playing for dances with an orchestra he had organized. But once he nearly sacrificed his love for music because his teacher criticized him and struck him with his bow. Furiously he swore never to go back to the conservatory. Instead of a musician he became a lawyer and a baker. But a few hours of hard work as a baker he appeared convinced him that his teacher was not so bad after all.

His mother never failed to encourage him in his musical career. But when she once saw him conducting a huge military band she was so frightened by the overwhelming enthusiasm of the crowd that she never again had the desire to witness another performance.

John Philip Sousa appeared on United States stamps in 1940.

MITCHELL—GIBSON

Spring flowers adorned the altar of St. Thomas' Anglican church, Belleville, on Saturday, March 24, at 2.00 p.m. for a lovely spring wedding, when the Rev. F. Arthur Smith, D.D., rector of Christ church, Deer Park, Toronto, formerly rector of St. Thomas' Anglican church, Belleville, assisted by Canon A. S. McConnell, M.B.E., rector of St. Thomas', united in marriage Joan Elizabeth Gibson of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Gibson, to Douglas Mitchell of Toronto, son of Mrs. Louis Mitchell, Toronto, and the late Mr. Louis Mitchell.

Mr. R. H. Bell, M.B., organist of the church organist, provided the wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Fred Newman, who rendered before the ceremony, "O Perfect Love", and during the signing of the register, "The Lord's Prayer".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in a New York original bridal gown of ivory satin, Chantilly lace, fashioned with fitted bodice buttoned down the back, having a standup wing collar, and long sheath-like sleeves lily-pointed at the wrists. The full, crinoline skirt of tiered Chantilly lace flounces was accented by an accordion pleated front panel of nylon net. Her fingertip veil of tulle illusion was held by a French headdress studded with seed pearls, and she carried a shower bouquet of American Beauty roses, mingled with white lily bells.

Miss Patricia Gibson, of Belleville, sister of the bride, as maid of honor, was attired in pink nylon net over taffeta, the billowing skirt enhanced with sprays of blue roses. She wore a matching headdress having a cluster of matching roses and carried a nosegay of pink roses and lily-of-the-valley. Pale blue slippers completed her ensemble.

Mr. Jack Mitchell of Toronto, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman, and the ushers, Messrs. Ralph H. French and Douglas Smale, both of Toronto.

Following the ceremony, the reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Macdonald Avenue, which was prettily adorned for the occasion with daffodils, tulips and yellow candles. The bride's mother, wearing Dubonnet silk with which was pink hat, navy accessories, and corsage of pink roses and white hyacinth bells, received. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore a gown of ivory lace in two-piece style, with corsage of American Beauty roses.

The bride's table was beautifully appointed with an exquisite Madeira linen, throughout from the island of Madeira but spring by the bride's mother, during a cruise of the Mediterranean). A three-tier pillared wedding cake, flanked by tall yellow candles in crystal holders, centred the table.

For travelling, the bride chose a French pink and ivory woolen suit with white and navy accessories, and corsage of pink Briarcliffe roses. Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell will reside in Toronto upon their return.

Guests were present from Toronto, Trenton, Napanee, New York and Belleville.

Home and School Meeting at Q.S.S.

On Wednesday, March 28th the Quinte Secondary Home & School Association held its first "Rural Night" with about four hundred parents and students enjoying one of the liveliest evenings of the season. Highlight of the affair was the way parents and students joined happily together in the festivities. Often the age differences makes a party stiff and unsociable but on Wednesday barriers were down and it was "fun for all."

Genial master of ceremonies was Fred Beeby, president of the Association who welcomed the large gathering and kept things moving at a brisk pace. Hugo Diggins and his orchestra were more than generous with their music and the variety from waltz to samba pleased the enthusiastic revellers. Laurie Perry, fiddler, and Cameron Bunnett and Harvey Homan joined with the orchestra as callers for square dancing.

To demonstrate the fine art of square dancing were the senior and junior Farmer square dance teams in colorful costumes. Seniors taking part were Doreen Lent, Harvey Homan, Mona Swan, Ellis Hinge, Marilyn Parks, Howard Elliott, Gertha Joslin and Douglas Rolling, with Ivan Clare as caller. The Junior team consisted of Ruth Luxton, Andrew Voss, Carolyn Thompson, Tony Gowthorpe, Patsy Dafoe, Gary Chambers, Betty Lou Stewart and Larry LaRue, with John Reynolds as caller.

Harry Morrison and his partner, Joan Clark gave a pleasing exhibition of the fox trot, samba and waltz. With two pupils, Joanne McHorse and Bonny Hibbard, Mr. Morrison initiated the inexperienced into the mysteries of jive.

Busy ticket-sellers at the door were Mr. and Mrs. Harold Regensburg, Mr. H. Pearce and Mrs. F. Beeby.

Mr. Lee Grills, Mrs. Brooks Allen and Mrs. E. Karkheck kept the card-playing running smoothly and had prizes for the lucky winners.

Mrs. R. Fuzzen and her capable staff manned the canteen with soda pop, hot dogs, coffee and ice cream being sold as fast as they could be handed over the counter. Helping in this department were Mrs. E. Green, Mrs. S. Vechter, Mrs. W. Slavin, Mrs. W. Follwell, Mrs. A. Campbell, Mrs. H. Samuels, Mrs. B. Allen and Mrs. F. Beeby. Mr. W. Slavin was cashier, Mrs. M. Lovelace and Mrs. Carl Thompson were among the executive who distributed and sold ticket.

Music Pupils Present Concert

Music lovers in Stirling and district were given a rare treat on Tuesday night when Madam Katherine Hendrikse of Belleville, presented six of her students in a concert, sponsored by the Stirling Rotary club. Madam Hendrikse, formerly a star with a Netherlands Opera Co., is one of our new Canadians. Her efforts on behalf of music in the community were well exemplified in the recital.

The artists presented a varied program including well-known operatic arias, secular, Negro spirituals and semi-classic songs very ably supported by Madam Hendrikse at the piano.

Mr. Cor Opt Hof of Trenton, baritone, was outstanding in his performance of the Toreador Song from Carmen and the popular Ol' Man River.

Tenor, Mr. John Raven, Belleville, delighted with his Rigoletto aria, La Donna Mobile, and Miss Beverley Hunter, soprano, of Napanee, thrilled the audience with her performance of Si, Mi Chiamano Mimi from La Boheme and the lovely Villanella.

Mrs. Gay Dever, dramatic soprano, of Trenton, presented a warm and moving interpretation of Puccini's Oh My Beloved Father, and the Living God by Geoffrey O'Hara.

Miss Doris Camgen mezzo-soprano, of Belleville, and formerly of Springbrook, pleased the audience with her presentation of two Negro spirituals, and Miss Dairymple, young soprano, presented a charming performance in her arias from Faust and Die Fledermaus.

The artists and their friends, who had accompanied them were later entertained at the home of Rotary president, Ed. Wrenn and Mrs. Warren. The directors and their wives capably assisted.

So-Ed Club Meets at YMCA

The So-Ed Club of the Belleville YMCA held its fourth meeting of the spring session at the YMCA on Wednesday night.

The evening began with interest activities. Harry Morrison's dancing group were learning new foxtrot steps, Jim Ketcheson continued with his practical approach to cooking while Jack Hendrikse and Joachim Reiman's music appreciation group listened to appreciate good music. Motor mechanics carried on the study of what is under the hood of a car.

After the interest activities, the guest speaker, Dr. A. N. Rota, was introduced by chairman John Luscombe. Dr. Rota is the district health officer of the Belleville General Hospital and spoke on the "Blood Bank" Dr. Rota described the typing, storage and methods of obtaining blood. He also explained that blood could only be kept for 21 days and consequently a constant supply of suitable donors was essential to the blood banks.

Dr. Rota was thanked by Paul Lucombe and chairman John Luscombe, who presented him with a memento of his visit to So-Ed.

Refreshments were served, including some excellent cheese such as Gouda, Swiss and the ever popular Wisconsin Cheddar. A large birthday cake with lighted candles was presented to chairman Luscombe while the group sang "Happy Birthday."

The evening was concluded with the judging of Easter bonnets to determine the prettiest, most original with her presentation. Prizes were awarded to Marion Dawson for the prettiest, Audrey Stewart for the most original and Earl Meyers for the funniest.

The remainder of the evening was spent dancing to recorded music. Lillian Bissett and Dave Shantz demonstrated the Scottish Strathe after which the whole group joined in. The spot dance was won by Gloria Lapsley with Melbourne Fraser.

The evening closed with a waltz and was one of the best So-Ed meetings held in Belleville.

B.P.W. Club Holds Dinner Meeting in 'Y'

On Monday last, the March dinner meeting of the Business and Professional Women's Club of Belleville was held at the YMCA at 6.30 p.m. This meeting had been eagerly looked forward to, as the guest of honor was Miss Kaye McFarland, Napanee, the regional advisor of District No. 5 of the Ontario B. and P. W. Clubs.

Introduced by the board member, Simone McFadden, Miss McFarland gave an inspirational address on the "Ideals of the Club", which reminded members of the many pitfalls, prejudice for instance, which they, as individuals, should guard against.

Appreciation was expressed to the president Evelyn Gardiner.

A special treat was presented by Mr. Joseph Blackburn of Sirouxly, Limited, who showed a sound film in color on the romance and the history of the making of Spode china in England. Mr. Blackburn was introduced by president Dorothy Brown, and thanked by Jeanne Stephenson.

A Spode cup and saucer, the gift of Mr. Blackburn, was won by Dorothy Dowdell. The head table flowers were won by Myrtle Massey.

An important business meeting was held dealing with the regional conference in Kingston in May, the international conference in

This and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

Tomorrow is Easter, the joyful Easter of the Resurrection. It coincides with the spring of the year when there is a general rebirth. A rebirth is a sloughing off of the old dead forms, letting the spirit rise anew with a fresh vigor. But do we honestly slough off those things that hamper and frustrate and so earn the right to a joyful happy Easter? Prejudice, for instance, is in mind because of a speech we heard the other night and because of what various members of a world youth forum said in New York recently. We might learn a lot from their direct approach. The English girl and the Australian girl had to get over prejudice against each other's accent before they learned to like each other. The Israeli girl and Jordanian boy, looking at their homelands from their distance of a third of the way round the world, suddenly realized how very much they had in common. At first, neither one had wanted to meet the other.

Easter Parade In Rome Will Be Minus Hats

PARIS (AP) — European beauties taking Easter strolls this year are likely to have in mind the weatherman as well as the high-fashion designer.

The memory of eight winter blizzards lingers in Rome where light coats are much in evidence and hatmaker Canessa says hats are out for the Easter parade—"The ladies will save them for the international horse show in May."

In London, where showers are predicted, Easter fashions are likely to be conservative, and include a raincoat. In Berlin, tweeds are considered practical, and in Paris, the ladies are ready to bring out their voluminous blue and coral-pink spring colors only if the weather permits.

Local influences are paramount. For instance, in London, where an early morning Easter stroll is traditional, the small hat also is traditional.

SET FACE

Both Queen Elizabeth and Princess Margaret set the pace Thursday for that same old little hat. The Queen attended a service in Westminster Abbey wearing a new small hat of aquamarine velvet trimmed with pale blue feathers. Princess Margaret wore a fur version something of a new twist—an off-the-face "basin" of sable, sheared in mushroom-colored silk — but still very much in the English small-hat mode.

The Champs Elysees in Paris is likely to see little opposite of the English little hat. The thing this year is to wear a big-ger, bulkier but light-as-air creation resembling the work of an excellent pastrycook.

Roman ladies on the Via Veneto will have fewer hats, but also a coat over the arm. Nicol Fontana, who with her sisters is making Margaret Truman's coming dress, said her clientele will wear tailored suits or coats over light wool dresses.

Montreal in July, and the local coffee party in April.

A nominating committee composed of Helen Anglin, Hilda Collier, and Marjorie McCaw, was appointed to bring in a slate of officers for the next club year. A number of guests shared in this fine meeting, including four from Napanee.

Going Places

Quebec City Thrills Tourist

By SHIRLEY AND BOB SLOANE

When Americans don't know where else to go—and sometimes, even when they do—they head for Canada.

Joined by Canadians, with a kind of primeval instinct for facing the sun, inevitably they turn to the east and Quebec, that strangely remote corner of Europe which seems to have gotten stranded in North America and persistently resists the encroachments and temptations of the 20th century.

Every year I went to see New York diluted by an equal part of Paris; they stop at Montreal. But to see provincial France, they proceed farther and inevitably wind up in the living anachronism of Quebec City.

Quebec province is a vast area more than twice as large as Texas (sorry, fellas) with distant unexplored beaches that flirt with the Arctic Circle.

The heart of this vast, resources-rich empire, once the soul of Louis XIV's dreams and the site of the greatest battle of the French and Indian War, is a not-quite-believable city of 220,000 which looks like nothing so much as an overgrown medieval village.

QUITE REMOTE

Pitched on two distinct levels on the north shore of the St. Lawrence River, Quebec City is the most accessible remote place on the continent. It is only in the mountain heartland, 700 miles from the Atlantic Ocean and nearer to Europe than to Canada's west coast. Yet it is only three hours flying time from New York, and little more than a day's drive for most roads that are generally excellent.

Ancient hodgepodge houses clustered under the city's waterfront Old Town, which in turn is dominated by the New City and the imposing edifice of the Chateau Frontenac, perhaps Canada's most famous hotel.

Characteristic of the hotels built in major cities by the Canadian railroads around the turn of the century, it closely resembles a medieval castle with its green copper-peaked towers and turret-like projections. Inside survives a hotel tradition almost extinct in the United States.

Like most of its sister railroad hotels, its labyrinthine, walnut - panelled public rooms and lobbies whisper dignity, formality, and restraint. In its dining rooms, formal-clad headwaiters seat you at spotless tables where everything is served on well-worn monogrammed silver and crisp linen. Great chandeliers hover benignly over the hushed sactums, and most travelers find it all a welcome change from the glass, plastic, and aluminum-rendered tasteful in the 20th century.

A landmark of both Quebec City and the Chateau is the broad terrace-boardwalk which overlooks the river and the Plains of Abraham where Montcalm and Wolfe were killed and Britain acquired Quebec.

Quebeckers scarcely acknowledge this latter fact through almost 200 years have passed. Virtually all the population speaks French and most of it speaks no English in addition. A working knowledge of the language will help tourists, though most service employes in hotels and restaurants understand English. (There is probably more English spoken in Paris than in Quebec City.)

MIXED CHARACTERISTICS

While French in their language, tastes and politics, many facets of the Quebec character seem closer to the United States than the British Empire, just as most Frenchmen are also closer to Americans than Englishmen do.

American movies are popular in Quebec City and comic strips in the newspapers are all American. Even Superman speaks French. The look strange to Americans, but not to Quebeckers.

"We tried Parisian comics," one editor told us, "but our readers just didn't understand them."

Quebec City has some of the most delightful shopping streets in all of North America, and if every American were to visit there in midwinter, all the snow-time and skid chain manufacturers would probably go out of business. With typical French abandon, cab drivers and others joyfully skid and slip their vehicles up, down, and around completely without the aid of either of these American necessities.

We never saw a set of chains or prong-studded tires anywhere in the city, nor did we see any weather-induced accidents.

The splits in levels throughout the city are so steep that sometimes one street is hundreds of feet above the one below it. Enterprising merchants with shops in strategic locations have installed toll elevators — escalators — and transport trade with such alarmist signs as "Protect your heart—take the elevator."

Besides being a sightseeing paradise in its own right, you can take a bus, boat, hired driver, hired car, or horse and buggy). Quebec City is the gateway to both the east's finest winter sports at Lac Beauport and elsewhere in the Laurentians, and its best hunting and fishing throughout Quebec.

We only lately were pooh'd be frustrated without a camera, you'll want to see the National Battlefields Park with its many monuments, drives, and views of the St. Lawrence; the many convents, shrines, and ancient schools of the area; the breath-taking Quebec Bridge on the main route into the city; and the remnants of the wall which make Quebec America's only walled city.

Motels and small hotel accommodations abound at all approaches to the city, but the best restaurants, short of buying your own book and hotelier can advise you, are in the city itself.

Spring is a good time to see Quebec because of the comparatively light run of tourists this time of year.

New Clothes Tree Boosts Closet Use

The efficiency of a storage closet can be increased from 50 to 100 per cent by lining the walls with peg-board, perforated hardboard. Mounting such panels on furring strips places them out from the wall a fraction of an inch to accommodate various metal hooks and fixtures.

A new fixture is the closet tree. This comprises a vertical metal pole reaching from floor to ceiling with adjustable side arms extending out toward the walls. It makes the hanging of garments easy for children as well as adults.

The height of the arms can be changed at 3-inch intervals with a screwdriver. They swing in arcs to allow access to the walls.

Garden Notes
Giving Roses a Head Start

Roses set out after warm weather has broken their dormancy have two strikes on them at the onset. So if your roses have not yet been ordered do it at once. Do not waste any time after they arrive in getting them into the ground. The ability of roses to take hold their first season after planting is directly related to how and when they are planted. April is not too early to get them in.

In preparing a bed for roses, the soil should be limed if necessary. Dig in a generous quantity of peat moss or compost to improve the physical condition of the soil. Broadcast three pounds of rose food (you will find this at your seed store) per hundred square feet of bed. Work in thoroughly. As you set out each plant use one half cup of the fertilizer mixed in well with the soil you replace.

Dig planting holes deep enough to have the graft two inches below the soil surface. Make a cone of soil in the bottom of the hole. Set the plant so that the roots spread out naturally down the slopes of the cone. Avoid crowding the roots together. Replace half of the soil then pour rapid water into the hole. Grasp the stock, move the plant around to settle it and work the soil in around the roots. This will eliminate air pockets. Replace the balance of the soil and tamp down to firm soil round roots. Add enough soil to mound up eight inches above soil level.

This will prevent drying out of the canes before the roots begin to function.

TRIM CANES

Trim back the canes to a point no more than a quarter inch above an outside bud. This will encourage outward branching, keeping the center open to allow plenty of light and air. Paint the cut ends to discourage cane borers.

Remove the soil gradually from around the mound about two weeks after planting if weather is favorable. Keep newly planted stock watered enough to prevent drying out all through the summer. After the first blooms have faded begin supplementary feeding with rose food.

Roses need sun, but recent tests have shown that light shade for half the day, preferably in the afternoon, have increased the number and size of blooms. Any good garden soil will grow good roses. They do need regular care, sufficient water, sprays to discourage pests and regular feeding and elbow room. Do not plant roses too near to shrubs or trees. Their roots rob the roses of the necessary food and moisture.

U-SHAPED PLANS

LIKE SO MANY POPULAR contemporary house designs, plan A-120 has a long, low appearance. Construction is red brick and frame. For added interest, all the windows are multi-paned. At the back, there's a good-sized covered porch for summer enjoyment.

VERTICAL AND HORIZONTAL wood siding, which can be painted in the color of your choice, is used for A-113. The entrance is sheltered and, at the right, is a large and decorative picture window.

Modern Plan Svc. designs.

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

U-shaped plans such as the two featured today have an attractive exterior design due to the projecting wings at either side. What's more, the projections make possible a little more space for living.

The interior of design A-120, pictured above, is efficiently arranged with many features that contribute to ease and comfort. Still, the home is priced within the average budget.

SMALL FOYER

Step inside and you're in a small foyer right next to the kitchen. What could be more convenient for the busy homemaker who has to interrupt cooking chores to answer the doorbell? Opening off the foyer is a powder room and a clothing closet as well as a stairway to the basement.

Kitchen planning experts seem to agree that the U-shaped kitchen is one of the most efficient. That's what this home has. When she's at work, appliances and counters are not only in front of the homemaker but also conveniently close on both sides. Double windows make the work centre, with its dinette, a cheerful place.

AWAY FROM NOISE

The living and dining rooms are set away from the noise of the street with picture windows that bring outdoors inside. Since they open on each other, the combined rooms provide a sweep of more than thirty feet. In the living room, a fireplace wall makes a cozy centre of interest during the winter months.

From the dining room, it's a step onto the covered porch that will serve as dining room, living room and solarium in spring and summer.

Three bedrooms are on the left side of the plan. The largest, at back, has enormous double closets. The two smaller bedrooms, at front, have excellent closet space, too.

Close by, is a tiled bath which has a glass-enclosed shower as well as a bathtub.

There's a basement, too, with floor space arranged so it might be converted into a rumpus-recreation room later.

A-120 comprises 34,700 cubic feet.

COZY FOYER

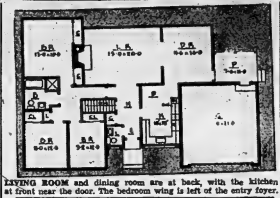
The other home, A-113, has a cozy little foyer five by six feet and features a closet with 8 feet of storage space.

From the foyer, you step into the living room which runs the full width of the house and has a huge fireplace on one wall. The room stretches across the back of the house, with a corner next to the kitchen, given over to dining.

GARAGE ENTRANCE

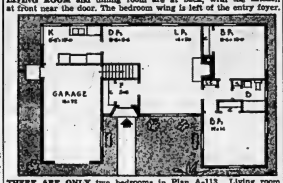
The kitchen, arranged corridor style with appliances lined up along opposite walls, has an entrance to the garage.

Both bedrooms are on the right side of the floor plan. The master bedroom, at front, has three windows. Both bedrooms have excellent closets, with two additional closets in the hall just outside the bath.



A-112 comprises 22,386 cubic feet.

If you are interested in obtaining blueprints for these homes, send your inquiry and a self-addressed stamped envelope to me in care of this newspaper for the name and address of the company which designs them.



UNEVEN FLOORS

When buying hardwood flooring, check carefully the species you order. A mixed species of flooring will wear unevenly, with the softer boards wearing faster than the harder wood.

Check the Weather Before You Paint

House painting weather means that the air is comparatively warm and dry, that there is no morning dew on the house and there is no likelihood of rain. The temperature should register no less than 40 with no chance that it will drop below that point during the drying period.

Don't paint in the direct rays of the sun. Plan the job so you'll always be working in the shade.

Detergent Is Best For Cleaning Tile

Soap is not recommended for cleaning tile work in a bathroom. In hard water areas, the combination of the soap and water can form an insoluble film on the tile work. A water-softening detergent in warm water is more successful.

Joints between tiles can be kept clean by scrubbing with a fibre brush. Some tile men recommend the use of lemon oil to prevent mildew and keep tile-work sparkling.

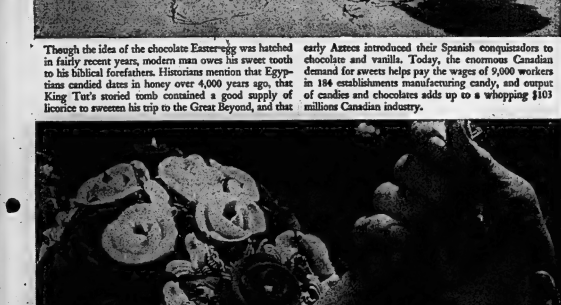
Art Began in Biblical Times



Though the idea of the chocolate Easter egg was hatched in fairly recent years, modern man owes his sweet tooth to his biblical forefathers. Historians mention that Egyptians candied dates in honey over 4,000 years ago, that King Tut's storied tomb contained a good supply of licorice to sweeten his trip to the Great Beyond, and that early Aztecs introduced their Spanish conquistadors to chocolate and vanilla. Today, the enormous Canadian demand for sweets helps pay the wages of 9,000 workers in 186 establishments manufacturing candy, and output of candies and chocolates adds up to a whopping $103 millions Canadian industry.

Two-year-old Lise Des Rochers admires 27-inch chocolate moulded bunny being prepared for shipment from candy factory. The chocolate-coated nut bar was invented in Canada in 1905, and still is a best-seller among the 45 million dozen candy bars sold each year throughout Canada.

Candy-making is an art, not a science, dating back to biblical time when Noah's sons were reputed to be the world's first candy makers. A candy-maker, boiling his confection, judges its proper condition by breaking of surface bubbles, rather than following degree readings on candy thermometer.

Monster chocolate egg, which retails to carriage trade for $12, is intricately decorated with confectionery flowers. Though far behind Britain's per capita consumption of 20 pounds per year, the average Canadian eats a pound of candy a month, with slight jump in consumption during the festive seasons. Providing sweet meats for national candy appetite calls for heavy production, and each year 77 millions pounds of sugar confectionery, 14 million pounds of bulk and 20 million pounds of boxed chocolates are made by confectionery industry. Two-and-half million pounds of moulded chocolate novelties (Easter bunnies, eggs, etc.) are produced for seasonal demands.

Window display of Easter novelties attracts young window shopper. Cacoa beans, from which chocolate is extracted, are imported from West Africa, Trinidad, Mexico and Ecuador, with each type imparting a different flavour and variety to chocolate. The blending and roasting of these beans is probably the best example of artistry required in candy-making.

Workers in Canadian candy factory remove Easter novelties from moulds after cooling in refrigerator. Chocolate mixture, cooked in meltings pots at 110°F, is fed through refrigerated pipes until it flows into moulds at constant 80°F. Excess is drained out bottom of mould, leaving proper thickness of hardened chocolate to take the shape of the mould.

Career With Canadian Govt. Spans 8 High Commissioners And Six Prime Ministers

By ROBERT RICE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — When William Fox gets up Sunday, it'll be April Fool's Day—and his 45 anniversary with the Canadian government in London.

"It's been here so long," says the 69-year-old, London-born principal clerk, "that when they polish the furniture, they polish me, too."

Fox has the longest service record at Canada's headquarters in London, and looks back on a career spanning eight high commissioners and six Canadian prime ministers. And he's never been to Canada.

EXPERT ON CANADA

Yet he probably knows more about the country than many Canadians. His work, in the information office, means keeping track of latest developments in Canada and being able to answeh even the oddest queries.

"One woman emigrating to Canada wanted to know if the Indians would be troublesome, and whether there'd be any neighbors within 100 miles. She was going to Vancouver and while I've never been there, my wife stayed there during the war, and, I was able to reassure the lady."

Fifty-five years ago, as a 15-year-old, Fox sat, on a chair with his feet dangling in space, clutching an advertisement to work, for 10 shillings a week, as general clerk in the Canadian office in London.

He got the job, serving under Lord Strathcona, then high commissioner.

"In those days, our offices were in Victoria street—eight rooms on the ground floor with Lord Strathcona in one of the smallest. Because of outside engagements, he rarely reached work until the afternoon, and often stayed late in the evening."

MORE MEMORIES

Memories . . .

Watching Lord Strathcona, at 90, taking his personal telegrams across the road to the post office. . .

Escorting young Max Aitken into Lord Strathcona's office and not realizing that he would become, as Lord Beaverbrook, a leading figure in Canadian and British life. . .

Witnessing the passing parade of prime ministers. . . Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Sir Robert Borden, Arthur Meighen, R.B. Bennett, Mackenzie King, Louis St. Laurent. . .

"Yes, I met them all—a handshake, a smile and they passed by."

Memories . . .

"I remember as a youngster singing as a boy soloist in the Royal Military Chapel. I'd get time off work to sing at weddings, if I sang for the office staff first."

In 1918, after seven years with the government, Fox was appointed to the permanent staff. From 1923 to 1946, he was in charge of records at Canada House and, in the war years, virtually slept with them in case they had to be evacuated quickly. When Canada established an information service in 1946, he was transferred to it.

Now, Fox is thinking of retiring. His daughter, who got her first schooling during the war in Vancouver, now is a teacher, and his son, 18, wants to try agriculture, possibly in Canada.

Fox would like to see the country he knows so well from so far away.

"When I retire, I'd like to go from coast to coast and see the

Massey Attends Devotions In Arctic Community

By JOE MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

AKLAVIK, N. W. T. (CP)—Governor - General Massey attended Good Friday church devotions in a school chapel Friday in this Arctic delta community on the northwestern tip of the Northwest Territories.

Mr. Massey attended mass at the Roman Catholic mission school along with Eskimos, Indians and white villagers.

Mr. Massey, swinging southward on his Arctic tour, spends Easter in this settlement built on the shifting silts of the Mackenzie delta. The town is to be moved because of its unstable foundations.

Easter Sunday he will read the lesson at the Anglican cathedral along with Rev. Thomas Umsck of Tuktoyaktuk, the only ordained Eskimo minister in Canada.

Mr. Massey flew from "Tuktuk," 100 miles to the north, Friday over flat country with thousands of lakes, then circular shape giving a bomb-pocked appearance to the landscape.

The coming of Easter has been marked in the governor-general's program with a number of church visits and also inspections of schools in the far north area.

At Tuktuk, he visited the federal school where classes were cancelled by a whooping cough epidemic. Mr. Massey was shown a school exhibit of petrified wood, indicating that forests once grew in the area north of what now is the tree line.

A snowmobile excursion took Mr. Massey to a "pingo," one of the famed ice hills that dot the district. Using a ladder, he descended some 12 feet through a narrow shaft in the ice drilled by scientists who were studying the forest action that creates the pingos. Varying in size, the pingos are enormous ice spheres that never melt.

The pingo that Mr. Massey entered is about 800 years old, the scientists estimated. Tonight Mr. Massey attends an Eskimo drum dance and Sunday he will broadcast a message to the people of the Mackenzie delta over radio station CHAK.

Separate Trials For Two Charged

WINDSOR (CP) —Auto dealer Lovell T. McMichael, charged with a city detective and another person in the forging of an elderly spinster's $11,000 will, is to be tried separately.

McMichael Thursday was given permission by Judge Albert J. Gordon to change his election to trial by judge alone. He first elected to be tried by judge and jury. He now will appear in county court April 19.

L.L. Alfred Carter, suspended second-ranking city detective, and Mrs. Gladys Dunplock, recently dismissed city civil defence secretary, are to be tried April 9 before Judge Jas McRae of London, Ont., and a jury.

All are charged in connection with the will of Miss Mary Isabel Carswell who died two years ago, aged 76.

Robert Bellveau of Welland was in serious condition, suffering from a fractured jaw and concussion. The other person severely injured is Miss Theresa Bellanger of Welland, who suffered multiple lacerations and possible internal injuries.

PETERBOROUGH CP) — Pte. Thomas John Russell, 22, of Winnipeg, was killed Thursday night when struck by a truck-trailer while walking along a highway near Cobourg, 30 miles south of here.

Campney of Canada, Wilson Of U.S. to Inspect DEW Line

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Pearson said Friday Canada's Defence Minister Campney and United States Defence Secretary Wilson are planning an inspection tour of the DEW (Distant Early Warning) radar line in the far north.

He told newspaper men reports turned by air from the continental conference at White Sulphur Springs, W.Va.

He told newspaper men reports from Washington that U.S. Secretary of State Dulles was to inspect the multi-million dollar warning line are not correct.

Reports he might accompany Mr. Dulles apparently had stemmed from the fact Mr. Campney and Mr. Wilson were contemplating such a trip and Mr. Pearson had been invited.

The minister said he did not think he could get away from government duties long enough to go.

Mr. Campney later said plans for his trip with Mr. Wilson now are being worked out. He expected to be in a position to make an announcement next week.

Mr. Pearson was present at the White Sulphur Springs meeting between Prime Minister St. Laurent, President Eisenhower and Mexico's President Cortines. Later he held talks with Mr. Dulles in Washington and Thursday in New York discussed the Indochina situation with V. Krishna Menon of India, which is chairman of the Indochina truce commission. Canada, India and Poland are members of the commission.

Mr. Pearson told reporters there is governmental concern about the situation in Indochina. It stemmed from the fact that the French government is soon to pull out and his talks with Mr. Menon concerned the situation after that.

Mr. Pearson described the St. Laurent-Eisenhower-Cortines talks as the most informal, friendly and relaxed he has ever seen.

Ceylon's P.M. Trying to Keep Govt. in Power on Plank Of 'Anti-Communist Neutralism'

COLOMBO, Ceylon (AP)—Prime Minister Sir John Kotelawela is striving to keep his government in power in next week's general election on a program of "anti-Communist neutralism."

A spokesman for his United National party said Sir John's followers, who held a substantial majority in the last Ceylon Parliament, favor non-involvement in the world's cold war but "ideologically are with the West."

Elections starting April 4 were set after Parliament was dissolved on the issue of dropping English in favor of Cingalese as Ceylon's national language. The governing party and its main opposition, the Freedom party, support the proposal; other minorities object including thousands of Tamils and other Indians who work on rubber and tea plantations.

OTHER ISSUES

Behind this "official" cause for the election—the first in five years —are other issues. One is Sir John's outspoken criticism of communism, which he has frequently called "Russia's unwelcome export." Relations with Britain and the United States, as well as this island's contacts with Red China and Russia, are also involved.

Although Sir John's United National party approved a rubber-for-rice exchange with Communist China, the prime minister has been one of Asia's strongest critics of Red infiltration into Southeast Asia. He has refused to establish diplomatic relations with Moscow or Peiping.

The present government party, supported by a group of westernized Ceylonese who control most of the island's business and land, held 54 of the outgoing Parliament's 95 elected seats. The remainder was made up of 11 unattached independents, three Communists, four Tamil congress, two Federalists, one Republican, one Labor and 19 of other miscellaneous affiliations.

Sir John says he hopes to win at least 66 in the coming election. Three and a half million adults are eligible to vote. Balloting spreads over five days.

Opposition groups in Parliament are badly split. They include the Freedom party led by S.W.R.D. Bandaranaike, Oxford - educated chief of the official opposition, a brilliant speaker who has failed to win widespread popularity in Ceylon; a Marxist Communist group led by Pieter Keuneman, a descendant of Dutch conquerors of Ceylon; and one of the world's few remaining Trotskyite parties, headed by Dr. N.M. Perera, a product of the London school of economics under the late Harold Laski.

The opposition leaders are attempting to rally all dissatisfied elements, ranging from the Marxist Communists on the far left to Christian groups who fear discrimination from the majority Buddhist bloc in Ceylon.

General Motors and General Motors Dealers are GROWING TOGETHER

IT'S EASY TO SEE why the public has been swinging in ever-increasing numbers to the cars and trucks built by General Motors.

These products have been introduced, year by year, with a growing list of new engineering advances – new and smoother automatic transmissions – new heating, ventilation and air conditioning systems – new power steering – new power brakes – and a long list of new convenience and safety developments.

Such improvements as these do not just happen. They take resourceful engineering – and hundreds of millions of dollars' worth of new tools and new machines.

And how do the dealers who sell General Motors cars and trucks tie into this program of progress?

They're buying new machines, new tools and new facilities to service the rapidly growing number of cars they sell each year.

Because they're excellent businessmen, as well as responsible citizens, they know the need for taking good care of their customers.

So their investment in facilities has multiplied many times in the past fifteen years. That's important, because about the same number of dealers who sold General Motors cars 15 years ago are doing a dollar volume more than eight times as large today – and prospering with the communities in which they do business, which is as it should be.

But this is only a part of the story.

If we are going to sell more and more new cars each year, we and our dealers need to make sure that they give satisfaction.

So we're growing together in service, too.

To keep this parade of new engineering advances in top condition calls for an extension of our advanced engineering clear through to the dealers who sell these cars and trucks in every corner of the land.

So we have pioneered an entirely new approach to customer service. We have established and are now operating Training Centres in ten strategic cities—where dealers' skilled mechanics, under the guidance of GM instructors, can receive specialized training on the design and operations of these new advances — and learn the skills required to take them apart and put them together.

And our dealers-on their part—have been sending a full complement of their mechanics to these Centres each month.

When we work together like this, we can surely keep right on giving our customers all the advantages of the best service as well as the best products.

At 10 GM Training Centres spread across the country, the skilled service mechanics of GM dealers "go to school" to learn the techniques for keeping the latest engineering advances in top condition.

Rowand's Folly Was Practical

By LEONARD L. KNOTT
Illustrated by Jack Tremblay

People called the big, 3-story log house in the wall-enclosed square at Fort Edmonton Rowand's Folly.

Stories about the banquets served in the great dining hall, of the Scottish piper marching around the gallery piping his laments or reels, and of the big dances held when the traders from all parts of the territory came home to dine and wine and dance with the Indian squaws—all these stories and many more were told not only throughout the northwest but in Montreal at the Beaver Club and in the coffee houses.

John Rowand, the Hudson's Bay factor, was a robust, hearty, fabulous character. He lived in his northern outpost like an emperor and his famous house was symbolic of the man. There was nothing small about Rowand's Folly, and there was nothing foolish or impractical about it either. It was not because it was big and so impressive that people laughed and talked about it. And Rowand didn't mind how much they talked.

INDIANS IMPRESSED

The Indians who came to Fort Edmonton to trade were greatly impressed by Rowand's mansion. They had never seen anything like it and they thought that its owner must certainly be related to the Great Manitou or Indian god in order to live in such a dwelling. The house had hundreds of small-paned window, with real glass in them. All the other buildings in Fort Edmonton had parchment windows. There was a bachelors' hall, a home for the Indian interpreters, warehouses and stables and a blacksmith shop, all attached to the house.

One of the important rooms in the mansion was the glacière, the forerunner of today's quick-freezers. A deep hole was paved with blocks of ice from the river cemented together with water frozen to make a tight compartment.

In this freezery were placed quarters of buffalo with their hides still on, as they were brought in. Some times, there would be seven or eight hundred buffalo stored in the glaciere at the same time, enough to keep the people of the fort in fresh meat for a whole summer.

The Rowand house was a busy place year-round. Squaws kept busy there making clothes and sometimes snowshoes, leather for thongs and for harness. And each year hundreds of bags of pemmican were made.

Pemmican consisted of strips of dried buffalo meat, sometimes mixed with berries or prairie, pounded into little pellets. Just as the glaciere was the forerunner of the modern freezer, so pemmican was the forerunner of today's dehydrated food. It kept a trapper and buffalo hunter alive all winter.

Centre of the fort, goal of traders and Indian trappers in the northwest, Rowand's Folly was as famous in the west as Beaver Hall in Montreal. It existed during the time when fur was king and when Rowand was the emperor of a vast, rich and empty land.

Your Car

Hot Engine May Cause Poor Starting

By EUGENE MILMOE

A fairly common complaint, especially when the weather turns milder, concerns starting trouble which seems to occur only when the engine is hot.

One reason is vapor lock, which develops if the fuel pump or lines absorb too much heat when the engine is stopped after some particularly hard driving. The fuel boils and forms vaporized bubbles that actually block the flow to the carburetor. Shutting off the engine and letting it cool for a while is the usual on-the-road remedy for vapor lock.

Faulty carburetion is another troublemaker. If a too-rich mixture tends to flood the intake manifold, the excess fuel may become vaporized by engine heat after the car is stopped. Any attempts to restart while the engine is hot will usually be fruitless unless this over-rich fuel mixture is first pumped out by cranking.

FILTER PIPE SMOKING

E.L. writes: "On my '51 model, I notice too much smoke coming from the oil filler pipe after the engine is warmed up. Why?"

(A) A clogged ventilating system may cause this, or worn rings which allow gases to escape to the crankcase and build up pressure.

From J.L.: "My 1951 truck has what sounds like an axle or transmission noise particularly at low speeds on a level stretch or on a downgrade — never on a pull or upgrade. As far as I can recall, the truck has had this same noise during all its five years."

(A) When a rear end noise like this occurs it may be due to nothing more than a lighter-than-normal mesh of ring and pinion gears.

SLOW STARTER

F.S. asks: "I own a '49 sedan which was overhauled recently, and runs very well. I do have one problem though. When the car sits overnight, it is very difficult to start the next morning. Once it has been running, it will start very fast at any other time during the day. The carburetor has been cleaned several times, various choke settings have been tried and the float has been adjusted—but no improvement. I would like to have your opinion."

(A) It might be a good idea to inspect the carburetor bowl. Another reader had the same trouble not long ago and we traced it to a very slight leak or seepage which eventually emptied the bowl when the car was sitting idle long enough.

From J.W.: "My car is a '53 model with automatic transmission, and my problem is a clatter but not only when the car is in reverse. I do my own repairs and believe the fault is in the differential or rear axle, yet I haven't been able to pinpoint the trouble. Can you advise where to look?"

(A) I wouldn't be surprised if the automatic transmission were to blame. It may be a question of rear band adjustment, transmission oil pressure, rear clutch trouble, etc. Unless you're well versed in this type of transmission, don't try any troubleshooting yourself. Leave this job to an expert.

Rare, Medium, Well-Done

BEST EVER, FELLA!

Johnny Mowatt, sports "Pied Piper" of Wellington, is leaving the district. Likeable Johnny has accepted a position with the Department of Municipal Affairs, Toronto, and will take up the new job in June.

Meanwhile he has more important business which demands attention. Always in the sports swim he will digress temporarily and take a dive into the more or less placid waters of matrimony. Yup, Johnny's "gittin' hitched come May."

JOHNNY MOWATT

He'll be making home runs a lot oftener than he did while cavorting on a baseball diamond. And don't any of you veteran benedicts start giving the guy a lot of "foul tips" regarding the blessed state of matrimony. He'll learn soon enough.

They'll miss Johnny, especially over in Wellington where he enjoyed more popularity with the youngsters of the lakeside village than Marilyn Munroe's picture in an Arctic military camp. The moppets over thataway 'swear by Johnny, whether it's hockey, baseball or a cone-eating contest. The gals didn't do so bad, either.

Mowatt has a natural ability as a coach as far as the younger fry of the village are concerned. And by the same token he did a swell job with the juvenile age groups, teaming with pal Jack Quigley and other village sports stalwarts in highly successful efforts.

Thanks mainly to Johnny's efficient coaching ability, the village won its first All-Ontario championship a season or two ago when its diamond juveniles copped the honors. In fact it was the first minor provincial title to come to this part of Ontario's neck of the woods.

Mowatt had the happy faculty of winning and holding the confidence of his puck-chasing and baseball-playing proteges, a coaching requisite that is more scarce than frequent in these hectic days of athletic glory-seeking.

Nor did Mowatt instill in his charges a "win-at-any-cost" spirit. He taught them how to lose gracefully—and to win valiantly. While victory was important, when the game was over it was something for the records. He did not believe in nor teach "grudge-holding." If his team won, to the victors went the spoils. If it lost, there was no post-game griping nor alibi-airing. Johnny was a real believer in "Granny" Rice's immortal words: "It matters not if you won or lost—but how you played the game."

Johnny held a well-deserved popularity in baseball circles in this city and district. He came here a few years ago from the Pony League when Pat Wilson was managing the then Belleville Redmen. Johnny was regarded as a good hurler, and he developed under the tutelage of Wilson.

He helped in no small way to carry the Redmen to the Central Ontario Baseball League finals in which the city team was nosed out by the Brockville Memos. Johnny remained in Belleville and became one of the mound stalwarts for subsequent senior squads.

When the family acquired a restaurant in Wellington Mowatt moved into a new sphere of life. He was a welcome asset to the village's sports activities and soon made his presence felt. Always a staunch believer in and supporter of minor athletic activities, Johnny got in on the ground swim. The kids took to him like a king-size popsicle.

He joined the "staff" of Dutch Ainsworth, Jack Ogilvy, Bill Yandt et al, and minor sports in the village underwent a tremendous upsurge. Johnny's organizational experience stood him in good stead, and that natural coaching ability was no liability.

He enjoyed a well-deserved popularity with his teammates of the Belleville senior baseball clubs, and with those of the district baseball and hockey leagues. Johnny was never a Rocket Richard as far as puck-chasing goes but he dug in and gave all he had while playing with the village's "Iron Dukes."

Likeable Johnny will be missed especially in sports circles of the district and this department joins the fraternity in wishing the "big lug" the best of luck and success in his new appointment and that his marital worries may in the long run be little ones.

RECORD ATTENDANCE

The Whitby-Kingston series, expected to be strictly a "home-loo" series, as Kingston's part at least, has developed into one of the hottest battles in years for Eastern Ontario senior "B" supremacy.

Whitby treked to Kingston last night, trailing the series two games to one, and the odds favored the Goodyears to up this margin, but not so. The Dunlop-handed last year's champs a close 5-3 defeat before an all-time attendance record of 4,989 in the Community Centre. They were hard pressed in the third period when Kingston played their best hockey and scored two goals in the last minute and five seconds only to have the rally fall short.

The fifth game is in Whitby tonight, where Kingston has won both games to date and the sixth fixture is slated for the Limestone City on Monday evening at 8.30 p.m.

Detroiters Are Underdogs Although They Won Last Two Titles in Seven-Game Tilts

MONTREAL (CP) — Detroit Red Wings start their determined bid tonight, in the grand finale to the hockey season, to capture their third straight Stanley Cup title.

It also will be their third consecutive meeting with Montreal Canadiens in the best-of-seven final. The last two series went the seven-game limit before the Wings — acclaimed hockey's world champions, but this time the Detroiters are the underdogs. Betting in Montreal was reported establishing Canadiens favorites 2½ to 1 on the series.

Canadiens ruled favorites on the basis of their comfortable finish on top in the National Hockey League's regular season. They had a 34-point margin over the Red Wings, who barely made second place.

The Red Wings, who were due to arrive in Montreal today, were on the ice and in the meantime with Canadiens throughout the season. Canadiens won six at home and lost once; in Detroit they won two, tied two and lost three.

SEVERAL INJURIES

The goal margin in the 14 games was also decidedly in favor of Canadiens, 35-28. In home and Montreal and 24-23-13 when The Wings had a 14-13 margin in Detroit.

The Red Wings go into the final with several players below top physical condition. Defenceman Red Kelly lost two teeth when struck by a puck in Detroit's windup Thursday night of the semi-finals with Toronto Maple Leafs and his face is still swollen.

Centre Dutch Reibel has not fully recovered from a shoulder injury he suffered several weeks ago and defencemen Marcel Pronovost and Larry Hillman are reported still on the mend from injuries.

Before the Wings left Detroit general manager Jack Adams made it plain the team is ready for battle.

"We didn't win our title by being soft touches and we're not going to be a soft touch for Montreal," said Adams.

WOULD TIE MARK

Their string of seven straight NHL titles snapped by Canadiens this season, the Red Wings now hope to equal Toronto's accomplishment of three consecutive Cup victories. The Leafs started their run in 1947.

Since the Red Wings came into the NHL in the 1926-27 season they have finished on top in the big playoff series seven times. Over the same stretch Canadiens have won it five times.

Quietly confident that he has a club powerful enough to overcome the Red Wings, coach Toe Blake of Canadiens said his players are in good shape and "there will be no alibis if we lose."

Canadiens finished their semi-final with New York Rangers Tuesday, winning it four games to one. The Red Wings eliminated Toronto by the same margin.

Following a brief workout at the squad Friday Blake said he will stand pat tonight with the same lineup and line formations that defeated the Rangers.

Apropos of the recent letter threatening Gordie Howe and Ted Lindsay of the Red Wings with being shot in Toronto, Montreal goalie Jacques Plante said a letter was received several weeks before the regular season threatening "all kinds of crazy things" that would befall him and Rocket Richard in Detroit.

The letter arrived just before Canadiens and the Wings met in three successive games. Canadiens tied and won in Detroit and won again in Montreal. Nothing happened to Plante or Richard.

Fifth Straight Win For Teacher In 15-Mile Race

HAMILTON (CP)—A 21-year-old school teacher from Woodbury, N.J., Friday won his fifth straight annual Good Friday 15-mile Veterans' road race.

Browning Ross, running for the Pennsylvania Athletic Club, finished the grind in 1:24.3. His time was three seconds off the record he set in 1953.

Ross had little difficulty beating the field of 49 starters, 43 of whom completed the race.

Canadian runners won the international team prize, awarded to the country with the most runners finishing in the four highest positions.

Chatham Maroons Sit in Driver's Seat With Wolves

CHATHAM (CP) — Chatham Maroons broke the home-ice barrier which pursued the All-Ontario Senior A hockey finals for four games.

Maroons defeated Sudbury Wolves 4-2 Thursday for the first win recorded by the home team in the best-of-seven series.

Maroons lead the set 3-1, with two games tied. They need only two points—a win tonight or a tie tonight and Monday at Sudbury—to wrap up the series and advance to the Eastern Canada final against Saint John Beavers of New Brunswick, Atlantic Coast Senior League champions.

Maroons won the first game of the Ontario final and tied the second at Sudbury. Wolves duplicated the showing in the third and fourth games played here.

Maroons, champions of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League, jumped into a 1-0 lead during the first period but Wolves made it 2-1 in the second.

SCORES TWO GOALS

Centre Ted Power fired a pair of goals to lead the winners. He scored the second on a third Chatham markers. Alex Vickells and Graham Joyce were the other Maroon marksmen. Centre Frank O'Grady and Tatter McLellan scored for Sudbury.

Vickells opened the scoring at 1:54 of the first period when he converted Joyce's pass while the Wolves were two men short. Power made it 2-0 early in the middle session when he scored from a scramble.

Wolves were shorthanded a minute later when O'Grady broke away from Maroon defence to score Wolves' first goal at 3:21. McLellan fired it up at 11:34, slapping in a rebound from a scramble around the Chatham net.

Power won the game at 6:57 of the third period, in which both teams legally fired, when he deflected Danny Blair's shot into the net. Joyce added an insurance goal less than three minutes from the end of the game on a breakaway.

Sudbury received five of seven minor penalties.

Littler Still Golfer to Catch In Azalea Open

WILMINGTON, N. C. (AP)—Gene Littler was still the golfer to catch as 63 pros and 10 amateurs set out today in the third round of the $13,500 Azalea Open tournament.

But it was getting terribly crowded back of the pace-setter from Palm Springs, Calif., who despite an eight-under par 136 total found six rivals only one shot behind him. He began Friday's play with only three men a stroke back.

Littler, one of the earliest starters in the second round, found himself tied with 40-year-old Stan Leonard after the first nine, on which the Vancouver player shot a 34 to 35 for Gene. But the sott-spoken California pro came back with 35 on his card for a 70 while Leonard, now playing out of Lachute, Que., slipped to 36, also good for 70. That left them right where they were at the start of the round.

Joining Leonard at 137 were Arnold Palmer, Latrobe, Pa.; Walter Burkemo, Franklin, Mich.; Dave Douglas, Newark, Del.; Bud Holscher, Apple Valley, Calif., and George Bayer, Cincinnati.

Gerry Kunkel of Kitchener was two over par at 73-72—146, while two Toronto golfers, Al Balding and Bill Kaye, had 147s. Balding shot a 77 and Kerr a 78. Murray Tucker of Toronto had a 75-72—150, and faded to quality for the third round. William Kozak of Chatham's Garrison Golf Club had strokes back at 152, made up of 79 and a 73.

Rookie Defenceman Will Start For Canadiens Against Detroit

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—Bob Turner, 22-year-old rookie defenceman goes into Sunday's Stanley Cup final against Detroit Red Wings still a bit starry-eyed at being a regular with Montreal Canadiens.

Bob hails from Regina, and from the time he started playing junior hockey with Regina Pats when only 16 he had big, wishful dreams of some day being on the same team with Maurice (Rocket) Richard and Doug Harvey.

The dreams have come true. Not only is Bob a teammate of these stars but is paired on defence with Harvey, one of the outstanding defencemen in the National Hockey League.

From the Pats, a junior farm of Canadiens, Bob made the jump into professional hockey last season with Shawinigan Falls Cataract as of the Quebec league.

In 33 NHL games this season he counted one goal and four assists and in playoffs he has semi-finals against New York Rangers he had one assist.

The first start of this season Turner was with the Cataracts. Then, just before the new year, Harvey was injured and the call went to Shawinigan Falls for Turner.

When Harvey was ready to return Bob was called into the office of Frank Selke, Canadiens managing director. "We are not sending you back to Shawinigan Falls" said Selke, "you are keeping you with Canadiens."

"I could hardly believe it," said Bob. "But I was really happy, and here I am."

However he was asked if he had any trouble playing against any certain players in the NHL.

"Tod Sloan of Toronto Leafs is the toughest guy to stop I have played against," said Bob without hesitation.

Don Lee of Belleville Named 3rd Vice-President of OASA

TORONTO (CP)—John G. Brayd of Oshawa Friday was re-elected president of the Ontario Amateur Softball Association at the conclusion of the two-day annual meeting.

Others re-elected were: vice-president: R. Stewart of Grimsby Beach and W. C. Perkin of Simcoe; treasurer, W. W. Spire of Port Colborne, who has been in that capacity for 19 years. Don Lee of Belleville was elected as a vice-president, defeating J.R. Brush of London.

L. C. Pratt of St. Catharines was elected secretary following the retirement of Frank Feaver of Hamilton, who served in the post for 13 years.

Executive members include A.K. Davidson, Stratford, and H. F. Bowman, Peterborough.

There were 22 constitutional amendments and rule changes and two amendments were defeated.

The most important change to do with pitchers, who now must wear the same color uniforms as the rest of the team. In the past, a pitcher wore a dark uniform while batting, because the white ball could not be seen by a batter against a light uniform.

Manager Bill Rigney of Giants Still Confused on Starting Lineup

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Maybe Bill Rigney didn't know when he was well off.

Four weeks and 20 exhibition ball games have come and gone and Rigney, who moved up from Minneapolis to take over as manager of New York Giants, is as confused as when spring training started.

"I realize time is getting short but circumstances are against us right now," he admitted today.

Rigney is in the dark about Alvin Dark, the team's shortstop. He also has problems at first base, second and third base and left field.

"Dark is my shortstop," he said. "But if an emergency arises at third base, and it could happen, we want to be prepared and that's why (Eddie) Bressoud is being kept on the squad."

THOMPSON A PROBLEM

The manager said he is concerned about Henry Thompson, the club's third baseman a year ago.

"He isn't hitting and he isn't fielding like he can."

Concerning second base, Rigney said:

"We have (Wayne) Terwilliger (a .257 batter in '55). He's the best of our operators in the field at that position. Only I've got to get some sock around the rest of the infield if he is to play."

As of now, only Willie Mays in centre field, Don Mueller in right and catcher Wes Westrum appear set to open at their positions in the Giants' opener against Pittsburgh April 17.

PHILS BLANK YANKS

Giants had the day off Friday as did every other big league team except New York Yankees and Philadelphia Phillies. With Robin Roberts hurling seven shutout innings and Saul Rogovin two, Phils blanked Yankees 3-0. Philadelphia got its two runs off Ralph Terry in the sixth inning.

St. Louis Cardinals, although idle on the field, finally came up with a much sought righthand power hitter. They acquired Hank Sauer, the National League's most valuable player in 1952, from Chicago Cubs. In exchange, Cards gave up outfielder Peth Whitesant and cash.

The trade was the second made by Frank Lane, Cards' general manager. Last winter, he gave up

Village Teams Take Spotlight In Canada Week

GODERICH (CP)—The national pee-wee hockey tourney switched its classic to six village teams today, after the opening day skirmish which saw seven town teams eliminated.

The series ratings go from AA, the big centres, down to D, the hayseeds.

It is an eight-day tourney and the seventh annual event to be held in this Lake Huron town which launched it as "Young Canada Week" through the efforts of a small group of sportsmen.

A total of 74 teams and more than 1,200 players from local provinces are taking part.

The "big city" teams do not see action until Wednesday. Coming the longest distance is the entry of St. John's, Nfld.

PUT UP IN HOMES

It is a full program for the youngsters, with play on some days starting at 8:30 a.m. and the last contest at 9 p.m.

But the boys love it and Goderich has a mardi gras spirit. The great majority of the players are being billeted in Goderich homes, with some householders taking in a whole busload of players overnight.

In the C series opener Friday, it was a battle between several western Ontario towns.

The scores:

Stratford 3, Port Dover 2; Forest 3, Durham 1; Milverton 2 Southampton 0; Mitchell 4 New Hamburg 3; Goderich 5 Wingham 4; Clinton 4 Exeter 2; Mitchell 1 Milverton 1.

Stratford's overtime game under tourney rules because it had the most shots on goal, 14-11.

New Contender For Featherweight Title in Hamia

By MURRAY ROSE

NEW YORK (AP)—The feather weight division has a fine new contender in baby-faced Cherif Hamia of Oran, Algeria, Friday night's over Carmelo Costa.

The 25-year-old Parisian with the choir-boy looks and a zest for fighting made a hit in his U.S. debut with a split decision victory.

It was a narrow win, the way officials saw it, but the fast, hard-hitting Hamia captivated the slim crowd of 1,500 with his brisk, aggressive style against the flitting 21-year-old Brooklynite.

Hamia slaughtered Costa three times, in the second, third and eighth rounds, and made his early lead stand up. Ranked eighth until Friday, Hamia stretched his unbeaten string to 19 fights while snapping Costa's own undefeated string at seven. Costa is ranked third.

THOUGHT HE WON

Costa thought he won but admitted the Frenchman had a powerful right. It was the right that enabled Hamia to stagger his shorter rival although he scored often and well with left jabs and hooks. A series of rights shook Costa in the second and third and a right in the eighth hit Costa like a delayed bomb. About a second after he was nailed, his knees started to buckle. Hamia belted him to the ropes but the bell saved the stricken favorite. Costa was a 9-5 favorite.

Referee Al Berl and judge Joe Eppy each scored for Hamia 5-4-1. Judge Jack Gordon had it 5-4-1 for Costa.

A natural featherweight, Hamia weighed 126½ to Costa's 130. Hamia's record now is 24-1-1, Costa's 29-3-4.

OPEN SEMI-FINAL

WOODSTOCK (CP) — A three-goal, third period spurt Friday night gave Woodstock Athletics an 8-4 win over Hamilton Kerrios in the first game of the best-of-seven Ontario Hockey Association Senior B semi-finals.

OUST ONTARIO CHAMPS

KITCHENER (CP)—A goal by right winger Wayne Hartwig at 15:20 of the overtime period gave Kitchener All-Stars 7-6 victory over St. Catharines Bisons here Thursday night and ended St. Kitts' 13-year reign as Ontario Juvenile hockey champions.

Solmar Notes

Insect Sprays Affect Fish

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT
(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solmar Tables)

The evidence which has been and is being collected concerning the effects of insecticides and herbicides on wildlife is still somewhat inconclusive. However, the reports come in all inglications point strongly to the next certain step for more positive control of spraying operations than exist at present.

As matters now stand, anybody can go to the nearest seed store—and buy spraying material. Then he can go out and spray all outdoors as he sees fit. Sometimes spraying is done wisely; sometimes it is not. When sprays are used by people who don't know their business, then wildlife is the sufferer.

When things go wrong, as they do all too often, the farmer is in a shrug off the damage as being unfortunate but not vital. All too few of us look at the cumulative effect which, when added up for the whole year, and does run into serious figures.

Consider, for example, an item from Ontario's Forest and Outdoors. It says, in part: "While no conclusive proof of the damage as yet, although it will be this year, indications are that forestry spraying with D.D.T. dons have a devastating effect on young salmon. Investigations in the spraying areas were sections of the Northwest Miramichi and Dungarvon Rivers in New Brunswick. Fingerlings were virtually absent two months later in these streams.

FARE REDUCED

Small parr were reduced to one-sixth the 1953 level on the North west Miramichi and one-tenth on the Dungarvon and large parr were only two-thirds as abundant on the Southwest Miramichi as during the previous years, whereas they were almost absent on the Dungarvon. Most of the immature stages of all kinds of aquatic insects were killed in the spraying waters. These insects are the main food items for young salmon."

With this comes another report, this one from Roger Tomlin, a Toronto writer and conservationist. Coincidental with heavy spraying, he says, the Miramichi and its salmon batch decimated this year, the critical period for Massachusetts waters and dead white-bait floated in by the ball-full, the rail bird population of some of the favorite marshes dropped off, all completely coincidental with the time mosquito spraying. The rest of the large-scale destroyers are equally well-known and are easily easy to tie in with present day fish and game shortage."

MOSQUITOS IMMUNE

Still a third report comes to hand, within the same month, this one from Florida. The writer is Maurice B. Provost of Jacksonville, tells of the only partially effective in the mosquito control in the east.

"Promotionists may tell us and tell everybody that mosquitoes control will make Florida an even better vacation. But there's an old story about a certain goose having laid a golden egg which apparently record generations of Americans have never heard.

"Such a report may sound caustic to those for whom they were admittedly meant to be so, but to the majority of Floridians they is a re solely words of warning. One of the reasons America is great is that this is one country where almost anything can be done—for a price. But the real price is too often something far more valuable than money: the natural resources which are the one and only God-given, material inheritance of generations unborn.

The price of too many industrial and commercial expansions in Florida has been pollution of waters of great importance to industries and communities. Here is the goose and here is the egg. In like manner, the price of mosquito control can be the pollution of both land and water, for insecticides used excessively are, in every sense of the word, pollutants.

Of course, the manufacturers of poison sprays assure us that these things have little threat to the welfare of wild-life. That one is difficult to accept. There is just too much smoke there is bound to be some fire and even a little in the wrong place is far, far too much."

The fault is completely of the "scuttlebutt" variety that it is unwise at present to name names or places. However, there seems to be enough truth in the rumor that it is worth while passing it along as little food for thought.

Reasonably reliable sources state with some likelihood that a stretch of more than a mile of the Big Salmon River in Kent county for 200 for Nashua last December, declared the four-year-old out of the 1-16 mile Campbell. A victory would have been worth much more than the $45,345 Nashua needs to beat Citation's record of $1,085,760 as the top earner of all time.

Combs told Bowie officials from Kentucky his reason for declaring Nashua from the Campbell is that the colt is a "poor shipper." Nashua is at Aqueduct track in New York, is due to arrival from Florida where he finished a shocking fifth in the $100,000 handicap March 17.

Nashua's next chances are the $25,000 Excelsior Handicap April 14 and the $50,000 Grey Lag Handicap April 28 at Jamaica in New York. But trainer Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons said the colt was not definitely when his next start will be."

Pollution is taking its toll . . . while channels are being changed by the dredgers, through agricultural practices and flood control . . . streams are being completely ruined for all fishing purposes . . . or flooded by impoundments . . . their vital cover is being destroyed through brush clearing for cultivation, grazing, or lumbering . . . long as we continue to preserve its aquatic habitat, the state will enjoy excellent fishing. When the habitat is gone, there will be no more fishing . . .

Always it is distressing to find wildlife and natural resources bowing out in favor of private and individual enterprise. Here's hoping that Ontario citizens face facts and take prompt action before further damage is done. Or later years it has been rather conclusively proven that a good trout stream is literally more valuable than anything on or in the land through which it flows.

SAILFISH DERBY

No doubt you have seen the published results of the annual Silver Streak Sailfish Derby. The contest ended last February 11th and thus does not come under the head of "What I Am Thankful For" however, and this holds good for any fish, the larger the prize record and for the number of released fish.

Of the 1,000 sailfish tagged, booked and landed during the 28-day tournament was 626. Of these 626 sailfish brought in were by the cruisers and then released to be caught and another day—a record release average of 81 per cent.

This new release record is a splendid commentary on the earnestness and sincerity of men and women who competed in this tournament. Time was—and not so long ago either—when the prize sailfish was were brought in to the dock, hung up for display and photographed, and then allowed to rot on the ash.

Now it is indeed a welcome indication of general conservation-mindedness that the sailfish contest is on preservation of fish instead of killing for display purposes. Warmest congratulations are in order both to the tournament directors and the participants.

MONTANA FISHING

Not so long ago Montana was considered by many anglers to be the "Mecca" of trout fishing, particularly trout fishing. Today its status is somewhat changed.

Only a few years ago a certain angler of New York City made his annual pilgrimage to the Jamieson trout waters of the lower Madison River. Jamieson is a good fish and big trout and in that river he found king - size brownies in quantities which were astonishing. He killed very few but he hooked and released many trouble busters in astonishing numbers.

Now he no longer journeys to Montana. He says that these astonishing daily expectancy was two or three fish per day rounds up to be lucky by the best he can produce is a limited supply of two-pounders. Thus, he fishes elsewhere.

VANISHING FISH

That Montana residents are aware of this decline is attested by an article in the winter issue of Montana Wildlife. The article states, in part: "Montana's best waters are gradually disappearing.

Nashua Declared Out of $100,000 Bowie Handicap

BOWIE, Md. (AP) — Nashua's next try to become the world's leading money-winning horse has been uncertain by a rather unexpected decision of his owners to keep him out of the $100,000 added Campbell Handicap at Bowie a week from today.

Matchmaker Bob McCoy Taken Over Coals in Testimony

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Southern California's boxing czar died down today in the wake of a searching investigation that saw matchmaker Babe McCoy of Los Angeles taken over the coals in much of the testimony.

The hearings will be resumed in about two weeks in San Francisco, with northern California under scrutiny, James J. Cox, chief investigator said the purpose of the committee's report should be ready for the middle of May.

Jack Hanna, director of the California department of professional and vocational standards, is the key man to watch. He said he will put into execution whatever the committee recommends. If he finds the state professional code has been violated by any of the licencees, the licence will be revoked.

The only source of appeal is to a man who started the investigation in the first place, Governor Goodwin J. Knight.

The first Saturday Friday were enlivened by sharp exchanges between Cox, McCoy and McCoy's lawyer, Jake Ehrlich of San Francisco.

Also presented in testimony were:

McCoy's acknowledgment that over a five-year span he earned approximately $100,000 as a partner in a wrestling booking agency with Toots Mondt in handling Primo Carnera, former heavyweight boxing champion.

McCoy's admission that Frankie Carbo, a New Yorker who has figured in many boxing investigations, is a "good friend" of certain Los Angeles gambler, said that he has been in his home.

McCoy's insistance that he never had any dealings with either of the late Bugsy Siegel.

McCoy's arrest and conviction in two cases of draft in New York and the fact that the court suspended punishment both times.

McCoy's reminder that this happened 26 years ago when he was 20 and his last such recollection that after the second case he skipped $1,000 bail and came to Los Angeles.

McCoy's statement that while he was arrested and tried, he was acquitted here in 1942 on a charge of receiving stolen property.

Gayle Talbot Dies Suddenly Of Heart Attack

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—Gayle Talbot, who wrote Sports Roundup for The Associated Press, died Thursday night following a heart attack in the lobby of a Tampa hotel. He was 54.

Talbot, who began writing the sports column in 1952 after 26 years with The AP, was born on a semi-vacation begun following an attack he suffered last August.

He had been thought to be recovering satisfactorily.

Talbot, born April 17, 1901 at Slidell, Tex., was a member of a newspaper family. Prior to joining The AP at Dallas in 1938, he had helped his father publish weekly newspapers at Lometa and Milford, Tex.

He also published a newspaper alone for one year and spent four years with the San Antonio Light, handling local news and sports.

With The Associated Press in New York, he specialized in baseball, but also handled other assignments, before being named feature service sports editor Sept. 12, 1952.

Nearly two years later, he was transferred to London, where he covered all of Europe's major sports events.

After taking over the Sports Roundup he became one of the most widely read columnists in the U.S. and Canada.

LOVERS SNIPED

DONCASTER, Eng. (Reuters)—Two soccer players were injured when Friday lovers threw arrows at them by spectators at the English Second Division match between Doncaster Rovers and Liverpool.

Both played for Doncaster Rovers. They are not seriously hurt. Both players had to receive attention for cuts on the knees. Later, three table knives were found by police on the field.

Doncaster beat Liverpool 1-0.

AT THE BELLE — Richard Burton makes a romantic Indian physician who wins the love of Lana Turner, but "The Rains of Ranchipur" have yet to speak. Co-starred in the CinemaScope color drama now at the Belle are Fred MacMurray, Michael Rennie and Joan Caulfield.

AT THE CAPITOL — Kirk Douglas, one of the most romantic figures on the screen, charms a pet seal in a rollicking sequence in Walt Disney's "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea" opening Sunday midnight after 12.05 at the Capitol Theatre. The CinemaScope-Technicolor production marks Kirk's first film appearance as a singer; the first time he has ever gone into a clinch with a seal; the first time he was ever turned into a thatch-headed blond; and the first time he has ever appeared under the Walt Disney banner. James Mason, Paul Lukas and Peter Lorre also star in the Buena Vista release which Richard Fleischer directed from Earl Felton's screenplay. On the same program in CinemaScope "The Purple Mask", starring Tony Curtis and Colleen Miller. Regular engagement starts Monday afternoon at 2.00 p.m. Matinees daily during the Easter vacation.

WAS RACING EDITOR

NEW YORK (AP)—Henry V. King, 73, racing editor of the New York Sun from 1923 to 1950 when it was sold and merged with the New York World-Telegram, died Friday.

At The McCarthy

For a study in utter relaxation, gaze upon the serene countenance of one of the busiest guys in show business — bespectacled Steve Allen, co-star with Donna Reed of Universal-International's Technicolor musical biography, "The Benny Goodman Story," opening Monday at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre.

Enshrined on endless projects, each with its own set of complications, the noted TV star took completely in his stride his coup in winning the title role in what is considered to be the top musical film of the year.

In video, where his prowess with the ad-lib rapidly sent him to the big-time, he long has had the reputation of being television's most relaxed personality.

"Why, he's so calm and unexcitable," observed Judy Holliday after appearing with him on a recent program. "But it actually makes me nervous."

Looking in on the set of "The Benny Goodman Story," when the Technicolor cameras weren't turning, you would probably have found Allen casually listening to a batch of new jazz recordings in the privacy of his dressing room.

Then seemingly completely unaware that each evening, at the end of his day's work on the sound stages, he still had to undertake what for many would be a full-sized job in itself — his five-night-a-week network show, "Tonight."

"Sure, I used to be nervous," says Allen. "When I first started out in show business my heart used to pump and my knees used to bang so hard it sounded like a ring on special rubber pads to work like a metronome."

Allen points out that he had to overcome his nervousness as a matter of necessity.

"It was either that," he elucidates, "or get out of the business. And I still like to eat."

SHOT TO DEATH

HAMILTON (CP) — A 16-year-old youth was accidentally shot to death Friday while hunting with a chum.

John Richard Whalley of Hamilton was shot in the head when a .22-calibre rifle held by his 14-year-old companion was fired. The boy's name was not available.

$200,000 FIRE

TORONTO (CP)—Loss in a fire that swept through a converted barn housing a mail order business at nearby Richmond Hill Friday was estimated at $200,000. Firemen worked for 3½ hours to put the blaze under control.

TO DIRECT MOTORISTS

PARIS (Reuters)—Radio newsreel reporters will give minute-by-minute traffic information to Parisians for three hours on Easter Monday from airplane to car radio. They will fly over the capital and broadcast alternative routes to motorists below wherever they see a traffic jam.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

For Saturday, March 31, 1956

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Review some of your daily habits. For instance, are you getting healthy exercise regularly, or just now and then? Keep eyes and ears open also to spot possible advantageous changes.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Don't put off until the last minute, then rush. This procedure is not only inefficient but wears down health and others' patience. Eat sensibly.

May 23 to June 21 (Gemini) — You can do much today to help secure your future in truly substantial ways. Get into action early and move forward with confidence.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Don't "split hairs" in those discussions which can evolve into serious differences. If you have a complaint, put it squarely but politely "before the board."

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Lean not too far in any direction lest you fall. It's a day for careful plans, sound precautions, but not superfulness. Let Leo's natural humor shine.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — Today's always a bright side. Don't leave it up to someone else to point it out. Search for it yourself and the day will be fuller, more satisfying. Smile; pray.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Consider how the other fellow might take that critical remark before you make it. Some suggestions help; others should wait; still others must be re-worded or even deleted. Point up logic.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — It's a better day than you may think at first. Start differentiating early, concentrate on the good things and put aside time-wasters.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius) — Splendid possibilities in the unusual, the out-of-the-ordinary. With a desire to discover new, better ways to do things you can start out on a new and better course. Romance favored.

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn) — Stand solidly behind your principles as you may be approached by questionable contacts. Stress your good points, best qualities: they are bound to win, get top results.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) — Stimulating influences should be an incentive to do your best now. Draw conclusions carefully. Don't hesitate to ask assistance or to advance your ideas.

February 19 to March 20 (Pisces) — Friendliness and generosity of heart bring many blessings, and they are yours by nature. But you must guard against those who would impose, and avoid wrong stimulations, too.

You born today are perceptive, full of vitality, usually self-assertive. A willing helper, a stimulus to worthy causes. Mentally alert, you have the courage of your convictions. Likely faults: impetuosity, changeability, quick temper, over-possessiveness where loved ones are concerned. Once you recognize your faults and live on the highest plane, developing your many abilities, there is little difficulty for you and you can achieve as a steady habit. Pray for direction, inner calm. Birthdate of: Rene Descartes, Fr. philosopher; Joseph Haydn, Austrian composer; Edw. Fitzgerald, translator of the Rubaiyat.

Record Attendance Watches Dunlops Win 6-5, Even Series

Playing before an all-time attendance mark of 4,900 at the Kingston Community Centre, the Whitby Dunlops staved off a 3rd-period rally to nip the Goodyears 6-5 and even their four-of-seven OHA Eastern Ontario Senior "B" group final series at two games each.

The fifth game of the series is scheduled for Whitby tonight with the sixth in Kingston on Monday evening. To date neither team has managed a win at home in the series. Every game so far has been a thriller and this, coupled with the holiday accounted for the 4,900 paying customers. The previous attendance high was 4,807.

Whitby grabbed an early lead in this one and never trailed. They led 2-0 in the first, 4-3 in the second and were in front 5-2 before Les Douglas' charges took fire at 13.14 of the third.

Tom O'Connor had upped the margin at 2.33 of the third for Whitby. The visitors had outplayed Kingston completely in the first two sessions, a 13-9 spread on shots in the first and 12-8 in the second.

Starry George MacGregor put the Goodies on the scoreboard first at 13.41 to cut the margin to 5-3. Then Gregory got them back at 18.31 but Denny Murray clicked at 18.55. Coach Douglas promptly pulled goalie Deraney from the nets for an extra attacker and at 19.41 George Samolenko brought the crowd to its feet with Kingston's fifth goal. With the faceoff at centre Deraney returned to the nets and Whitby held on for the victory.

NO DOUBLE SCORERS

Six players scored for Whitby with Bobby Attersley again leading the way with a goal and two helpers, while Bus Gagnon had one and one. Ted DeGray, Tom O'Connor, Neil Attersley and Sandy Alexander also scored. Joe Levandoski was top point man at Kingston with three goals, including two in the third heat. Don Bellringer, Don Sinclair and George MacGregor each fired a goal and one assist, while Ted Toppazzini assisted on two. Don Murray and George MacGregor were the other scorers.

Kingston had a 13-10 edge on shots in the final twenty minutes.

Referees Bruce Duffey and Andy Bellemer handed out eight minor penalties in all with the loser's drawing five.

1. Whitby—Al (Ritcher) .. 6.32

Good Memories Given Credit For Detroit Win

DETROIT (CP) —The Detroit Red Wings gave good memories much of the credit for their Stanley Cup semi-final victory over Toronto Thursday night.

It was again a matter of fighting back and, for the fourth time in five games the Red Wings were able to do it.

The goal that made it a 3-1 tie in the first period was all-important. It turned out to be the one 14th Stanley Cup finals.

Two Red Wing players described it in the dressing room after the 3-1 win over the Leafs:

I didn't have time to look up, but I knew someone was supposed to be there—and on that line was Alex Delvecchio, who scored the first two Detroit goals.

$1,000 GAME

Delvecchio gave Howe much of the credit.

"All I had time to do was to flip the puck. I didn't even get a good piece of it."

Another Detroit veteran, Ted Lindsay, was equally brief in the mull:

"It's a thousand dollar game," he yelled. That's what it means to the players—and the non-fans face Montreal in the "big" battle.

Coach Jimmy Skinner and general manager Jack Adams were on the quiet side. They conceded it had been a rough week—especially the way the Wings had to come from behind in the games.

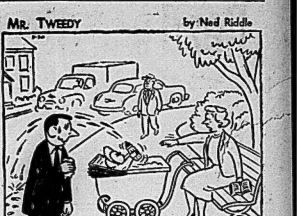
Adams: "We have been fighting back. This team was real tough for us—a good scrappy bunch that doesn't know when to quit—we never had a chance to relax."

Rocky Marciano Is Considering Quitting Ring

RIO de JANEIRO (AP)—Heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano acknowledged Friday he is considering retirement from the ring but said he will give himself six months to think it over.

"It's a tough decision to make," the champion added. "And I won't make it here. There's no time limit. I'll make my decision no more. When and if I decide, the announcement will come from my manager, A. Neill."

In this way, Marciano sought to smother rumors that there was a rift between him and his longtime manager.



"Neill and I are still on good terms," said Marciano. "A lot of people would like to see us break up, but we are not about to do it!"
